ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER THREE—BIDDY HEN AND THE GOBLIN

Mrs. Bunny wasn't a bit cross because Mister Tingaling and the Twins had broken into her house, as you might say.

Indeed she and Mister Bunny and her sister-in-law all had a good laugh, and it ended up in the visitors being invited to stay to lunch.

Mrs. Bunny set three more places, and that made six of them.

The Twins thought they wouldn't care for carrot-pie, but really it tasted almost like pumpkin-pie. And as for plantain-seed cookies, you hardly could tell them from caraway.

They talked about the bad little goblin, Snitcher Snatch, and his relations, the Gazookumses.

"Itell you what, Mister Tingaling," said Mister Bunny as he lighted a cigar after lunch and tilted his chair back comfortably, "you'll have to watch out for those young rascals. That Snitcher Snatch would do almost anything."

"Listen!" said Mrs. Bunny suddenly. "That sounds like Biddy Hen clucking out there. What's she doing away over in these woods, I'd like to know. She belongs over in the barnyard."

Nancy ran over to Mrs. Bunny's dining room window. I did tell you, didn't I, that their magic shoes made the Twins so tiny they could even have gone into a mouse-hole, had they wished?

"Yes, it is Biddy Hen," she said. "And there's someone beside her. Oh, I do believe it's the bad little goblin himself. Yes, sir! It's Snitcher Snatch"

They all rushed to the window of Mrs. Bunny's house in the pine-tree stump and peeped from behind the curtain.

And this is what they saw and heard.

Biddy Hen was saying, "Cluck-a-luck! Cluck-a-luck! I'm looking for a new house, so I can make a nest that Farmer Greenway won't find."

"I know the very place you wish, Madam," Snitcher Snatch replied, not knowing, of course, that anyone except Mrs. Hen was listening. "I know a fine place for a nest. I have a house in a big hollow log, behind some bushes, that is for rent right now, and you can have it if you pay me two eggs a week."

"Is it your house? Are you the landlord?" asked Biddy Hen happily. "I'll be most happy to look at it."

"Yes, these are all my houses," said the bad little goblin, waivng his hand around in a wide sweep. I am the landlord and you may pay me your rent in eggs. I'm very fond of eggs. Do you leave home often, Mrs. Hen?"

"No, not when I'm setting," said poor Biddy Hen. "I'm afraid my eggs will get cold and not hatch. I just leave my nest about three times a day for a short time, to scratch around for bugs and food."

"Just when do you leave home?" asked the bad little goblin. "Maybe I could come and look at your eggs while you're away, so as to be perfectly sure they are safe."

"That's very kind of you, I'm sure," said Mrs. Hen. "If you'll just show me the place now, I think I'll rent it."

But just then a gust of wind came along and blew off the little goblin's hat. And Mrs. Hen saw his pointed ears!"

"Cluck-a-luck! Get out of here!" she cried crossly. "You're a cheat!" And she made a dive at him with her beak.

But Snitcher Snatch scooted off and disappeared among the bushes.

"Well, the very idea!" exclaimed Mister Tingaling.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A Florida reader asks for an article on acute indigestion. He calls attention to three recent newspaper references to sudden deaths from what he describes as a "mysterious ailment." He speaks of it as being "as fatal as prussic acid and as quick."

My correspondent is disturbed because his doctor has told him there is no such disease as acute indigestion, saying it is really a form of "botulism." The Floridian says the term botulism does not enlighten him, but he does know that several personal friends, apparently in perfect health, were dead in a few hours after being attacked.

Then comes an appeal to be told what acute indigestion is and why it is. He wants to know how to avoid it and what to do for it when attacked.

My impression is my correspondent has in mind cases of food poisoning, rather than acute indigestion, as we understand the latter. He is asking about what is popularly, although improperly, known as "ptomaine poisoning."

In such attacks of food poisoning some outside substance, something entirely unsuited for food purposes, has been taken into the stomach Sometimes the poison is the natural ingredient of the thing eaten. In other instances the poison is the result of germ action.

Poisoning from inedible mushrooms is an example of one kind of attack. Meat poisoned by germ action is the other sort.

Putrefaction of meat from the colon bacillus or some other germ may produce a condition of the food which is capable of causing the most violent symptoms. Diarrhoea, vomiting, intense suffering and prostration may be followed by death within a few hours. Cheese or milk poisoning is similar in cause and results.

Botulism is a serious thing. It is due to the infection of the food by the "bacillus botulinus." This can be traced back to canned vegetables of some sort. Botulism requires several days, usually, to produce its fatal end.

These are some of the causes of death which may be classified by some as "acute indigestion." Added to a natural aversion possessed by some individuals to certain foods, it gives us the underlying factors in these unfortunate cases.

To avoid poisoning of this kind it is necessary to make sure that all your food shall come from approved sources. The official authorities are guarding us against food contamination. Meat and milk, particularly, since they may be the source of such trouble, are given special attention.

The first thing to do in an attack is to empty the stomach. There should be no delay in this. Weak mustard solution or strong salt solution will produce vomiting. If the doctor can be reached he will wash out the stomach. But, above all else, the stomach and bowels should be emptied.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MRS. W. B. M. Q.—About a week ago, while sewing at a machine, the needle hit a button, breaking off and going into my chest. It did not bother me in any way, but now I feel something sticking me under the left breast. Do you think it could be the needle?

A.—I would suggest that you have your doctor examine you and this way whatever treatment you need can be definitely advised.

A. E. S. Q.—What do you advise for oily skin?

A.—Try using hot and cold applications for 15 minutes night and morning. This should help.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS MEETS A BUSY LITTLE WORKER

When the winged insect circled near Doris's golden curls she gave a cry of alarm and threw her hat into the air at the insect.

"I might have known I'd miss you," she laughed.

"I'm glad you did," whispered a tiny voice, and Doris turned around to see Squeedee, the wee elfin from Joyland smiling at her. "I'd hate to see you catch Mrs. Wasp under that hat of yours."

"Wasp, did you say?" Doris asked, shivering. "Goodness! I'm afraid of wasps. If I had known that was a wasp I'd have yelled louder than I did."

"How foolish," buzzed a tiny voice, and Mrs. Wasp, seeing Squeedee talking to Doris, circled around and came back settling on a leaf right near Doris. "That's such a funny idea you children have. I never sting people unless they first molest me, do I, Squeedee?"

"No, you don't," replied the elfin. "Doris, I want you to meet Mrs. Wasp. I'm sure if you knew what a busy little lady she is you'd never try to hit her with your hat."

"Busy," mused Mrs. Wasp. "I should say I am busy. I've made paper today until I'm almost dead."

"Made paper?" cried Doris. "How did you make paper?"

"The only way a wasp can make paper," replied Mrs. Wasp, winking at Squeedee. "I took bits of the old fence rail here and chewed it up into a pulp. You see, from this pulp I have to fashion my nest. Haven't you ever seen one of our nests?"

"Goodness, no!" Doris replied. "I've always hated wasps so much I never would let one of you get near me."

"I Knew I'd Miss You."

"Too bad," agreed Squeedee. "I'm glad I happened along when I did. I'm sure that you will find that Mrs. Wasp has something else to do besides stinging little children. Come along, we'll go with you, Mrs. Wasp." Catching hold of Doris's hand, he jumped with her upon Mrs. Wasp's back, and away they flew to her lovely nest, swung high in the branches of a tree.

"When I put that nest there the pulp was soft and wet," chuckled Mrs. Wasp. "But the wind and sun has dried it out until it's just like paper now. This is my first attempt at building. I have filled every cell in it with worker eggs, and——"

"Worker Eggs?" questioned Doris "What do you mean by that, Mrs. Wasp? I hope I'm not rude in asking?"

"Worker eggs are the eggs containing nothing but working wasps," replied Mrs. Wasp. "The first nest of a wasp is always filled with worker eggs. When they are hatched like all wasps' eggs, they bring forth little white larvae. After three weeks these larvae shut themselves up in silken covers and then, in about nine days, they come out lovely wasps, ready for work.

"After that these workers do all my building, or rather, they help me, while I keep on laying eggs. You see, the females live through the winter the males all die. Next fall, if you happen by this way, stop and see my family. I'll have at least a thousand living here."

Doris promised, and, bidding Squeedee and Mrs. Wasp good-by, she hurried off to school. Her class-mates were all astonished when she told her teacher what she had just learned about the little paper maker.

CUTICURA HEALS ECZEMA IN RASH

On Scalp. Later on Limbs. Caused Much Suffering.

"I had eczema which made its appearance on my scalp in a rash. It itched terribly and when I scratched it, blisters broke out. Later the eczema broke out on my limbs, which were badly swollen and very red. It kept me awake at night and caused much pain and suffering. When I washed or went near the hot stove it was very painful.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more and in two or three months I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Emma C. Gibson, R. 1, Box 71, Island Pond, Vt., Oct. 26, 1925.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin.
—Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute.
—Milton.

Footloose: You have great vitality and a healthy temperament, capable of much mental and physical endurance. You were born to engage in pursuits of a mental or scientific type, but I do not think you have carried out your destiny, hence there is a good deal of restlessness and dissatisfaction in your make-up. Of course, you are the type that is usually restless and unsatisfied anyway, but you would be less so if you were exercising your brain powers to a greater extent. You have a great deal of understanding and sympathy when it is aroused, but at most times, you regard your own affairs as of primary importance, putting them first before those of anyone else. You are quite magnetic and have a certain degree of control over the minds of others but very little over your own impulses. You are capable of doing much if you could just be induced to stick at any one thing long enough. You do not like mantal labour, and are rather impatient of results. You have an under current of strong sentiment in your nature that you are ashamed of.

You were born on Tuesday. The date you ask about is past. Your colors are opals ahd tans.

May: You live in the realm of the emotions rather than in that of the intellect and reasoning powers. Your treatment of others depend rather on your mood and feeling at the time than upon any fixed regard, hence, you are not always reliable or steadfast. You are, however, quite loyal to your friends, sometimes too much so, and are very fond of good living. You have quite a determined, stubborn nature and a good fight is the spice of life to you. As your husband has rather a peace-loving disposition, you probably rule him to a great extent, and this is all right as long as you remember that you are not always perfectly correct in your thinking, which is influenced so much by your emotions and feelings. You should be very careful of your neck and throat, to guard them from diseases to which they are subject.

You were born on Tuesday. The date you enquire about is past. Your colors are shades of tan and buff.

Law: You have a jovial, free and friendly disposition, and have strong intuitions, which you should mostly follow, except when you are in a temper. You are naturally kind and loving, but, being quite emotional, are liable to be sensitive on points of honor and to be sulky when offended. You can readily learn anything you set your mind to, being especially handy in mechanical matters. Fits of energy alternate with you in fits of laziness, in which you do not want to bestir yourself at all. You are fond of rich, highly seasoned foods, and will suffer much in later life unless you curb this liking in your youth. You should try to learn the value of silence, the control of your temper, and the habit of refraining from impulsive actions. Do not marry young, as you are liable to make a mistake in your choice. Marry a girl born in September, October or December. You would make a good broker or cashier, but, in any event, strive to learn and then develop your own particular talents and make them your stock in trade. You were born on Tuesday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are tans and buffs.

C. S. W.: Your life, if you follow out your destiny, will not be marred by conflicting currents. You were born with a great deal of physical strength and tenacity, which, if undeveloped, will make you pugnacious, coarse and material, and the only way in which you can achieve success is by everlastingly plugging away at your job, by hard work. Although you have a great variety of disposition, your usual bearing is modest and retiring and you have rather a conservative cast of mind. You always wish to finish things in a careful, competent and conclusive manner. Guard against anger at all times, as, when enraged, you have a habit of being cutting in your speech. You are a lover of the beautiful and luxurious things of life. As you are destined to be a worker, you should take stock of yourself at this early age and determine what you wish to be, so that your labour will bring you enough returns to enable you to enjoy the fine things your nature craves for and should have. In the buying and selling of commodities, you would have remarkable success, but, in educational matters, you are well adapted to the study of languages and also of music. You would make a good real estate dealer. Avoid too much excitement, which you are fond of. Marry a girl born in February, May, August or March. August and December are your good months, Friday your good day. You were born on Wednesday. Your colors are blue and cream. The day you ask about, a Tuesday, is one for obeying instructions from superiors.

M. I. G.: You are very fond of outdoor sports and of horses and you have a frankness of speech and manner that sometimes gets you into difficulties with friends. Naturally, you have a leaning toward mental and scientific pursuits but your life, to be successful, must be one of service to others. You make a good nurse. Always rely upon your own impressions, instead of the advice of others, but do not put so much faith in signs, symbols and dreams. You have the admirable faculty of keeping a secret. You are quick to observe, to plan, and to do, and make small allowance for those less gifted in such practical respects. Being over-zealous in any cause you espouse, you are liable to overtax your strength, although you are one of the strongest types of person. You may suffer from varicose veins in later life, if you are not careful. You were born on Monday. The date you enquire about is past. Your colors are tans and buffs.

CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

BOSTON, Mass., April 1.—Because of the slippery going a local street car was held up twice by flivvers stalling on the track. Upon the third occasion, the conductor yelled to the motorman:

"What's the matter now, Mike?"

"O, just another one of Henry Ford's fiddlers tuning up on our track."

FAMOUS FORTUNES

JOHN HENRY PATTERSON—THE FATHER OF THE CASH REGISTER

In pioneer days the Pattersons settled on a 2,000 acre farm, near Dayton, Ohio. There John Henry Patterson was born in 1844. Little did his parents guess that he would one day be known as "the father of the cash register," and owner of one of the greatest industrial plants in the world located right on their land.

In those days a farm was not worth what it is today but still they were able to put John Henry through Dartmouth College, which gave him a flying start in life. But the lad never dreamed of high financial flights when he took his first job as toll-collector on the Miami and Erie Canal. It was not what he wanted, of course, but it would give him time to get his worldly bearings; it would bring food and clothes. Frequent arguments with the canal boat captains originated the plan of giving each one a receipt. At first, as a mere matter of business precaution; that receipt idea resulted in the founding of what has become one of the world's finest industrial plants, the National Cash register, with a capitalization of $20,000,000.

The plant's equipment is valued at $7,268,124 and its annual output at $30,000,000. It covers 140 acres of land, and its 23 buildings, with a floor space of 50 acres, are the last word in convenience, comfort and safety. All machines are guarded by safety devices; the air in all the buildings is changed every 15 minutes. The surroundings are so beautiful and the working conditions so pleasant and congenial that no employee ever wants to leave.

The company now has factories in every part of the world, employing more than 8,000 people. There is an average monthly output of 6,000 machines besides the supplies.

Jacob Rittery first conceived the idea of the cash register in 1879 and built the first machine of its kind.

Patterson, then in the coal, iron and mercantile business, bought two of them. And perhaps because they were such clumsy, inadequate things he determined to build a better one. He bought the rights of the original in 1888, then began manufacturing his own machines.

Though a decided improvement, it lacked the cash drawers, the adding wheels and the receipt-printing device it has today. But that receipt idea, like Banquo's ghost, "would not down," and Patterson kept on experimenting.

Then he courageously faced ruin when $50,000 worth of the cash registers were turned back upon his hands, and set to work in earnest to perfect his machine. It finally reached such a degree of perfection that Patterson was satisfied.

His mind ever fixed on the big receipt idea, coupled with pluck and perseverance, resulted in one of the most phenomenal successes the industrial world has ever known. There is not an up-to-date business of any kind throughout the civilized world that does not use the cash register. It is a lasting memorial to John Henry Patterson, who died in 1922.

His son, F. B. Patterson, succeeded him as president of the company.

Today's Fashion

By Vera Winston

This Spring Nightgown Is Made of White Batiste and Irish Lace.

Many smart women prefer to wear batiste nightgowns when the weather grows warmer, as a change from the crepes and crepes de Chine of cooler weather.

The model above is a very lovely affair of white batiste and Irish lace, which could be copied easily by the woman who sews at home.

Notice the long armholes, which allow for extra coolness. The gown would also be pretty in any delicately tinted batiste, with the white Irish lace for contrast.

LAND OF CHEER

The trail that leads to the land of cheer is an easy road to find. There's nary a soul who is living here who needs to be left behind.

If you blaze your way with a thousand smiles and can fill the air with song, you can travel on through the happy miles and join with the laughing throng.

Your life's too short for the solemn side, and you lose your pep when blue. Hop on to the smile ship and take a ride, if your spirit can carry you through.

Be friendly with folk whom you meet each day and put out the glad hand strong. Remember that life is a portion play. When you make it all work, you're wrong.

Fall into line while the fallin's good. Take the tip while your chance is here. Be a good scout, 'cause you know you should. You'll land in the land of cheer.

OMEMEE SPORTS ON 24TH OF MAY

Athletic Association Free of Debt With $180 Balance.

ANNUAL MEETING.

OMEMEE, April 1.—The annual meeting of the Omemee Athletic Association was held Monday, March 29, with a much larger attendance than usual. All reports showed that a very successful year had just closed. The treasurer, Horace Hill, gave a glowing report of the finances and all members present were delighted to hear that the Athletic Park is free of debt and the association has now a balance on hand of $180.00.

The executive committee was recommended to consider the matter of putting a drain through the park and do some levelling.

The secretary, S. J. Mackey, reported that since the last annual meeting the association has become incorporated.

It was decided to have a Field Day on May 24th as has been the custom for a number of years and a concert committee was named to prepare a home talent entertainment for the night performance.

Representatives were present from football and softball clubs and asked to become affiliated with the Association, so as soon as the Park is in condition, practice will commence.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—H. Lamb.
Vice President—R. Bradley.
Secretary—S. J. Mackey.
Treasurer—Horace Hill.
Auditors—G. D. Gowans, L. A. Southworth.

MANAGER JOB FOR MARQUARD

Veteran Rube Will Guide the Destinies of Providence This Season.

NEW YORK, April 1—Another of John McGraw's pupils has stepped to the fore as a manager. This time it is Rube Marquard, who is guiding the destinies this season of Providence.

Rube's team faced curve pitching for the first time the other day when it played the Boston Nationals down here in the spring training country. Providence made a more creditable showing against Boston than the St. Louis Browns made and that tickled Rube no end.

The high light of that Boston game was the fact that Marquard himself was on the firing line for Providence. There he stood on the pitcher's rubber, a perfect image of the Marquard who pitched game after game at the Polo Grounds when he was making his famous record of 19 straight victories for the Giants. He is in splendid condition, his face bronzed by the Florida sun and his speed reminiscent of the time he dropped that fast hook around the corners of the plate to the complete bafflement of his National League opponents.

"I don't know what success I will have managing a ball club," said Rube. "but I can try. I'd like to tell you just what Providence will have this year in the Eastern League, but I am not quite sure myself until after the Bostons get through weeding us out." (The Providence club is owned by Boston National capital and serves as a sort of feeder to that club).

"We have a pretty good infield," Rube continued, "and one of the players is Joe Rodriguez, who was once with the Giants. He is a better first baseman and a better batter now than he was then. I think the outfield will be fair and I shall try to make something of the pitchers that will be worth while. I think we can do well in Providence this year, but I'm not making any promises yet."

NEW CUE KING.

ERICH HAGENLACHER

Had best all-round season in 1925, getting 221 hits and 125 runs.

Has hit 200 or over three times, getting his largest number of hits last season.

Reached century figure in scoring runs first time in major league career last season. Ranked third, being nosed out by Cuyler and Hornsby.

Bowling

WRENS WIN.

A play-off that proved very interesting, was staged at the Knights of Columbus alleys Tuesday night when the Wrens (Miss Myra Moloney, captain) and the Marigolds (Miss Nora Shevlin, captain) met to decide the winner of second place in the Ladies' Bowling League games which have been in progress at the alleys since November of last year. Fifty-seven games were played in the series, and the Wrens and the Marigolds have been tied for second place for some time past. The games last evening resulted in a victory for the Wrens, who took the first and third games.

The first game went to the Whens with a score of 717 against the Marigolds' score of 674, a difference of 43 pins. In the second game the Marigolds' score was 621, and the Wrens 597, a difference for the former of 24 pins. The third game proved quite exciting, the Wrens coming up splendidly in the last few frames, and rolling up a total of 783 pins. The Marigolds' score in this game was 629—giving the Wrens the advantage by 154 pins. Good scores made in the three games by the Wrens were: Miss Carrie Crough, 205, and 151.; Miss G. McCarthy, 188; Miss H. McCarthy, 165; Mrs. E. Crowe, 163; Miss Norah Shevlin, 163.

The final standing of the first five teams in the League of twenty teams, these five coming in the prize wards is as follows: Total, 57 games played, 1st, Orioles (Miss Alma Fontaine, captain), 45 wins; 2nd, Wrens, (Miss Myra Moloney, captain), 41 wins; play off, 43 wins); 3rd, Marigolds (Miss Norah Shevlin, captain), 41 wins; (play off, 42 wins); 4th, Bluebells (Miss Gertrude Doyle, captain) 38 wins; 5th, Tulips (Miss Josephine Hunt, captain) 36 wins.

Mrs. J. Legros holds the record for the high single made in League games, 250, and Miss Joseyhine Hunt for the three high wames, 608.

FOND FAREWELLS DIFFER.

In New Guinea fond farewells are taken in a way quite different from the customs in most countries. There, the lover breaks a piece of chocolate and shares it with his sweetheart instead of kissing her. In the Philippine islands the natives had the odd custom of vigorously rubbing his sweetheart's cheek before leaving her. The amorous Japanese removes a slipper and waves it in the air, while in Turkey the suitor bows low.

Local Ball Teams To Play "As Soon As Snow Clears"

With snow falling as heavily as at any time during the winter, arrangements have been made for the first game of the local season, to be played "as soon as the snow clears." The combatant teams are the West-End Rats and Joe Jordan's Stars, and the game will take place at the Bonnerworth Park. Both teams are confident of winning this opening tilt. The West End lineup is as follows: pitcher, J. Crary; catcher, T. Griffin; 1b, H. White; 2b, S. Campanaro; 3b, A. Mann; ss, J. Roach; lf, F. Campanaro; cf, A. Marrocco; rf, P. Johnston.

On the Stars' roster are to be found Percy Adamson, who will bend them over, Bagnall, who will do the receiving, and Manager Jordan at the keystone sack. The other positions are filled by players of the same calibre.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 1.—Manager Dave Bancroft of the Boston Braves can thank Connie Mack, pilot of the Athletics, for most of his present infield.

Outside of Bancroft, who cavorts at short, Burrus, first baseman; Gautreau, second, and Riconda at third, were all dug up by the elongated Cornelius of American League fame.

Burrus and Gautreau were two of the bright spots on the Bancroft entourage last season. Riconda is expected to prove a valuable addition this year.

BALL CLUBS READY TO START SEASON

Eastern Group Team of D. and O. League Are All Organized.

COBOURG, April 1.—The ball clubs that are to form the eastern section of the Durham and Ontario Baseball League, are now pretty well organized. Port Hope was the last to get into shape, and at a meeting held a few nights ago decided to put a team in the league and elected the following officers.

Hon. Presidents—His Worship Mayor Chalk, Messrs. E. M. Thurber, L. T. Bush, F. Armstrong, H. T. Bush and H. A. Ward.

President—James Holland.

First Vice-President—S. Runnels.

Second Vice-President—J. Mathewson.

Third Vice-President—Ross Burnham.

Secretary-Treasurer—Derry Rathe

Mr. Fred Sneyd was appointed representative on the executive.

SPORT NOTES

A report from Montreal a few days ago stated that Joe Tubman had located there, and that he would play with the C.N.R. team of that city in the senior O.R.F.U. next season, but Joe was very much in evidence at the annual meeting of the Ottawa club at the capital on Monday night and made no mention of the rumored move. In fact, Joe talked a great deal of the prospects for next year, and it looks as though he will be leading the Senators in the Big Four race again. The meeting was one of the most enthusiastic in the history of football in Ottawa, all of which shows that all the world loves a winner. Dr. Jack Hand, the popular president of the club last season, asked to be relieved of office, and Jack Sims was appointed to succeed him. Charlie Snelling was again elected treasurer, and Allan Fraser had no opposition for the position of secretary, an office he so capably filled last season.

The rumor regarding Tubman appears to have about as much foundation as some others. It was announced that Fear, of Argos, and Harry Batstone would be on the Montreal team with him, but it was only the other day that a despatch from London said that Batstone would be located there. He may remain at Queen's for another year, but if he does not, it is likely that he will be seen with the Argos.

Carson Cooper was strong on goals, but weak on assists, judging from the official figures of the National Hockey league. "Coop" scored 28 goals during the season just closed, but had only three assists, which gives him second place in the standing. Nelson Stewart, who led the league in scoring, proved to be the "bad man" of the season, serving an hour and 59 minutes on the penalty bench. For a youngster playing in salaried company for the first time, Stewart certainly showed the veterans up in more ways than one.

TO TOUR CANADA

President of the A.A.U. to Visit Important Cities of Canada.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 1.—(By Canadian Press).—President A. J. Mulqueen, of Toronto, president of the Canadian Olympic Committee.

CONGRESS AT HAGUE

Athletic Federation Meeting to be Held in Holland Next August.

MONTREAL, Que., April 1.—(By Canadian Press).—Secretary Lamb of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, has just received word from President J. S. Edstrom, of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, stationed at Vesteras, that the eighth congress of the Federation will be held at Hague, Holland, on August 5 to 8. The occasion will also mark the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Dutch Athletic Association, which will commemorate with special ceremonies. The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, is empowered to send five delegates to the Congress.

There is some talk of a new baseball circuit to comprise Ottawa, Peterboro, Brockville and Kingston. It will be amateur and "outlaw" according to report. Dick Dawson it is said is the prime mover in the scheme.

Peterborough Exhibition wants you as a member!

Who Is Your Favorite?

Boys! Here's your chance!

Here's a competition you can all get in.

Write two hundred words about your favorite player on the Peterborough Senior Hockey Team, Champions of the Ontario Hockey Association.

The prize winner will be the guest of The Examiner at the banquet to be given to the team in recognition of its splendid work this season.

This is the idea. The Petes have brought to this city the first Senior Championship it has ever had. They deserve all kinds of credit. Every boy on the team did his share. But you have your favorite—maybe you think he plays smarter hockey than the others; or he may skate better; or he may be merely better looking. Whatever your reason, write it out in not more than 200 words, and send it to "The Contest Editor, The Examiner," observing these simple rules:

(1) Open only to boys of 17 or under.
(2) Accuracy, penmanship, composition and neatness count.
(3) Contest closes at midnight, April 3.
(4) Pictures of the players will be run every day, without names. Clip out the picture of your favorite and paste it on a sheet of paper with his name written carefully under it. Pin this to your 200 word story or essay.
(5) A coupon, properly filled in and signed by a parent or guardian, must accompany every entry.

A committee of prominent citizens will be asked to decide the winner, and in case of dispute the Editor's decision will be final.

The date of the banquet is April 15.

CUB ROOKIE.

Art Jahn, One of Best Youngsters in Cubs' Camp.

AVALON, Catalina Island, Mar. 30. — One of the most promising youngsters on the roster of the Chicago Cubs is Art Jahn, outfielder. Jahn is making a very favorable impression in the training camp of the McCarthy squad here. He's a heavy hitter, fast afoot and covers plenty of ground.

Jahn was given a trial by the Cubs late last season and showed enough to warrant a trip to the training camp grind. He came "up" from the Flint club of the Michigan-Ontario League, where he had been quite a sensation.

BETHANY CHURCH ANNUAL MEETINGS

Sunday School Officers Elected By United Church Board.

BETHANY, April 1.—The Women's Missionary Society of the United Church held its annual thank-offering service on Sunday evening in the church with a fair congregation. The speaker of the evening was Mrs. Elsie Smith, field secretary of the Deaconess' Training School, Toronto, who is making a tour of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Mrs. Smith's address was on the words, "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another" spoken by Jesus to his disciples just previous to His crucifixion, and found in the 12th verse of the 15th chapter of John.

The choir of ladies consisted of members of the auxiliary and the mission circle, and sang two choruses. Mrs. Ashley of Madoc, a guest at the parsonage, presided at the organ. Mrs. Poulter and Mrs. W. L. Rowan also sang a duet.

At the Sunday School session, which was held under the missionary department, Mrs. Smith gave a very pleasing and interesting talk to the children and young people.

On Tuesday evening, the auxiliary ladies held their Easter meeting in the basement of the church.

The attendance was small but an interesting and helpful programme was given under the leadership of Mrs. Jackson. Mr. Poulter gave a chalk talk on the United Church mission in Africa and the work which is done there. Others taking part in the programme were Mrs. William Lee, Mrs. W. L. Rowan, and Miss Lily Weatherilt. Mrs. Poulter and Mrs. Ashley sang as a duet "The Old Rugged Cross," which was very appropriate for the occasion.

On Monday evening the annual meeting of the United school board of management was held at the home of the superintendent, A. H. Monk, with a good attendance. The Rev. Mr. Poulter, the pastor, was chairmon of the meeting, which opened with the hymn, "There is Work to Do for Jesus," and prayer.

Reports were then received from all superintendents of departments and presidents of classes. The reports all showed increases in attendance and interest, and the missionary department went over the top in its objective, which was encouraging considering there were only eleven months in which to do it, owing to the church year closing a month earlier than usual.

The election of officers was by ballot. They are as follows:

Superintendent: A. H. Monk.

Assistant Superintendent: Leslie Challice.

Secretary: Jean Thorndyke; Assistant, Frank Bigelow. Treasurer, Ed. Bray. Librarian: Hazel Steer. Teachers: Adult Bible Class W. A. Jakeman; Young Men's Class, Mrs. H. H. Ryley; Assistant, Walter Rowland; Young Ladies' Class, Mrs. Otto Spencer; Intermediate Class (Girls), Miss Priscillia Howden; (Boys), Miss Lily Weatherilt. Junior Boys, Mrs. Monk; Tuxis Boys' Class, Mrs. Jackson; Primary Class, Mrs. Leslie Challice; Beginners' Class, Mrs. J. Porteous; Cradle Roll, Mrs. Crerar; Home Department, Marian Fallis; Temperance Department, W. A. Jakeman; Missionary Department, Mrs. O. Spencer and Young Ladies' Mission Circle.

At the conclusion of the meeting lunch was served; then all listened to the broadcasting by radio of the hockey match between Varsity and Port Arthur until the game ended. The gathering broke up about midnight.

CAVAN PERSONALS

CAVAN, April 1.—Mrs. Margaret Matchett spent a few days of last week in Peterboro.

Mrs. M. Syer, Millbrook, visited her sister, Mrs. E. Seyer, on Thursday and Friday.

Messrs. Ray Staples, Wilfrid Reynolds, and Everett Keegan attended the social evening in Bethany on Friday evening.

Mr. Fred Matchett went to Toronto on Saturday en route for the West.

There was a euchre in Cavan Community Hall on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Matchett spent the week end in Peterboro.

Messrs. Thomas and Gerald Staples, Lifford, spent Sunday in Cavan.

Last Sunday at Cavan Centre Sunday school there was an interesting review conducted. Members of the L.W. organized class of young people, reviewed the lessons of the quarter and Mrs. R. Staples took the general review, applying the many great lessons to be learned in studying the Gospel of John.

Miss Norma Staples has returned from a two weeks' visit in South Monaghan. Her cousin, Miss Dorothy Falls, returned with her for a visit.

Everything sold well at L. Hutchison's sale of stock and implements on Wednesday.

A sure sign of spring—already the automobile agents are around trying to make sales.

1925 WAS BANNER YEAR.

HONOLULU, March 31.—Hawaii's banner agricultural year occurred in 1925. A total of 776,072 tons of sugar was turned out compared with 701,433 tons in 1924. Sugar men say this year's crop will surpass that of last year.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

TO SAVE RELICS.

Work of B. C. Pioneers and Natives To Be Preserved.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 1. — (Canadian Press).—Believing that a plan to preserve some of the relics and industries of the pioneers of the province, and also of the natives of British Columbia, would be most expedient at this time, since these souvenirs of the past are quickly growing extinct, the Native Daughters of Canada are endeavoring to promote interest along these lines, and their first proposed endeavor will be a stall at the Vancouver Exhibition this summer. They find that carving of totems has almost become a lost art in these days, while much of the finer weave of baskets has been dropped into disuse, owing to lack of support in purchasers.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT

FUN AND THRILLS IN "HOGAN'S ALLEY"

Take a trip back to the Bowery of old New York, and share the drama, pathos and humor in the lives of the simple folks of the East Side in one of the most exciting comedy-melodramas of the season at the Regent Theatre, where "Hogan's Alley" opened yesterday, if you wish to be amused and thrilled.

Monte Blue is the star, a young Irish pugilist, and he has this reviewer convinced that he can easily switch from the screen to the ring at any moment with equal success. He's a husky young hero, the idol of the alley, in this screen version of Gregory Rogers' story, so perfectly directed by Roy Del Ruth.

And then there is lovely Patsy Ruth Miller as little Patsy Ryan, the terror of the alley, the impudent youngster, who grows to charming girlhood and becomes engaged to Monte against her father's wishes. Willard Louis plays her father, a genial old Irishman for fair and Louise Faenda is most amusing as a Broadway show girl. The suave villain is played by Nigel Barrie and Max Davidson is delightful as the old clothes man. The remainder of the cast is excellent and includes Frank Bond, Frank Hagney, Pen Turpin and Mary Carr.

For the sake of prize fight fans of both sexes it is most important to mention that some famous ex-champions in the fighting Athletic Club sequences, among them James J. Jeffries, "Spike" Robinson, Ad Wolgast, Tommy Ryan, Joe Rivers and Ted "Kid" Lewis.

"Hogan's Alley" has everything that goes toward making good screen entertainment and you certainly cannot aord to miss seeing it.

Character Dancing and Lantern Slides Provided Interesting Programme at Y.

An interesting programme was provided at the Y.W.C.A. last evening, when the library and green room were fairly well-filled with those who attended, the audience being limited somewhat by inclement weather.

The entertainment opened with a very pretty character dance entitled "The Paupette Dance" and done in Japanese costume by eight young ladies, Mary Macdonald taking the part of the father, Jean Harvey the mother, Mary Scott, the lover, and Grace Comstock, the little sweetheart. The chorus attending them comprised Helen Hatcher, Edith Guiry, Bertha Willison and Annie Williams. Miss Madeline Willis played accompaniments for this dance.

Vocal solos were given by Dorothy Cooney, with accompaniment by Kathleen Cooney, readings by Mrs. Fred McNeeley and cunning little Ruth McNeeley and pianoforte numbers by Miss Elizabeth Webber.

A series of some fifty lantern slides was then given, showing different phases of Y.W.C.A. work throughout Canada, in the different clubs, the physical departments, the employment bureaus and the foreign settlements. Moving picture films which followed depicted Y.W.C.A. work in Japan, the destruction caused by the earthquake and the re-construction which followed, also a film of the work in China and one of India. These were followed by a comedy entitled "Betty, Behave," and a film showing episodes in the visit of the Prince of Wales to Canada. The various slides and pictures proved exceptionally interesting to the audience and were accompanied by piano music played by Miss Mary Nixon. The picture machine was operated by Mr. Fred McNeely.

JOCK HUTCHISON—TURN HEAD AFTER IMPACT

If the head keeps its place the right shoulder will just turn half way around. There is no need of holding the head there an instant longer than is necessar to insure that it is fixed while the club-head is meeting the ball. If one doesn't do this there will be no shoulder action and the pivoting of the body will be spoiled. It is useless to pivot just half way and then check the body at the most important time.

Those who drive a very short ball had better look to the pivoting to find means of improvement of the shot. The arms do their part as far as possible, but the player who drives with his arms alone will not get very far.

The follow-through is all important. The club-head must be kept in contact with the ball as long as possible. Abe Mitchell holds the club to the ball longer than most other professionals or star amateurs, and, as a result, he obtains a very long ball.

Abe is possibly the longest driver in the game and there must be something in the idea of permitting the head to follow a long way.

Moviegraphs

HOLLYWOOD, April 1. — These envious ones called him "the queerest fish in a strange sea." And Josef von Sternberg, who was plain Joe Sternberg before film flakes were cast upon him, rather enjoyed the epithet.

To kindle the flame that covetous ones began, Joe changed his name to the more euphonious one, garbed himself in Bohemian attire, let his hair grow into waving locks and walked about the film circles with the aid of a large and knotted staff. He gave them plenty to talk about. And in so doing provided the passing parade with a free and amusing show.

Sternberg is the celluloid entity who became convulsed with the idea that thought could be depicted on the screen. In "The Salvation Hunters" he proved that it was possible although the picture failed commercially due to a public that relishes "The Sins of Susie" and the like.

And just when oblivion yawned for Sternberg, Charlie Chaplin assigned him to direct Edna Purviance in what will probably be one of the most interesting pictures of the year.

All is well in Hollywood. I heard a sermon over the radio the other Sunday at Roscoe Arbuckle's home in Beverly Hills.

Why Shakespeare quit writing: Edmund Lowe, movie vamp of the male species, says—"The most difficult task in an actor's life is keeping physically fit between pictures. Without the necessity of having to rise at seven in the morning to go to the studio, the temptation to remain abed until midday is strong. But a few days of this sort of thing and the actor would find it difficult to return to the regular workday routine."

Jimmy Starr, a scrivener, wrote his masterpiece, named it "Latin Love," and sold it to a movie company. When released it bore the title stamp of "Shackled Youth."

"My, O my," wailed Jimmy, when he saw the title change. "'Youth on Crutches' would have been even better."

Answer to J. S. M.—No. Rex Ingram's latest picture, "Mare Nostrum," is not a race horse story

There is many a man in Hollywood who would feel greatly complimented if Rupert Hughes said of him what he charged against George Washington. Hughes merely declared that "the Father of our country" was "a distiller of good whisky, fluent with cursing and often danced through the night."

Banner Productions are making a film entitled "The Man With the Brooding Eyes." We suggest its sequel, "The Man With the Liver Complaint," also be made.

Motion picture producers are glad that Moses only wrote 10 commandments. Because of the lack in commandments film men have been able to reap fortunes from Moses' oversight.

"The Last Commandment," "The Eleventh Commandment" and "The Unknown Commandment" have all been created for the screen. Now comes Robert T. Kane with another one. He calls it "The New Commandment." Unless Blanche Sweet, who plays the reading role, is the "New Commandment," I failed to locate it.

In "Just Suppose," Richard Barthelmess enacts the role of a prince. One of the minor players in the cast, Prince Rokeneddine, is of authentic nobility. Another essence to flavor our make-believe kingdoms.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE.

Manitoba University Girls Organize City League as Start.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 1 (Canadian Press).—Basketball, which is the chief girls' sport of the University of Manitoba, has undergone many changes this year. The University basketball committee, in conjunction with the Grads team, has taken a leading step by organizing a city league, with the view to eventually having a provincial league, and entering a team from Manitoba in the Dominion champion ships.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear Wife and Mother, Mary Ann Reid, who departed this life on April 1, 1925:

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more
In Heaven, that happy life.

—Inserted by her husband and sons.

OBITUARY.

T. J. McQUILLAN.

The funeral, largely attended, of the late T. J. McQuillan, was held at half-past ten o'clock this morning from his residence on Simcoe street to St. Peter's Cathedral, where the officiating clergymen were Rev. Fathers P. Costello, J. McAuley, P. Butler, J. Finn and J. Collins, thence to St. Peter's cemetery, where the services were conducted by Rev. G. Maher.

Pallbearers were Messrs. W. S. Merrell, F. J. McFadden, F. Fairen, James Lynch, M. McFadden and E. Conroy.

BAILIEBORO PERSONALS.

BAILIEBORO, April 1.—Miss Norma Staples, who has for the past fortnight been the guest of friends in this district, returned to her home near Cavanville on Sunday.

There has been several cases of measles breaking out in this district during the past couple of weeks. It is feared that this is going to be an epidemic in this district, although the health officer is doing everything possible to keep the disease from spreading.

Mrs. W. H. Barnard left for Lindsay on Saturday to visit her daughter, Miss C. Barnard, nurse-in-training in Ross Memorial hospital, who is at present suffering from a serious infection in her hand.

The members of the local Epworth League are busily engaged in practicing for a play which they will put on during the latter part of April.

John Smith of Bewdley has commenced to saw logs, and has his mill which has been closed down all winter, running full time now, since F. Sidley's mill was burned down a couple of weeks ago. Mr. Sidley and sons are busily engaged in re-building their saw and shingle mill, and expect to have it running again in a very short time.

Melville Wood was the guest of friends in Peterborough during the past week.

Miss Dorothy Falls is the guest of her cousin, Miss Norma Staples, of Cavan, for a few days.

Miss Kathleen Bateman has been the guest of friends in Peterboro during the past three weeks.

Ray Stanles of Cavanville was the guest of Charles Barnard over the week end.

James Johnston, who has for the past three weeks been ill with the measles, is able to be around once again.

Donal Lang of the Peddlars Shingle Company, Oshawa, was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lang on Sunday.

W. Dawson purchased a splendid heavy draught horse at Robert. Cruikshank's sale on Tuesday.

H. Barnard purchased a new binder and a double plough recently. E. Ball of Millbrook was the agent who made the sales.

T. Smith, D. Huggins and H. Nurse are kept busy these days sawing the cordwood in this vicinity.

During the past week the mailmen on the local routes have been unable to make their entire trip, owing to the fact that the roads have been so bad. The bakers' wagons have also had a rest, and during the past week the farmers have had to go out after their bread as the bakers have been unable to make their rounds.

CLERGYMAN HONORED.

Rev. Canon H. J. Cody, of St. Paul's Anglican Church, who has received the high honor of being called to preach the first English sermon at the coming assembly of the League of Nations.

MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, April 1 — Mrs. John Miller, of Peterborough, was the guest of Mrs. F. P. Johnson over the week-end.

Messrs. Maurice Gray and H. Jordan went to Peterborough on Tuesday evening and supported the negative side in the final debate for the district cup, the subject being: "Resolved that the railways of Canada should be under government control rather than private ownership." Miss Jackson and Mr. McCrea spoke for the affirmative. The result was a tie and another debate will be necessary to decide the title to the trophy. The series of debates is under A.Y.P.A. auspices, debaters from St. John's church, Peterborough, and St. Thomas' church, Millbrook, competing on Tuesday evening.

Miss S. Muir principal of the Continuation School, was in Peterborough on Tuesday evening acting as one of the judges in the A.Y.P.A. district debate, this being the final competition for the district cup.

Miss M. E. Needham, who is making an extended visit with Mr. and Mrs. George Ames, Toronto, was home for a brief stay this week, returning to the city on Tuesday evening.

Miss L. Hansman, of Port Hope, spent the week-end the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. W. Johnston.

Miss Nettie Fallis, of Toronto, is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. A. Fallis, Fallis Line.

Messrs. Wes. Williamson and Arthur Fallis went to Toronto on Monday and will remain for a few days.

Rev. T. E. Holling, B.A., of Lindsay, was the guest of Rev. R. H. Howard over Sunday. Mr. Holling preached special sermons at the re-opening service in the United church on Sunday at both morning and evening services.

Miss C. Trembeth, of Port Britain, was the guest of Dr. E. Gillett over the week-end.

Dr. S. W. Clarke, of Lindsay, visited friends in town over the week end.

Mrs. W. Fred Fallis went to Port Hope on Friday remaining over until Tuesday the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Garnett.

COMMUNISTS ARE LABORITES FOR THREE YEARS AT LEAST BY VOTE OF PARTY CONVENTION

SING INTERNATIONALE.

Heated Session Marks Opening Day of Canada Labor Party Gathering.

LONDON, Ont., April 2 (Canadian Press)—Communists will remain members of the Ontario Section of the Canadian Labor Party for this year, for 1927 and for 1928 as a result of a vote on the question of expelling them at yesterday's convention here of the Ontario section of the Canadian Labor Party. A standing vote was taken on the matter of expelling all members of the Communist party and resulted in the left wingers getting 116 votes to the 56 votes of their opponents, 42 delegates refusing to vote. By the constitution of the party the matter cannot be voted on again, for three years.

A resolution from the London branch of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America urging the ousting of the red flaggers on the grounds that "too much of the time of past conventions has been taken up by useless controversy and discussion between Communists and non-Communists on matters not of vital interest to the vast majority of the affiliated membership," was the immediate cause of the most vociferous session the party has yet held. The resolutions committee brought in a recommendation of non-concurrence by a vote of seven to three. The standing vote was taken on the recommendation of this committee which was defeated by the above vote.

Immediately there rose the tones of the Internationale, that rather tuneless chant from Moscow. It seemed to be sung impartially in Russian, English and Yiddish, but it lacked nothing in fervor.

A vote was taken on the principle of one delegate, one vote, and not on the membership, so that it means no more than that there were more Communists at the convention than straight Labor men. A vote was taken at the morning session before all the delegates had arrived when J. F. Thompson challenged the ruling of the chair as to the vote on his motion to defer the credentials of the delegates of the Young Communists Party of Toronto until a second report by the credential committee. The challenge resulted in a vote of 94 to 63 in favor of the chair and was a forecast of the vote in the afternoon.

James Simpson, secretary-treasurer, made a clean-cut speech in opposition to the motion to bar the Communists. His was an appeal for the unity of the party and a united front and he regretted that the resolution had been presented at all.

John Loane, of Toronto, chairman of the resolution committee presented the recommendation of non-concurrence in spite of personal convictions. When the vote came he voted against the recommendation.

And In Quebec

Just before the resolution was read there was a resolution from the provincial executive committee of the Communist Party in Canada, asking the convention to urge the Quebec section of the Canadian Labor Party to rescind a motion carried at its last meeting barring Communists from that section. The committee in this case recommended non-concurrence, on the ground that it was not a matter relevant to the Ontario section. This was hotly debated for 30 minutes and was finally left over until the resolution from the B.R.C.A. which was known to be the next on the list was settled. It was felt generally that an expression of the convention on the second would logically answer the first.

The remainder of the first day's session of the seventh convention of the party was passed amicably in agreeing to a series of old-time resolutions, with the cobwebs of every past convention hanging in festoons. It was only a matter of reading them and murmuring "agreed." It was a demonstration of the united front, which was later to be so much needed and so utterly lacking.

Prof. Scott Nearing, the New York Sociologist arrived early in the afternoon and was given one of those instantaneous, whole-souled welcomes that used to be accorded Jack London and Eugene Debs, in America, and Keir Hardie and John Burns in England, when they appeared at Socialist gatherings. No one sang either the Red Flag or the Internationale but there was five minutes of cheering and applause.

In a brief address he spoke of the activities of the Western Canada wheat pool and used it as an illustration of successful cooperation.

NOW, HONESTLY—

The man who invented tomorrow certainly was a great kidder.

And, sooner or later, we all find it out.

It's like the fellow who referred to the "sweet little skunk.'

There ain't no sich animal.

Waiting for tomorrow is something perpetual. Today, of course, was tomorrow—but it isn't. Tomorrow is.

For instance, ya go to sleep tonight and say, "I'll see ya tomorrow." Then you wake up in the morning and find you were all wrong. Dog-gone it, it's today—not tomorrow.

So—let's put off till tomorrow, all the things we shouldn't do today.

If you can figure this all out, you get a gold medal.... tomorrow.

DOCTORS LOSE SCRIPT ISSUE

One Said To Have Relieved Aridity of Lindsay By 1,000.

SIX UNDER BAN.

LINDSAY, April 3. — Lindsay appears to be a profitable hunting ground for the Provincial License Department in sniping physicians who fail to live up to the edict issued by Attorney General Nickle relative to the issuing of liquor scripts.

Some time ago a couple of doctors were notified by the Department that their activities in this respect overstepped the bounds of the law, and they were deprived of the privilege of issuing further scripts.

A few weeks ago a well known local doctor was not only deprived of this privilege but was also called upon to pay a stiff fine for an infraction of the Act.

Three others have since come under the ban. On Thursday official notification came from the Department to the effect that they had been deprived of the privilege of issuing further scripts because they had exceeded the number set out in the regulations. It is stated that on thousand six ounce scripts had been issued at one physician's office in a month. Those on the outside argue that the Attorney-General should make some allowance, as judging by the clean-up made recently by the Provincial Officers in Lindsay and district, the state of aridity is more pronounced locally than many other centres of equal size.

Didn't Go To Bed Early But She Is 100 To-day

OTTAWA, April 3 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Cowan, pioneer of Carleton County, today celebrated her hundredth birthday. Mrs. Cowan is one of Canada's pioneer English stock and still retains a wonderfully keen mind. Asked if she believed in the old adage "Early to bed and early to rise, makes a girl healthly wealthy and wise," Mrs. Cowan stated that she could not say that she did, as she had never practised it. Mrs. Cowan is fond of hymns and the Bible a book she says that never grows old. Rising every morning at six o'clock, she is still active at house work.

WAKES HUSBAND TO STOP ALARM AND FALLS DEAD

Tragedy Enters Home of Mr. and Mrs. White on Thursday.

NO WARNING.

Two Children Mourn Sudden Death of Their Youthful Mother.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 3. — When their alarm clock roused Mr. and Mrs. Hilton L. White from their slumbers on Thursday morning, Mrs. White asked her husband to stop the noise as she feared it would wake their baby. As he was doing so his wife fell dead without any apparent suffering. The doctors, including Coroner Loucks, who were called in, decided that death was due to heart failure and a death certificate to that effect was issued.

The late Mrs. White, whose maiden name was Mary L. Sayles, was 25 years old, and was the daughter of the late David and Mrs. Sayles (now Mrs. H. W. Porter) of the Warkworth district. She came to Campbellford with her husband about two years ago, the latter being employed by J. O. Hagerman, the meat dealer. She is survived by her husband and two children, the elder two years and the younger about 15 months old. Her mother still resides in Percy Township.

The funeral will be held this afternoon to the Warkworth Cemetery after services at the house by Rev. W. A. Pippen of Hastings.

FEW GET GOOD WAGES.

MADISON, Wis., April 3.—Only eight Wisconsin villages pay their village presidents more than $100 a year, and only nine others pay the same officials as much as $100 a year, according to reports compiled by the Municipal Information Bureau of the State University Extension Division.

HYDRO BINDS PETERBOROUGH TO STAGNATION AND DECAY

And, Says R. R. Hall, K.C., City's Birthright Is Sold For Dust and Ashes With Connivance of Local Utilities Commission.

CITY'S FUNDS DEPLETED BY $57,370 WITHOUT KNOWLEDGE OF CITY COUNCIL

A vital question, to the welfare of Peterborough, is:

When is the Hydro-Electric Power Commission going to cease increasing the wholesale cost of electric power to this city?

In 1917 the Hydro Commission charged this city $17.50 per horse-power.

In 1921 the wholesale cost of power to this city was increased from $17.50 per horse-power to $22.50 per horse-power. That increase of $5.00 per horse-power came as a shock at the time.

POWER NOW COSTS THIS CITY $26.35 PER H.P.

In 1925 the wholesale cost of power was again increased from $22.50 per horse-power to $26.35 per horse-power. This last increase of $3.85 per horse power gave no shock nor caused any surprise, because it was not made openly and above board. It was simply charged up to the Local Commission and quietly sneaked into their accounts under the innocent heading "H.E.P.C. 13th Power Cost Adjustment Bill, $15,789.39." It is incomprehensible that the Local Commission did not make the announcement of this increase of $3.85 openly and above board to the power and light users of this city. Why? Why?

CONCEALMENT COMMON PRACTICE

Surely, the Local Commission do not think that the electors vote for them to conceal such vital matters affecting this city's welfare.

But this is not the first time that the members of the Local Commission have concealed vital information from their electors. They did it some time after 1921, because a similar charge was made in 1921 but on a much larger scale, for in that year this city was in fact charged up with the sum of $41 581.52 as appears by the Hydro Report, 1921, page 174.

The electors were not made aware of this charge until January, 1926, when the Chairman of the Local Commission coolly announced to the electors of this city that the Local Commission had dipped into the surplus funds of this city and paid the same over to the Hydro Commission, without the knowledge and consent of the City Council. In addition to that, the interest on this large sum for upwards of five years was paid as well.

CITY SHOULD HOLD SURPLUS

The sum total of these underhanded increases amounts to the sum of $57,370.91 without interest. That would have been a nice tidy sum to have paid over to the City Council to assist [illegible] in lowering our tax rate. The $9,000.00 recently paid over in connection with the water rates, to reduce tax rates, was forced out of the hands of the Local Commission. The City Council would be well advised to change their system of accounting and take possession of the surplus funds belonging to this city and not

EASTER

ABOVE THE EDGES of dark appear the lances of the Sun, sending his rosy heralds dancing along the hilly ranges and over the tops of the trees; chasing from even the darkest valleys the broken remnants of fog and chill. The birds sing a trilling song to welcome the new day; the flowers in yonder Garden open their lips to the dewdrop and hail the radiant dawn. 'Tis Easter morning!

* * * * *

And with the great event is realized the full completion, the central evidence of the Christian creed—a fact that is the basis of belief, and a revelation which is the corner stone of duty. It involves the power of God; the deliverance of man; the restitution of the universe. It comprehends man's faith in the forgiveness of sins; his hope in a glorious immortality; his love for a redeemed brotherhood. It stands for the redemption of the past; the ennoblement of the present; the exaltation of the future. It enhances the dignity of life; it destroys the fear of death; it calms the vision of eternity.

* * * * *

The first revelation of the glorious tidings was to the holy and humble women whose love for Christ had made them the last beside the Cross, the earliest at the Sepulchre; and those who have felt most truly the significance of Lent will enter most heartily into the glory of Easter. Yesterday we bowed in the culminating sorrow of Passion week, seeing absolute goodness rejected and despised; to-day the feeling of bereavement is still strong upon us; but to-morrow, though the fields and lawns are still snow covered and frost bound there is given to us the prophesy of Easter, the assurance of new life.

* * * * *

The rosy dawn bids father, brother, sister, son—even mother, though it is so hard—who sigh and weep for "the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still," that no dolour nor sighs can withstand the sunlight of Easter morn.

* * * * *

For from the doorway of what was yesterday and to-day a sealed cavern of despair shall speak the winged sentry: "He is not here; He is risen."

PICK STRIKING LIVE CHARGE CAUSED EXPLOSION IN MINE THAT KILLED PETERBORO' MAN

W. R. Cowain's Death Was Accidental is Finding of Jury.

SECOND BLOW.

Victim of Tragedy Had Been in Shaft Only a Few Minutes.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

MADOC, April 3.—William Richard Cowain came to his death on March 24 by reason of an accident which occurred on March 23 in a mine near Moira Lake in the Township of Huntingdon, which accident was caused by an explosion of an unexploded hole in the said mine.

This was the verdict of the jury at the coroner's inquest, held at Madoc on Thursday, and presided over by Coroner Dr. William S. Harper of Madoc. County Crown Attorney Bryson C. Donnan of Belleville examined the witnesses, and T. F. Sutherland, Chief Mining Inspector of Ontario, questioned the witnesses. G. S. White of Madoc represented the Dominion Resources Syndicate.

E. J. Cowain

The first witness called was Edward J. Cowain, father of W. R. Cowain, and consulting engineer in connection with the development. He said his son had been an electrician by trade, but had done some work in mines and was in charge of the finances. He said that the man who handled the powder would be responsible for determining if all the holes had been fired which could be done by examination.

Mr. Sutherland asked if the Department of Mines had been notified that the work was going on or if it had been notified of the accident. Mr. Cowain did not know if this had been done. He had a copy of the mining act, but had not read it recently. There had been no posters put up nor had a permit been obtained for the magazine. The men had been hired for the work as practical miners by his son, who had been the manager.

Important evidence was given by the men who worked with Cowain, and by one of the men of the night shift, who had fired the last shots in the bottom of the mine.

Harold Bowerman

Harold Bowerman was one of the night shaft of the mine. He gave his occupation as moving picture operator and miner. With a mate, Tommy Edwards, he had worked on the night shift, drilling off and shooting the charges. He had been employed for four or five weeks, but had been working in mines since about 1918. He said that they had shot twice on the night before the accident. The first blast had consisted of twelve holes, some fired with a battery and some with time

Man Dresses As Girl Seeking Accoster Of Women

EDMONTON, Alta., April 3.—(Canadian Press)—Acting as an amateur detective a man dressed in his wife's clothes and patrolled the street one night reecently hoping to trap an unknown man who had been insulting women in a certain district of the city. He found a man who allowed himself to be decoyed to the police by the supposed "girl" but he was able to prove his innocence of previous adventures in the neighborhood.

One Dead; One Dying In Duel Over Woman

SANTA MONICA, Calif., April 3 (Canadian Press).—A strange duel was staged early yesterday in a lonely recess of the Santa Monica Mountains, when two men, both past middle age, faced each other with shotgun and rifle, one dying and the other receiving probably a mortal wound.

Arthur Winzelle, real estate man of some means, who came here from New York some time ago, was killed, and R. E. Roselle, owner of a small farm in Topango Canyon, a natural passage-way from the beach of the San Fernando Valley, was seriously wounded.

The shooting followed a visit to the canyon early yesterday of Winzelle and his son Howard, in search of Mrs. Winzelle.

SCARLET FEVER CURE IS FOUND

Dick Serum Has Virtually Conquered Disease, Says Doctor.

GERM ISOLATED.

ALBANY, N.Y., April 3 (Canadian Press).—Dr. William H. Park, Director of the Vaccine laboratory of the City of New York, told physicians attending a joint meeting of bacteriologists and pathologists here yesterday that the discovery of the germ of scarlet fever and the development of a cure by Dr. George Dick of Chicago assisted by his wife, Dr. Gladys H. Dick, had virtually conquered the disease. Dr. Park said in a city of 6,000,000 people he expected only about 75 deaths from scarlet fever to be recorded this year. Steps had been taken by Dr. Park to organize a group of laboratories that will co-operate to standardize the Dick methods of preparing and testing scarlet fever anti-toxin. One of the physicians, discussing the serum, estimated in one year in New York it save more lives than most physicians do in a lifetime.

INDUCTION SERVICE.

Visiting Clergymen Present at Reception of Rev. W. Allan.

The induction of Rev. Wm. Allan as minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church took place on Wednesday evening, when the church was filled with the large congregation that attended the special ceremony. Rev. V. Walker of Janetville acted as Moderator and presided at the induction proceedings, and the sermon was preached by Rev. R. McDerment of Bowmanville. The charge to the minister was made by Rev. James Greer, B.A., of Campbellford, and Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings gave the charge to the congregation. Special music was rendered by the choir.

Jamaica's winter tourist season has not been up to expectations, and as a result natives are depressed because much extra money that they had counted on did not materialize.

Body Of Drowned Boy Has Not Been Found

MADOC, April 3.—The body of little Raymond Manchester, who was drowned in Black Creek, Queensboro, on Tuesday last, has not yet been found. About fifty men are at work blasting and cutting the ice, and every possible means is being used for the recovery of the child.

Much sympathy is expressed throughout the whole community for the bereaved mother and grand-parents.

MILL FIRE LOSS WILL BE $25,000

Campbell's Bay Milling Company Loses Plant After Hopeless Fight.

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., April 3 (Canadian Press). — Fire completely wiped out the flour mill of the Campbell's Bay Milling Company, involving a loss estimated at $25,000, yesterday morning. There was insurance of only $10,000 on the mill.

Armed with pails, and drawing water from a well near the mill, residents of Campbell's Bay fought the blaze for two hours, but the flames were too far advanced before they were discovered to leave any hope of saving the mill.

The flour mill was the only one in the Campbell's Bay district. It is expected that the mill will be rebuilt. Devout worshippers returning from service at St. John's Roman Catholic Church at 8 o'clock, discovered the fire and gave the alarm.

COW, LANTERN, NO INSURANCE

Two Barns and Horse Stable Destroyed in Oxford Township.

SECOND BLAZE.

BROCKVILLE, April 3 (Canadian Press).—Within 12 hours two serious fires have occurred in the Township of Oxford. Yesterday morning a cow kicked over a lantern in the barn of Oscar Thompson, setting fire to it and another barn and a horse stable. All three buildings were destroyed together with their contents. Another fire originating in the chimney of George Dell's residence, destroyed it as well as the greater part of the contents. Small insurance was carried in both cases.

DEATH OF ITALIAN LABORER AT NEW YOUNG'S POINT LOCK ACCIDENTAL AND BLAMELESS

Coroner's Jury Finds All Necessary Precautions Had Been Taken.

WITNESSES AGREE.

Stone Weighing 1200 Pounds Fell 5 Feet on Guido de Massimo.

LAKEFIELD, April 3.—That Guido de Massimo came to his death by accident and that all necessary precautions had been taken by the company, was the finding of the Coroner's jury inquiring on Thursday night into the fatality at Young's Point lock. De Massimo was killed on Tuesday evening when a rock fell on him from a height of five or six feet.

The inquest was held in the Lakefield Memorial Hall, with Coroner Dr. J. C. Smith in charge. Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., examined the witnesses, and Constable N. F. Maker of the Provincial Police was also present. The jury was composed of the following: Messrs. J. A. Porter (foreman); D. H. Charlton, F. C. Crawford, F. J. Burgess, A. Davis, P. Spence, S. Hunter, E. P. Jackson, W. Clifford, J. R. Robinson. The witnesses were called by Chief of Police R. J. Webster.

Freeman Bailey, foreman of the public works at Young's Point locks, was the first witness and stated that he had had experience at this kind of work nearly all his life. The work at the locks is under contract of T. A. Brown and Co., of Toronto and work was carried on during the day and sometimes for an hour or so in the evening. The work is that of installing new concrete locks and the removing of the old locks. The work is done in sections, and after the excavation is ready an 18-inch concrete wall is put in on which the frame for the main wall is built and at the time of the accident de Massimo was cleaning up a section ahead of the concrete, that is, he was cleaning up some mud off the bottom in company with several others.

Stone Weighed 1,200 pounds

The witness did not see the accident but helped take the man out less than a minute after. He was in a sitting position with his head under the stone, which hit him across the lower part of his neck. The stone would weigh 1,200 or 1,500 pounds and looked as if it had been rolled in when the old locks were built. It did not fall more than four or five feet. The witness did not know what happened. Part of the bank was protected from the warm sun by tarpaulins, but the bank in this section was only ten or twelve feet high and was not considered dangerous or it would have been shored up as some of the other sections were. The work is lighted by electricity with a spot light over the excavations which afforded ample light for the men. Guido de Massimo had had considerable experience at this kind of work, and had been on this job since last fall. The bank had a slope of two or two and a half feet at this point, and the stone was flush with the bank and probably the removal of the soft mud from underneath loosened it. The men worked close to the wall and carried the mud ten or twelve feet on a shovel to a platform. There is no water in the bank but the water seeped through the floor below the level of the lake. The trench the men worked in was ten feet wide.

Workmen Testify

Roy McGee was the next witness and testified that he is a laborer at the locks and though he heard the stone fall, he did not see the accident. He was some distance from de Massimo and was engaged at the same kind of work, but three men worked between them. The place did not look dangerous at all and as the witness had not worked there since he did not know whether there was

Sought Red Lake Fortune; Now Charged As a Vagrant

MONTREAL, April 3 (Canadian Press). — "The lure of gold," was the explanation given by James Swimmings, an itinerant laborer, to actin, Recorder Morrison, when explaining that he was not a vagrant but came back "broke" from Red Lake, Ontario, the goldfield.

"How did you find conditions there?" the court asked. "Fine, but I didn't strike a paying claim. I mushed through it all and saw all the hardships, and here is my reward. I am charged with being a vagrant, no visible means of support. Yes, you're right, your Honor, but I've worked to make a fortune and lost out."

The Recorder listened to his story and ordered him dismissed. "Better luck in future," he said.

TWENTY KILLED IN STREET WAR

Moslem and Hindus Clash in Riot During Religious Procession.

EUROPEANS HURT.

LONDON, April 3 (Canadian Press).—A furious fight took place in Calcutta, India, yesterday between a Hindu sect and Moslems, and according to one estimate, 20 persons were killed and 150 injured.

The Calcutta corespondent of the Exchange Telegraph says that the riot began with the approach to a mosque in the northern part of the city of a procession with music led by the Arya Samja sect of Hindus, enemies of the Moslems. Fighting developed when the Moslems tried to bar the way, the trouble soon spreading to other streets.

Deputy Police Commissioner Bartley, and another European, Sergeant Davis, who went to the Commissioner's assistance were slightly hurt.

The correspondent says that the scene of the rioting last night had the appearance of a deserted city. Police patrolled the streets and all the shops remained closed.

SIDE-PLAY NOISES.

"A study of chassis noises proves that 75 per cent of the rattles is due to the side-play of the springs," says William H. Gleason, president of the Kissel Co.

No Easter Church Services At Marmora Or Deloro; Dread Smallpox Plague Threatens Mining Villages

MARMORA, April 3.—The brightness of the Easter season will be at a discount in Marmora and Deloro this year. Easter 1926, will long be remembered as the season when the doors of the churches admitted none to the worship of the Risen Christ, and when the dances, entertainments and movies planned to mark the festive season were also barred in the interests of public health.

It is recalled by the older residents that in the neighborhood of forty years ago, the deadly contagion of smallpox took its toll here of several lives. The present outbreak is of the milder form, but four homes in the village and two in the township have been placed under quarantine. The schools at Marmora and Deloro were closed on Tuesday, the parents and guardians of scholars being advised by the Board of Health that no unvaccinated child would be permitted to attend school after the epidemic has been stamped out. The public has shown great readiness to comply with the Board's recommendations for adults. So many were vaccinated over the week-end that on Tuesday the store of vaccine temporarily ran out. A further supply was soon forthcoming, and the list of the treated began to mount up once more. Tradesmen also tell of a heavy run on cream of tartar since the start of the epidemic.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

Our Weekly Serial - Plans For The Home

"The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted"

BY S. GERTRUDE DE WENTWORTH-JAMES

SYNOPSIS

Diane Bledsoe has confessed to Mrs. John Mannering that she was driving the car when it killed a woman, the crime of which young Bob Mannering is accused. Mrs. Mannering and Diane are now caught in a forest fire, while Mannering and Diane's father, terrified, are speeding toward them in an automobile. Young Bob, meanwhile, charged with manslaughter, is in jail awaiting trial.

Then, with an appalling shriek, Diane, her clothes in flames, dashed blindly on, a mad thing, a wild thing.

Amidst the roar and crackling of enshrouding fire, Eileen struggled after her, to see the girl with another shriek plunge downwards in the smoke and disappear beneath the muddy surface of the river below. And to find herself poised, wavering upon its very brink, with death, by fire behind her, by water before her.

CHAPTER XV.

On through the night as swiftly as the big car would carry them, came the two men. With set faces, they leaned far forward to stare at the ruddy glow in the sky while the machine swerved around curves at a perilous speed. They sat, shaken by ever increasing apprehension, while that glow grew brighter and brighter. They shouted incoherent questions at the fugitives in automobiles, whom they first met, yet, they never slowed their swift flight for an answer. They scanned those they met in horsedrawn vehicles and never paused. Soon they were among a weary crowd of stragglers on foot, but they did not stop. Out of the night, out of that fiery furnace ahead, seemed to have come a call which they must answer.

Now, like a weary fire fly, a spent spark settled upon the bonnet of the car and the air was so laden with smoke that they began to cough.

"Go on," cried John Mannering, closing the window of the car on his side.

"Keep on," echoed Bledsoe, as he did the same.

Grim faced, the chauffeur pulled the windshield shut and settled himself anew at the wheel to plunge on into that fog, yellow under the headlights, which all but obscured the road.

More sparks fell, ever larger. They passed a place where the leaves were on fire at the side of the road. Now a flaming fagot swished down upon them, then another and another. The world seemed filled with a golden mist and everything was growing lighter and lighter. A mighty crackling sounded, muffled by the closed doors and windows of the car. Now they were running along, with the river on one side of them, on the other a forest aflame. There was a smell of blistered paint. A flaming torch seemed to leap out of the fog ahead and measure its length along their way. With a crazy swerve, the car avoided it, righted itself and sped on. Then, suddenly, a curtain of fire barred their way, and with a quick motion the chauffeur put on the emergency brake so hard that it lifted John and Bledsoe from their seats.

"Blocked," he said simply.

"Blocked," groaned Bledsoe, burying his face in his hands. "Diane—my baby girl—there."

Ghastly in its emotion, John Manenring's face suddenly set with resolution, but he uttered no word. Eileen . . . there. Well, he had sent her there . . . failed to appreciate her when he had her . . . failed to trust her when put to the test. Very well . . . where she was . . . he would go. Perhaps, she would know . . . understand?

He opened the door and climbed out. He shrank before the awful blast of heat which beat down upon him. Choking and gasping, but protected in the open space on the river side of the car, he did not pause. Straightening himself, he turned as if to walk right into the flames.

What was that? A woman's shriek amidst that inferno? John Mannering stopped and peered ahead. It was as if he looked down a corridor, walled on the one hand by leaping flames, on the other by water. There, far away, very far away under those conditions, he saw a girl. A girl her clothes blazing. He saw her burst like a crazed thing out of the fire. He watched her plunge down, down into the depths of the water below.

John gasped. Then, even as he gazed, there followed a woman. Out of the flames, from the very midst of that blinding incandescence, she came. Groping, staggering, reeling dizzily, she came forth to pause, wavering; one instant about to fall back into the fire from which she had emerged, the next, to plunge forward into the river.

And John knew her. Even at that distance and among those hellish surroundings, he could not mistake that form, that figure.

"Eileen," he cried, but he might as well have saved his breath for his voice was lost before the awful roar of the flames.

"Diane," choked Bledsoe, stumbling breathlessly up to John's side. "She's in the river!"

They started forward, gasping, suffocated, stifled by the smoke. And the heat seemed to wither the very flesh on their bones. John was ahead, while Bledsoe followed more heavily.

As they ran towards her, Eileen seemed to recover herself. They saw her pick her way down the sharp declivity of the bank. They saw her lean far out and down. Then, they saw her tugging, dragging, pulling with an energy far beyond her strength, at some object in the water.

"She's helping Diane," breathed Bledsoe.

It was true. Even as they watched, they could see her struggling to draw the half fainting girl from the water to a place of safety.

From far up the river came a low moaning sound, a dull roar. John looked and what he saw almost froze the blood in his veins. It was as if that landslide had finally aroused the slow anger of the river. Those trickling rivulets about the dam had done their work. Weakened, strained to its utmost by the capacity load behind it, the ancient structure had given and broken. Now, the unleashed flood was rushing down the river, a sheer wall of angry, seething water, spreading from shore to shore.

In ignorance of this, Eileen had struggled on and finally managed to help Diane into a position of safety well above her, but only to sink back herself on her precarious foothold completely exhausted; to cling there, as John saw, right in the path of the oncoming wave; to await, in her helplessness, those advancing waters which must inevitably engulf her and drag her away to destruction.

With a hoarse exclamation of terror, John rushed on, his heart pounding like a trip hammer, gasping, suffocating in that awful atmosphere, in a mad race with that oncoming body of water.

Eileen too, had seen her danger. Now, she struggled upward only to sink back helplessly.

Nearer, ever nearer, came the water.

John, cursing the slowness of his movements, groaned aloud in his anguish. Was he to reach her, to find his Eileen once more, only to have her die before his eyes? Unutterably weary, he fought on, every step become a pain, every movement agony, leaving Bledsoe behind.

Nearer,—— now very near was that mighty wave.

Heedless of the flames which leaped beside him and of the overpowering heat, John reached the bank and dropped down upon the edge. Completely spent, his heaving chest cried for air where there was only smoke, his heated blood called for coolness where there was only fire. Strangling, choking, all was growing dark about him as consciousness faded. It was weak and quivering arms, without a pound of lifting power, that he extended down to her—useless arms, helpless arms.

And that raging, surging mass of water was upon her—it towered above her!

In that awful moment, Eileen seemed to sense her husband's presence. Looking upwards, she gazed full into his glazed eyes. In that instant, the fear and sadness in her face melted before wonder, before joy and inexpressible happiness.

"John," she breathed, and again, "John."

Amidst the thunder of waters which tugged at her feet, her cry seemed to penetrate the twilight of his consciousness. Its sound was as a stimulant to his will, a tonic to his flaccid muscles. In a flash, his arms were steeled, the grip with which he seized her raised hands was as of iron. With the strength of a giant, he swung her up and back to safety even as that frightful wave tore at her ankles, at her knees, at her waist. Then, leaping back himself, he sank beside her, as balked of its prey, the wave swept on.

How long they lay there, John never knew. Suddenly cool, pure, life giving air was in his lungs. The draft caused by that mighty rush of water had revived them, and down there at the water's edge, they were protected from the awful heat of the burning forest. John sat up and took Eileen in his arms. They were safe.

A little distance away, along the shore, was Bledsoe, and Diane, like a tired child lay across his knees.

"Dead," he whispered in an agony of sorrow. "Diane is dead."

Then his bent figure straightened itself and in the seamed lines of his grief-stricken face, there burned a rugged honesty [illegible] almost heroic.

"She told me, as she [illegible] Diane told me all before she died. The world must know the truth about your boy. She made me promise that."

Of how, when the forest fire had burned itself out, they made their way back to the road with Bledsoe bearing the body of his daughter as if it were a sleeping baby, John and Eileen remembered little. For that matter, the ride home seemed, after what they had undergone, like a dream. A restful, soothing dream, after a horrid nightmare.

It was well into the morning of the next day, election day, before Eileen began to feel herself again. Then, she moved slowly out on the terrace of her home and gazed forth at the sun lighted lawn with a great peace in her heart. In her hand was the newspaper she had been reading since breakfast and wonderfully interesting had she found it. In it was an account of the forest fire, of the destruction of Bledsoe's lodge and the village of Meadville; there too, was described the breaking of the dam and the great flood which had followed it. There also was the stirring story of John and Bledsoe's ride, of her husband's rescue of her and of Diane's death. Much space indeed was devoted by that journal to John Mannering. There was exposed the trickery by which Jerome Wallace would have robbed him of the election. There was an item setting forth the action of the county authorities in refusing to accept John's resignation. There was another regarding the refusal of the County Central Committee to order his name removed from the ticket as their candidate for the office of District Attorney. And still another item there was. One of but a few lines and which Dryden would never have published had it not been for Bledsoe's grim insistence. That told of Diane's confession.

A paper containing much and momentous news was it, and Eileen's eyes were still big with the wonder of these things, when a big car swung up the drive with a roar which awakened the echoes of the place. John Mannering sat in the back and beside him was a slighter figure. Even as the machine slowed, that figure arose and, vaulting from the car ran swiftly towards her. It was Bob.

With a cry of gladness, she gathered him in her arms. It was her boy,—her baby,—come home. Tears of joy leaped to her eyes to quickly dry as she pressed him again and again to her. Finally, she turned to her husband.

"What about the election, John?"

He gazed down into her eyes and smiled as she had not seen him smile in days.

"There can be but one result. The opposition has repudiated Wallace, withdrawn his name from the ticket. I have no opposition."

Now, as the three of them waited, there came from the direction of the brick wall a cheery oohoo, at the sound of which Bob flushed and grew very uneasy.

And, will never a thought of waiting in maiden reserve for her lover, no, not even content to meet him half way, Marjorie came dancing across the lawn in search of him.

Bob joined her at the foot of the steps and as they turned away, she raised her finger for his inspection and something glittered upon it.

"Look, Bob," her girlish voice was wafted back to John and Eileen. "It's our engagement ring—I bought it myself."

John bowed to his wife and that old wry smile was on his face.

"Heaven preserve us!" he said.

Eileen looked up with dancing eyes. Subconsciously, she must have caught something of the warm recommendation which Reddy had given the inn keeper at Meadville concerning herself, for now she paraphrased it for Marjorie's benefit.

"She's the sort of girl, John, who knows exactly what she wants, and she doesn't care how she gets it, so long as she gets it."

"Well, then, good bye, Bob," said John, but there was never a bit of sorrow about him, as he drew his arm about his wife. And so they stood gazing out at the sun-lighted lawn, that seemed in its brightness to reflect their own future.

As they did so, the self same bird which had sung upon the trellis before Eileen's window on the morning of Bob's birthday, flitted back to his former perch and caroled joyously. Caroled with marvelous sweetness, as if indeed he heralded the advent of another day. A day when truth would rule and justice reign. Yes, justice—tempered by love.

Showing how to prune Hybrid Perpetual Roses. Hybrid Tea Roses should be pruned more severely. Both kinds flower upon current year's growth. The illustration also shows the depth to which roses should be planted.

(By Mary J. Moore.)

This brief article will be devoted to kinds of roses which are satisfactory to plant in Canada and to such cultural details as are considered essential to success in the production of strong and vigorous bushes and fine flowers.

The Soil.

A fairly heavy clay loam is the best soil for roses. Such a soil is cool in summer, an ideal condition for root growth of the subjects and being also retentive of moisture is ideal for the production of strong flowering growth. Dark-colored humic soils because they absorb and retain more of the sun's heat than do the light-colored clays are unsuited to the rose. As pure clays are too heavy and lack fertility they should where existent be lightened somewhat by the addition of organic matter of which manure from the cow stables is best, this being a cool manure, not heating much in fermentation and being watery in composition adds to the coolness and to the moisture content of the soil. Ordinary stable manure, however, may be employed when ox manure cannot be obtained. If the soil is too light and sandy it may be improved by the addition of loam and of ox manure or of leaf soil so as to make it fertile and retentive of moisture.

The beds or borders to receive the rose bushes may be prepared during autumn for either late autumn or spring planting. They may, however, also be prepared during March or early April and as the roses do best when their roots are able to penetrate deeply it is well to dig the soil two spades deep at the same time working therein the manure. If the soil is prepared in autumn fresh strawy manure may be employed but if in spring, only that which is at least half rotted.

The Position.

Upon the choice of the position in which to plant the roses may depend success in their culture. It is best to plant them in a somewhat sheltered position but also open to full sunshine. The plants must have abundant light but should be protected somewhat from the prevailing winds of winter, also of summer for that matter, so that the blooms will not be destroyed before fully serving their purpose. More especially is it necessary to protect the position from north and east in our colder and more northern localities. In all other respects [illegible] to favor [illegible] summer. [illegible] growing shrubs or hedges may be planted or advantage be taken of existing structures to afford protection. The position should be such that water will not stand in the soil; good drainage is as essential to success as any other factor. Roses will not endure in badly drained soils and in such may die during the first winter. The position thus should not be in a depression but rather a slight elevation from which the water will surely drain.

Planting.

As the different classes of roses vary in vigor, height and spreading qualities, it is essential that when planting, these things be considered. Plant Hybrid Tea two feet apart Hybrid Perpetual three to three and a half feet. There is no advantage in planting climbing roses too closely. Six or even eight feet apart, whether planted near structures such as trellis, fences or pergolas will for most purposes suffice. It is better to plant them far enough apart so that their growths may be trained and controlled than to allow them to become tangled and unmanageable. In this latter condition they harbor insects, and usually do not flower so profusely.

When planting, make the holes large enough to accommodate the extended roots and scatter fine fertile soil in the bottom, choosing a time when the soil is fairly dry and friable. Remove all damaged or broken roots with a sharp knife, spread the roots well. Plant two inches deeper than the old soil mark on the stem. This is easy to detect, as usually the portion below the soil is a yellowish brown, while the aerial portions are green. If the bush bears the swollen portion which is characteristic of budded plants, lower it two inches below this into the hole. With the hand scatter the soil evenly among and over the fibrous roots until they are thoroughly covered. Move the plant upwards and downwards slightly to allow the soil to settle, then finish the work by filling the hole by means of the spade. Tramp firmly around the plant, and rake the surface smoothly. If the weather is dry, saturate the soil and finally afford a mulch of litter or half-decayed manure, if planting is done in the spring to conserve the moisture of the soil.

Roses should not be left exposed to the sun while planting. Should any drying of the roots be apparent ere planting, immerse them in water for an hour, or if the stems appear shrivelled and yet alive, bury the entire plant root and stem in moist soil for a few days. If the stems are not normally restored by this practice, have the plants replaced, and so prevent disappointment. The proper time to plant roses is during spring as early as the soil can be properly worked. In the less frigid winter localities such as the West Coast, and southern peninsulas of Ontario, they may be planted during late October or early November with safety.

Pruning.

The principles of rose pruning, though simple, are not generally well understood. The different kinds of roses require different treatment as far as pruning is concerned. Prune those of vigorous growth lightly, those of weak growth severely. Climbing roses are very vigorous and do not require the hard pruning of the hybrid perpetuals, or the more severe treatment of the hybrid teas.

Severe pruning and thinning of the stems of roses will encourage vigorous growth from the stems which remain. That is the reason we prune hybrid teas severely. They are usually of weaker growth than the hybrid perpetuals or the stronger growing climbers.

When pruning hybrid teas select and retain three or four of the strongest stems, preferably those which are well distributed over the plant. Thin out the remaining weaker growths. This will favor a more bushy form than where careful thinning is not done. Cut the stems, which remain, back to two buds or so from the old wood, always, when possible, leaving the bud which points in an outward direction. When these buds form woody growth, it will grow away from the centre of the bush, which consequently will be left quite open. Air, light and moisture will thus have freer circulation around the stems; the latter will thus grow vigorously and produce better leaves and flowers; the wood will ripen more satisfactorily, will more likely survive the winter, and from its buds better, and stronger growth will after pruning the following spring, appear. Remember that when you prune hybrid teas that the more weak growth you remove, the more you will encourage the growth of the strong.

Hybrid perpetuals usually do not require extreme measures when pruning. Select five or six or as many strong growths as you think necessary to retain. See that they are well distributed and remove the remaining weaker growths. Cut the selected stems back to an outward bud six or eight inches from the base of the stem which bears it. Do not cut all stems at the same height, otherwise an inartistic chopped-off appearance will result. In cases where hybrid perpetuals are not normally vigorous, prune them for a year or two, as advised for hybrid teas. Do not, however, continue this drastic method should their vigor be restored.

In the case of climbing roses a different treatment is necessary. Prune away the flowering growths as soon as the flowers fade. Do not wait until spring. Remove the very old and the dead canes and train strong young ones to replace these. Canes more than three years old may be removed if younger ones have been produced to replace them. Do not cut away any strong canes, which are likely to reproduce flowers, unless it is possible to fill the gap. Remove the thin and straggling stems which grow from the root completely. Shorten back the young growths which are tied to the supports at points where they are not likely to ripen ere winter, and the old ones only when they reach the desired height or occupy conveniently their allotted space. In cold localities it is best to allow all of the strong young canes to remain until spring.

Winter Protection.

Bush roses such as hybrid perpetuals, hybrid teas and baby polyanthas may be adequately protected over winter by mounding soil up their stems to a height of about ten inches. The soil being procured elsewhere than from the area where the roses are planted. It is not well to pull the soil in which the plants grow up around the stems as by so doing the roots may be uncovered and depressions created wherein water will stand to the injury of the subjects. Climbing roses may be protected by simply laying the canes on a bed of strawy litter but always so elevated that water will drain away. If when laid down they are covered with three or four inches of litter held in position by perhaps pieces of brush they will also be protected by the snow, surviving the winter withlittle or no injury. Canes which are not removed from their supports may be protected by means of burlap tied over them as securely as possible. Copyright, 1926, MacLean Building Reports Limited.

Dignity In The Dining Room

Panels make a room live

Scientists have proven beyond a doubt that the colors we live with have a very marked effect on our physical and mental condition. If we sit down to a meal surrounded by irritating and jangling decorations and color schemes, our digestion is affected, and our appetites become irregular and out of sorts.

Consequently, the decorations of the dining room should never be garish or frivolous in motive. Rather, the atmosphere should be one of subdued dignity with walls of soft, rich tones reflecting the colors of the rugs and draperies in one harmonious picture. This is doubly necessary where the living room and dining room are connected by a wide arch, for then you can look from one room to the other and the color transition will not be abrupt.

By means of the new vogue for panels, you can carry this conception rich dignity to perfection as in the room illustrated above.

It has been finished in br panels of a richly colored des balance the large units of usually found in the mod room, and at the same panels give the room tha solidarity and dignity wh enjoyed when at the festi

Dear Sirs:—

I am taking the liberty of writing you regarding my experience with Firestone Balloon Tires, and even though it is unsolicited, it gives me much pleasure in stating that I do not think a better tire can be produced. Up to the present time, I have driven my Ford Sedan 19,000 miles, and judging from the appearance of the tires, I feel sure that I will get seven to eight thousand more mileage and perhaps better than that. I have kept the pressure up to standard at all times, I believe this to be very essential to the life of the tire.

I do not hesitate to recommend Firestone Balloon Tires to my friends, and will certainly do all in my power to boost them, as in my estimation you are making the best and the most economical tire on the market.

I trust that my information will prove to be of some use to you.

Respectfully yours,
H. A. SAILEN,

THE ROTARY ENTERTAINMENT.

In connection with the Rotary entertainment at the Grand Opera House on Monday and Tuesday nights, at which, by the way, a programme novel in nature and full of enjoyment will be offered, it should be understood that the proceeds are to be devoted to the Rotary Boys' Camp work.

That feature of Rotary activity needs very little "boosting"; its success since the camp was established several years ago has been outstanding.

Peterboro people should be familiar with the Rotary plan of providing a two weeks' holiday for boys who otherwise would have no chance for such an outing, and doubtless will welcome this opportunity of assisting in such a splendid effort and at the same time enjoying a programme full of merit.

Boys who have enjoyed the privilege of attending the camp are selling tickets for the entertainment, and they may also be had from members of the club. The attendance on both nights should be large.

THE GOVERNMENT'S ATTITUDE.

All efforts to secure from Premier Ferguson an ...ling of what the Province may expect from him in ... way of liquor legislation have completely failed. Mr. Ferguson refuses to be drawn.

His opinion of the Ontario Temperance Act, he ..., is a secret even to his wife.

The Government will continue to keep the mea... on the statute books and enforce it, declares the ...mier, just as long as it believes the measure to be ...tial to the general and social welfare of the ...e of the Province.

When it feels that the conditions demand a change ... Government will not hesitate to act."

The whole question is to be taken under review, ...o again quote the Premier: "After due consid... we reach a conclusion that the present Act ... stay on the books, we will not hesitate to say so, ... if we think it should be changed we will not hesi...te to say so, and then go to the people."

It will be seen that Mr. Ferguson has left the way open.

In this statement he is committed to nothing; he can lean toward wetness or dryness later on without being charged with inconsistency.

And with that position the Province will have to be satisfied; nothing more can be wheedled out of the head of the Government.

MEMBERS WANTED.

The local Humane Society will be greatly helped by the financial support accorded the organization in connection with the tag day appeal today.

The activities of the society cannot be carried on without the sinews of war, and the addition to the revenue represented by today's receipts will be very welcome.

But even more encouraging than this indication of appreciation would be a large increase in the membership of the organization.

The larger the society is numerically the more likely is it to succeed in completing its programme in the interest of the dumb animals of the city and district.

The association of a large number of citizens in work of this kind must necessarily have more widespread and greater results than if the membership were confined to a comparative handful of people, no matter how energetic or enthusiastic the latter might be.

The moral effect of a big membership would undoubtedly be great, and it is in realization of that fact that the society is energetically seeking to persuade other citizens that it is their duty to take an active interest in this movement.

The Examiner wishes the officers every success in this effort, confident that it will mean much to this community to have a large and active Humane Society here.

A FORM OF PETTY LIBEL.

The Winchester Press calls the attention of its readers to the receipt from a nearby source of a number of news items which appear legitimate enough but which cannot be inserted for the reason that the sender neglected to sign his or her name to them. "Experience has taught us that sometimes there is a hidden meaning in even an innocent reading item," remarks the editor, in reminding his readers that he will publish no communication that does not bear the signature of the writer.

That experience is one which, we imagine, no ...itor has escaped. Not a little cunning is exhibited ... men and women who hold a grudge against their ...ighbors and endeavor to make the newspaper the ...edium for "getting even." Eternal vigilance has to ... exercised by the editor, and particularly the editor ... rural news, if he is to defeat the aims of these ...ople. Anonymously they will submit a number of ...ws items which appear upon the surface innocent ...ough. But amongst them there may be one the ...ll significance of which will be understood only in ... community in which it originates and which is de...ned to bring into contempt the person or persons ...entioned, often quite innocent of wrong-doing, and ...cause them untold annoyance or pain. It is a form ... petty libel and would-be practical joking which ...pears to attain its greatest popularity in the coun..., and against it there is no safeguard unless the ...itor insists that no news received from other than ...fully accredited correspondent shall be inserted without guarantee of its authenticity in the name of the ...nder. And even then there is the possibility of the ...me signed to the communication being either as...med or forged. Well advised is the editor who pays ... more attention to such communication than he ...uld to an anonymous letter personally received. In ...ch case the principle and the motive are the same. —Brockville Recorder and Times.

As a sample of unnecessary advertising, it may ... mentioned that in a parade of London actresses ...splaying new hosiery each girl carried a sign on her ...ck reading, "Look at my stockings."

PEACE AND JOY.

Drab and Dull and Dark Are Spent;
"Gone is the Winter of Our Discontent."

With this cry comes green and gold Easter, sun-splashed and flower-dyed, the most joyous of all our holidays!

The joy of the Eastertide is to the Christian the joy of the empty tomb and a risen, living saviour, offering life, and life abundant—

It is the joy of the promise of life everlasting, and reunion with loved ones from whose tombs the stone, too, shall be rolled away!

But the joy of Easter is an even older thing than Christianity itself. It mocks the narrow confines of religious creed. It comes on dancing feet, arms outstretched and teeming with the gifts from nature's cornucopia, and says—

"Easter is for you and you and you, whatever you believe, whatever you fear, whatever you yearn for, and whatever is your joy!"

For Easter is really the paean of all the children of earth to the Sun God. Our day for thanks for sun and moon and star and bird and flower—our day to joy in a world of all worlds beautiful and challenging.

Easter is the day of the Saxon Goddess, Eastre, the spring. In days of old, the multitude, joy in its heart, gay robed, new-sandaled, went forth to sing and dance and feast in the market place.

The priests of old smiled upon these children of earth and played with them. Slaves were freed in order that they might make merry, too, in the yellow warmth of reborn spring's sun.

The years that have flown by, bringing with them new truths, new beauties, have blended a certain dignity of feeling with the riotous joy of the Easter holiday of long ago.

Spring again! The cycle of life has turned another round. The new season only says once more that law is life, and life is law—that the blossom of spring shall forever follow the drab dead leaf of winter, and that birth shall follow death, and death shall follow birth as surely as the fruit shall ripen from the seed.

The peace and joy in this message of certain LAW over the world!

Warm yellow sun! A robin flashing! Little children laughing! The gauzy jade green that cloaks the willows. The rosy froth of apple blossom. The budding garden shoots—all these close at hand, though winter lingers.

Our world to live in—be in—do in!

"The year's at the spring, and day's at the morn; God's in His Heaven—All's right with the world!"

THE LONDON BUS.

The street traffic problem, with which every city is nowadays wrestling, has become so acute in the metropolis of London as to demand relief measures of the most drastic kind. With the view of reducing what is described as "the positively appalling congestion" in the heart of the great city, it was recently decreed by the Ministry of Transport that a considerable number of the motor busses, which form an endless procession in the streets, should be withdrawn; whereat, the London public, accustomed to travel by bus, and jealous of what it prizes as a democratic privilege peculiarly its own, has risen in indignant protest.

A monster petition, signed by over a million people, has been presented in the House of Commons objecting to the proposed reduction; and it looks as if the lumbering vehicle, so familiar a feature of London life, will continue to roll on its way along Fleet street and down the Strand undisturbed, and in numbers undiminished, to the delight of the Cockney, who loves his pennyworth of transportation, and to the dismay of the local authorities who are at their wits' end to remedy a really grave traffic situation.

By those who know their London and are not concerned with the problem of relieving traffic congestion, the survival of the bus will be hailed with a satisfaction born of the sentiment which clings to old familiar things and long established institutions; for it would be difficult to conceive of a "Blighty" without the rattle and roar of the clumsy yet popular conveyances that offer the best means of seeing the most wonderful city in the world from the "hinside" or "hout," as the East-enders would say.

A literary reputation was made some 30 years ago out of the mystery of a hansom cab, "London's gondola on wheels," as the Victorians called it. An epic might be written of the bus, which is as distinctively "a London particular," to quote the phrase of Dickens, as the traffic "Bobby," the pea-soup fog, or the Covent Garden costermonger. In the days of the old horse bus it used to be said that, seated beside the driver, usually a typical Cockney, one could learn more of London in an hour than one could in a week's personally conducted tour, for, like Sam Weller, the busman's knowledge of his native city was "extensive and peculiar." So were his vocabulary and sense of wit, as thousands of visitors and the pages of Punch could testify.

With the advent of the motor vehicle, the old type of bus driver, perched on his lofty seat and exuding information and banter in a lingo all his own—a "character," if ever there was one, whose ideal of a holiday was to ride on the top of his own "bloomin' 'ere chariot" and chaff his substitute—largely disappeared; or, at all events, his occupation underwent a change which deprived the traveller of a contact as rich in enlightenment as it was amusing. Yet even today the old tradition is to some extent preserved in the pride of calling and other characteristics of the London bus motormen, whose skill in threading their way through blocks of traffic, and avoiding accidents by the fraction of an inch, is matched by a pretty wit and a command of Billingsgate, which find expression in breezy exchanges with competing drivers and despised truckmen.

An inspiring portion of the epic of the London bus would be the narrative of the part it played in the war. When the first British Expeditionary Force—the "Old Contemptibles" — crossed the Channel a large number of London busses, mobilized for transport purposes, went with it, and "did their little bit," much to the amazement and delight of the Tommies and "Old Bills," to whom the "blinking blooming bone-shakers" from "'igh O'born" and Ludgate Hill were a never-failing subject of appreciative banter and good-natured sarcasm. Nor have the people of London forgotten how the busmen stuck to their jobs, and rendered fine service during the tense days of the air raids.

To the soldiers, from all parts of the Empire, "Blighty," without the busses to take them around, would have lost half its charm; and, as surely today as then, to a vast number of visitors old Lunnon Town, relieved of the stir and bustle, the rumble and roar of the tide of "omni" traffic through her historic streets, would not, somehow, seem the same.—Ottawa Journal.

The Rotary Boys' Camp deserves community support. Don't forget the entertainment on Monday and Tuesday nights.

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

SATURDAY

The Burial of All Hope.

Read Jn. 19:31-42. Text: 19:41, 42. In the garden a new tomb wherein was never man yet laid. There . . . they laid Jesus.

Meditation—They had thrilled with the hope "that it should be he who should redeem Israel," but he was dead, there was nothing left but the lifeless body of the leader of the lost cause. Abject hopelessness possessed them. He had declared that he must suffer and die but they thought it only one of his baffling parables. The accompanying prophecy of triumph over death they completely forgot. No vigil was burning in the heart of Mary Magdalene, the roadway was wet with tears. No one was waiting for the third day. There was no dawn in their souls. Death reigned, and wickedness and hopelessness, and no one was looking for the morning. There was nothing left but to comfort their breaking hearts, by the last offices of burial.

Prayer—All merciful Father, Father of Our Lord Jesus Christ, help us that our faith fail not in the hour of loss or sorrow. By the hopelessness of those who mourned the buried Christ Thou has taught us that we pass through the valley only to gain the loftier heights beyond. Therefore in our homes of darkness keep Thou our steps firm and our eyes clear. Amen.

SUNDAY

Seeing the Risen Lord.

Read Jn. 20:1-30. Text: 20:18. I have seen the Lord.

Meditation—When we have experienced the presence and power of the risen Lord to cleanse us from some clutching sin, or to make a weak will strong or inferior abilities adequate we have truly seen with experience and know he is risen indeed. When we can say with Mary, I know the risen Lord for I have seen and apprehended through experience, we know that life in him is forever and we begin to live accordingly. "The man who builds a house to last a lifetime builds differently from the man who builds for a single year. The man who builds a life to last forever builds differently from the man who builds for a generation."

Prayer—O Thou that turnest the shadow o' death into morning, on this day of day our hearts exult with heavenly joy. All things conspire to make us sure of Thee: the gracious sunshine, the stir of springtime, the morning rapture of the birds but greater far, a secret thrill runs through the air from far-off days. . . . Thou art crowned with glory, clothed in victory, Praise be unto Thee, O Lord most high. Amen.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

If your youngsters start making a lot of noise just when you're trying to hear what station is coming over the radio—they're normal children.

Husband—(Arriving home late) — Can't you guess where I've been?
Wife—Sure I can—but go ahead and tell your story anyway.

"Now I know what makes the wheels go 'round," said father, as he paid the gasoline bill.

When a man is too shy to get married —the only thing to do is step out and earn more.

The wise man will not suggest going to the movies, these days. Moving pictures suggest house cleaning.

The average man thinks that the davenport is just something to fall back on.

"The two of us," friend hubby said,
"Can live as cheap as one."
And then they found that living cheap
Was anything but fun.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 3 (Canadian Press).—Easter selling which developed after various unofficial crop estimates were issued gave the wheat market on Thursday a decided downward trend. The estimates were interpreted as suggesting a probable yield of 565,000,000 of winter wheat in the United States this season, compared with 398,000,000 bushels last year.

Wheat closed unsettled, 7-8 to 2 1-4 cents net lower; May (new) 156 to 156 1-8 and July 133 3-8 to 133 1-2; with corn unchanged to 1-8 cent higher; oats at 1-4 cents decline to a shade advance, and provisions unchanged to 15 cents off.

At first the unofficial figures had a bullish effect on the wheat market, the condition percentages reported, 85 to 87.50, being lower than were generally expected, the majority of traders having guessed 87 to 90. On the other hand however, the private estimates of abandoned acreage this season, 5 to 8 per cent, were found to be a good deal under average winter loss. This fact, together with the big difference between this year's expected production and the total from last year's harvest, were given more and more attention as the day progressed.

Corn and oats were steadier by the dearth of receipts and by reports that country roads are bad as a result of storms. Further delay of oat seeding was noted.

Commission house selling eased the provision market, despite higher quotations on hogs.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO, April 3 (Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts yesterday 4,000; fat steer trade very dull; mostly 10 to 15 cents lower, best matured steers, offered at 10.50; yearling, upward to 10.25; bulk fed steers $8.50 to $9.75; canners and cutters, mostly $4 to $4.50; lightweight canners, downward to $4.25 and below; bulk fat cows, $5 to $6.50; vealers, strong; outsiders, taking generous quota at $12 to $13. Few light calves, to packers, $10 to $10.50.

Hogs—Receipts 13,000. Irregular, medium and heavyweight butchers, slow, mostly steady to 10 cents lower; closed at low point lightweight mostly 10 to 25 cents higher, bulk 240 to 300 pound butchers, $11.50 to $12.40; majority better 200 to 225 pound averages, $12.50 to $13.20; bulk good and choice, 180 pounds down $13.40 to $13.75, top 140 to 150 pound weight $13.85; packing sows, $10.40 to $10.90; bulk sorted killing pigs, $13.60 to $14, shippers, 6,000; estimated holdovers, 2,000.

Sheep.—Receipts, 14,000; fat lambs generally strong to 25 cents higher; mostly 15 to 25 cents up; bulk wooled lambs, $13 to $13.50; heavies downward to $12 or below; 109 pound averages, downward, to $9.50.

CHICAGO BUTTER AND EGGS

CHICAGO, April 3 (Canadian Press).—The butter market yesterday ruled steady to firm with buying interest a little more active and a fair trade being reported on all grades.

The centralized car market was firm under a fairly good demand for all grades. Dealers were holding for premiums in practically all cases and slight premiums were obtained in some instances on the 89 and 90 scores.

Fresh 92 score, 40; 91 score 39 1-2.
Centralized, 90 score, 40; 89 score 39 1-2.

Showing How Mutual Profits Reduce Premiums

The generous profits paid to Mutual policyholders do mean something. A graphic example of what they do mean is illustrated by the figures at the top and bottom of the "arrow" shown in this advertisement.

This policyholder took out a straight life policy for $1,000. His first premium was $16.20.

But, as the years rolled on, the generous profits earned on his policy materially reduced the premiums until today his payment for 1926 is only $1.98.

Today the Mutual Life of Canada is carrying $1,000 of insurance on this policyholder's life for only $1.98. Next year, the premium will be still lower.

The Mutual principle of life insurance, combined with sound, progressive management, assures generous profits for Mutual Life policyholders.

Ask the Mutual Life Agent to show you actual year by year profits earned by Mutual Life policies. You'll be convinced that the Mutual Life of Canada is THE Company for you to insure in.

MRS. MARY ANDERSON IS NINETY TO-DAY AND IN BEST OF HEALTH

Enjoys Life on Island With Hundred Year Old Husband.

70 YEARS MARRIED.

Born on Easter Sunday, in 1836, Near Her Present Home.

(By a Staff Reporter).

ANDERSON'S ISLAND, April 3.—Mrs. Joshua Anderson, a life-long resident of this district, celebrates to-day the ninetieth anniversary of her birth, and the passing years have dealt kindly with her, and to-day she is in the best of health, possessed by a vitality that is shared by few who are 30 years her junior. Her husband was 100 years old on January 21 last and he, too, is remarkably preserved, considering his unusual age.

Mrs. Anderson, whose maiden name was Mahala Parcels, was born in Murray Township, not far from her present home, on April 3, 1836. That, for her, auspicious date, fell on a Sunday, and the anniversary of the Resurrection has in the past 90 years recurred on a Sunday of the same date only three times, so that Mrs. Anderson has acquired a habit of saying that she has had only four actual birthdays during her long life.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson were married 70 years ago, on October 29, 1855, so that their 70th anniversary fell on the same date as the last Federal election. On the morning of that day he and his wife drove to the poll at Glen Ross and were the first to cast their ballots. Both were for the Conservative candidate. Mrs. Anderson has voted ever since women were given the franchise, but her husband has exercised his franchise at the same polling place for the past 75 years, and in all that time has never swerved from his party allegiance, and has never missed either a Provincial or a Federal election. After discharging their duty as citizens, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson returned home where, surrounded by their children, their grand and great grandchildren, they celebrated that unusual event in the life of married people, the seventieth anniversary of their wedding.

This aged couple have six children living, three daughters and three sons. The daughters are Mrs. William Reaume of Wallaceburg, Mrs. Chester Hoard, who resides on a farm adjoining that of her parents and Mrs. William Hanna of Stirling. One son, Lester, lives at Hoard's Station. Fred resides with his parents, and another son is in Saskatchewan. They have 20 great and 22 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Anderson reckons among her ancestors several who have lived long past the Biblical age. Her grandfather, the late John Parcels, who was a veteran of the war of 1812, lacked only one month of being 101 years old when he died. As an evidence of his remarkable vigor, it is told in the family records that when he was 100 years old he went from Trenton to Toronto and back inside of a week, making the entire distance on foot over rough corduroy roads and through forest trails.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are spending the evening of life in peace and comfort on the farm on which they settled at the time of their marriage. Their birthdays never fail to bring to them substantial tokens of the affection in which they are held by their children.

RICE LAKE GRAVE TO RECEIVE FAMOUS PAINTER OF ROYALTY

Gerald Sinclair Hayward, Renowned Miniature Artist, Dies in New York.

REVIVED AN ART.

Queen Victoria, King Edward and Queen Alexandra Were His Subjects.

NEW YORK, April 3 (Associated Press).—Gerald Sinclair Hayward, R.A., one of the most noted painters of miniatures and for long a resident of Port Hope, Ontario, is dead at the age of 81. Announcement of his death was made from his west end home here on Thursday by members of his family. The body will be taken to Port Hope for burial near Rice Lake.

Mr. Hayward was credited with painting miniatures of more royal personages than any of his contemporaries. He received commissions from the courts of England, Germany and Russia. Among his patrons in the United States were J. Pierpont Morgan, Theodore Roosevelt and W. K. Vanderbilt.

The renowned artist first came to this continent in 1890, when his parents moved from England and took up residence at Port Hope. Mr. Hayward maintained a home at Rice Lake until the time of his death.

The death of Mr. Hayward came as a shock to his large circle of friends in this district.

Despite the fact that Mr. Hayward spent the greater part of his later life in New York, he was, nevertheless a staunch Canadian, and held much claim upon the interest of the public as an exceptional, many-sided genius and adventurer.

He had enjoyed more intimate relations and closer contact with, and painted the portraits of a larger number of European royalties and near-royalties and ex-royalties, than any other man or woman.

He had created, proven and grown famous in a school of art of his own, beginning his true career after having attained mature manhood and (without ever having taken a lesson—for although a few miniaturists were working in those days, no lessons in the art were obtainable in either London or Paris) prosecuted the miniaturists' art on lines altogether individual winning by his works the highest prizes and praises of academies and academicians.

That he would write his name in American history with the needle-fine brush of the miniaturist was about the last thing Gerald Hayward, returning at eighteen from his "schooling" in England, would have deemed possible or desired. The red blood of a long line of soldier ancestors was in his veins, and it was the west that he heard a-calling, not the east—the west with its flower-carpeted plains, "boundless and beautiful," its warring Indians, its frontier adventuring, and its superlative lure beyond the frowning mountains, where California's gold-secreting hill sides slope gently to the sea. To the west he went accordingly—the west as it then was, when "settled" America took farewell of the evening sun at those last outposts of civilization, St. Louis, or Kansas City or Omaha. Chicago was "headquarters," and accepted as implied or understood whenever anyone spoke of "going to town."

Adventure With Indians.

It was while acting as chief engineer of one of those 8-o.p. prairie schooners navigating the Kakota plains, that the young Canadian adventurer obtained his definition of "luck." Outriding scouts of the party reported Indians on the warpath and ahead. Hayward was sent back alone, a matter of seventy unmarked miles, to report to the nearest post and secure such aid as might be mustered on the pinch of emergency. With the reinforcements secured he took up the back trail, only to find that the Sioux had struck first and struck hard. The caravan had been captured. More than half of its personnel had been butchered, and no doubt orthodoxly scalped. The others were carried away as prisoners of the reds.

Had it not been for that particular adventure, Gerald Hayward would not have returned to Chicago. If he had not been in Chicago when wildly exaggerated accounts of the preparations for the Fenian invasion of Canada reached that fast-growing population base, and if he had not then hurried back to his native Canada to proffer his services as a rifleman of proven efficiency, anxious to employ his skill against the rebels, he would not have found himself, the raid excitement over, with a Queen's medal and a grant of 160 acres near the place of his birth. Had it not been for that land he would not have taken up farming near Algonquin; and if he had not have been farming he probably would not have been there to receive the sunstroke a few years later which decided him upon giving a new direction to his "career."

And if he had not thereupon, after consulting and receiving encouragement from Marmaduke Matthews, Toronto's landscapist, decided to take up miniature painting, he would not have become world-famous in that exclusive field and enjoyed the honor of perpetuating upon ivory the good looks, or otherwise, of some two hundred or more royalties and princelings of Europe, and more than a thousand eminent and distinguished Canadians and Americans.

REVIVED ART

Mr. Hayward in advanced art circles was generally referred to as the reviver of the art of miniature painting, an art that has lost naught of its old-time beauty and charm through long disuse. He gave, in 1883, at New York, the first exhibition of modern miniatures recorded in the art history of the American continent; and six years later, at the Avery Gallery on Fifth avenue, repeated this experiment, with the display of ninety chosen examples of his own work, a portion of the fruits of the intervening period.

While living in Europe, previously he had been for weeks a house guest at Marlborough, while painting "Victoria the Good," her eldest son and successor, the late King Edward, and his consort, the late Queen Mother Alexandria, as well as her sister, the then czarina of Russia; the little czarewitch, whose tragic fate is matter of so very recent blood-written history, the late Princess Alice, the Duke and Duchess of Buckingham and Chandos, the Duchess of St. Albans, Lord and Lady Minto, and members of their family, with scores of other British notabilities.

Among Mr. Hayward's American patrons are included a host of those whose names are linked with the making of modern history—Anson Phelps Stokes; Harriman and Huntington, W. K. Vanderbilt and Jay Gould, the railway kings; the Pierpont Morgans, father and son; McKinley and Cleveland and Roosevelt; Mrs. Ralph Waldo Emerson and Mrs. H. Chatfield-Taylor; Macdonald and Laurier; Mrs. W. T. Stead and Mrs. Grover Cleveland, both painted as wedding gifts of their distinguished husbands.

The pretty medieval Italian custom of preserving, painted on ivory, the lips or eye of some beloved one, encased (with perhaps a lock of that loved one's hair) in signet ring or locket had lately been revived by Mr. Hayward. He even carried with him a single limpid brown eye of rare soft southern beauty, an eye fringed with dark lashes and arched by a perfectly pencilled brow—the eye being set within a signet ring and the signet being that of the "martyred president" of Guatemala, General Barrios.

The eye is that of Mme. Barrios—another reminder of the tragedy that lurks in palaces.

SHIP IN DISTRESS.

"Forysic" Has Lost Her Rudder Off Cape Cod.

NEW YORK, April 3 (Canadian Press).—The steamship Foryeic was reported in distress, having lost her rudder forty miles east of Cape Cod yesterday. Her plight was learned in a message to the Fabre Line from the Patria, owned by that company, which reported it was standing by.

The Foreic is not listed in Maritime registers. The Fabre line requested that a coast guard patrol boat be sent to relieve the Patria.

CANADIAN FOWL MAKE A RECORD

Fame as Poultry Breeding Country Carried To All the World.

DOMINION LEADS.

OTTAWA, April 3 (Canadian Press).—Carrying the name and fame of Canada as a poultry breeding country literally to the four corners of the earth, pure-bred birds have been shipped by Canadian record of performance poultry breeders within the last six weeks to the Argentine Republic, Japan, England, the Fiji Islands and Australia, in addition to many parts of the United States.

Commenting on a recent sale made to England, Prof. E. A. Lloyd, professor of poultry husbandry at the University of British Columbia, and secretary of the B. C. Record of Performance Poultry Breeders' Association, which organization made the shipment, states that 50 barred rock hens with records of over 200 eggs in one year and six pedigreed cockerels from hens with records over 250 eggs were selected to fill the order.

The birds were on the Atlantic during the recent terrific storms, yet they reached England in perfect condition, and the hens commenced to lay the day after arrival. This, according to Prof. Lloyd, is striking testimony of the stamina of Canadian poultry.

FOLLOWS CANADA.

OTTAWA, April 3 (Canadian Press).—Acting on recommendations made by the National Poultry Council of England, the British Ministry of Agriculture has drafted a policy for the official certification of poultry records similar to the record of performance for poultry which has been in operation in Canada since 1919. The system, which is to be known as "English and Welsh stock poultry laying records," was decided upon only after careful consideration and the action of the British Ministry testifies to the high regard in which the Canadian policy is held in other countries. The record of performance policy, administered by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, greatly impressed Percy Francis, British poultry commissioner, during a visit to Canada in 1923.

The draft, which is being submitted to the British National Poultry Council for consideration, contains the same basic principles as the Canadian policy.

NO OTHER PIG LIKE DENNIS

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 3 (Canadian Press). — Pigs may be pigs, but ask a member of the crew of the steamship Glamorganshire, which reached here recently from South American, and he will tell you that pigs have individuality and that there is no other pig just like Dennis.

A few months ago Dennis was an anonymous little black porker grunting in the backyard of a sleepy Central American village. Now he is the lord of all he surveys on a crack ocean steamship and the idol of an admiring crew.

Commander J. Rutherford Collins who walks the bridge of the Glamorganshire, likes pork, and when he landed at the Central American port to purchase supplies he made enquiries of the butchers concerning pork. But somehow nothing that he saw in the shops appealed to him. Flies swarmed everywhere, and there was a general hint of lack of sanitation that brought about the immediate loss of Commander Collins' appetite. He went away from the butcher empty-handed, but when he saw Dennis playfully wallowing in the mud behind a villagers' fence an idea blossomed. He approached the villager, drove a bargain, and sent two of him men ashore to bring the little pig aboard alive.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

This window of mine lends itself to meditation. Unlike 'The Window in Thrums,' it is a large window and affords me a wonderful view of hills and valleys and plains and sea. Sluggish indeed would be the mind that did not give itself to musing at such a vantage point as this.

As I let my eyes rest for a moment upon the hills I have, by the exercise of what Ruskin calls, "The faculty of mental creation," spanned the centuries which lie between me and the distant past, and I am in company of the Psalmist as he says, "Will I lift up mine eyes unto the hills, or high places?" Worshipper of Jehovah as he was, he saw the pagan peoples around him offer sacrifice to their idols on the high places, and so he wonders, as he meditates, if he too must look to the hills for deliverance from the bondage of sin and the fear of death. But in that same moment of time there sweeps across the length and breadth of his soul the assurance of a great and glorious hope, "My help cometh from the Lord which made heaven and earth."

Lowering my eyes from the hills to the valleys I leave the past and present for the future as I stand in the presence of an Hebrew prophet and hear him say, "Every valley shall be exalted." And I rejoice in anticipation of the transformation to be effected when 'The Golden Age' arrives.

Valleys, of course, have their value it for no other reason than the variety they lend to the landscape of the world about us or the world within us. But, associated with the valleys are the shadows which few of us hail with any real delight. There the darkness falls first and leaves last! There the pain comes last and leaves first. And when the Psalmist speaks of that last dread experience known as death, he calls it, "The valley of the shadow of death." Well, even that valley shall one day be exalted when 'the morning breaketh and the shadows flee away.' Then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, "Death is swallowed up in victory."

Permitting my gaze to rest upon the plains I can see, "All on an April morning," the sheep with their little lambs, and I think of "The Lamb of God."

Journeying toward a mountain, I can see in the long-ago a father and son going to offer sacrifice to God. After all preparation has been made so far as he can make it, the son says to his father, "Here is the wood and the fire, but where is the lamb for an offering?" With prophetic instinct the father replies, "My son, God will provide Himself a lamb."

Centuries later the great evangelical prophet, Isaiah, says "He is led forth as a lamb to the slaughter." And still later we stand in the Jordan valley and hear John the Baptist say, as he points to Jesus of Nazareth, "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world." Now we can read a fuller meaning in Abraham's words: It is not that God Himself will provide a lamb—which, of course was also true,—but that God will provide HIMSELF a Lamb; for God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself.

And now the sea occupies my vision, and my imagination is working overtime. Born within sight of it, "All to ships and sailor-men I owe my heart away." And fickle though I may be at times I have never changed in my love for the trackless deep or ocean's wave beat shore. Lines like these, from the pen of a still unknown author, stir me to the depths of my soul as I come once more into contact with one of the many aspects of the Waterfront."

The cold grey mist rolls inward
from the sea;
The oily waters lap against the piles;
Dim figures move upon the sodden
quay;
The lonely seabird calls 'cross leaden miles.

The turbid atmosphere is twice befogged—
The dripping pier's beneath a smoky cloud.
Nearby, an ancient wreck — long water-logged—
Is wrapped about with nature's foggy shroud.

And now above the lone gull's weary cry
Is heard a distant sound, long-drawn and drear,
To warn the wand'ring seaman land
is nigh,
That through the wet-grey curtain
port is near.

Across the oily waste of tires and swells,
Across the waterfront—its stack and mast,
Its smoke, its reeking bilge and scupper smells—
The heavy mantle of the fog is cast."

Yet, a lonely exile, musing by the side of the sea, was given a vision of the future and a new order of things, with new heavens and a new earth and, he says, "There was no more sea." I must confess that there is something here which I cannot understand and therefore cannot yet appreciate. Nevertheless, in my difficulty, I refuse in my defeat to be deprived of what there is in helpful suggestion in the time when there is to be "No more sea."

It is well nigh impossible to think of the sea without thinking of the restlessness, mystery and separation associated with it. And isn't it true that these same things are crowded into most lives at some time or other? "Restless! Don't know what to do." Perplexed by mysteries which we cannot solve and pained by separations which we cannot avoid, what a joy it is to know that a boundary has been set for all these, and we shall get away from them when the new order of things is brought in.

Long ago the question was asked, "If a man die shall he live again?" The 'if' had nothing to do with the dying: that was a sad fact which all had to face! "In Adam all die," and so "It is appointed unto men once to die." It has no regard for innocence, for ability, for wealth or for rank! Death will come to all of us. Therefore we can all feel the pathos of that question, "If a man die shall he live again?" The "if" has to do with the possibility of living again.

Of course, we known that there is an answer to this question. And it is well to remind ourselves of it at this season of the year when our thoughts are focussed on Easter and the empty tomb of Him Who has in His own redemptive work supplied the answer to our question.

Think of His words. "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

Blessed fact! "I am come." The Lamb slain from before the foundation of the world, promised in the garden of Eden and foreshadowed in every Jewish sacrifice. He Who said by the lips of one of Israel's sweet singers, "Lo! I come", comes forth at last according to promise as the Word made flesh. In Bethlehem, to the accompaniment of Heaven's praises He comes forth as a babe, born of a virgin, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the curse of the law. As He plays with boyhood friends in the streets of the little hill town of Nazareth, to the ears of those who are spiritually adjusted to the mind of God, there comes the refrain, "I am come that they might have life."

Once more it can be heard as He is fouud by Joseph and Mary in the temple at Jerusalem. On a day when multitudes have gone to the banks of the Jordan to hear the Wilderness Preacher, a young man appears and requests baptism. We have no difficulty in recognizing Him as He thus enters upon His public ministry, and we can hear those unique words again, "I am come that they might have life."

In every crisis during those brief busy years, this blessed fact seems to have been the dominating factor, determining every feeling, thought, word and action.

Oh! troubled heart, remember that the honor of God binds Him to keep His promise and so in the light of the teaching of all the shadows and symbols of the Old Testament, with His "I am come" ringing in our ears, we can say in relation to every other promise which God has given, "Faithful is He Who has promised, who will also perform it."

Blessed favor! "That they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." "By one man sin entered the world, and death by sin, so death passed upon all men for all have sinned." Men everywhere are in rebellion against God; and as rebels they have forfeited the right to live. That is part of the penalty of the transgression of the law, and before man can get the right to live in union and communion with God, that penalty must be removed. When Christ said, "I am come that they might have life," He meant in the first instance that they might have the right to live. This right He secured by His death upon the cross. By the offering of Himself on Calvary He has secured for every man the right to live forever more in union with God. But more was needed! Man being spiritually dead, needed the life that would enable him to enjoy the right. We get this life through His resurrection from among the dead. And in the warm light of the Easter morning we can hear Him say, as He steps forth in His all-conquering might, "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly."

Who can estimate all that this has meant for poor, suffering sorrowing humanity? We can stand by the graves of our loved ones, and to the old question, "If a man die shall he live again?" reply, "Now is Christ risen from among the dead and become the firstfruits of them that slept." Easter is to us the promise and the pledge that if we too have to go down into the valley of the shadow of death it will only be for a little while and death itself shall be vanquished. Therefore let the key-note of our lives be, "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain."

SURREXIT!

AN EASTER MESSAGE BY DR. DYSON HAGUE, TORONTO.

The Christians of the early church on Easter Day used to greet one another with the joyous word, "Surrexit" (He is risen), and then gave back the answer, "Vere surrexit" (He is risen indeed). It was and is a glorious message, more glorious as the years roll on, and ever more inspiring. It has in it the dynamic of an endless life. For those who grasped it then, it banished fear and sadness, and the gloom of death. To those who receive it now, it brings joy and hope and life victorious. Easter is Christ's springtime. He Himself is the resurrection and the life. His own right hand and His holy arm have gotten Himself the victory. O, troubled and distressful ones, seeking in the tomb of the vanished past the Christ who was dead, lift up your hearts, lift them up unto the Lord. The Christ of the cross is not there in the tomb. He is not there—He is risen! He is living, working, inspiring, energizing in a million lives, in whom His living word is true, "because I live, ye shall live also." Never again, never, never, can men think of Christ as merely belonging to a bygone past. Today He is the first and the last of every regenerated life, every transformed career, every vital movement, every missionary achievement. A dead Christ can neither save, inspire or uplift. It is the living Christ who is scattering the proud in the imagination of their hearts, putting down the mighty from their seats, and exalting those of low degree. The hearts that receive by faith the living Christ will find today the pristine joy of Easter. Hope will spring eternal. Joy will conquer fear and pain. The very cross will be radiant with victory. On one occasion the great preacher, Moody, said: "Some day you will read in the papers that D. L. Moody is dead. Don't you believe a word of it! I shall be more alive then than I am now. I shall have gone up higher, that's all; out of this old clay tenement into a house that is spiritual, a body that death cannot touch, that sin cannot taint, a body like unto His glorious body." Contrast a triumphant hope like that with the hopeless grief of the atheist, poor Bob Ingersoll, by the coffin of his brother as he wailed: "Every life must become a wreck at last. Every life will at the last become a tragedy, sad and dark and deep. Life is a dark and barren valley between the cold, ice-clad peaks of two eternities." But now there will burst forth from a million Christian hearts the triumphant paean, I know that my redeemer liveth, now is Christ risen from the dead. Put on your royal splendor, O ye fields and groves; be clothed with beauty, ye gardens and forests, to greet once more the Prince of Glory at this Easter time. Let the heavens rejoice and let the earth be glad: let the fields be joyful and all that therein is; let all the trees of the wood rejoice, for He is risen, He is risen again! But better, far better, higher far higher, than the joy of the earth at the rising of the sun, should be the singing and the shouts of Christ's ransomed people, as they sing once more unto the Lord a new song, and hail with loud acclaim their risen Saviour diademed with many crowns.

"Then wake, glad heart! awake, awake! And seek thy risen Lord,
Joy in His resurrection take, and comfort in His word:
And let thy life through all its ways, one long thanksgiving be,
Its theme of joy, its song of praise, 'Christ died and rose for me'."

A MAN MUST DIE THAT HE MAY LIVE

St. Andrew's United Church Crowded For Splendid Good Friday Service.

During Passion week the United churches of the city have been joining in Union Passion week services in George street church each evening. The general subject of meditation was The Suffering Christ.

On Good Friday morning at St. Andrew's church the subject for the day was in keeping with occasion, "The Death of Christ." The church was crowded to the doors and chairs were placed in the aisles and it was some minutes before the congregation could be seated. The service was in charge of the pastor of the church, Rev. J. W. Gordon. The hymns for the day were: "Go to Dark Gethsemane," "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," and "In the Cross of Christ I Glory." Mrs. Ford Turner sang with deep feeling, "He Was Despised."

Rev. J. E. Todd, of George street United church, was the preacher of the day and in a sermon of rare winsomeness and quiet thought, gathered his hearers about that tragedy upon a hill in the dull morning air of two thousand years ago—Calvary.

Christ's disciples did not understand him. They did not accept his plainly stated ideals. They showed upon many occasions by what they said and what they did and by questions they asked that their plans and ideals were very different to his. He saw plainly that no mere teaching would establish his Kingdom. It must be by something more appealing, that he will reveal the heart of God and save mankind.

Taking his illustration from the natural world Jesus said: "Except a corn of wheat die it abideth alone but if it die it bringeth forth much fruit." He said he "must die," be buried and rise again. The speaker indicated that he had a certain timidity about dogmatic statements regarding the death of Christ. Theories of the atonement as a rule are too precise and sure in a realm where man can walk only uncertainly. The fact that Christ died for sins let all receive. Theories concerning it are less important.

It is said in certain quarters, said Mr. Todd, that "man must live." Jesus said: "A man must die to live." The cross is not only a "way to be saved"—it is "a way to live." Until one has said: "I will follow Jesus even to the cross," he has not fathomed the meaning of what it is to be a Christian.

The sermon, in its quiet, meditative sentences, its atmosphere so reminiscent of the last sad days of Jesus, its insistent call to the sacrificial life, joined with the beautiful hymns and solo, made up a service of Good Friday worship which inspired all present and was a splendid and fitting conclusion of these Passion week services.

FESTIVAL OF FESTIVALS.

Day of the crucified Lord's resurrection,
Day that the Lord by His triumph hath made,
Day of Redemption's seal of perfection,
Day of the crown of His power displayed:
Beautiful Easter, dazzling bright.
Sun-day that filleth all Sundays with light,
Queen of all festivals: glad culmination
Of the brightest feasts that encircle the year;
Glimpsing the Life is a Transfiguration
That shall at length in its glory appear.
Beautiful Easter: day in its height,
Sun-day that filleth all Sundays with light;
He who redeemeth, consoleth, forgiveth,
Who, His own body raised up from the dead,
Holdeth all evil, in bondage and liveth,
Source of all blessing, our life and our Head,
It is His glory that maketh thee bright,
Sun-day that filleth all Sundays with light.

EASTER BELLS.

Ring joyously, ye Easter bells,
It is the Lord's own day,
How high and clear this music swells,
"Eternal life," they say.
Ye happy birds, your voices raise,
Fair earth, the strain prolong,
Eternal life this song of praise,
All join this Easter Song.

For Christ the Lord has conquered death,
His living shows the way,
Life does not end with mortal breath
Eternal life this day.
"Glory to God," the angels sing,
Our glad hearts make reply,
Hosannas—Let the welkin ring,
This Love that cannot die.

From north to south, from east to west,
Onward the message speed,
Till all shall in that Love be blest,
Find happiness the meed.
So on this holy Easter Day
Let heart-felt thanks be given,
To Him Who is the Truth, the Way,
The Life that makes for Heaven.

—Laura C. Burroughs.

A ROMAN SOLDIER.

I was a Roman soldier in my prime;
Now age is on me and the yoke of time,
I saw your Risen Christ, for I am he
Who reached the hyssop to Him on the tree,
And I am one of two who watched beside
The Sepulchre of Him we crucified.
All that last night I watched with sleepless eyes:
Great stars arose and crept across the skies,
The world was all too still for mortal rest,
The night was long, so long, it seemed at last
I had grown old and a long life had passed.
Far off the hills of Moab, touched with light,
Were swimming in the hollow of the night.
I saw Jerusalem all wrapped in cloud,
Stretched like a dead thing folded in a shroud.

Once in the pauses of our whispered talk,
I heard a something on the garden walk,
Perhaps it was a crisp leaf lightly stirred—
Perhaps the dream-note of a waking bird.
Then suddenly an angel burning white,
Came down with earthquake in the breaking light,
And rolled the great stone from the Sepulchre,
Mixing the morning with a scent of myrrh.
And lo, the Dead had risen with the day!
The Man of Mystery had gone His Way!

Years have I wandered carrying my shame,
Now let the Tooth of Time eat out my name,
For we, who all the Wonder might have told,
Kept silence, for our mouths were stopped with gold.

—Edwin Markham.

ORIGIN OF EASTER

The Saxon goddess named Ostara or Eastre, the goddess of the east, the morning, of spring, gave her name to our Easter.

In olden days the entire month of April was dedicated to Eastre. Spring festivals with dancing and singing and feasting were held in her honor.

Colorful crowds in their finest dress made merry in the open market places, young swains wooed their ladies, and laughter everywhere bore tidings of the birth of spring.

Legend has it that the sun danced on Easter morning and that if one rose early enough to see this sight, ever after lucky would he be!

The "Big Parade" of Easter Day originates from the old superstition that it is unlucky not to wear something new on Easter Day.

The original Christian Easter was really a thanksgiving festival lasting for eight days. Later, it became three days, then two, and now our one Easter Sunday, commemorating the resurrection of Christ.

The clergy of early Christian days in all ways sought to stress the joy of the spring. Feast tables were set within the churches.

The rabbit or hare as an Easter symbol arises from the fact that the Easter date is dependent upon the moon, and the hare, in olden mythology, was supposed to come out and play, produce its young, and carry on most of its activities by the light of the moon.

The egg as a symbol of Eastertide symbolizes birth, new life, a reawakening, about to come forth from the egg and seed.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS APPEARS TO HIS DISCIPLES

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 4. Jesus Appears to His Disciples.—John 20:24-29; 21:15-17.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

We have emphasized the human interest in the Gospel of John, the Gospel that pre-eminently sets forth the divinity of Jesus. Nowhere is this human element better displayed in the Scriptures than in the narratives in John concerning the experiences of the disciples following the resurrection of Jesus.

Two of the intimate and beautiful scenes and experiences of these days are recorded in our lesson. The first concerns "Doubting Thomas," a good and honest man who had been somewhat maligned by the epithet "doubting" that has been applied to him all through the years.

A man is not necessarily a doubter because he is cautious and desires sufficient proof before he commits himself to belief in strange and unaccountable things. When Thomas was told that the disciples had seen their risen Lord there was much to make him doubt that assertion. It was against all experience that a man who had been crucified should be known to live.

The disciples had been through what we would describe today as shell-shocking experiences. They were in an exceedingly excitable state of mind. It was not unreasonable that Thomas should have questioned their statement and wished to have proof for himself.

No Great Disapproval.

The treatment that Jesus is represented as according Thomas does not indicate any great disapproval of Thomas' hesitation. He knew that Thomas desired to believe, and he gave him every opportunity to have his doubts satisfied. "Reach hither thy finger," he said to him, "And behold my hands and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side and be not faithless, but believing."

It is true that when Thomas responded in the fullness of faith, "My Lord and My God," Jesus gave him a gentle rebuke, but this rebuke, it should be recognized, was not a commendation of credulity, but was rather a commendation of that spiritual instinct and trust which lays profound stress upon inward belief, and which does not base religious conviction upon merely outward evidence.

"Blessed are they that have not seen," he said, "and yet have believed."

Might we not apply this word with great propriety to many Christians today who are frankly troubled over the whole question of the miraculous? They have a strong sense of the permanency and unalterability of natural law. They feel, in a sense, that it is this unalterable quality of law that, above all else, speaks of the integrity of God and the universe.

They would not find it so easy to believe in a divine being if they felt that in the universe anything were left to arbitrary will. For them a miracle, in a sense, is the denial of law, and they find it exceedingly difficult to believe in the miraculous.

Probably we do not always realize how many people have doubts arising from such a cause that they never express. What should we say to such people? Should we condemn them for their doubts? Should we not rather lay the profound stress upon the inward spiritual things?

Significance of Faith.

Where those who do not find it easy to believe in the miraculous have, none the less, committed their lives fully and unreservedly to the Savior's keeping and to his mastership and leadership, might they not be worthy of his words: "Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed."

Probably we do not always grasp the significance of that faith that lays hold of the highest things of God in Christ even though all may not be clearly revealed to the intellect. At any rate, whether we believe easily or with difficulty in the miraculous, it is only as we see with the eyes of faith and are lifted above the materialistic considerations that we come into the full glory of the resurrection faith.

From this story of Thomas we turn to a glimpse of Simon Peter, which is one of the most beautiful things in all Scripture. Peter had denied his Lord. He was undoubtedly smarting under the sense of his unworthiness, yet rejoicing in the fact that Jesus had claimed him.

Peter had been boastful of his allegiance to his Master. Impulsively, but apparently without realizing what he was saying, in emphasizing his own loyalty, he had disparaged the faith and courage of other men.

"Though all men deny thee," he had declared, "yet will not I." How humiliated he must have been in the eyes of the disciples. In spite of his boasting he had fallen far below his own ideal. And how gently Jesus puts him to the test!

Peter's Faith.

What is the quality of his faith? What is his spirit? Is it still that of the boastful desire to be first? "Simon, son of Jonas," says Jesus, "Lovest thou me more than these?"

Peter entirely ignores the words "more than these," and replies, "Yea, Lord thou knowest that I love thee."

Three times Jesus repeats the question, and three times as Peter replies in the affirmative Jesus lays upon him the obligation of lowly and humble service. This, he reveals to Peter, as the way of love.

The lesson that Jesus gave to Peter is a lesson for us all. We are all too prone to express a love of Christ that is not backed up by our daily lives. It is in following the Good Shepherd that love becomes strong, aggressive, and courageous, but in following the Good Shepherd it will never cease to be humble.

THE FIRST EASTER

The first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was dark, unto the sepulchre, and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulchre.

Then she runneth and cometh to Simon Peter and to the other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre and we know not where they have laid him.

Peter therefore went forth, and that other disciple and came to the sepulchre.

So they ran both together: and the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the sepulchre.

And he, stooping down, and looking in, saw the linen clothes lying; yet went he not in.

Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the sepulchre and seeth the linen clothes lie.

And the napkin that was about His head, not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by itself.

Then went in also that other disciple, which came first to the sepulchre, and he saw, and believed.

For as yet they knew not the Scripture, that He must rise again from the dead.

Then the disciples went away again unto their own home.

But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she wept she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre.

And seeth two angels in white, sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my lord, and I know not where they have laid Him.

And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing Him to be the gardener, saith unto Him, Sir, if thou have borne Him hence, tell me where thou hast laid Him, and I will take Him away.

Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni, which is to say Master.

Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not, for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father and your Father: and to my God, and your God.

Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord and that he had spoken these things unto her.

Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus, and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you.

And when he had so said, he shewed unto them his hands and his side. Then were the disciples glad, when they saw the Lord.

St. John 20:1-20.

"CHRIST, THE LORD, IS RISEN TODAY"

Chips and Shavings
FROM THE WORKSHOP OF JOHN PLANE

Those who have no love to spare, usually have plenty of surplus sorrow to distribute.

God often digs the wells of joy with the spade of sorrow—but most of us find it hard to believe this while the digging is going on.

Life may have a burden for everyone's shoulder, but Christ has a shoulder for everyone's burden.

You don't lower your dignity by bending your knee in prayer; and don't forget that the attitude of prayer precedes the gratitude of praise.

Keep your face towards the sun and the shadows will all fall behind you.

The faith that cannot carry you to your duty cannot carry you to Heaven.

Reformation may put a new coat on a man, but the glory of regeneration is that it put a new man in the the coat.

Lost opportunities are never found, but he who embraces God-given opportunities always has his arms full.

Evil reports would soon cease were there not evil tongues, evil ears, and evil feet.

Upright truth will never bend to crooked circumstances.

What a man is depends largely on what he does when he has nothing particular to do.

God estimates us not by the position we are in but by the way in which we fill it.

Our faculties will rise in judgment to condemn us if we have not improved them to the extent of our opportunity.

There is no need for blotting out the characters of our affections but of writing them on fairer paper. There is no necessity for drying up these running waters but for diverting them into proper channels.

Extraordinary afflictions are not always the punishment for extraordinary sins, but sometimes the trial of extraordinary graces.

In the dark cloud of a great sorrow the beautiful bow of God's promise is often seen if we look up. When every thing goes against you till it seems as if you could not hold out a minute longer, never give up then—it is just the place and time that the tide will turn.

The life of Moses consisted of one hundred and twenty years divided into three forties. In the first forty years he was learning to be somebody. In the second forty years he was learning to be nobody. And in the third forty years he was proving what God could do with a man who had learned these two lessons.

God never makes us feel our weakness except to seek strength from Him. If He writes "opportunity" on one side of an open door, He writes "responsibility" on the other side. Every door has two sides and you cannot have the one without the other.

Every man has his gift of whatever sort it may be and the tools go to him that can use them. A man's gift will always make room for him.

Good thoughts are blessed guests, and should be heartily welcomed, well fed and much sought after.

Arrogance in the soul resembles the spleen in the body, which grows most while other parts are decaying. God will not suffer such a weed to grow in His garden without taking some course to root it up.

It is the night owl of ignorance which boodes and hatches the peacock of pride. "Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall."

He shall have hell as a debt who will not taken heaven as a gift.

Man is a creature too much inclined to warm himself by the sparks of his own fire, though he lie down in eternal flames for kindling them.

We do not sail to glory in the salt sea of our own tears, but in the red sea of a Redeemer's blood. We owe the life of our souls to the death of our Saviour. It was going into the furnace which keeps us from the flames.

It is always well to remember that the best of men are but men at the best—therefore, let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he also fall.

Some people are more impressed with the drawing of the cork than with the contents of the bottle. If a speaker's personality or manner of speech appeals to them they will swallow all he says even if it be utter foolishness or rank poison.

To believe a thing is impossible is to make so to the unbelieving believer.

See to it that you wishbone is not where your backbone ought to be. If you find that it is hurry up and get an adjustment or you may suffer disappointment for the rest of your life.

The reason why some folks blink like owls during the day is that they prowl about like cats at night. Have you never heard it said, "Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise?" Well, it is true anyway, whether you agree with it or not.

Time to knock-off now or some walking delegate will be round finding fault.

Church Services on Easter Sunday

Special music will mark the services in Peterborough Churches tomorrow, when the great festival of the Church year is celebrated, with its fulfilment of past hopes and its expression of the great hope of the future. In some churches the services will be almost wholly choral, while in others special addresses will feature the event which the day commemorates.

St. Andrew's United.

At St. Andrew's United Church, where, in the morning Rev. J. W. Gordon will preach on "Our Sure Hope" and in the evening on "The Great Adventure we call Death," there will be a special musical offering under direction of John Crane. Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park is the soloist.

St. Paul's Presbyterian.

At the morning service Rev. William Allan will take as his subject "Through Life with the Risen Christ," and in the evening he will tell of "A Song of Hope mingling with the Night Winds of Despair." The soloists are Miss Greta LeBarr, George East, and Mrs. Byers. A male quartette, composed of Messrs. Clark, Anderson, Sedgewick, and Chenhall, will render "On the Resurrection Morning," at the morning service. Special anthems and selections have been arranged, and Martin B. DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.)

Sir Henry Worth Thornton, K. E., Chairman of the Boards, and President of the Canadian National Railways, says:

"That it has been said that a pessimist is one who finds a difficulty in every opportunity, and an optimist is one who finds an opportunity in every difficulty.

"That there is a good deal in this darkest hour-before-the-dawn talk. When everything is breaking badly, when all the hard luck seems to be coming at once, I have learned that this is exactly the time not to quit. For one of two things will happen; either the supply of hard luck will run out and good luck will take its place, or you will be in the position of the under dog, and new friends will turn up from all directions ready to root for you. No one but you, yourself, can put you down and out."

The Canadian National Railways is the largest railway of the continent, operating the largest telegraph company in the world, on the point of mileage; a fleet of lake and ocean steamers, its own express company and a chain of hotels.

PEOPLE UNABLE TO TELL TUNE PLAYED

Bagpipe Music Might Have Been Centre of Angry Mob.

STEWART B.C., April 3.—(Canadian Press).—One tune is as good as another, thought Tommy Powers, and fortunately for him the majority of people cannot tell the difference between one melody and another when played on the bagpipes. Otherwise, he might have been the centre of an angry mob recently when, on being commanded to stage a one-man parade down the main street of Stewart, before a truck loaded with the first ore shipped from a local mine, he selected "The Barren Rock of Eden."

All went well until Powers, with martial stride and the skirl of the pipes all but drowned out by the rumble of the four-horse ore wagon, reached the office of the mining company. Two Scotsmen, employees of the company, recognized the tune, rushed out and halted the procession.

The piper explained that he had picked the tune at random and meant no malice. He struck up "The Cock of the North," and the lumbering parade started off again to the accompaniment of cheers from two Scotsmen.

IMITATE WINTER WEATHER TO AID MOTOR DRIVING

Engineers Place Test Cars in Cold Chambers For Experiments.

TWENTY BELOW.

Actions of Engine Batteries, Lubrication and Water Are Studied.

While motorists curse the bad weather and dread the troubles of winter, automotive engineers are actually making cold and stormy weather for themselves!

It's all for the future benefit of motordom. All, to take the curse and trouble out of winter driving and make cold weather as agreeable to motorists as warm.

For this purpose, the Dodge plant at Detroit includes a cold weather laboratory, in which test cars are placed and tried out under all sorts of manufactured temperatures and stormy weather.

This refrigerated laboratory was built inside the plant so as to give extreme weather conditions all year round, and so make possible constant observation, instead of experimentation for a short time. Its possibilities were described recently by D. M Pierson, experimental engineer of the Dodge company, at a meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

"Preliminary investigation," Pierson explains, "shows that driving in present closed cars is almost as comfortable at speeds of 35 or 40 miles an hour as at more moderate speeds and also that in many parts of the country a car is expected to operate satisfactorily in air temperatures as low as 20 degrees below zero.

Down to 50 Below.

"In planning the cold test room therefore provision was made for duplicating these two conditions."

In fact, Pierson points out that this cold weather laboratory can be brought down from 70 degrees temperature to 20 below zero in four hours, while the refrigerating equipment provided can reduce even to 50 below zero. That's plenty cold enough for any conditions.

But the temperature is so low that electric thermocouples and recording instruments have to be used in place of the mercury or spirit thermometers more popularly known, because these instruments freeze before the low temperatures desired are reached.

The laboratory is prepared for all sorts of cold weather investigations, such as starting and warming up characteristics of the engine, discharge capabilities of the storage batteries, channeling of the gear lubricants in the transmission case, water collection and oil dilution in the crankcase, chassis lubrication, carburetion and fuel distribution, and even the efforts of sudden temperature changes on body finishes.

Proof Against Warmth.

For these observations the laboratory has been made cold-proof, the walls being built of corkboard blocks cemented together with asphalt. There are refrigerator type entrance doors, protected by vestibules and an observation window made of five panes of glass with half-inch spaces between. Moisture is absorbed by calcium chloride, and the room is thoroughly insulated against heat.

Observers entering the cold room wear aviator's equipment, and their safety is insured by automatic telephone and buzzer systems.

Cars are rolled on the floor test stand, so that the wheels run on pulleys that run to an electric dynamometer outside the room. This dynamometer can also be coupled to an engine that happens to be on test in the room.

Air and fuel are supplied from the outside, the air being chilled to the temperature of the room before entering the carburetor and the fuel being measured before it's absorbed.

WRAPS ENGINE IN ICE TO FIND SUITABLE FUEL

U. S. Engineer Conducts Tests in Search of Cold Weather Gasoline.

LESS VAPORIZES.

Several Ways To Aid Winter Starting Have Been Found.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—When you started on the starter some cold morning this past winter and nothing happened but an empty, whirring noise there was little to do except wait—and perhaps cuss. Cars are just naturally hard to start in winter.

Tackling this problem of starting the car in any temperature, the United States Bureau of Standards installed an experimental gasoline engine with the cylinders housed in ice-cold brine. The outside of the cylinder was crusted thick with white frost like a refrigerations machine.

The goal was to develop a gasoline which would explode in those North Pole cylinders.

The tests have just been concluded successfully. They were a part of the co-operative fuel research conducted by the bureau with the American Petroleum Institute, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and the Society of Automotive Engineers. J. O. Eisinger, a bureau engineer, did most of the work, with help from Standwood W. Sparrow, chief of the automotive power plant section of the bureau.

In starting a car only about one-fourth as much of ordinary gasoline vaporizes in winter as in summer, Sparrow points out. It takes four times as much gasoline in a sold cylinder, therefore, to produce an exposion that will turn the motor.

Three Solutions

So there are at last three ways to attack the winter starting problem.

1. Automotive designers have made provisions for delivery of a larger supply of gasoline to the engine for emergency starting use.

2. Some of them, also, have put electric heaters on the intake manifolds and in the carburetors to provide summer temperature there when needed.

3. The oil refiners, on the other hand, have furnished a more volatile gas that will vaporize at lower temperature. Here it was that the tests sought improvements.

The goal of the experiments says Sparrow, was to make it equally easy to start a car at any time and in any temperature during the year. They wanted to eliminate painful delays in getting home after the car has stood outside a friend's house until the frosty, small hours of the morning.

Filling station proprietors, whenever the new gasoline reaches market, may be expected to supply the more volatile fluid during the cold months without being requested and without advancing the price.

Good and Cheap Gas.

"In refining crude petroleum," Eisinger explains "it is generally true that the more gallons of gasoline you make from a barrel of oil, the less volatile that gas will be. So-called high-test gasoline is very volatile and good for starting. But it is expensive. Not so much can be made from the same amount of crude oil. It is not necessary to have such volatile gas after the motor is started and heated up.

"We wanted to discover a gasoline which would be sufficiently volatile at low temperatures. We wanted to refine as many gallons to the barrel as possible.

"This meant trying out a great many kinds of gasoline, drawn off from the refineries at different stages in the refining process. We had to determine the conditions under which they vaporized and the methods by which they were produced.

"The final result pretty well fills the conditions were were seeking.

ACCOMPLISHES BOYHOOD DREAM

Vice Admiral Now Watches Building of His New Yacht.

HAD WAR CAREER.

VICTORIA, B.C., April 3.—(By Canadian Press).—Nearly half a century ago a little lad in an Australian seaport dreamed of becoming an admiral in the Queen's Navy and of sailing the seven seas in his own palatial yacht.

The boy was Guy Gaunt and today, at 57, he can look back on a colorful career which has had few parallels in British naval annals. A good many years have passed since Gaunt, now Vice-Admiral Sir Guy Gaunt, K.C.M.G., C.B., realized the first part of his ambition and became a vice-admiral, and today as he watches his Chinese crew busily engaged in preparing his yacht the "Four Winds" for sea, he knows that the rest of his dream will soon be a reality.

Sir Guy intends to resign his seat as member for Buckrose, Yorkshire East Riding, in the British House of Commons and devote the next few years of his life to sailing the seas on his private yacht, setting his course according to the dictates of his fancy.

There seemed little of the element of romance in the four-masted schooner Eric when she lay partly dismantled in Seattle harbor a few months ago. In an age when sailing craft are not at a premium, the vessel's days of usefulness appeared to have been numbered, but Sir Guy Gaunt, still fired with the ambition of his childhood, was satisfied with it. He bought the Eric for a song, re-named it "Four Winds", imported a crew of fifteen Chinese sailors and gave orders to an Esquimalt ship-building plant to re-model the vessel to meet his purposes. The job is now nearing completion and in a few weeks Sir Guy will be pacing the deck of a luxuriously fitted yacht, sailing before the winds that will make his dream come true.

The Four Winds will first cruise British Columbia waters and then sail across the Pacific and ports in China, Japan and the Philippines will be visited. Sir Guy is familiar with the Far East, for he first saw service in the Philippines and he was in charge of several Far Eastern stations during a subsequent period in his naval career. And even before coming to British Columbia to outfit his schooner he was in the Orient arranging for his crew and plotting the route of his voyage. Cruising leisurely down the China coast, Sir Guy will turn westward again to spend a few months among the islands of the South Seas and then he will sail for Suez, the Mediterranean and England.

Sir Guy has furnished the Four Winds lavishly and when ready for sea it will bear small resemblance to the craft which a few months ago was all but abandoned in Seattle harbor. Unlike other vessels of its size—161 feet in length—that have wandered in unfrequented sea lanes the Four Winds will have electric lights, a piano, radio and other appointments which are usually associated only with larger vessels equipped to carry passengers.

Sir Guy Gaunt has a distinguished war record. After serving in the Pacific he was appointed British naval attache at Washington, and while serving in this capacity was credited with several notable coupes which frustrated German conspiracies. He was responsible for many of the sensation stories on enemy activity which were published in the Provience Journal, co-operating with the late John R. Rathom, editor of the newspaper, in an effective investigation of the German spy system which provided one of the most fascinating chapters in the record of the United States prior to its entry into the war.

TESTED and PROVED FOR OVER 2 YEARS

THE Pontiac Six is in no sense an experiment. Rather, it is an advanced application of sound principles. Developed in General Motors laboratories, the Pontiac Six has been tested and proved on the General Motors Proving Grounds under severest conditions for thousands of miles during a period of over two years. Sold at a price of widest appeal, it is destined to bring about a radical realignment in public preference.

Don't Start Your Motor With Doors and Windows Closed

In your car—or in your garage

Life Insurance records show an alarming increase in fatalities from

CARBON MONOXIDE POISONING

When a motor is running, deadly carbon monoxide gas is rapidly generated. It is invisible but overpowering and quickly makes its victim helpless. Enclosed within four walls of car or garage, it takes human life.

Prevention of accidents means a saving of lives.

A little carefulness is all that is needed!

AVOID the MENACE!

Never run an automobile engine in closed or poorly ventilated garage.

Never work under machine with motor running, even in open air.

Never close all car windows with engine running, even in open air.

If necessary to operate the engine for any length of time for making repairs or adjustments, the car should be run into the open.

The council adjourned to meet on April 17.

BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SPRING

Can Best Be Guarded With Baby's Own Tablets.

The Spring is a time of anxiety to mothers who have little ones in the home. Conditions make it necessary to keep the baby indoors. He is often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catches colds which rack his whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will prevent colds, constipation or colic and keep baby well. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GOOD FOR THE HEAD.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 3.—Motor Policemen Schley and Long found 50 empty hair tonic bottles when they investigated a report from Mrs. Lillian Moriarity that her husband, Frank, has been drunk for a week. She told police her husband's fondness for the scalp treatment had grown almost into a habit.

PICK STRIKING CHARGE KILLED PETERBORO MAN

fuses. There was no way to tell if all the holes had been fired, but there had been three reports which, he said, was correct. The next shot consisted of two holes, fired instantaneously.

Bowerman said there was no precaution taken to see if all the holes had been shot and that it would be necessary to 'muck out' to know. The men who fired would be better able to do this, as they would know where the holes were, but the men on the other shift should have known fairly well where they would be.

The witness said that he had been called after the accident and that he had talked to Cowain, who had said he was generally ready to help with the four o'clock shift and had struck two blows with the pick before the explosion.

Answering Mr. Sutherland, the witness said that the detonations on the time fuses had been greased because of the wet condition of the mine. He said there had been many missed holes during the operations.

Isaac Robbins

Isaac Robbins was the man who had gone for a chain when the explosion occurred. He had been up by the pump about twelve feet from the bottom of the shaft and there had been a plank wall between him and the explosion. He and Cassibeau had been working as muckers, and Hart had been drilling. During the forenoon of that day he had seen some wires and called Cassibeau's attention to them, saying there might be a missed hole.

When the explosion occurred he was up for the chain and Hart was on bench or ledge drilling a hole in the wall. After the explosion he and Hart had gone up, and then he had gone down and brought up the injured man in the bucket. Cowain had told him to hurry up while doing this.

Robbins told Mr. Sutherland that it was the first time Cowain had been down that day. Cassibeau had said nothing to Cowain about the missed hole. After the explosion Cowain had been lying in one corner, all doubled up, while Cassibeau had been lying stretched out near the north side.

Jack Hart.

Jack Hart considered that his escape had been due to the other men being between him and the blast. At the time he had been up on a ledge cutting a hitch for a timber. He had done some drilling but had been hired a little over a week before as a mucker. He had seen wires but he didn't know whether they led into a hole as there was much water around. He had been down in the hole since the accident with the mining inspector, and they had then found another missed hole.

Maurice Vollick,

Maurice Vollick, engineer on the day shift, said that Cassibeau had told him that there was one hole which had not gone off. He had not seen Cowain go down, as he was running the hoist. Since the explosion he had been down to fix the pump. He was a mechanic, not a miner.

Medical Evidence.

Dr. Samuel Eagleson of Madoc, Dr. W. A. Dafoe of Madoc and Dr. H. M. Yelland of Peterborough, all of whom had attended the injured men, described the injuries and ascribed the deaths to shock from their injuries. They said that both men had apparently been facing the explosion.

The following composed the jury: C. M. Wallbridge, foreman, G. A. Rollins, William Cox, John Reeves, John Tucker, John McDonald, John C. Barton and E. C. Tufts.

TO ELIMINATE CROSSING.

The most heavily traveled grade crossing in Los Angeles is to be eliminated by the construction of a subway underneath an elevation of the railroad tracks. The cost is estimated at $237,000, exclusive of property damage. It has been estimated that $151,000 have been lost annually because of traffic tieups caused by this grade crossing.

Ten Pounds Relief Meat Contains 7¾ Lbs. Of Bones

WINNIPEG, Man., April 3. (By Canadian Press).—Exhibit A in the Legislature! Seven and three-quarter pounds of bones and half a turnip! A protest against such "unemployment relief" was voiced by William Ivens, M.L.A. The bones, according to their owner, were the residue of ten pounds of meat sent him and his family as an eight-day ration by the unemployment relief committee. The half of a turnip was the solving of a dilemma by a man determined not to exceed by a fraction the bare allowance ordered.

DEATH OF ITALIAN FOUND ACCIDENTAL

any protection put up following the accident.

Richard Bryle testified that he had worked all winter at the Young's Point locks, and at the time of the accident was about twelve feet away working on the platform loading the mud from the trench into a wagon. He heard nothing special, but the mixer was going about 20 feet away. He never thought the bank dangerous; in fact, he never paid any attention to it as he did not bother with anything outside his own work.

Thomas McCarthy was present at the works on the night of the accident and was within five or six feet of the deceased, but did not see the accident. He heard one of the men yell and that attracted his attention. He thought the place dangerous and often discussed the possibility of a cave-in when the frost came out, but never called the foreman's attention to it. Small stones often rolled down.

Was Knocked Down

Robert Harrison was working next to the deceased about two feet away at the time of the accident and although he saw the stone falling, it was not in time to give warning. He was knocked down by the fall. He never thought the bank dangerous and never heard it discussed. He was only one day at this section and has not worked there since because the foreman sent him somewhere else. The place could have been protected by shoring. He kept a sharp look-out for falling stones.

Fred Young was working on the evening of March 30 on the same platform as Mr. Boyle about 10 or 12 feet away from the deceased man. He had worked on the same section on the same job as de Massimo before they had got so deep. It was sandy in the bottom and they had quick sands to contend with at the lower end. The water kept coming in at the bottom, but they dug a little trench and a hole and one man kept it baled out. As the sun struck the bank a few loose stones rolled down, but there were no big rocks up above. He always kept an eye on the bank as there was always a certain amount of danger owing to the frost coming out of the ground. They had worked all winter without any accident.

Percy Junkin was driving a team of horses and when the accident occurred he was waiting for his wagon to be loaded probably 15 feet away from the scene of the fatality and he heard some one yell and looked round and saw the bank had fallen in.

Contractor Careful

T. A. Brown, the contractor, was not there at the moment, but was five minutes later. His firm has the contract, and he has personally had 20 years' experience in this kind of work and has always done the work in a way to avoid accidents. If this place had seemed dangerous it would have been protected, although he does not know just how it could have been done at this point. It was absolutely unforeseen and "God alone knows what happened," he said. The old wall had been removed and the work is now below the old depth and probably the stone slumped through. The water may have had something to do with it, as they are now at least seven or eight feet below Katchewanooka Lake. There was no frost and they felt that all precautions had been taken for safety.

A. W. Spence, the engineer in charge of the works, thinks perhaps the seepage of water may have caused the accident and that is impossible to avoid. Every proper and reasonable caution was taken and he, personally, was talking to de Massimo at this place at a quarter to six. He did not think the bank required shoring, but after 39 years' experience at public works he feels one should always have one's "eye skinned." All banks may fall. The stone was not as large as the previous witness thought and a couple of men can lift it out. It will not require blasting.

The witness thought the stone was about on the level of the man's head and caught him and knocked him down.

Bernard Kerr, the timekeeper of the works, knew the deceased by sight from seeing him on his job and saw him the night he was killed and testified to seeing his body at Hunter and Webster's undertaking rooms in the village.

William McCarthy is a laborer and knew Guido de Massimo but did not see the accident. Two or three men lifted the stone off the body.

Thought Bank Alright

John Waite, the general superintendent, regarded the death as an unavoidable accident. He saw the bank five minutes previously and thought everything all right. He has had ixteen years' experience and has been at the Young's Point locks since last October and has looked over the banks three or four times daily and this time of year there is special need of precaution owing to the frost coming out. As nearly as the witness could judge the accident was caused by slush or a slip as when one excavates in that condition of earth it is liable to slush. Part of the boulder was showing but if he had any idea it would come down he would not have had men working there. The quicksand had nothing to do with the matter as it was not near the boulder which was 5 or 6 feet up in the wall.

The coroner, Dr. J. C. Smith, gave as the cause of death, severe internal injuries as well as the injury to the man's back.

"Accidental Death"

The jury retired and returned in a little more than half an hour with this verdict, which was read by the foreman, J. A. Porter.

"We, the jury empanelled to inquire in to the death of Guido de Massimo, find according to the evidence, was accidentally killed by a portion of the bank caving in on March 30th, 1926, about the hour of 7.30 p.m. while working on the public works at Young's Point. The jury agree that all necessary precautions have been taken by the company to avoid the accident.

Sports Frocks Show Interesting Details

Much that is chic and fascinating is included in this little one-piece frock in jumper effect. It is a naive affair of plaid surrah, that slips on over the head, has a high neck, a set-in vestee, and long sleeves. The patch pockets have pointed tabs through which a narrow leather belt is passed, and two wide box-plaits in the front of the skirt afford extra fulness. No. 1316 is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years, or (34, 36 and 38 inches bust only). Size 18 years (36 bust) requires 3¾ yards 39-inch, or 2⅛ yards 54-inch material. Price 20 cents.

Home sewing brings nice clothes within the reach of all, and to follow the mode is delightful when it can be done so easily and economically by following the styles pictured in our new Fashion Book. A chart accompanying each pattern shows the material as it appears when cut out. Every detail is explained so that the inexperienced sewer can make without difficulty an attractive dress. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

When Cleopatra entertained her Marc Anthony she decorated her boudoir with tons of dewy roses dumped into a fish net carpet, so that his mighty tread would be soft and gentle. Wide-awake florists attempted to reproduce the Cleo stunt at a recent flower show, but gave up when they worked the adding machine on the price of the roses. Things must have been cheaper in Cleo's day. You hear of no modern lady dropping her pearls in vinegar with a dramatic gesture to show how little is the gift of man!

"Picture Thieves" are busy again. Four famous Constable canvases are missing from a London gallery. Special "picture detectives" are watching for some of the time-honored stunts. Women picture thieves, they say, cut the canvas from the frame and pin it 'neath their skirts. Seems to me all the detectives would need to do is arrest any woman entering a gallery wearing a skirt long enough and full enough to harbor a stolen picture.

"The Right Thing"

"For women and business girls who are too tired or have too little time for evening entertaining, the Sunday morning breakfast is a satisfactory and pleasing way of solving the social problem." We quote from "The Gracious Hostess," a new book of etiquet by Della Thompson Lutes. I like it because it recognizes life as it is lived by folks other than those who week-end with royalty, bear letters to the Pope, and are puzzled about what topics to converse on with the president of the United States. This is a "workable book" for the common people.

Yum, Yum!

"And if you would promise to read a little cookery book that I would send you, it would be excellent for both of us."

This quote of David Copperfield to his weak-domed bride, Dora, prefaces Mrs. Thomas Bailey Aldrich's new book of "Choice Receipts"—a collection of the dishes fed the many celelebrities in the Aldrich household. Here's one of the "receipts"—note the daring spelling.

"Chafing-Dish Spaghetti. Cut up three uncooked sausages in small pieces and fry in a chafing dish until brown. Move to one side of pan and add one onion minced fine. Saute five minutes, stirring. Add 2 cups well-seasoned tomato soup. When heated, add 2 cups cooked and seasoned spaghetti. Toss about. Serve."

HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

FATE INTERVENES

"I wonder what you would do, Julie, if someone had taken you on an airplane and rushed you up, up into the clouds from which you could see through rosy splendor all the kingdoms of the earth, and then suddenly flung you out of the plane?

"That is what happened to me.

"Tortentio said I could make the Metropolitan Opera House in five years and then told me that his price alone would be seventy-five dollars a week. This, with French, Italian, and German lessons, clothes and food and the money I would have to give to my mother, would mean two hundred dollars a week on close calculation.

"I went back to Madame Seria, down in the depths. I had struck the earth and was perfectly flattened out.

"'Don't you worry, Mamie,' she said as she put her hands on my shoulders. 'My dear, you'll find the money somehow.'

"That afternoon Lola Lawrence sailed for Paris and the next morning Mr. Tremaine called up Madame Seria and asked:

"'What's the name of that girl that sings?'

"'I told him to come over and see me this afternoon,' she added, and I don't want you around the place when he comes. Go on home, my dear, and come back tomorrow.'

"Of course you know, Julie, I could not go home. I went out to the park and literally walked miles. I couldn't even sit still five minutes of the time on a park bench.

"In the late afternoon I went home and found that my mother had been telephoning me for hours.

"My brother Tom had that morning married a little girl he had picked up in a dance hall and my sister was ill with the flu. You will never know, Julie, how I upbraided myself for spending all that money on my voice when it was needed so much in our home. Mother was nearly in hysterics. She was wringing her hands and crying and talking incoherently most of the time to herself.

"Of course, Tom could not give Mother any of his wages. He would need all of his money for his young wife.

"The district nurse had ordered Sis to the hospital, saying that a case of the flu was contagious and poor mother had just three dollars to keep things going until my salary was paid next week. It was certainly up to me to do something."

"'Oh, Mamie, Mamie, it's glad I am that your poor father is not alive today! He would hate to see us all starving to death,' said my mother, ignoring the fact that my father would probably be earning his eight or ten dollars a day as a mechanic if he were alive.

"'You must tell that woman down at the shop, Mamie, that you must have a raise in salary. Tell her about poor Sis at the hospital and if you must, about Tom making such a fool of himself. If she isn't ready to add a few dollars to your envelope each week, I think you should go down to Robertson's Department Store. I know they'll give you more than you're getting now.'

"You can imagine, Julie, how I felt at that moment. I was sure that never in all my life would I be able to sing. And then I hated myself for thinking of it while my poor mother was in such trouble.

"And I had been willing to give my body and soul for a few music lessons.

"I looked at my poor mother's streaming eyes, at her worn face and hands and my soul seemed to shrivel beside her care and grief.

"'I had a raise of ten dollars a week, mother. I was going to tell you about it today,' I lied. 'Until things straighten out a bit you can have it all. I'll take an apple for luncheon and walk back and forth.'

"Just to see my mother's face glorified with surprise and joy, before burst into tears, was worth every sacrifice I would have to make. I determined then and there, Julie, that my mother should never suffer and worry over finances again if I could help it.

"There was not much sleep for me that night and I hurried away early the next morning as I had twenty-five blocks to walk to the shop. Strange as it may seem, this walk was the best thing that could happen to me in my mixed-up condition of mind.

"When I got to the shop Madame Seria gave me a letter from Tortentio.

"It merely said: Since the Senorita was in my studio yesterday I have been thinking about her voice and I have come to the conclusion that I can make something that will bring me fame if not fortune.

"'Consequently I will give Miss Mamie Riley two lessons a week until she is ready to make her debut at the Metropolitan Opera House, knowing that after she had made her debut in Grand Opera she will be generous as well as just to the man that has made her. 'Tortentio.'

"I showed this letter to Madame Seria and was somewhat muddled by the smile upon her face. I did not know, however, until much later what it might mean."

MONDAY: A Threat.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, APRIL 4, 5.

Sunday's horoscope shows a lively state of affairs in all those matters to which the day is sacred, but holds some omen of an abrupt change in other connections. Be careful in this respect and all will be well.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a good year, with new ventures thriving, but they should make radical changes only after due consideration. A child born on this day may have many fine qualities and should prosper through the practical arts. It may be restless and fond of change and travel.

Monday's astrological forecast is a rather involved one. There is a sign of enterprise and resourcefulness, however, that may bridge difficult situations, but be most careful in employment and in the handling of all kinds of papers.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which their native enterprise and resourcefulness will be brought into play to bridge over bad situations. The employment should be cherished and all writings cautiously handled. A child born on this day should be enterprising and courageous.

Do Women Love Trouble?

Nay! Nay! Says Jeanette, She Merely Wants To Get Out of the Cubby Hole Men Folk Have Built For Her —She Likes the Limelight.

(By Jeanette)

Mr. Harry Morton, whoever he is, started something when he stated in an after-dinner speech that women "love trouble." It should be taken into consideration, even in these Prohibition days, that it was an after-dinner speech, but, anyway, it is one of those half-truth sayings that are bound to cause disturbance. Someone has said that while a man would be offended if called either a "cub" or a "whelp," he takes it as a compliment when alluded to as a "bear" or a "lion," and no woman wants to be characterized as a "cat," although she will not mind in the least being termed "kittenish." So with Mr. Morton's speech. He could have got away with it beautifully if he had said that women, in a sentimental way, cause much trouble to men.

There is a great deal of truth in his statement, but he was a brave man to make it. He must have come to this dinner after a prolonged session with some woman in which the lady was describing either the trials of a recent operation, or the fight she had just had with a jealous friend or the deficiencies of her maid of all work. For these are prolific topics of conversation with women. Or else he had to fight with his wife to get out to this club dinner.

Anyway, it is all the fault of the men. Women have been obliged for centuries to put all their mental energy into a contemplation of domestic life. They have peeped at the real life of the world from little loopholes of their own making, and it is no wonder that they had to turn the attention of their frequently brilliant intellects to minor matters. A woman must fill her mind with something. She hasn't the stock market or the insurance business or the ups and downs of commercial life to distract her attention. All she is supposed to do is see that the meals are on the table at the proper hour, that the baby has his bath at the right moment and that the house is kept clean and tidy. The role outlined for her for many generations past has accorded her the intellect of a minor and classed her with Indians and idiots. And everyone knows that happiness is not half as prevalent in any life as unhappiness and pain. Ever since they ate the first apple, people have been suffering. Suffering affords a woman an opportunity to be in the limelight. If she is the heroine of a happy episode, nobody pays much attention to her, because happiness is farther removed from the average lot than unhappiness. But trouble brings her the sympathy of the world.

Just Suppose!

Suppose you had a neighbor who was always telling you about her good times. Suppose she had a perfect husband and a perfect family and a perfect home. Wouldn't you hate her? Wouldn't you get absolutely fed up on the contemplation of her wonderful existence. But if you know that her house, even though it is beautifully appointed, has a mortgage on it, if you are quite sure that her husband takes more than is good for him occasionally, and if you know for a fact that her son spends some of his time hanging around pool-rooms and her daughter steals out at night to meet the town's pet bootlegger, don't you like her all the better? Of course you do. You have a fellow feeling for her, because these things all match up with your difficulties, with your husband who asks you what you want a quarter for to buy a paper of safety pins, with your son who stamps rudely about the house when you are entertaining the bridge club and with your daughter, who is a little mope and can't even play "Mary's Pet Waltz" after two year's piano lessons.

It's the sense of kinship that trouble engenders that makes women like it. Women want to be loved and petted and made much of. They know quite well that nobody will make half as much of a fuss over them if they are happy as if they are a little bit pensive. A toothache in a child gets ever so much more consideration from the household than a recital of a good record in a spelling-match.

It's the dramatic instinct cropping out in women that makes them like to recount all the weird details of an operation, for instance. When one is being escorted to the operating-room, one is the whole thing. The doctor and his assistant and the nurses may be important people, but they would be nowhere without the victim. And then afterwards when the outcome is uncertain. The lady lies there suffering in silence, as women mostly do, and knowing very well that she is a noble and courageous creature. What wonder that she loves to recount later all the items of a session when she was behaving in a wonderful manner. And then these maids that cause so much conversation at bridge clubs and teas. Again the dramatic instinct, and the ineradicable tendency to show off. If one has a maid who is always a treasure, one of these quiet creatures who retires early on off nights and thinks the "Christian Guardian" is light literature, what good is there in that? She is not the stuff of which club conversations are made. But there is plenty of interest and talk-production in the flirtatious little lady who carries on an affair with the ice-man and the baker simultaneously and who has a habit of walking off with one's silk stockings and borrowing one's pet camisole unbeknownst.

Eve Knew It!

Eve knew all about this feminine faculty when she ate the apple. She realized much better than Adam that a long existence spent in sauntering about the famous Garden and having a quiet, uneventful life would be very boring. She had probably peeped out of the gates to see the wonderful, dark, mysterious world without and she wanted to get out and explore. She knew the world outside was full of surprises and she was quite willing to exchange her condition of unalloyed bliss for the more exciting drama of real life. So with her daughters. It isn't exactly trouble that they long for. It is change and interest and the fascination of showing just how noble they can be if given half a chance. Every woman knows that she cannot shine as a beauty or a footlight star or a heart-smasher, but she knows quite well that she can be the center of the stage when it comes to bearing up under trial, and she longs for an opportunity to display her talents in this direction. It is the woman who shines beside the sick-bed and the grave, the woman whose hand soothes and comforts, the woman who knows that she is greatest in the role of alleviating the suffering of the world. So, if she hasn't any trouble o her own, she may go looking for it, as the man says, maybe because she wants to show off in some way, or simply because she is fed up, like Eve, with the monotony of existence. A man likes to be stationary, but a woman likes to be in a state of flux or change. She never feels so well as when she is turning the house topsy-turvy in spring house-cleaning time, and when her husband is like a bear with a sore paw. She knows very well that it is all for the best and will turn out a lovely clean house, while he feels that she is creating much disturbance over nothing, and would be quite satisfied to have the fluff remain in the corner of the clothes-closet and the dust on the parlor picture-frames.

In effect, the attitude of women toward life might be summed up in the words with which a reviewer finishes a reference to one of the latest books, "The Private Life of Heeln of Troy:"

"The main theme, however, is the delightful charm of Helen herself, adventurous in love as her husband was in war, finding life wonderful and insisting on knowing, if not all of it, at least the high and deep things, her philosophy that one should do his best, and if it is a mistake, hide nothing and be glad to suffer for it."

The man that said women go looking for trouble didn't know what he was talking about. What he meant was that women go looking for change, for excitement, for diversion. They would much prefer happiness, but if they can't have that, they will take the reverse rather than remain in the cubbyhole assigned them by Fate and their men-folk. The jokesmith says that the radio started in the Garden of Eden, when the Lord took a rib and made the first "loud speaker" out of it, but Eve had a hand in the radio game too. She started "static" disturbance, and it has been increasing ever since.

A Sure Relief for Women's Disorders—10 Days Treatment Free

Orange Lily is a certain relief for all disorders of women. It is applied locally and is absorbed into the suffering tissue. The dead waste matter in the congested region is expelled, giving immediate mental and physical relief; the blood vessels and nerves are toned and strengthened; and the circulation is rendered to normal. As this treatment is based on strictly scientific principles, and acts on the actual location of the disease, it cannot help but do good in all forms of female troubles, including delayed and painful menstruation, leucorhoea, falling of the womb, etc. Price $2.00 per box, which is sufficient for one month's treatment. A Free Trial Treatment, enough for ten days, worth 75c, will be sent Free to any suffering woman who will send me her address. Enclose 3 stamps and address, MRS. LYDIA W. THE HOG AS A SOURCE OF FARM REVENUE

Booklet With Valuable Information Being Distributed By Bank of Montreal.

"When well managed the hog is one of the best sources of farm income. Hogs have paid for many a farm. We can sell hogs at any time of the year and almost at any age and weight."

This is one of the introductory statements in a remarkably interesting and useful booklet entitled "Hogs for Pork and Profit" just issued by the Bank of Montreal, and offered free to farmers at any branch of that institution.

For some time past the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has being doing commendable work all over Canada in encouraging the production of hogs as a supplementary source of income for farmers, and the booklet will admirably assist this movement by making available to those interested plain and detailed descriptions, illustrated by over 200 photographs and diagrams, of the guiding principles of successful and profitable hog raising. While the booklet is of a general character, covering methods under a wide variety of climatic conditions, particular attention both as regards text and illustrations, has been paid to conditions pertaining to hog raising in Canada, and a special introduction has been contributed by Mr. G. B. Rothwell, B.S.A., Dominion Animal Husbandman at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Mr. Rothwell gives an outline of the principal breeds and types and the accepted methods of feeding in Canada, and offers general advice in regard to the principles described in the booklet.

Every phase of hog raising is pictured in the booklet, both by word and by photograph the subjects dealing with the selection of sires and mothers, the choice of breeds and types, and the care of young pigs, from the time they are born until they are ready for the market. Feeding, housing, the prevention of ailments and diseases, and the production of particular types for special markets, are all described; in fact there is no phase of the industry on which the best scientific knowledge is not made available in plain, everyday language.

As the booklet says, the hog will produce more meat from 100 pounds of feed than any animal; it multiplies rapidly, and it will not only provide food for the farmer's family, but is one of the best sources of farm income.

A free copy of the booklet may be obtained at the nearest local branch of the bank.

MRS. MARRINIER

Weeping Eczema relieved by "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MRS. JOS. P. MARRINIER

"For three years I suffered with weeping Eczema on the back of my hands. I consulted our family doctor and other physicians, but all the treatments and salves prescribed gave me no permanent relief. When baby came, I was afraid that he too would be affected. I had practically considered my case hopeless when I started to use "Fruit-a-tives" and "Sootha-Salva." In a short time the eczema completely disappeared, baby has always been wonderfully well, and I have not had a trace of it for four years."—Mrs. Jos. P. Marrinier, 452 Arlington Ave., Ottawa, Ont.

This marvelous fruit medicine helps the bowels and kidneys to rid the system of waste, and cleanses the blood stream so that the pure, rich blood soon heals the itching, inflamed skin. "Fruit-a-tives" are obtainable in all drug stores, at 25c. and 50c. a box. If "Sootha-Salva," (50c. a box), is not obtainable at your dealer's, order it direct from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

EASTER CLOTHES

By HEDDA HOYT

(Written for the United Press).

NEW YORK, April 3 (United Press).—The Easter Fashion egg has burst its shell and scattered its gay colorings to the four winds!

Girls in California, Georgia, Maine and Oregon are now well aware of the 1926 styles which Dame Fashion has hatched for Spring. It remains for Easter Sabbath to cast these styles upon the streets of New York and Squeedunk.

Cape-Coats.

Cape coats will play the jazziest notes o the Spring nocturne. Not that capecoats are "loud" but they will jazz up the coat situation and take us away from straight-lined, wrap-about coats and from flared hem lines. Capes used on coats may be any length from elbow to hem line but the most popular models are either hip-length or finger-tip-length. Coat colors run to navy blue, plaid, green and dusty pastels' in woolen fabrics and black or brown for silk materials. Collars are usually fur and fur often borders the cape. The skirt portion of the cape-coat is straight-lined, never flared, and the garment is held about the figure rather than buttoned unless the mannish double-breasted model is worn.

Aside from the cape-coat, the straight-lined coat is the only other guaranteed by Dame Fashion. It is new this Easter, in that it has more snug-fitted armholes, very small collar, and is ap to have embroidered, flared sleeves. All coats remain short as to hem line. Coats will undoubtedly be the Easter favorites of the matron, although young girls are turning to boyish suits with Tuxedo jackets.

Girlish Suits.

Surely nothing will be more youthful than some of the new Easter suits with their little bolero jackets, pleated skirts and girlish blouses. More tailored than these are suits with mannish Tuxedo jackets made exactly like a man's Tuxedo coat and worn with either plain skirts or skirts with pleated fronts. In mentioning Easter suits, one must not omit scarfs which have diminished in size and increased in smartness. Muffler scarfs made of silk crepe with printed or hand-painted scarf ends are just long enough to wrap about the neck once, leaving two short ends. This short scarf ties at the side and the smartest way of tying the knot is to double one end so that it forms a single loop when the single knot is tied.

Easter Gowns.

Columns could be written about the gowns of this Easter. It's certain that every woman will wear a new gown since unusually pretty models are selling as low as $15 in most stores. Colors have never been more assorted since dark shades, bright shades and pastels are all thrust upon us. There is no use of being snippy about buying a cheap dress this year since everyone is purchasing little $15 frocks as fillers-in for the wardrobe. In soft pastel shades they are adorable and extremely flattering and since these popular shades soil easily women refuse to pay more for them.

Whereas coats have straight hem lines, dressed invariably have flared hems or pleated apron effects with the exception of the jumper frock. Taffeta frocks are the most popular of the more expensive models with silk crepes and flowered georgettes and chiffons following in popularity. Long sleeves are universal. High necked collars or little rear collars with the V-shaped front leaving the throat bare are used on most models since the rounded neck is a bit passe this Easter. Scarf attachments frequently give the frock the tailored effect which is desired this season. Skirts remain as short or shorter than they have been all Winter. Waist lines are low in most cases sometimes having the bloused rear bodice. On taffeta models the waistline may be raised a bit since the bodice is rather snug-fitting and the skirt long and full.

Footgear.

Both shoes and hosiery are taking on Spring colors harmonizing with the costume. There is a preference for light tan or gray kid trimmed in appliques of a deeper shade and matched by hosiery. Lizard skin and snake-skin dyed in light shades will be worn for street wear by many. Imitation reptile skins are also much in evidence. This Easter we seem to be going back to fancier shoes as the plain pump and the plain shoe with the single strap across the instep is replaced by fancy pressed leathers trimmed in contrasting leather or cutwork and metal instep straps. There are shoes with much cutword at the sides which extends over the instep and is tied with silk ties. Metal instep-straps trimmed in certer medallions are numerous. Cuff-link clasps are also included.

Hosiery is invariably light and of a shade which blends in with the costume rather than contrasts. In fact, to be smart this Easter one must harmonize from shoes to bonnet.

Easter Bonnets.

Hats are more feminine this Easter than last in conformity with the more feminine types of dresses which have circular flares, godets, soft jabots, loosely tied bows and ruffles.

Two-toned hats are more popular than plain shades. Vivid color contrasts are also prominent. For instance, light green may be trimmed with a harmonizing dark green. Green may be trimmed in a combination of parrot shades such as red, bluish green and golden brown. Apple green and magenta strike contrasting notes which are effective. Turquoise blue is combined with purple, etc.

Straw is more popular this Easter than felt, the straw shape usually being combined with bandings of faille or velvet ribbon. There are three outstanding shapes which will be conspicuous. First, the up-turned front brim, secondly, the tam shape in all its variations and thirdly, the drooping brim which is cut short at the rear. Ribbon is the most popular trimming item as this will not be an Easter for flowered or feathered bonnets. Flowers may be used plentifully later in the season.

Ribbon hats are quite popular at present but they will be short-lived owing to the great demand for straw.

In selecting the Easter wardrobe one must remember that it is most important to harmonize the hat with one's costume, shoes and hosiery if one wishes to get into the Easter Fashion spirit.

Others how this new hygienic pad discards easily as tissue — no laundry

BECAUSE one woman so advises others, and because doctors so urge, most women are deserting the old-time "sanitary pad" for a new and better way.

Eight in 10 better-class women now use "KOTEX."

✓ Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Deodorizes, thus ending ALL danger of offending.

Obtainable at all drug and department stores simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Package of 12 costs only a few cents. Proves old ways a needless risk. In fairness to yourself, try it.

ROYAL INVALIDS STILL CONFINED

Princess Victoria Unchanged But Prince of Wales Sits Up.

LONDON, April 3 (Canadian Press). —No change was noted last night in the condition of Princess Victoria, sister of King George, who is ill with influenzal pneumonia at Marlborough House. Except for this announcement the physicians attending her did not issue an official bulletin.

The Prince of Wales is still confined to his room at York House after the operation on his ear early in the week. He is described as making good progress, and was able to sit up for a little while yesterday. There have been reports about his going to a seaside resort, but nothing has been arranged as yet.

SEES QUEER FISH.

Captain Notices Something Resembling Turtle Swimming Foot Under Water.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 3.—(Canadian Press).—The 1926 sea serpent season got off to a promising start when Captain I. Ness, of a United States Steel Products Company vessel which recently docked here, reported having seen "a queer fish" while his vessel was steaming across the Gulf of Mexico.

"In all my experience," said Captain Ness, "I never saw anything like it. The fish looked like a turtle and yet it wasn't that. It had four legs and a head and the whole body seemed to be covered with scales. When we sighted the thing it was swimming along about a foot under water. I reckon it was about fourteen feet long and twelve feet in width. It was a queer fish and no doubt about it."

Local mariners say that Captain Ness' discovery evidently bears a resemblance to "turtle-like" creatures reported last fall to have been seen off the Queen Charlotte Islands, Northern British Columbia.

COURT AUTHORITY IS UNDER DISPUTE

Lawyer Claims Statute Does Not Apply to C.N.R. Property.

LINDSAY, April 3.—(Special.) —Do the provisions of the Railway Act governing trespassing or entering upon railway property apply to government-owned railways? This was a point raised at a session of the police court on Thursday afternoon when a Pole, Louis Zabawa, was charged with entering upon the property of the C.N.R. at Manilla Junction and also with trying to effect an entrance into the station on Saturday last. County Crown Attorney Anderson was conducting the prosecution, when Allan Lacey, who appeared in the interests of the accused, disputed the jurisdiction of the court to try the case, as Section 5 of the Railway Act read that the Act did not apply to government railways.

There was a long argument on this point. The Magistrate decided to hear the evidence of three witnesses and reserved judgment until Thursday next.

The accused, on the charge of attempting to effect an entrance into the C.N.R. station, elected to be tried by a judge at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

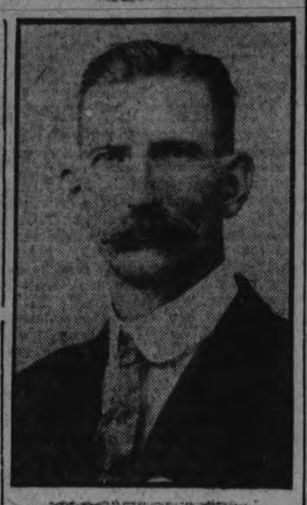
No. 5—
P. G. TOWNS.



P. G. Towns, the well-known merchant and postmaster of Douro, is a son of George Towns, a native of that township. He married Miss Ellen O'Brien, daughter of William O'Brien, also of Douro. Mr. Town's life is a lesson in how to reach a fair measure of success by hard work, and is worthy of the careful perusal of any young man starting out in life. When a lad of eighteen, Towns decided to go to Chicago and with fifteen dollars as the extent of his finances he set out. When he arrived at a boarding house in that city he had one dollar left and a job to find. His first application was to the Champion Haypress Co., but as he had learned no trade, and was a mere boy he found it necessary to look elsewhere. He soon found a job in a "galvanized-iron" mill, where he worked long hours, seven days a week, over the vitriol bath in which the sheets of iron are treated. The fumes interfered with his health and when he earned enough to pay his arrears for board he had three dollars left and decided to go to the Black Hills, where there was said to be plenty of work. In the meantime however a chance occurred of going into the lumber-camps of Michigan, where he worked for 15 dollars a month and his board as long as the job lasted, and the driving of the logs down the river which followed. He then returned to Peterborough, and without any experience in the business he set up as a grocer next the Phelan Hotel on Simcoe St., afterwards moving to the Lynch Block, Hunter St. The grocery business did not prove a success, and as it took all that he had made to square himself with the world, he went home to Douro to think things over. The post-office of Douro was established in the early sixties, at the same time as that of Lakefield and, subsequent to that, at Warsaw. The first postmaster was a Mr. Bruce, who kept the office in a small log building east of its present site. In this log-house there was also a tavern, one of four similar "hostelries" at the Douro corners at that time. Subsequently, it passed into other hands, and was removed by the various holders of the office to their private houses, at last coming into the hands of Mr. Town's father, who was succeeded by the present postmaster, Mr. P. G. Towns himself.

Purchasing the next lot on credit, Mr. Towns built (also on credit), with his own hands, a new general store, post-office and dwelling-house, which in time, have developed into the ample premises which he now possesses.

During his first year in business his turnover was less than a thousand dollars, but his prolonged uphill fight for success in the face of financial difficulty did not deter him from getting married at the early age of twenty-four, because, as Mr. Towns says, a good wife is an asset, not a liability, and to Mrs. Towns Mr. Towns declares he owes much of the measure of success which he has attained, and that this success has been of some magnitude may be surmised from the fact that in recent years his turnover has reached the proportions of a good country business.

Mr. Towns has been for nineteen years treasurer of the township, and is respected everywhere as a man of high character and unquestioned integrity. In asking him for some explanation of the fact that business men seemed willing to give him credit in his early days without other security than his prospects of success, he admitted that he had been "trusted" because he had acquired a reputation for being a man of his word. This fact he considered the greatest asset which a young man can have, since creditors will give such a man a "chance" and wait for their money when, under other circumstances, he would certainly be turned down. With becoming modesty Mr. Towns ascribes the success which he has enjoyed simply to the indomitable perseverance in the face often of great discouragments of Mrs. Towns and himself. As the poet has said,—in his lexicon was no such word as "fail." He has devoted his energies also to community work in Douro, and has been the power behind the various old-home and old-time fairs and entertainments which have, in recent years, proved such a success in his native township.

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER 4—MISTER TINGALING CAN'T MAKE CHANGE.

Mister Tingaling got the rent money from Mister Bunny, then thanking Mrs. Bunny for their lovely lunch and the good time they had, the fairyman and the Twins took their departure.

The first thing they did was to take poor Biddy Hen to the house in the log behind the bushes—the very one that the bad little goblin had tried to rent to her.

"It's just lovely!" clucked Mrs. Hen. "The very place I'm looking for to hatch out a family. How much is it?"

"Ten cents a month in fairy money," said Mister Tingaling. "I'll be around in thirty days to collect."

They left Mrs. Hen scratching around in the soft rotten wood of her new house, to make a nice cozy nest.

Then they went on their travels.

"We'll go to Maple Tree Flat next," said Mister Tingaling. "The Cracknuts are always ready with their rent, so we'll go there first."

Munch Mouse, the janitor, took them up on the elevator inside of the Maple Tree.

When they stepped off at the floor where the Cracknuts family lived, there stood Daddy Cracknuts himself in his doorway, looking as kind and friendly as an old gray squirrel gentleman can look.

"Why, hello there, Tingaling!" he said, shaking hands with the fairyman. "I see you are in good company. Hello, Nancy and Nick! Helping out as usual, I see. Come right in, all of you. I guess I know what you're after, as it is the thirty-second day of the month."

"You guessed right, Daddy Cracknuts," said Mister Tingaling. "It's rent day. And my big pocketbook is still as empty as a balloon, almost. Twenty-five cents in fairy money is all I have."

"Well, you'll have mine pretty soon, Mister Landlord. I have it all ready for you."

And digging down into his pocket, Daddy Cracknuts pulled out a brand new bill, which he slowly unfolded and laid on the table.

Mister Tingaling's eyes nearly popped out of his head. "Ten dollars," he gasped. "I—I'm afraid I can't change it."

"That's too bad," said Daddy, folding it up again and putting it into his pocket. "Just wait and I'll see if Ma has the amount. Ma! Oh, Ma! Here's the landlord. Have you any money?"

"The landlord!" called Mrs. Cracknuts. "I'll be right in. I want to see him about some new wall paper for the dining-room."

"Wall-paper!" said Mister Tingaling in a worried voice. "Is it so very bad? Are you sure your walls need papering, Mrs. Cracknuts?"

"Yes, they're all brown," said the squirrel lady. "The walls are maple wood, you know, and the syrup has soaked through in spots and made hem all brown.

"Why, I should charge you extra for having maple syrup free!" exclaimed Mister Tingaling. "I—I really don't think I can put new wall-paper on any of your rooms this year, Mrs. Cracknuts. Money's so expensive just now and I haven't much. Besides I need a new hat and a pair of shoes. I mean the price of food is up so."

"Why, Mister Tingaling! Making us do without wall-paper just to make a dude of yourself! I'm surprised," said the lady. "Let me see. You want your rent money, don't you? Well, I have a dollar bill about some place. I suppose I'll have to go and get it. Excuse me for a minute, please."

TRIPLETS BORN TO LOCAL LADY

Mrs. J. C. Martin, of Clarkston, Was Born in Peterborough.

ALL DOING WELL.

Triplets, two boys and a girl, were born to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Martin of Clarkston, Washington, on March 12. The mother, who was formerly Miss Delaney, and was born in Peterboro, the daugther of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Delaney, now of Vancouver, and the three babies are all doing well. The children have been named James Patrick, Donald and Mary Jane, and weigh respectively five pounds and fourteen ounces, six pounds and four ounces and five pounds and fourteen ounces.

Mr. and Mrs. Delaney, grandparents of the triplets, left Peterboro for the west 32 years ago. About five years ago they visited Peterboro, staying with Mrs. J. Martin, a sister of Mrs. Delaney.

LESS CRIME NOW.

Jurors Ordered To Stay at Home—No Cases at Assizes.

That there is less crime in the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland now than before the passing of the O. T. A., is the conclusion drawn by a former of South Monaghan who was called for jury duty at the spring assizes, but was notified before the session that his presence was not required as there were no jury cases. Two other men of the township were also ordered not to appear.

KRIM'S ACTIONS PUZZLE FRENCH

Apparently Prepared For War While Conducting Peace Negotiations.

WAR EXPECTED.

PARIS, April 3 (Canadian Press) — Abd-el-Krim, Riffian war lord, appears to be at one and the same time carrying on preparations for a big offensive in Morocco and negotiations for peace with the French.

The attitude of the Riffian chieftain is said to be causing great perplexity in the French government.

The prevalent opinion in well informed circles is that Abd-El-Krim's real intentions are warlike, rather than peaceful.

A PRESENTATION.

Donald Mackey Leaving City —Albert Clarke Entertains.

Master Albert Clarke entertained a number of his young friends at the residence of his grandmother, Mrs. A. Tamblyn, Victoria avenue, last evening. The chief event of the evening was a presentation and address to Donald Mackey, who is leaving the city shortly. The address was read by Leslie Cheu, and the belt and chain which formed the gift, was presented by Irene Cox. Refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour spent.

LOSS $2,000,000 IN WEEK'S STORM

No Telephone Communication With Toronto Yet—Telegraph Service Unsettled.

More definite information as to the extent of the damage done by the sleet and winds of Wednesday, are being received as the repair men check up.

The Bell Telephone Company was the hardest hit, and its loss is expected to be close to a million dollars.

The following is a list of the poles which were blown down:

	Poles Down.
Pickering-Toronto	69
Hamilton-Toronto	79
Toronto-Owen Sound (poles down between Toronto and Weston loop, also north of Weston loop.
Toronto-Stratford	225
Toronto-North Bay	167
Toronto-Orillia	312
Port Credit-Branmpton	15
Toronto-Richmond Hill	35
Hamilton-Bridgeburg	9
Montreal-Toronto	243

This does not include others which were cracked but which are still standing and will not be replaced until later.

Other heavy losers during the the storm were:

Independent Tel. Lines	$ 10,000
Can. Nat. Telegraphs	300,000
Can. Pac. Telegraphs	250,000
T. T. Commisison	10,000
Radial Railways	15,000
Commercial and Industrial estimate	200,000
City of Toronto	10,000
Hydro	35,000
Steam railways	65,000

Making with the Bell Company's loss, a total of $1,945,000.

It was not possible to-day to obtain a long distance telephone connection with Toronto, and the telegraph service is spasmodic.

SPECIAL SERVICES MARK GOOD FRIDAY

All Churches in City Observe Day in Special Manner.

Good Friday was generally observed in the city churches yesterday with special services. St. Andrew's church had a grand United service, an account of which appears in another column. The Anglican churches observed the day in a special manner, also the Roman Catholic churches of the city. At St. John's last evening, Stainer's "Crucifixion" was rendered by the choir, with splendid effect, solo work being taken by Messrs. D. Melton, R. Moore and H. W. Morphet. The Three Hour service from twelve to three o'clock was conducted by the Rural Dean, Rev. T. J. O'Conor-Fenton, of Norwood. At All Saints' the evening service was marked by special Passion music by the choir, assisted by Mrs. P. Hooper, violinist, and at St. Luke's church, the Three Hour service was conducted by Rev. G. J. Bousfield, and was followed by a presentation, attended by a large number of the pupils of the Sunday school, of lantern slides depicting the Passion of Christ. At St. George's church, the Three Hour service was conducted by the rector, Rev. J. L. Hughes, followed by a lantern slide delineation of the same type.

At St. Peter's Cathedral, the Church of the Sacred Heart and the Church of the Immaculate Conception, three Good Friday services were held, the Solemn Mass of the Pre-Sanctified in the morning, the devotions of the Station of the Cross in the afternoon, commencing at three o'clock, and a special sermon on the Passion of Christ in the evening.

At Murray street Baptist church, services in the morning were conducted by Rev. C. W. Rose, D.D., and at Park street Baptist church, a special service was held in the evening, when Rev. Wm. Allan, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, gave a sermon entitled "An Old Scene in a New Setting."

FIRE DETROYS HOUSE IN DOURO

Firemen, Called To Box 59, Find Building in Flames.

NOBODY HOME.

A two-storey frame house owned by William Spencley, was burned at noon today. This house is situated on Spenceley's Lane, which is a street running from 155 River Road to the Trent Canal in the Township of Douro.

Several calls came in to the department, but as the fire was out of the city permission had to be obtained from the mayor. At 12.03, a call came in from box 59 which is at the Auburn. When the firmen arrived the house was a mass of flames and although they made a valiant effort to save the house, the fire had too much of a start. Nobody was at home and nobody appeared who seemed to own the house.

The house was well furnished and everything is totally destroyed.

TURKEY SPENDING MILLIONS ON ARMY

Over Half of Budget Required For War Purposes This Year.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 3 Canadian Press)—Fifty-one per cent or approximately $70,000,000 of Turkey's budget for 1926, will be spent for national defence, greatest activity being displayed in this arm of the Republic's public service. Guns, ammunition and aeroplanes are being imported, and everything is being done to put the country's defences in a high state of preparation.

Discussing the state of the army Radjeh Bey, Minister of War, said: "Our army is working continually and is on a full campaign footing. From all points of view the present Turkish army represents the strongest arm of the country."

EX-MAYOR DEAD.

C. G. Booker, of Hamilton, Died Suddenly—Mayor Four Years.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 3 (Canadian Press).—Charles Goodenough Booker, Mayor of Hamilton from 1917 to 1922, died suddenly at his home here this morning. Mr. Booker was born here 67 years ago.

He was one of the few mayors to hold office for four years and had served as a member and as chairman of the Board of Education. He was prominent in business circles and a leading Mason.

RELIGIOUS RIOTS APPEAR SERIOUS

Twenty Killed When Hindus and Moslems Clash at Calcutta.

TROOPS ON GUARD.

CALCUTTA, India, April 3 (Canadian Press) — Rioting between Hindus and Moslems broke out in Calcutta again this morning. The situation appears to be serious. More persons were killed or injured today than yesterday.

Calcutta advices yesterday said 20 persons were reported killed and 150 injured when Moslems barred the way to a procession of Hindus.

Troops with machine guns were patrolling the streets this forenoon endeavoring to check the mobs which were looting and setting fire to shops. The Moslems destroyed a Hindu temple, desecrating the idol and the Hindus set fire to a large mosque.

STATES DECLINES LEAGUE INVITATION

Will Not Be Represented at World Court Conference.

WASHINGTON, April 3 (Canadian Press).—A note declining the League of Nations invitation to the World Court Conference at Geneva will be forwarded early next week by Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State.

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 3 (Canadian Pres).—The news that President Coolidge opposes participation in the proposed general conference on United States Senates' World Court reservations caused surprise and regret in League of Nations circles. It is said that should the United States decline to send a representative to Geneva in September, the Conference will be held anyway.

A new device, consisting of four horizontal gyrators, has been developed to eliminate the greatest risks of automatically diminishing the speed of a falling airplane.

The King's Ushabti

(By Jeanette.)

(Ushabti is the name given to the figures guarding the tombs of dead Egyptians. These are made in the image of the departed, and are supposed to do the work that is required of each person before he can obtain eternal rest. The word "Ushabti" means "Lo, I am here!")

(The sixth death has just occurred of men who have been connected with excavations in the tomb of Tut-ank-Amen, in the Egyptian Valley of the Kings.)

"Lo, I am here!"
Out of the gloom of centuries
Across the threshold of the years
I wait in silence dim.
Those others went to sow and reap;
I guard his calm, eternal sleep.
I watch o'er him.

"Lo, I am here!"
Carved in the image of the king,
To me the waning years shall bring
Only a deep'ning gloom.
The monarch lies in rigid state;
The golden cows of Hathor wait
Within this tomb.

"Lo, I am here!"
It seems to me but yesterday
His weeping servants stole away
And then my watch began.
With poisoned swords they ringed him 'round;
The years slipped by without a sound
Or sight of man.

And still I wait.
They came one day, those reckless fools,
With pick and axe and edged tools,
To seize this guarded bier.
Their leaders sank in sudden death;
They sealed us up with bated breath.
"Lo, I am here!"

BETTER TERMS CITY FINANCE

Bank Lowers Rates on Recent Appeal By Finance Committee.

AFFECTS UTILITIES.

The Finance committee at its meeting on Thursday night received a communication from the Bank of Montreal stating that since the committee, through the chairman, Ald. Phelan, had asked for a more advantageous rate of interest the bank was willing to lower its rates on money borrowed from six per cent. to five and three-quarters per cent. and on the money in the bank as credit balances the city would get three and three-quarters instead of four per cent. This agreement was to include also the City Trust and Utilities Commission. Commissioner E. F. Mason was present and the facts were laid before him, and he promised to bring them up before the members of the commission. The Utilities Commissioner is the loser in this deal, at its does very little borrowing and it has a credit balance in the bank; but as the city handles so much more money this agreement will mean quite a saving to the city as a whole.

E. S. J. Martin, manager of the Bank of Montreal, spoke briefly, thanking the members for giving the bank the patronage of the city's finances. The motion was put and adopted.

Illuminated Signs.

Mr. Hodgson appeared before the committee about the illuminated signs and was told that the city did not intend to levy a tax per sign board on the company, as the members of the committee thought it was a step in the right direction towards improvement of the city, especially in lighting some of the dark corners up.

Mr. Wearing was instructed to draw up an agreement whereby Mrs. Hodgson would be responsible for any signs falling and causing damage to property or persons, which Mrs. Hodgson said she would sign.

Certain small acounts were passed and ordered paid.

Then Ald. Fife took the chair and a Board of Works meeting followed.

REPORTERS HONOR COMRADE'S MEMORY

Members of Press Gallery Pay Tribute To Major Lewis.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 3 (Canadian Press).—Members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery on Thursday paid tribute to the memory of Major John Lewis, a former member of the press gallery and editor of The Montreal Star who was killed in action on the Somme in 1916. The occasion was the presentation of a portrait of the late Major Lewis to the press gallery by Lord Atholstan. The portrait, which is to hang in the lounge room of the press gallery, was received by the president, F. Charpentier from S. Morgan Powell who acted on behalf of Lord Atholstan. Brief speeches were made by senior members of the press gallery, recalling friendships and association with Major Lewis.

The first steamer to cross the Atlantic took 26 days.

MAY MAKE SEAT ON COUNCIL FOR LATIN AMERICA

League Disposed To Give Nations Right To Elect Member.

TO NOTIFY BRAZIL.

Germany's Entry Still Hinges on Brazil's Veto.

GENEVA, April 3. (United Perss.)—There is every indication to-day that Germany's entry into the League of Nations in September will again hinge on Brazil's vote, and it is likely that in the meantime the league will send a "friendly ultimatum" to Brazil.

Rio de Janeiro would be notified that the league was disposed to create a permanent Latin-American seat on the council provided Latin-American countries be unable to agree upon any single country to represent them, which the league regards as almost certain. It would then be suggested that three non-permanent Latin-American council seats be created, one of which would be occupied in turn by Argentina, Brazil and Chile. These are the probable alternatives which would be laid before Brazil.

The only other solution which might be adopted is the proposition to create a special category of council seats for larger nations, such as Brazil, which would be occupied so long as the nation could obtain a three-fourths vote in the assembly.

THREE ARRESTED ROBBERY CHARGE

Jewelery Store Lost $1,200 Worth of Goods on March 12.

KEPT SECRET.

QUEBEC, Que., April 3 (Canadian Press).—A $1,200 robbery which was staged here on March 12 had its sequel when Detective Lieutenant Lacasse and his officers arrested three men on charges of burglary. All three, two brothers, Turcot, and one, "Mana" Lachance, are now at police headquarters and will be brought before the court of sessions. Of the $1,200 worth of jewelry and watches stolen, the police have recovered $500 worth.

The robbery occurred on the night of March 12, at the store of Marier and Juneau, watchmakers, at 326 St. Joseph street, but all word of the occurrence was kept secret until yesterday.

DEATH PENALTY.

NAUEN, April 3.—Premier Pangalos of Greece has issued an order that the death penalty shall be inflicted upon any found guilty of selling army supplies from the Saloniki warehouses belonging to the Government. The value of the property already stolen is said to have reached a large ambunt.

SURPRISED THAT U. S. SURPRISED

Circular Note of World Court Was Routine, Say Members.

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 3 (Canadian Press).—League of Nations circles expressed astonishment last night on the receipt of dispatches from Washington saying that the action of the League in sending a circular letter to the members of the world court inviting them to a conference to consider the United States reservations had caused surprise in official circles of the United States capital.

Officials of the league said that however Washington may have felt about the council's original decision to convoke a conference for the purpose of discussing the reservations put forward by the United States in connection the reservations put forward by the United States in connection with her becoming a member of the court and the invitation to the United States to participate in the discussions, there can be no justification for surprise over the actual dispatch of the invitations, which was a routine matter.

McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets Fine For Thin Under Developed Kids

Children Love Them Because They Are Sugar Coated and as Easy to Take as Candy.

It's your duty, Mother, to see that the frail, peaked, sickly youngster grows up to be strong in body, keen in mind and robust in health.

Extracted from the livers of the lowly codfish are the health, weight and strength producing vitamines that are found in McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets, which are sold by pharmacists all over North and South America.

Doctors know about them and so does McDermid and Jury, Jr., Lynch and Bond's drug stores, and if your children need building up ask for these tablets to-day if you want to give your loved ones a good appetite and put pounds of good healthy flesh on their bones.

But be sure and get McCoy's.

They are not expensive—60 tablets 60 cents—and if you are not pleased with the improvement after 30 days, your money back.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy.

One skinny woman gained 9 pounds in 24 days.

AWAIT RULING ON LAKE STEAL

Advice Is Given To Committee Discussing Illinois Waterway Development.

SPLIT EXPECTED.

WASHINGTON, April 3 (Canadian Press).—The whole subject of Great Lakes shipping and the effect upon it of the proposed Illinois waterway development was brought before the House rivers and harbors committee yesterday by Representative Burton, Republican, Ohio, who opposed the project, and Representative Rainey, Democrat, Illinois, who favored it.

Appealing to the committee to take no action on the proposal until the supreme court has ruled on the question of water diversion from the lakes, Representative Burton said that present withdrawals are lowering the level to the detriment of shipping. He declared that it would be impossible to maintain the level with artificial compensating works.

This view was directly opposed by Representative Rainey who said that effective works could be built at a relatively small cost. He also expressed the view that opposition to the project was due to fear of competition rather than possible damage to shipping.

Representative Burton's statement included an attack on the policy of including projects in an omnibus bill instead of providing for them on their merits in separate measures.

Representative Rainey advocated the removal of government locks in the Illinois waterway but Chairman Dempsey announced that inasmuch as this had not been recommended by army engineers, he would not favor their removal.

With the rivers and harbor bill about to be reported to the house, strong pressure is being exerted on the committee by some of the lake cities to prevent it from putting any authorization in the bill which will deal with diversion of water from Lake Michigan.

On the other hand, the Illinois delegation in congress is insisting on such authorization.

The exact proposition which the committee will report on the lakes to the gulf waterway, which involves diversion, has not yet been settled.

Meantime, the Illinois members of the house are determined to force the diversion issue in the house itself, regardless of the action of the rivers and harbors committee. Under these circumstances it looks as if there would be a test of house sentiment soon on the subject.

LONDON, April 3 (Canadian Press).—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Calcutta says seven villages were razed by a tornado in the Madaripur district of Bengal on Thursday. Fifty persons were killed and one hundred injured.

A process has been developed for rubber-plating metallic articles in much the same way that metals are silver-plated.

BRITISH PAPERS HAVE LETTERS PRAISING CANADA

Many Successful Emigrants Write To Tell of Experiences.

GIVE ADVICE.

Hard Work Needed For Success, They Tell Prospects.

LONDON, Eng., April 2 (Canadian Press).—Old Country papers are overflowing with letters, progressive and conservative, on the subject of emigration to Canada. In the Glasgow Herald, "Winnipeg" gives his views on the matter as follows:

"I have just read the long articles sent you by A. C. Hunter, of Walkerville, Ontario. As I also know the Dominion fairly well (from Halifax to Vancouver) I would just like to say that what he states is pretty near correct. Emigrants are getting a great opportunity in getting out for £3. They ought to jump at the chance, but as A. C. Hunter tells them so clearly they must go on the farm and stay with it. I might just say in passing that many emigrants get lonesome on the prairie and drift into the towns, or perhaps into one of the big cities, where they get more life. Now, if you intend going to a homestead, I would say try and get one in Alberta, east of Lacombe or in the near neighborhood of Edmonton. Also, get some of your friends to locate reasonably near you. To succeed you must be a handy man with the hammer and saw, and 'forget' about working only eight hours per day. If interested in your homestead you will get plenty to do.

CHANG'S PLANES BOMBING PEKING

Two Raids Made and Ten Bombs Dropped—Many "Duds."

NO CASUALTIES.

PEKING, April 3 (United Press).—Chinese aviators bombed Peking to-day. Ten bombs were dropped during two raids by Chang Tso Lin's forces. Five of the bombs exploded, but the others were "duds."

So far as can be learned there were no casualties. The missles landed within the city walls, near the Winter Palace and Temple of Heaven.

It is reliably reported that the diplomatic corps does not consider itself to possess power to compel discontinuance of the raids but merely to insist upon the inviolability of the Legation quarter.

PASSION MUSIC AT ALL SAINTS'

Choir Sang Solos and Anthems at Good Friday Service.

The anunal choir concert of Passion music was given at all Saints' church last night, and consisted of solos, choruses, anthems and hymns. Mrs. Percy Hooper, violiniste, assisted the choir and rendered a solo.

Prominent among the selections were the choruses, "Behold the Lamb of God," and "Worthy is the Lamb," from Handel's "Messiah." The anthem, "Evening and Morning" by Oakley, was presented to the choir in memory of Mrs. and Miss Timm, two faithful members of All Saints' congregation, and was sung for the first time last night. The soloists were Mrs. W. Tanner, and Miss Edith Tucker, sopranos, and George E. Chandler, tenor. Mr. Chandler, who is choirmaster, conducted the choir, and Mrs. W. A. Logan was at the organ. Rev. J. D. Paterson, rector of the church, gave a short address, touching on the part of music in the services of the church, and expressing appreciation of the services of the choir. The following is the programme:

Hymn 108, Lord, in this Thy Mercy's day. (Sung kneeling.
Aria, "Come unto Him"—Handel. — Mrs. W. Tanner, Soprano.
Anthem, "Calvary"—Rodney. Solo—Miss E. Tucker, Soprano.
Hymn, "All for Jesus."
Violin solo, "Berceuse," from "Jocelyn," Mrs. Percy Hooper.
Solo, "My Hope is in the Everlasting" —Stainer. Mr. George E. Chandler, Tenor.
Choruses, "Behold the Lamb of God," "Worthy is the Lamb," Handel.
Anthem, "Evening and Morning," Oakley.
Hymn 600 "Peace, Perfect Peace."

BRITISH HELP DEFEAT ARABS

Armored Cars and Airplanes Assist Irak Detachments on Frontier.

ROUT 2,000.

BAGDAD, Irak, April 3 (Canadian Press).—British armored cars and airplanes, used as reinforcements for Irak detachments guarding the Irak-Syrian frontier, participated in a skirmish yesterday against 2,000 Syrian and Arab tribesmen who attacked the Irak troops. The tribesmen fled in disorder, leaving 45 dead and carrying away many wounded.

British officers restrained the Irak troops from pursuing the enemy across the frontier.

MILBURN'S HEART NERVE PILLS

Mrs. F. H. Miller, 1843-11th Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C., writes:—"Five years ago my husband suffered terribly with severe attacks of palpitation of the heart and smothering spells, and two doctors stated that he could not possibly live six months.

A friend recommended Milburn's H. and N. Pills, with the result that my husband is still enjoying life at the age of 84 years.

He has improved so wonderfully that he can now climb the stairs without having those awful pains in his heart."

DAMAGE TO STREETS BY BUSES REPORTED

Board of Works Exercised By Destruction of Roadway Surfaces.

At a meeting of the Board of Works on Thursday night Ald. Fife and the city engineer were appointed a committee to buy the street oil for the summer. Several companies had sent in samples of road oil and it was decided to have these samples analyzed as the members want to purchase the oil with the largest percentage of asphalt.

The chairman and city engineer were also appointed a committee to see what could be done to improve Water street between London and Dublin and to grade it if necessary.

Certain residents living on the south side of Woodbine avenue petitioned the board to have a cement sidewalk built in front of their property, and the engineer was ordered to bring in a report.

It was decided to call for tenders for the season's cement, the cement to be delivered as required.

Considerable discussion took place as to the Hydro buses ruining the streets over which they travel, it being said that some streets are beginning to cut up already. Ald. Fife thought there ought to be some plan of street building as he considers there will always be buses of some kind here. The engineer and chairman were instructed to draw up a plan of street improvement and bring in a report.

The chairman was instructed to sell the black team belonging to the city if a suitable price could be obtained, and to purchase a younger team which in turn would become more valuable in time under the careful care of the city's teamsters. It was pointed out that teams increased in value in the city's hands and if sold before getting too old a better price could be obtained for them than the original purchase price. Some few accounts were passed and ordered paid.

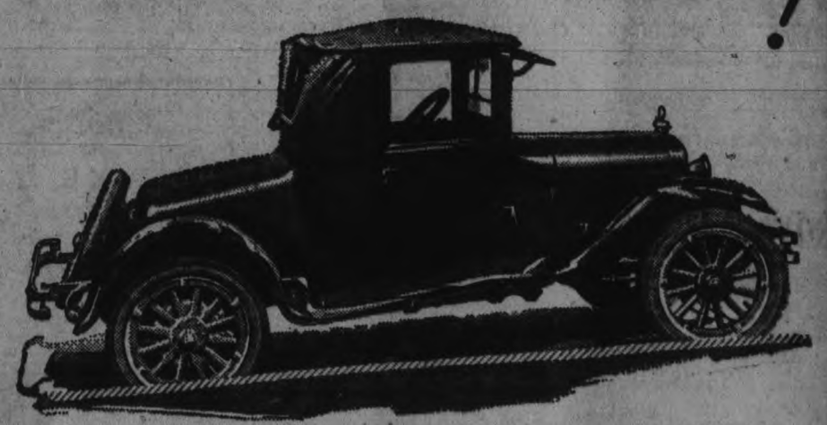
DODGE BROTHERS (CANADA) LIMITED

Over a Cliff in this STEEL BODY without injuring the DRIVER!



A careless driver . . . A triple somersault over a cliff . . . and this is the car—a Dodge Brothers all steel safety car.

A triple somersault over a cliff with the car you see in this picture! Such was the experience of its owner, who came through the fall uninjured.

After an hour of repair work, he drove the car from Montana to Minneapolis—a more sensible driver and much wiser.

All steel construction saved his life, as it has saved many other lives in the past, and will save thousands more in the future . . . . . .

Dodge Brothers print this advertisement because they believe motorists are entitled to all steel safety and should insist upon it.

That's why Dodge Brothers introduced all steel construction more than eleven years ago—and recently announced additional all steel safety features.

The streets are swarming with 700,000 motor cars—thousands more are on the way.

Safety is the issue. Armor yourself and your family with steel.

Dodge Brothers Motor Cars—both open and closed—are all steel in the strictest sense of the term. Steel reinforced by steel—framed, braced and buttressed by steel—with all seams solidly and permanently welded together by electricity.

Slim steel pillars replace the old bulky wooden corner posts—permitting unparalleled driving vision—a safety feature of the first importance.

Compare such bodies with the usual wood, or wood-and-metal body, and you will be astonished that every automobile builder has not adopted this advanced safety construction.

Remember, also, that safety is the watchword of Dodge Brothers construction throughout, as witnessed by Dodge Brothers exceptionally large, quick-action brakes, and the exceptional ruggedness and dependability of Dodge Brothers axles, frames, steering parts, and other vital units.

This car will continue to be a "four".

One night Willie Pinkerton and his family were enjoying a wonderful concert over the radio from station K.A.L.E. when all of a sudden the concert stopped and a mysterious code message came out of the loud speaker. Nobody knew what it meant. But Willie was quick enough to jot it down, and as he had been studying secret codes as used by International Secret Service Agents he soon knew what the mysterious message meant. Willie Pinkerton managed to decipher it. Can you?

HOW HE DECIPHERED IT

His Pa and Ma wanted to know what the message meant, but Willie wouldn't tell them. He told them how he worked it out to see if they could do it too. He told them the message contained 11 words, each little group of letters representing a word. Start by writing the alphabet down from A to Z and number each letter beginning at Z first as number 1, Y2, X3, W4, and so on. Then change the letters of the mysterious message into numbers by finding which number each letter represents. Then you must write down another alphabet numbering it the right way A number 1, B2, C3, D4, and so on. Change the numbers back into letters by finding the letter corresponding to that number. In order to help them he told them the first word was "It." Decipher the complete message if you can and send your answer right away to compete for the big prizes. The entry gaining 200 points wins first prize. (See rules.) Be neat and careful. Comply with the rules and be sure of a prize.

THE OBJECT OF THE CONTEST

Frankly this is an advertising contest its aim being to further the popularity of the well known Sterling Hosiery sold from the mill to the consumer through a chain of Sterling stores and personal service direct to the home. Thousands of people in Canada already know and wear Sterling Hosiery, but we want to reach thousands more that they may become acquainted with Sterling Quality and Sterling Values in pure silk, silk and wool, and pure wool hosiery for every member of the family.

SEND YOUR ENTRY TODAY

When your answers are received we will write and tell you how many points you have gained towards the prizes, and will ask you to allow us to send you a few sample pairs of Sterling Hosiery to show to a few friends who will gladly become Sterling Hosiery users as a result. This is a simple and easily fulfilled favor, involving little time, and need not cost you a cent of money, and will qualify your entry to stand for the highest prizes. We agree to pay you extra for every effort you put forth in furthering the sale of Sterling Hosiery.

Rules of Contest

1. Write answers only in ink on one side of paper, name and address in upper right corner stating whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss. Don't send fancy drawn or typewritten entries.
2. Contestants must be 15 years or over. Employees of Sterling Hosiery Mills Ltd., their friends and relatives are not allowed to enter.
3. Three answers may be submitted. Only one can win a prize.
4. The final Judges are three Toronto gentlemen not connected with this firm. Their names will be made known to all contestants, who must abide by their decision. 200 points takes first prize. 10 points will be given for each word of the mystery message correct; 20 points for neatness, appearance, spelling, handwriting; and 50 for fulfilling contest conditions. Contest closes June 15, 1926.
5. You will be written immediately if correct and asked to fulfil a simple condition that need not cost you any money. The company agrees to reward you in addition to any prize you win, for your efforts in furthering the popularity of Sterling Hosiery. This is not a sales contest. Everybody's opportunity of winning is equal.

ALLAN CUP GOES TO PORT ARTHUR

Hockey Teams Are Guests at Luncheon in King Edward Hotel.

TORONTO, April 3. — The Port Arthur and Varsity hockey teams were entertained to luncheon at the King Edward Hotel on Thursday. P. J. Mulqueen, president of the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association, who played host on the occasion, presided and some interesting after-dinner speeches were delivered.

Controller Joseph Gibbons, representing the city, welcomed the Port Arthur players to Toronto, and congratulated both teams upon the very excellent exhibition of hockey they had given during the series in which Port Arthur had again proved themselves victories over stalwart opponents.

Claud Robinson represented the Allan Cup trustees, and, remarking that hockey history had been made by both teams in the four games which they had played, presented the handsome trophy to Bill Brydge, the Port Arthur captain, who, in accepting it, referred to the splendid way in which they had been treated while in Toronto, and to the pleasure which they felt in having won against such a clever aggregation of players as those by whom they had been opposed.

The Port Arthur team had also won the S.P.A. Cup earlier in the season, and its presentation to Team-Captain Brydge was made by W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the O.H.A. and vice-president of the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association.

The Varsity players were also toasted and in reply Joe Sullivan, speaking for his teammates, thanked the trustees of the Allan Cup in anticipation for medals which they had offered to give the runners-up this year as a special recognition of the great games they had put up in the final series.

Other toasts included "The Managers" and the officials.

McGRAW CONSIDERS CAPTURE OF RING WINTER ACHIEVEMENT

John Joseph McGraw voices the opinion that the biggest thing he did for his ball club was the acquisition of Jimmy Ring by trading Jack Bentley and Wayland Dean to the Phils.

Ring is a smart, rugged pitcher. He wanted to get away from the second-division Phillies and devote the waning years of his baseball career to winning games for a pennant contender.

Jimmy has worked hard this spring—as he always did—and really we will be surprised if he does not win at least twenty-five ball games for the Giants. That is a flock of victories to get from one man.

Then there are Virgil Barnes, Jack Scott and Hugh McQuillan, veteran right-handers, who are in the front line this spring. Also, Greenfield, Fitzsimmons and Wisner, kids who look promising.

Art Nehf is a wise southpaw who has some wins left in his old supper. Lloyd Davies, former Mack rookie, later with New Haven, is another left-hander on the staff.

Some of the experts think McGraw is weak behind the bat. Grover Hartley is said to be 38 years old. But he knows his baseball and moves about like an athlete much younger.

Frank Snyder is a big, strong backstopper who has been on the McGraw payroll long enough to know how to carry out the orders of his chief. The Giants' catching problem may not be so serious.

Hughey Jennings will be missed. He was an able, conscientious lieutenant. But Rajah Bresnahan appears to be handling the sergeant major job satisfactorily.

READY FOR BATTLE.

Firpo and Spalla Conclude Training and Meet To-night.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Apr. 3 (Canadian Press). — Luis Firpo and Erminio Spalla, the Argentine and Italian heavyweight champions, professed themselves in readiness to-day for their fifteen-round bout here to-night. The fighters completed their training on Thursday, and went through only light exercises yesterday.

Spalla's manager said he was confident of winning, basing much hope on the fact of Firpo's long period of idleness. The Argentine champion, however, is reported to have undergone faithfully six weeks of intensive training under the tutelage of Felix Bunge, Argentine sportsman.

Bunge told the newspapermen that Firpo's condition was satisfactory. His weight was 222 pounds. Spalla weighed 198 at the conclusion of his training.

YANKEES WILL CAUSE TROUBLE

Huggins Sees Only Weak Spot in Infield—May Improve.

BOYS CAN HIT.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 3 (Canadian Press).—The New York Yankees may not play in the world's series next fall, but they will furnish the American League team that does "a whole lot of bother," Miller Huggins, their manager, said yesterday. Huggins, here with the team for an exhibition match with Brooklyn, gave out a statement which he termed "the first comprehensive resume of spring training developments."

"There is only one place in the Yankee combination that is likely to cause trouble, and that is the infield," Huggins stated, adding that his infield was of "tremendous intrinsic strength, but as yet undeveloped." He is confident that by the time the season opens his combination in the infield will have developed co-ordination in defensive play.

"I have no doubt about the offensive. All those boys can hit," Huggins said. "I am a great believer in developing the disposition of a player as well as his skill, and I am frank to say that as yet I cannot tell what my infield is going to do."

Huggins believes that Gehrig at first, Lazzeri at second and Koenig at short will produce. Each is twenty one years old and lacks only experience.

Two new pitchers are pleasing to the Yankee manager, Thomas, obtained from Toronto International League, has been showing up well, and probably will be a regular in the box during the coming season. Thomas, a right-hander, is generally termed a "neck pitcher." His delivery is with a short arm twist, and the ball is on the batter before the batter knows it, Huggins said.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, the amateur hockey season is over at last, and it crossed everybody up by finishing before the winter at that. The Port Arthurs is Allan cup winners for the 2nd time in succession, and there don't seem to be nobody down this way weeping over the result of their serious with Varsity. It sure was a great 4-game finish, and when you figger the 2 teams played exactly 5 hours in all and each scored 8 goals in that time you gotta admit there weren't nothing much between them. The boys from the head of the Great Lakes, however, earned the verdict by the way they come from behind in the last 2 games, and they is worthy champions.

But honest to goodness, Mister Sporting Editor, it ain't no wonder some of the moguls is trying to dope out a way to give the crowd more thrills in the way of scores. They ain't nothing that brings them upon their feet quicker than to see the old net sag from a bullet-like shot after a nice attack, but the way the boys has been trained nowadays goals is as scarce as pennies on tag day in Aberdeen. The Ports and Students battle 300 minutes of hockey and get but 8 markers each, which figgers out at the rate of a goal every 37½ minutes. Back in the old days a team what didn't score about 8 times in the first ½ hour thought they was something wrong with the works. Even Mister Joe Dwyer can remember when an 8-goal lead meant nothing, and it seems only yesterday since Mister Maurice Park scored nine goals in a row against Belleville 1 night. Today, if you was to stake a team like Port Arthur to 8 goals start, they could make that margin last them all season. Now they're talking of widening the net so they'll be more scoring, but the wise teams will invent some way to beating that rule before long, for all the coaches seems to have gone crazy on the defensive end of the game. "Cover up all the time, take no chances and wait for the breaks," seems to be the favourite code of all the experts, and it ain't adding nothing to the thrills of the game. It's only when a team like Port Arthur, a coupla goals down, throws science to the winds and puts the whole working crew up on the firing line that the real excitement begins.

Well, there won't be much more to say about hockey until next autumn. For the Petes there is still a big function ahead of them in the shape of the banquet at which they is to get suitable presentations and when all and sundry will tell them how proud they is of them for bringing home the Ontario honours. The Petes has proved themselves the boss team of the whole O.h.A., and that is sure a big winter's work that deserves all the taffy the banquet orators can pile on. It should oughta to be a big night and a real finish to a fine season.

The arrival of more snow has kinda dampened down the baseball enthusiasm, but Old Sol'll soon be shining on both sides of the fence and the boys will be limbering up the old soup-bones before long. The latest baseball rumour is that the Kingston-Belleville-Peterboro-Ottawa League is going to be an outlaw affair—that is, that it won't be connected with the O.B.A.A. They ain't much in that report because everybody connected with baseball knows that when you start operating a league on a independent basis you're heading right for the ditch. The O.B.A.A. may be far from perfect, but it represents organized baseball, and no league is going to get very far outside of it.

Oshawa announces that the Motor City is to have teams in all the Ontario serious. What about Peterboro? It's about time for the local Connie Macks and John McGraws to get busy on their plans for the season. This city has cut a big gash in the O.B.A.A. during the past 4, 5 years, and the work shouldn't oughta to be dropped now.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, this being the off-season, they ain't much to tell you, except to hope you get a new Easter hat and a chance to wear it Sun.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Who Is Your Favorite?

Boys! Here's your chance!

Here's a competition you can all get in.

Write two hundred words about your favorite player on the Peterborough Senior Hockey Team, Champions of the Ontario Hockey Association.

The prize winner will be the guest of The Examiner at the banquet to be given to the team in recognition of its splendid work this season.

This is the idea. The Petes have brought to this city the first Senior Championship it has ever had. They deserve all kinds of credit. Every boy on the team did his share. But you have your favorite—maybe you think he plays smarter hockey than the others; or he may skate better; or he may be merely better looking. Whatever your reason, write it out in not more than 200 words, and send it to "The Contest Editor, The Examiner," observing these simple rules:

(1) Open only to boys of 17 or under.
(2) Accuracy, penmanship, composition and neatness count.
(3) Contest closes at midnight, April 3.
(4) Pictures of the players will be run every day, without names. Clip out the picture of your favorite and paste it on a sheet of paper with his name written carefully under it. Pin this to your 200 word story or essay.
(5) A coupon, properly filled in and signed by a parent or guardian, must accompany every entry.

A committee of prominent citizens will be asked to decide the winner and in case of dispute the Editor's decision will be final.

The date of the banquet is April 15.

Clip out this Coupon and attach it to your essay.

FAVOR MAROONS TO WIN TO-NIGHT FROM COUGARS

Montreal Pros Are Riding on Crest of Strong Winning Streak.

VICTORIA GAME.

Westerners Expect To Give Better Account When Used To Rules.

MONTREAL, Que., April 3 (Canadian Press) — Montreal Maroons and the Victoria Cougars will meet in the third and what is expected to be the last Stanley Cup match of the season at the Forum tonight, the contest to be waged under eastern rules.

Victors in the first two games by three-goal margins, the Maroons are favored to clinch the title of world's professional hockey champions, the most that the local fans concede Victoria in the way of a chance for a win being a break at the start—a couple of goals which may give them an incentive to battle through in front.

But the Westerners' chances are not highly regarded, despite the fact that the Montrealers are winding up a campaign which has kept the team in three games a week for the past five weeks.

The Maroons are travelling on the crest of a wave which has been carrying them from triumph to triumph. They are playing with a winning morale. Victoria may check the winning succession of the Maroons, but if the Westerners win the loal fans will be about the most surprised and bewildered gathering of spectators ever to witness a hockey upset.

Montreal players came out of Thursday's game badly scarred, but no wise physically stale. They were back at the Forum early yesterday morning and underwent the ministrations of Trainer Bill O'Brien, who has been a great asset to the club in ironing out stiffened muscles and bruises of the players and keeping them at a high pitch. Most of the Maroon players have summer duties calling them. Babe Siebert is anxious to try his fortune as a professional baseball catcher with Frank Shaughnessy's Reading International league squad. Bill Phillips has some construction work he wants to oversee in the north country—and so forth. They will be out to settle the issue speedily and end a season which has been as successful as it has been brilliant and strenuous.

The Cougars have shaken travel-weary legs and are in fettle for the final tussle. They still have hopes, but in any event are confident that under the eastern rules tonight they will be faster and more at home than in the first game when they were badly handicapped by the strange rules. Their defence has been strengthened to cope with the smashing, ploughing Maroon attack. But it is doubtful yet if they will be able to hold back the tricky Stewart, the crafty Phillips and the dashing Siebert, to say nothing of the aggressive Punch Broadbent, who has had the time of his chequered hockey career in the past two or three weeks of cup battles.

A victory for the Maroons tonight will clinch possession of the Stanley Cup and will bring just praise to those who have been at the helm of the Montreal team. After last season President James Strachan and Manager Eddie Gerard decided that long schedules and the general trend of the game made it essential for a team to have big, fast players. They scoured for such material. At the first of the present season, just before the league opened, Gerard was told by veteran pro players that his chances of annexing the title with the players on hand was fair, but that if Montreal did win out a great deal of credit would be due to him for welding the players into a machine.

Results speak for themselves and probably no better example of Gerard's hand behind the club could be seen than that shown at Ottawa in the final game for the National Hockey League title against the Senators.

EVERY AMERICAN EATS OWN WEIGHT OF MEAT EACH YEAR

WASHINGTON, April 1.—(United Press).—Americans are not vegetarians, generally speaking. The per capita consumption of meat last year was 154.3 pounds.

People are eating more veal and less pork, according to the Agriculture Department. Consumption of mutton and lamb, which is relatively low in the United States, has remained about stationary for the last five years.

Beef consumption reached the highest point on record in 1925 with a production of more than 3,146,000,000 pounds. Pork produced totaled 9,210,000,000 pounds a decrease of nearly 1,000,000,000 pounds as compared to 1924.

The per capita consumption of lard last year was 13.4 pounds.

HIGH-SPEED BARKS.

America is going dizzy over a new form of sport tag-marked whippet racing. It flourishes in the southern resorts like abdomens on a Turk wrestler.

A whippet is a species of dog life that runs largely to legs, woofs, bad starts, spills at the first turn and strung-out stretch finishes.

Whippet racing is conducted on the same naive basis as horse racing. ..... You can bet on them if you want to or you can pretend intelligence.

There is however, something refreshingly frank and above board about the whippets which distinguishes them from the thoroughbreds .....They don't claim to be anything else but dogs.

The whippets are paced by an iron rabbit electrically operated, which always finishes out in front like a drum major.

The spectacle of a pack of well-groomed whippets yipping at the heels of an all-metal bunny is foolish only by comparison.

This year's Noble prize for grade-A, certified brains certainly will not go to the mugg in the betting ring who thinks he can pick the winners.

Horse racing is tough enough where jockeys can help your mount in a stretch drive, but what does a flea know about machinery, halitosis or the Muscle Shoals deal?

Still this situation is not entirely without its attractions .... You never hear of a flea being bribed to pull the favorite.

All Man O'War ever got for winning a fashionable hoof tournament was a pesk of oats but they pay the winning whippets off in lamb chops on toast.

The racing woof-woofs are muzzled. Some day they'll put muzzles on the bookies. They're the only dangerous animals around a track.

DOCTOR SAYS

Liver Causes 90 Per Cent of Sickness

The liver does not excrete bile into the intestines—waste and poisons remain in the bowels. The blood distributed the poison to all parts of the body, causing headaches, indigestion, sallow complexion, bad breath, coated tongue, tired feeling in the morning, all out of sorts, rheumatism, billouesness, etc.

These troubles can now be quickly driven out of system by Calomel, the only drug known that acts upon the liver.

Get a few of the new improved Calomel, called Tanol Calomel. They act quickly upon the liver, causing an easy natural elimination of all the poisons, with no bad after-effects. Does not nauseate. No salts or seidlits are needed. Like ordinary Calomel. Get a few Tanol Calomel tablets from Weber's Drug Store, Peterborough, and they will make you feel 100 per cent better.

EGGS PLENTIFUL AT CITY MARKET

Priced From 29 to 36 Cents—Butter Sold at 48 To 50 Cents.

Although there were few buyers on the open section of the farmer's market this morning, the basket section was thronged with purchasers. Eggs were very plentiful and sold all the way from 29 to 36 cents a dozen. There was plenty of butter, too, selling at 48 to 50 cents a pound. Fowl were very scarce, chickens being price at 35 cents a pound, and hens at 28 cents.

Clover honey in a pound and a half glass jar was priced at 25 cents. Cream was 30 cents a pint. A couple of vendors had maple syrup at 75 cents a quart, but the demand did not appear to be very brisk. In the downstair entry, a little boy had bunches of pussy willow at a nickel apiece, tied with red paper streamers.

The auctioneer was selling No. 1 apples in barrels, Spys going at $3 and $3.25, and Golden Russets at the same prices. A regular dealer on the market had Spys at $4 a barrel.

MISSION CIRCLE MEETS.

Mrs. R. T. Richards is Hostess of Eastertide Gathering.

The Mark street Church Mission Circle met last evening at the home of Mrs. R. T. Richards. Mrs. V. Boorman, president of Group A, had charge of the programme, and there were a large number of ladies present for an enjoyable evening.

The programme partook of the nature of the Easter season, and included a talk on mission work in India by Mrs. B. Morrison, the reading of a letter by Mrs. Richards from a small boy whose work had been sold at Christmas time, vocal solos rendered by Mrs. E. Wand and Mrs. H. Hunter, and the reading of the Scripture lesson by Mrs. W. Smith.

An address and presentation of a Pyrex pie plate set in silver and a pair of pepper and salt shakers was made to Miss Lillian Hamlin, the Circle secretary, who is leaving soon to be married. The address was read by Mrs. V. Boorman, and the presentation made by Mrs. H. Cooper. Miss Hamlin replied in appropriate terms. Dainty refreshments were then served by the hostess.

IN PUTTING STYLES.

The shrewd observer can detect the subtle differences of putting style at a glance in the way the ball runs after it has been struck, and even in the way it leaves the putter's face. The distinctions between the putting of individuals is as unmistakable as the differences of their handwritings. All players have some basic characteristic which hold them powerless in their grasp, try how they may to get away from them. To the born putter this part of the game is easy. He never seems to labor over the matter. It is second nature for him to strike the ball in a beautiful manner.

Putting indeed may be learned but it is not needful for him to learn it. Already it lies in his bones, or rather in the tips of his fingers.

The ball runs up to the hole with an ideally smooth motion as if it hung on a thread. The straight face of the club sweeps it evenly away from the place where it was resting.

There has been no slackness in the stroke, yet the ball leaves the club slowly, almost reluctantly. The movement of the club is purely natural. It travels low to the ground, both in the back swing and on to the finish.

HYDRO BINDS PETERBOROUGH

trust the possession of such funds in the hands of the Local Commission, from which they are taken from time to time by the Hydro Commission, with the self same ease that the heartless one "takes candies from a baby."

$28.35 PER H.P. FOR 1926

Anyone who reads the history of the management of the Hydro Commission in Central Ontario can plainly see that it has been so improvident and wasteful, that a further increase in Peterborough rates from $26.35 per horse-power to a much higher rate is inevitable. The Hydro Commission has during this last ten years been only paying 4 per cent on funds invested. It will now have to pay 5 per cent. That will increase our horse-power rate another $2.00 per horse-power and bring the total charge up to $28.35 per horse-power. That is coming, but it will only be made known when it is an accomplished fact and exposed.

BIRTHRIGHT SOLD FOR DUST AND ASHES

These methods adopted by the Hydro Commission and our Local Commission hamper this city in attracting new industries. It is on record that Esau sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. The pottage was pure and wholesome. But Peterborough has sold her birthright in water powers to fakirs who reward her with dust that blinds and hot ashes that burn and wither.

A PROFITABLE REMEDY IN SIGHT

A remedy must be found to release this city from this shameful tie that binds her to stagnation and decay.

The remedy is in our own hands. Force them out by exposure, buy at a fair price what they have to sell, and develop the water-power resources that are undeveloped to the north of this city, and then we will find that we will have surplus horse-power to the extent of 2,500 horse-power to attract new industries and on present prices will return annual surpluses ranging from $50,000.00 per year to $75,000.00 or $100,000.00 per year to reduce taxation.

To the City Council, I respectfully appeal to investigate and take action, and to all others, assist.

HER WHOLE BODY SEEMED TO BE AFFECTED

So Says Ontario Lady Before She Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Miss L. A. Ross suffered with a severe attack of kidney trouble and found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ottawa, Ont., April 2.—(Special).—"I had a very severe attack with my kidneys about two years ago. So bad, I was laid up for over a week. My whole body seemed to be affected. I lost my appetite and was failing fast. At last I got a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and got help right away. I have not been bothered since."

This statement comes from Miss L. A. Ross, who resides at 432 Nelson street.

Other sufferers from kidney trouble tell of pains relieved and health restored through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They strengthen the weak kidneys and remove the cause of the pain.

There is no reason why anyone should continue to suffer when Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from druggists everywhere, or The Dodd's Medicine Co., Ltd., Toronto.

TOM MIX IN "MY OWN PAL."

The popular Tom Mix with his famous wonder horse, Tony, and his equally well-known large white sombrero hat and dark features, is the attraction at the Capitol Theatre for this week-end, in the feature picture, "My Own Pal." It is an entertaining production, with a small girlie as the heroine, and the redoubtable Tom in the role of her guardian and protector. This time, he does his stuff in the city, as Thomas O'Hara, a member of the motorcycle squad of a big city, and he cast just as admirably there as in his usual background of ranch and plain. Taking the little girl from her sick mother when the latter is dying, and requests him to look after her small daughter, Tom proceeds to the city and there meets the daughter of the Chief of Police. She is instrumental in getting him a place on the force, and he becomes involved with a gang of loft thieves, with a leader in Slippery Sam, and a master mind in a man who is a suitor for the hand of the Chief's daughter, Alice Deering, a young lady, by the way who gives one the impression that she would make a wonderful adventuress, if she turned her attention to that type of characterization. Tom's rescue of the lady from the thieves who have abducted her is quite characteristic and thrilling.

A small picture in the programme is another Western thriller, an Edmund Cobb production entitled "Range Law," and there is an extra good comedy in "His Wooden Wedding," a very laughable and ludicrous affair.—Jeanette.

COLORFUL STORY ANIMATES "IRENE"

Fashion Episode in Coleen Moore's New Feature Evokes Hollywood Praise.

A musical comedy, irrespective of what success it may have achieved before the footlights on Broadway, is a difficult subject to register properly on the screen, but in the case of "Irene", Colleen Moore's latest First National production, there is, according to Alfred E. Green, the director, so much color, together with a perfect story, running through the episodes, that it is going to be hailed as something extraordinary wherever shown.

Miss Moore has made the fashion show the highlight of the picture. Art directors have given the star and her company, which besides the many principals, includes sixty of Hollywood's most beautiful model-actresses, some exceptionally attractive and massive settings. The fashion episode is filmed in a giant garden set several hundred feet in width. From a grand marble staircase, decorated with imposing pieces of statuary, the girls appear, wearing costumes depicting the four seasons of the year.

Cora McGeachy, whose designing for some of New York's brilliant musical shows won her much praise, supervised the creations worn by the beauties. She also designed Miss Moore's clothes—some fifteen gowns in number.

The entire fashion show sequence is made in colors. The initial color tests showing the flowers, trees, and gala decorations as a background to the beautiful dresses on equally pretty girls, caused all Hollywood to make comment.

There are laughs aplenty in the story, particularly the sequences in which Madame Lucy, enacted by George K. Arthur, and Miss Moore appear. Lloyd Hughes plays Coleen's leading man and her two girl friends are enacted by Bess Flowers and Marion Aye. Others of importance in the "Irene" cast include Charles Murray, Kate Price, Ida Darling, Eva Novak, Edward Earle, Lawrence Wheat, Cora Macy and Lydia Titus.

AT THE REGENT

"THE EARLY BIRD" AMAZINGLY FUNNY

Johnny Hines at His Best in Regent Feature

Take our advice! See Johnny Hines in "The Early Bird," for it is about the fastest feature that has ever graced the Regent, enacted by one of the most likeable stars we have yet had the pleasure of talking about. Johnny Hines, in our estimation, is the best cure-all for human ailments we can recommend. Funny, isn't it, how certain pictures so please one that it is really difficult to pick it apart for reviewing purposes, but regardless of what we might say, or wish to say about this production, please get this one thing straight—"The Early Bird" is there, and you can look at it any way you please and come to the same conclusion. It possesses clean, wholesome comedy of such great variety, that there is never a dull moment. In this respect it is similar to the early characterizations of Douglas banks, for at the picture's end, leaves the theatre with a spirit of vigoration that is priceless. You want to go out and do somethin and you want to do that someth in mighty snappy fashion—just the breezy Hines does. If eve motion picture production can en vate tired feelings and do away w ded spirits, that udproction is " Early Bird." Johnny is cast in role of a milkman who hurdles obstacles in real snappy style w no end of uproarious situations the inevitable result. His charac ization is that of a go-getting C adian youth who knows no obs and makes you believe that there nothing you can't accomplish if go after it hard enough. For interpretation we all owe Johnn debt of gratitude, for he inadv ently preached a sermon that is reaching in his effect, and the bea of it is that he does it all in Don't miss "The Early Bird."

Well the surprises came when every car in the race changed its position at the finish. Official scores are: Jack Lewis and his crew in the Cadillac, first with 87 per cent. Ray Purdy who was nosed out of the leadership at the finish, but who hung on to second place with 83 per cent. Third was captured by the trailing Rolls Royce which Gordon Manning brought up to 81 per cent by a fine spurt, and the Moon had to take fourth position with a percentage of 73.

On Sunday it will be announced what is to be done for the winners.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

FOURTH PETERBOROUGH TROOP.

On Thursday night at the Westclox Building, the Fourth Peterborough Troop held its weekly meeting. The meeting opened with the flag and inspection. This was followed by patrol instruction for twenty minutes. Next the troup was instructed on how to revive a drowning person, by Scoutmaster Corbett. The troup then went to patrol rooms for instruction. This was followed by the council fire. The Crow patrol gave a camp fire play.

The Crow patrol won the troop competition and the members were given charts on first aid, knots, etc.

Leslie Welch won the troop competition for passing the most tests. He was given a book on camping, which was presented by Mr. Moore, the troop's secretary.

The meeting then closed at 9.30.

Third Peterborough Troop

Thursday evening the Third Peterborough Troop held its weekly meeting. The programme opened with flag break and inspection. A few games followed and later two instructional periods, bridge building and various other topics. The meeting closed with a council fire, the evening stunt being put on by the Hounds. An important meeting of the court of honor took place. All patrol leaders and seconds attending. A hike took place on Friday of the patrol leaders and seconds, the assistant secut master, Mr. Taylor, being in charge.

MANY GOOD PLAYS ENTERED IN CONTEST

Westmount Man Receives First Prize For "The Blue Pitcher."

MONTREAL, Que., April 3.—(By Canadian Press).—The judges in the one-act play competition sponsored by the Authors' Association, found so many good plays that it was very hard to decide. But the award just announced by Basil Dunn, Miss Jean Foley and Louis Milligan, went to T. M. Morrow of Westmount, Que., for his play, "The Blue Pitcher," which had excellent characterization and was well handled, with interesting theme. Mr. Morrow has been a prize winner in competitions of other years in other societies. There were 23 entries, 10 plays receiving honorable mention. The name of Miss Mary Wallace Brooks, of Montreal, with two plays "mentioned," was the second in the list.

GIRL OF LEISURE IS DISAPPEARING

Daughters of Land Owners of England Are Finding Tasks.

SOME IN Y. W. WORK.

TORONTO, Ont., April 1.—(By Canadian Press).—"Our youngest child is the Iceland Y.W.C.A.," said Miss Charlotte Niven, General Secretary of the World's Committee of the Y.W.C.A., while in the city. Relative to her impressions of the attitude of girls to business in Europe and the continent, which she most recently toured, Miss Niven said: "The girl of leisure seems to be disappearing. For example, the daughter of a large landowner in England, who does not need to earn her living, goes to London three nights a week and, as general convener for a large Y.W.C.A. convention, shows talent and energy. She is typical of a class of girls in the Old Country who are rapidly coming to the forefront."

SALES WOMAN GIVEN JUDGMENT IN SUIT

Recovers $12,435 From Former Employers, With Back Commission.

TORONTO, Ont., April 3.—(By Canadian Press).—Annie B. Kleiser, travelling saleswoman, recovered judgment at the non-jury assizes against S. S. Stafford, Inc., and S. S. Stafford, Ltd., for amounts totalling $12,435. The plaintiff receives in addition a commission of 20 per cent on all sales made for the defendant companies between August and December, 1924, and the costs of the action. Suit was entered by Mr. Kleiser in respect to arrears of salary, and for wrongful dismissal from the employ of the companies.

FAMOUS WOMEN TO VISIT TORONTO

Dame Crowdy Is Member of Secretariat of League of Nations.

TORONTO, April 1.—(By Canadian Press)—Several famous women are expected in Toronto this Spring. In April, Dame Katherine Furse is to be present for annual meeting of the Canadian Council of Girl Guides, and on the 13th of May Dame Rachel Crowdy is expected. The latter will address a luncheon under the auspices of the Toronto Local Council of Women on social questions.

Dame Crowdy during the war was a V.A.D. and was in France and Belgium with Dame Furse. Under her command there were several thousand women. At the end of the war she entered the secretariat of the League of Nations. Her duties include the advising of the secretary-general on all social questions. Dame Crowdy is a Dame of the British Empire, a member of the Royal Red Cross, a Lady of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. Another noted woman who may come to Toronto in April is the Duchess of Atholl, who is expected in Montreal on the 5th to attend an educational conference.

Pallbearers Must Be Cheerful Fellows, Says Will Of Veteran Newspaper Man; Relatives Disregard It

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 3 (United Press).—The fantastic will of Frederick Leander Vandergrift, veteran Kansas City newspaperman, which directed that his funeral be a radical departure from the conventional sad and gloomy obsequies, will go unheeded by his prosaic relatives.

Vandegrift after an illness of thirteen months, died here on Friday, without changing the provisions of the curious will he had made years before, and which then caused much comment.

"I want the pall bearers to be good fellows," the will read. "I want them to be distinguished from the corpse by the fact that they will be alive. Their duties will be understood without wearing a printed sign. They must march to the grave with cheerful anecdote of their dead friend."

Vandergrift further requested that the head-line writers should not use the phrase "last sad rites" in the funeral notice.

Relatives announced Friday that all this would be disregarded because Vandegrift "Wrote the will in a jocular vein and never intended that it should be taken seriously.

Vandergrift was 71 years old when he died. He spent 45 years of his life in the service of various publications in Missouri and Kansas as a political writer.

WEDDING BELLS

KIRKHAM—CURTIS

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Inwood, 233 Sterling Road, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on March 31st, when Dorothy Evola, eldest daughter of Mr. S. J. Curtis of Peterboro was united in marriage to Mr. Thos Austin Kirkham of Maberley by Rev. Robt. Pogue of Toronto.

The bride wore a gown of mauve crepe-de-chine and crystal beads, and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses and lily of the valley. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. S. A. Curtis of Toronto.

A reception was held after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Kirkham left for Montreal and points east. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

IN MEMORIAM.

REYNOLDS. — In loving memory of my dear husband, John Reynolds, who passed away April 2nd, 1923:
Sad and lonely is our home,
Our hearts are torn with grief,
For one has left his earthly home,
And gone to a home of peace.

We miss him, yes, we miss him,
Each day we miss him more,
His happy greetings when friends came in—
Now all of that is o'er.

He went from home in the morning,
How little did we know
That he'd be brought back cold in death,
But God had willed it so.

ANNUAL MISSIONARY CONVENTION

Bethany Tabernacle

APRIL 5 TO 11

WEEK DAYS - 3 & 8 P.M.
SUNDAYS:
11 A.M., 3 P.M. and 7 P.M.

The speakers for the Conference are:

REV. E. O. JAGO—The noted pioneer missionary to Palestine, Mr. Jago, is one of the foremost missionaries amongst the Moslems. When he depicts, in his addresses, the Arabs among whom he labors his entire audience is thrilled and held spellbound, so like the native does he become. He has made himself so much one with the Arabs, that he has gone around with them in their tents as one of them. His story of the first great break in the solid Moslem wall and the first public baptism of a convert from them is inspiring; how with great tact and cool nerve he protected clubs from the hands of men who had come to start a riot. He was in Palestine during the Great War, with the Red Cross, and is familiar with the latest developments of the land of Israel under British rule. He has seen mighty changes there. He speaks with a clear, strong voice; and with rapidity and tremendous earnestness, drives home his points. To miss one of his addresses will be a permanent loss. He has an experience of over twenty-one years.

REV. D. N. CAMERON is one of the teachers in the Canadian Bible Institute. He will give us a series of Bible studies in the Epistle of John, studies in "The Life Eternal"; and in the evenings a series in the Book of Psalms. Mr. Cameron is a specialist in teaching the Bible, and has a wonderful faculty in making the Book of Books "live" to his audience. He is a man of deep spiritual life and speaks from heart experience; with a special gift in appealing to young people. Every one of his addresses teem with applications of practical value in the Christian life.

The convention will be under the direction of Mr. L. Watson, Assistant Superintendent of the Christian and Missionary Alliance for Canada.

A cordial invitation is extended to yourself and your friends. Make it known to them. Bring them with you and enjoy the feast.

COMMUNISTS CONTROL ONTARIO LABOR PARTY, ELECTING 12 OF 19 OFFICERS AT ANNUAL MEETING

Shadow of Possible Disruption Settles on Party as Seventh Convention Concluded at London, Ontario, on Saturday—78 Groups Represented.
REV. A. E. SMITH OF TORONTO, PRESIDENT

Will Continue to Seek Objectives by Constitutional Methods—Resolution Favors Birth Control Propaganda—Communist Songs Sung.

LONDON, Ont., April 5 (Canadian Press)—With 12 of the 19 officers elected for 1926 members of branches of the Communist Party in Canada and three of the remaining officers according to their declarations at the convention in sympathy with part of the Communist philosophy the Ontario section of the Canadian Labor Party is launched on a year overshadowed by the possible disruption of the party. It is believed by officers of the brotherhood of railway car men of America, with 3,500 members in Ontario, one of the largest affiliated bodies, and strongly opposed to the Communist Party, that their organization may decide this year to withdraw, in view of the victory of the Communist party at this last convention.

The seventh convention of the party, lasting two days, concluded its sessions on Saturday night in the Ritz Pleasure Gardens here. There were 78 groups represented at the convention and about 225 delegates.

Rev. A. E. Smith, of Toronto, was elected president for his second term, defeating Arthur Mould, president of the London Labor Party by 98 to 72 votes. The vote was taken in the afternoon when some of the delegates had already left. The vice-presidency went to James Muldowney of Toronto, who went in by acclamation, the other two nominees, Jack MacDonald of Toronto and Frank MacKay of London withdrawing. The president attended the convention as a delegate representing the Ukrainian branch of the Communist party of West Toronto, though he told the meeting he was not a member, and the vice-president represented the Metal Polishers. Rev. A. E. Smith is a Communist. The vice-president while not nominally one, on several occasions supported the claims and resolutions of the party in the convention.

Ontario Executive

The Ontario executive of ten members is made up as follows: There were 28 nominates and the delegates elected constituted the members not withdrawing their names. Bert Robinson, Toronto, Communist; Mrs. Florence Custance Toronto, Communist; L. Satlz, fur workers, Communist; J. W. Alquist, Finnish Communist Party, Toronto; Ex-Ald. Sam Lawrence, Labor representative political party, Hamilton; Mrs. John Inman, L.R.P.A., Hamilton; John Loane, of Toronto Trades and Labor Council and A. F. Barnetson,of the Earlscourt Labor Party, Communist.

The five delegates to the Federal Council of the Canadian Labor Party are: Maurice Spector, of Toronto, Communist; Mrs. Florence Custance, of Toronto, Communist; James Simpson, of the Toronto Trades and Labor Council, James Muldowney of Toronto, and Jack MacDonald, president of the Federal Party, and a Communist. The delegate to the Dominion Executive is Mrs. Custance. James Simpson was elected by acclamation- as secretary-treasurer. His election was popular in every section of the convention and he sang himself in with "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes" which in view of his well known prohibition sympathies had a touch of genial humor for "Jimmy" and the delegates. The next annual convention will be held in Hamilton.

For the first time in the history of the party the executives were elected by proportional representation. A resolution from the committee on law and constitution recommended reaffirmation of the customary principle, but an amendment from Jack MacDonald favoring proportional representation and became effective for this convention.

"Red" Songs

The "Internationale" and the "Red Flag" greeted the result of the elections, but the straight labor men took a determined stand accusing the left wing delegates of packing the executives and the London men thought their home town had been overlooked in having only one member on the executive, L. R. Menzies, who is a Communist.

James Simpson reminded the meeting that 18 of the nominees for the executive, many of them Labor men, had withdrawn their names, and added: "It does not seem as if they were in any hurry to serve the party as officers."

A. Day, a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Car Men of America then changed the tune by accusing the chairman of partiality in his rulings in the convention, by favoring the left wing members.

President Smith asked the meeting to forget "all these temperamental moves that we have had in this convention in which some of us have been what we call a little hot under the collar," but he was interrupted by John Colbart, president of the London Trades Council who objected to this.

"I object to our actions being termed temperamental moves" he declared, "and I ask the president to withdraw them."

Constitutional Means

At the morning session the old constitution of the party which declares that "constitutional means shall be followed in the attainment of the ends of the party" was reaffirmed. This was in line with the recommendation of the law and constitution committee. Jack MacDonald brought in an amendment to change the constitution so that in the event of constitutional means failing the party would be able "to use any means it sees fit" to gain the emancipation of the working class. After a hot and stormy discussion between the Progressives and the Status Quo contingent an amendment from Maurice Spector, to reaffirm the old constitution was carried.

For the first time delegates from an association of unemployed men were seated in the convention. This was in the case of the London Unemployed Association, which had three delegates present. The convention only agreed to seat these delegates an hour before adjournment, but R. H. Hessella stated that the three delegates in question had been sitting in the house and casting votes "ever since the convention started.

Favor Birth Control

Among the sixty resolutions carried was one from the Toronto Women's Labor League which "opposed the governmental prohibition of the distribution of scientific literature for the birth control movement." It was received with a good deal of enthusiasm by delegates and had the united support of all the women delegates.

Mrs. F. Custance, a member of the League, was a sturdy advocate of the resolution. "It is claimed by some people, mostly those not acquainted with actual living conditions in the home of the workers, that birth control will demoralize the women of Canada. We are not Malthusians, but we are fighting for the freedom of the women of the working class homes. But birth control is a move to bring greater happiness and leisure to poor homes than is possible at present.

"We working women believe that every woman has the right to say when she shall become a mother, and when the economic conditions of the home are such as to justify a new life in the home. I sincerely hope this convention is broad-minded enough to see the reason for this resolution and carry it unanimously. Remember that it is claimed by its opponents that it is a form of murder. In view of our wars, and diseases, and vocational sicknesses, all part of the present system, this is

PERET FINANCE MEASURES MEET WITH APPROVAL

Senate and Chamber of Deputies Reach Agreement Early Sunday.
VOTE 260 TO 144.

Succeeded Where Three Predecessors Failed in Six Months.

PARIS, April 5 (Canadian Press)—The Senate and Chamber of Deputies early Sunday morning reached an agreement, 260 to 14, on the government's financial measures. Hope of peace seemingly was responsible for the compromise reached by the two houses.

Raoul Peret, the modest, unassuming Minister of Finance, has jammed through the chamber and senate in the course of one short week, by laboring in both houses night and day, financial measures designed to balance the budget of 1926. At an early hour yesterday morning the measures were finally adopted by the French parliament.

These measures, or others along similar lines, caused the downfall of such renowned financiers as Caillaux Loucher and Doumer in the past six months. M. Peret's next step is to put the budget through the senate, when it reconvenes April 12.

PERET OPTIMISTIC ON SITUATION

PARIS, April 5.—During the Saturday debate in the Senate on the tax bills, Finance Minister Peret drew a picture of the situation which was more reassuring than many recent presentations of the French financial case. If the new taxes were voted, he said, the budget figures would show at 37,237,000,000 francs expenditure and 37,535,500,000 income. This left an excedent of 298,000,000 and though there were certain reserves to be made both as to income and expenditure the budgetary situation could be considered satisfactory.

For the present, he continued, the Government was occupied only with increasing income. But other problems lay in wait. Before anything could be done to stabilize the franc there must be a settlement of inter-allied debts. In that settlement it was his view that the legitimate interests of France must not be sacrificed, nor should it be forgotten that the country capacity for payment was influenced by the amount she received from Germany. Monetary stabilization, he said, must not have an artificial character. It was essential that it be accepted and not imposed. For that reason the solution of the problem of amortization should not be attempted in a brutal fashion.

No Great Disquiet in Country.

During the last few months the renewal of defence bonds in circulation showed there was no great disquiet in the country. There was no cause for immediate alarm. During the next few weeks he hoped to make considerable reimbursements to the Bank of France and instead of increasing at each month-end the extent of borrowing was likely to be diminished

He did not regard the exchange situation with alarm. New York orders had weighed heavily on the market and the Government could do nothing to prevent it. The adverse commercial balance of the last few months had also had the effect of necessitating purchase of foreign monies. If the budget was balanced if a reasonable effort at amortization was made, and if the country was re assured instead of being alarmed he was certain there would be no need for further inflation.

PETERBOROUGH CAN DEVELOP TWICE PRESENT-USED POWER FOR LESS THAN TODAY'S COST

Cost of Power is Increasing, Driving Away Industries, and People Have Remedy in Their Own Hands—R. R. Hall Gave Warning a Year Ago.

PETERBOROUGH IS BEAST OF BURDEN FOR CITIES AND TOWNS ON LAKE FRONT

Many of our citizens put on a despondent look and say: "This city has lost its water powers. Thanks to the old fogies who ran this city years ago."

The very people who make these unkind remarks are the very first to refuse to do anything to help this city regain and take possession of its valuable water powers and hold and develop them in trust for the relief of the taxpayers of this city.

CHEAP POWER WITHOUT COST

The fact is, that this city can now own and develop 8,000 horse-power—enough to supply 30,000 people without increasing the debt of this city one single dollar by simply switching creditors. This fact may be a surprise to many of our citizens, but it is none the less true, and here is the proof.

Under the Central Ontario Power scheme, this city is charged up with the sum of $1,008,381.37 as her share of the capital cost of supplying this city with 4,563 horse-power. (See Hydro Report, 1924 page 228). Upon this immense sum, our power and light users pay interest amounting to the sum of $42,188.31. That capital charge against this city has been increased since 1921 to the extent of $83,515.35 without the leave or license of those who pay the bill and in spite of the fact that the city used less power in 1921 than in 1924.

But that is not all. The rate of interest will this year be increased from 4 per cent. to about 5 per cent., which will add $10,000 a year to the cost of power and light, and this will mean $2.20 increase in the wholesale cost of power, to be paid to the Ontario Government—the real owners of the Central Ontario system.

THE DAY OF RECKONING HAS COME

There is more to follow. The day of reckoning and adjustment has already come of which I warned the Chamber of Commerce over a year ago, when I advised them that the wholesale cost of power to this city would be increased from $22.50 per horse-power to a point that would not be far short of $32.00 per horse-power. This prediction did not require the gift of prophecy. An examination of the Hydro Commission's accounts and a knowledge of its improvident, extravagant and waseful methods, showed clearly that it would be inevitable. In addition to that, I pointed out that instead of paying an increased cost of $50,000 a year, we could save on the then prevailing cost the sum of $50,000 per year.

REMEDY IN OUR OWN HANDS

The remedy right now is in the hands of the taxpayers of this city. Let the Ontario Government keep its expensive power for the use of the cities, towns and villages on the lake front. They need it. They cannot better themselves. They do not expect Peterborough to be a beast of burden for them.

Let us use this sum of $1,008,381.37 upon which we now pay interest and upon which we will continue to pay increased interest to develop our own power at Dams 4 and 5, and at Burleigh Falls at a cost of $600,000.00, and use the remaining $400,000 that may be necessary to buy the Auburn plant and other rights the Ontario Government may own in and about this city.

Even if it cost the whole amount, this city would own 8,000 horse-power instead of 4,600, and the capital cost per horse-power would be about one-half of what it is today, and the saving to the city would amount to the sum of $100,000.00 per year, in view of the quagmire into which this city is sinking.

WHITTINGTON MADE MONEY OUT OF CAT

Surely, if Whittington could make money out of cats, and become Lord Mayor of London many years ago, our citizens ought to save money out of the enterprising use of the water powers that Providence has so abundantly bestowed upon them, and as they walk abroad they may proudly lift up their heads and say, "We are from Peterborough."

We are at the parting of the ways. One way leads to stagnation and decay, and the other to prosperity and growth.

This city never can attract new industries by the manifestly false and deceptive statement that she can sell power at $16.00 per horse-power, when power actually costs her $22.50 per horse-power. When the rate increases, as it must, our absurd position is made more plain. A sneaking individual may hide his light under a bushel but a city that is built on a hill cannot be hid. Peterborough is in a valley but the untruthful advertisement of $16.00 per horse-power to investors in new industries, brings contempt on every one who knows right from wrong. Hydro reports teem with false inference. Common honesty demands a reform in heart and methods.

MEN ARE SAVED BY FISHERMEN

Three Hauled Up From Narrow Ledge on Newfoundland Cliff.
THRILLING RESCUE.

SAINT JOHN, NEWFOUNDLAND, April 5. Canadian Press. — A thrilling chapter was added to the romance of Newfoundland fishermen when three battery men on Saturday night were drawn up over the steep face of Sugar Loaf Cliff from a narrow ledge just above the water where for more than 24 hours they had clung to a forlorn hope of rescue after their motor boat had become unmanageable and dashed itself to pieces on the rocks at the base of the cliffs.

Referendum On Communist Issue By Railway Crafts

LONDON, Ont., April 5 (Canadian Press)—Joseph Corbett, general chairman of the Protective Board of the B.R.C.A. ón the C.N.R. and secretary of the Railroad federated shop craft of the Central Region said last night that referendum of all members of the 20 ladges in Ontario will be taken in the near future and that the decision of the association regarding withdrawal from the Labor Party will be based on this.

He points out that while the executive of the association was given plenary powers at the last annual convention on such a vital matter as secession, referendum will be used, in line with the democratic character of the union.

"My own opinion is that it would be impossible for us to remain within the party now that the Communists are in control," said he. "We were responsible for the resolution to bar, which was defeated."

REV. MACKINNON IS LEAVING KNOX

Has Announced Intention of Terminating Pastorate in City.
DURING SUMMER.

Rev. M. C. Mackinnon, who has announced his intention to terminate his pastorate in Knox United church this summer, made announcement yesterday of several outstanding items in the work of the church year ending March 31st. During the past 15 months Knox contributed to the missionary work of the church, through the maintenance and extension fund, the sum of $3,121.00. This is $1,121.00 in excess of the allocation set by the Presbytery and more than twice as much as Knox has ever contributed in any past year year. Another item of interest was that the Ladies' Aid during the past week completed the payment of the manse mortgage, and are now ready to burn the document. Still another outstanding achievement of the past church year was the contributions raised by the Knox W.M.S. amounting to $1,381.83. This is more than four times the highest sum raised in any previous year by the W.M.S. at Knox.

I CAN'T AFFORD IT.

Old-Time Fiddlers, All Over 60, Gather at Lewiston, To Take Part In Contest—Two From Across Ocean

LEWISTON, Maine, April 5 (Canadian Press). — Weird sounds of tuning fiddles came from all sides here today as old time bow string artists prepared to do their stuff in the world-wide contests which open tonight.

One hundred and ninety-four champions from all parts of Canada, the United States, Ireland, and Scotland have signified their intention of participating in the championship, a cup and $10,000 is the prize.

No youngster under 60 may compete and there are many who have turned eighty. John Wiseman of Bantry, Ireland, who made the trip across the ocean just to participate in the tournament probably will have to be carried to the armory by nurses from the hospital where he has been confined by illness, but he is resolved to be there and play just the same. J. Scott Skinner of Aberdeen, Scotland, who came over to the same boat with him, is another who is anxious to try his luck, while a third hardy traveller is Joseph Lawson, 80 years old, an entrant who drove all the way from his home in Indianapolis. Fiddling will continue all week, and on Saturday the judges will make known the winner.

SEIGE OF PEKING IS BEGUN WHEN CITY IS BOMBED

Manchurian Planes Fly Over City on Two Occasions.
NO CASUALTIES.

Panic is Caused Among Crowd at Arbor Day Ceremony.

PEKING, April 5.— (Canadian Press.) — Two Manchurian aeroplanes dropped 12 bombs today near a crowd which had gathered for an Arbor Day ceremony. There were no casualties. It had been announced by newspapers that Lu Chung-lin, Fuominchun commissioner in Peking would be present, but he was unable to attend. The explosion of the bombs created a panic among the crowds.

To-day's bombardment from the air following that of yesterday, is considered as the commencement of the real seige of the capital by the armies of Chang To-Lin, Manchurian War Lord, and his powerful ally, Marshal Wu Pei Fu. Sunday's bombardment, like that of to-day, did little damage, but it served to distract already harrassed population.

It is reported on good authority that a representative of Wu Pei Fu has arrived in Peking with full power to negotiate with Kumin-chin leaders, Marshal Wu's forces have advanced to within eighty miles of Peking. There are reports, however, that Wu is inclined to receive overtures from Kuomin-chin, who still control Peking, though surrounded by enemies.

WESTERN FORESTS TO SUPPLY SILKS

All Used in Clothing in the World To Come From B. C.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., April 5 (Canadian Press).— British Columbia forests will soon be supplying a large part of the "silk" used in the manufacture of clothing and similar materials all over the world as a result of plans shaped by industrialists here.

A plant is to be erected in this city by a syndicate formerly interested in the operation of pulp and paper mills, to manufacture pulp for the production of "rayon silk." This material, now extensively manufactured in the East, promises to replace genuine silk in the markets of the world, and British Columbia timber is stated to be admirably suited to rayon production.

Rayon pulp produced here will be shipped East in large quantities and Japan will also be a buyers, as that country has lately commenced rayon as well as real silk manufacture in large volume.

The world market for rayon silk is expanding rapidly and the demand for it appears to be almost unlimited. A large proportion of the women in the United States today are wearing "silk" stockings made from wood fibre, and the present popularity for silk stockings is one of the chief factors in the expansion of the industry.

GERMAN MAGNATE DEAD

MULHEIM, Germany, April 5 (Canadian Press). — August Thysen, an outstanding figure in Germany's industrial world during the last decade, died yesterday. He was 85 years old.

Of eight Londoners who had made a promise to meet at the steps of St. Paul's Cathedral 20 years afterward and sing "Auld Lang Syne," four kept their word recently. Three were dead and the other disappeared.

Rich the treasure

MISSION STONED BY CHINESE MOB

Buildings at Wu Chow, Owned By American Baptists, Are Closed.
DOORS SEALED.

HONG KONG, April 5 (United Press)—Mobs surrounded and stoned the American Baptist mission at Wu Chow today according to dispatches received here and the buildings have been closed. The United States seal was placed on all the doors before the mission was evacuated.

Members of the mission staff escaped from the riotous Chinese only with great difficulty carrying such few belongings as hurried movement permitted.

Dr. Leavell, head of the Mission, found refuge aboard the gun boat Pampagna which is standing by.

ALLEGED SMUGGLER OF ALIENS SOUGHT

Jumped $200 Bail at Windsor on Saturday.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 5 (Canadien Press)—Released on bail of $200 after being arrested and taken to Windsor Police headquarters by Detective O'Connell of the Michigan Central Railway, Harold Fontaine, 26 years old, alias Monk, is sought on a bench warrant issued Saturday by Magistrate Gundy when Fontaine did not appear to answer a charge of trespassing.

Fontaine was caught in the yards of the railway company near the tunnel mouth by Detective O'Connell after a long chase. It is alleged he was seeking an opportunity to load six or seven aliens into box cars. These aliens, the M.C. officer said, fled in an automobile when Fontaine called them to help him escape from the detective. Fontaine, according to records on file at the Windsor police identification bureau, had a long criminal record. Since being released from Kingston Penitentiary where he served a two-year term for breaking and entering, he has engaged in smuggling aliens, it is charged.

In 1918, police said, Fontaine was sentenced in Detroit to from seven and a half to fifteen years for robbery while armed. He was released by Marquette Prison authorities because he was found to be suffering from tuberculosis.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR GRANDMA NUSBAUM

John Winn, Convicted With Her, To Die.

CHICAGO, April 5.—(A.P.)—John Walton Winn was sentenced Saturday to be hanged April 23, and "Grandma" Eliza Nushbaum, 60, to go to prison for life, for the murder of the woman's invalid husband, Albert Nusbaum, last December.

Mrs. Nusbaum was enamoured of Winn. At the trial she denied she had plotted with him to kill her husband.

Edward Goff, one of three who pleaded guilty as accessories to the murder, was sentenced to twenty-five years. Mrs. Delilah Martin and Martin Strinham, the others, received the minimum punishment of fourteen years.

The trio confessed, and all testified for the prosecution that after Nusbaum had been lured to the Martin home, Winn beat him to death.

The testimony showed that "Grandma" Nusbaum had given money to Winn, a former convict, for several years.

CLAUDE ROGERS NEW PRESIDENT OF ROTARIANS

Urges Greater Use of Boys' Camp in Inaugural Address.
A MUSICAL TREAT.

Artists Who Appear in Tonight's Programme Delight Members.

Claude H. Rogers is the president of the Peterboro Rotary Club for the ensuing year, the new head of the organization who was elected by the directors last week occupying the chair for the first time at the weekly luncheon of the club today, when he was given a warm welcome by the members. The other officers are: A. L. Killaly, vice-president; Andrew Brown, Thos. Barrie and Geo. A. Gillespie, directors, and W. R. Thompson, secretary.

Past President Fred L. Roy was in the chair at the beginning of today's luncheon, and then called upon President Rogers, who, in a business-like address, thanked the members for the trust they had imposed in him. Speaking of the activities of the club, he said that more use should be made of the Boys' Camp, which he characterized as one of the best equipped in the country. He also urged more support for Rotarian Dr. McPherson, who was carrying the burden of the crippled children's work single-handed, and pleaded for a greater interest in business methods, work along which lines he thought that much could be accomplished by the Rotary Club.

A sample of the treat that is in store for those who attend the Rotary entertainment at the Grand to-night or to-morrow night was provided for the Rotarians to-day through the presence of three of the artists who are featured in the programme to-night. Harold Bradley, a brilliant young pianist, played two numbers in most effective style, and provided a very pleasing accompaniment for the numbers of his fellow-artists. Little Archie Hardyment, the twelve-year-old violinist, was heard in a solo, "Pale Moon," which he played with a beautiful tone and sureness of technique that were surprising from such a young musician. Martin Chenhall, Jr., the Peterboro boy who is so rapidly coming to the fore as a 'cellist of note, played "Broken Melody" most brilliantly as his enjoyable contribution to the luncheon programme.

A document full of human interest was the report presented by Dr. A. W. McPherson, in which the work that has been done by Rotary on behalf of the city's crippled children was reviewed. The details of each case were presented for the benefit of the members, and the report, which will be published later by The Examiner, was a revelation even to the Rotary Club.

Rotarian Doug. Fletcher appealed for the support of the members in making the Rotary concert a success. He promised a real show and a treat for all who attends, and his remarks in regard to the desirability of clean recreation were appreciated by the members.

THANK YOU BONAR LAW!

Compliment for Examiner on "The Yellow Stub" Serial.
ANOTHER COMING

This is from Bonarlaw: "We all have enjoyed "The Yellow Stub." It is really all you said it was. Please print another good one soon. Thank you, madam for your compliments on "The Yellow Stub." As for another story, watch this week.

THE WEATHER

The sun shone brightly on Easter as befits the day, but the deep snow and piled-high drifts to be seen everywhere seemed out of place at Eastertide. Highest temperature 37 degrees, lowest 23 degrees. There is probably as much snow on the ground now as at any time this winter. Farmers usually count on "getting on the land" in April. They may be able to do so this year, but the prospects at present do not look particularly bright. I saw my first blackbird this morning. His note was not cheerful, and, sitting by himself on a snow covered tree, he must have realized that he was a little too hasty in acting upon an impulse to fly north. — W. P.

EVOLUTION—A PLAIN STATEMENT OF VIEW

Has Reached Acute Stage in Human Affairs, Says J. H. Burnham.

Evolution has now reached an acute stage in human affairs. For years it was a theory discussed by scientists alone. At least, it was believed in only by scientific men. It was ridiculed by those who believed that man was made in his body as well as his soul in the image of God. It was felt that a theory which held that all living things came from earlier forms which changed for various reasons and developed or "evolved" as time went on was contradictory of Christianity. It was considered that this theory put man on a level with plants and animals, except that he was more intelligent, just as the spider is more intelligent than the dew-worm. Evolutionists pointed to the form of man and to his functions, holding that the similarity was proof of their relationship. It was this theory that Bryan so fiercely fought and all the fundamentalists or old-believers. It is now admitted, however, by a great number who were not formerly in favour of evolution that man's body is closely related to the animal kingdom and is in fact a member of that kingdom. But science takes no note of the soul or of the mind. It deals wholly with physical things (Greek: "phusis" meaning "nature").

Those who disbelieve this view will still hold that God made man in a different way and for a different purpose. There are others who believe that God referred only to the "soul" when He spoke of His own image. But the Bible says that God made man out of the dust of the earth. The Bible does not say that God was made out of the dust of the earth, which would be unthinkable. Hence the compromise by which some people have come to believe that it is man's soul that makes the difference and not his body. The fundamentalist regrets this view. Excavations have shown the forms of the earlier man and of the earlier animal kingdom. The physical history of man has been traced over an immense length of history. Appearances are certainly in favour of the evolutionary view. The whole question of the soul and man's personal responsibility to God remains where it was formerly. This compromise on physical man is what is now finding favour in high places. It will have a profound effect on the world. It removes the miracle of man's origin a little farther from the people's view. It is more difficult to explain or prove the existence of the soul than to take scripture for it that man in all respects was God's especial creation and care. Though man in relation to his moral nature is just as other animals are in the view of the scientist who regards his reason, instincts and inherited way of conducting himself as just like that of other animals and argues it in just the same way as in the case of the body and thus puts his argument on the same basis, it will require a more tremendous assault on the old belief before it will give way altogether.

There are those, however, who feel that it is now made much more difficult to maintain or defend the miraculous or immediately divine origin of man. It is feared that God is being removed farther and farther from our view and that some day He will disappear as our Heavenly Father altogether. In opposition to this fear is the impossibility of believing that our physical death ends all. It is too dreadful. Most people would rather consciously deceive themselves or hope against hope so long as one ray of hope remained than yield to materialism and the future triumph of animation and materialism. That the future of the world under such conditions is fraught with extreme danger to civilization is apparent. What do the churches say?

BAILIEBORO SOCIETY IS ENTERING LEAGUE

Young People of United Church To Enter Conference Debates.

BAILIEBORO, April 5.—At the regular meeting of the Young People's Society in the United Church on Tuesday evening, the president, F. Barnard, presided. The topic, which was a paper given on "God's Way With the Will," was very ably taken by Willie Lang. The young people unanimously voted to enter the United Church Debating League for the year 1926.

Next week's meeting will be the annual meeting for the year, at which the officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

The South Monaghan and Cavan U.F.O. Club held a progressive euchre party and dance in the club rooms on Wednesday evening. Owing to the exceptionally disagreeable weather there was not as large a crowd present as there might have been had the weather been fine, but about 50 were present and enjoyed a real good time. The party broke up about 3.30 o'clock a.m.

Mrs. Welford Dawson has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Handbridge during the past week.

Mrs. W. H. Barnard spent the last week in Lindsay the guest of her daughter, Miss C. Barnard who is seriously ill in Ross Memorial Hospital.

Miss Dorothy Falls is the guest of her cousin, Miss Norma Staples of Cavanville.

W. Hubbard has commenced to erect his new boat house at Rice Lake. The Lang Brothers have taken the contract.

GOOD SYRUP CROP.

PETERSBUR, Ind. April 5.—The making of good maple syrup when Arthur C. Doust, who owns a big sugar camp near here, started fires in his furnace and began gathering the sap. He predicts a good crop.

BUDDHA IS REPAIRED.

KAMAKURA, Japan, April 5.—The famous bronze casting of Buddha here, weighing some hundreds of tons, which was bumped around by the earthquakes of September, 1923, and January, 1924, has been repaired.

WARSAW INSTITUTE MEETING ARRANGED

Talk to be Given on "Home Beautification" by Mr. McCrae.

WARSAW, April 5.—The regular meeting of the Women's Institute will be held in the United church basement on Thursday afternoon, April 8, at 2:30. Mr. McCrae from Norwood will give a talk on "Home Beautification," illustrated with lantern slides.

Syrup-making so far has amounted to but little. Some large bushes have not yielded any syrup. There has been little sap run and, as few people have lids for the buckets, there has been a great deal of slush to be emptied, and there have been many pails with frozen slush.

Wednesday's storm made the roads very heavy, and it was 9:30 in the evening before the stage reached Warsaw.

Mail is supposed to be delivered in the evening after April 1, but so long as the roads are so bad that the stage cannot reach Warsaw in reasonable time, the route couriers simply cannot go over their rounds with bad roads at night. Generally, the Dummer road is fit for cars by this time, but no sign of them yet.

Herbet Richmond and family moved to Norwood on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Batten are expected home on Saturday from Essex, where they went to attend the funeral of Mrs. Batten's father.

Mr. Carrie left for his home in Rodney on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Nathan Payne is visiting his son, Rufus Payne, during the syrup season.

Owing to the storm on Wednesday evening, the entertainment to be given by the young men of Warsaw was indefinitely postponed.

DOCTOR SAYS

Liver Causes 90 Per Cent of Sickness

The liver does not excrete bile into the intestines—waste and poisons remain in the bowels. The blood distributed the poison to all parts of the body, causing headaches, indigestion, sallow complexion, bad breath, coated tongue, tired feeling in the morning, all out of sorts, rheumatism, biliousness, etc.

These troubles can now be quickly driven out of system by Calomel, the only drug known that acts upon the liver.

Get a few of the new improved Calomel, called Tanol Calomel. They act quickly upon the liver, causing an easy natural elimination of all the poisons, with no bad after-effects. Does not nauseate. No salts or salolitz are needed. Like ordinary Calomel. Get a few Tanol Calomel tablets from Weber's Drug Store, Peterborough, and they will make you feel 100 per cent better.

District Markets

Prevailing prices in towns and villages in The Examiner's territory at the end of the week.

AT MADOC

MADOC, April 5—A very good variety of vegetables and meats was to be found in the Madoc stores for the Easter holiday. Besides the toothsome dinners to be obtained, any one feeling discouraged over the vagaries of the weatherman, may feel an uplifting of the heart by gazing at the floral beauties in one of the local windows. There stately Easter lilies may be purchased for 35 cents a bloom; mauve, pink and white hyacinths for 60c a pot; roses, $1.25 a pot; sword ferns, $1.25 a pot; daffodils, $1 a dozen; tulips, $1.50 a dozen; hyacinths, $2 dozen; carnations, $2 a dozen; and roses, $3 a dozen.

Head lettuce was rather scarce last week but has been selling at 10, 13 and 18c a head. Leaf lettuce is 5c and 2 bunches for 15c. Spinach is 15c a pound; celery, 15c and 20c a bunch; cauliflower, 30c; cabbage, 10c a pound and 2 pounds for 25c; green onions, 5c a bunch; carrots, 10 and 15c a bunch; and rhubarb, 15c a bunch.

In the meat line beef remains the same: sirloin, 22c a pound; porterhouse, 25c; round steak, 20c; roast, 18 and 20c; veal, 20 and 25c; mutton, 20c; pork, 25 and 30c; chicken, 25c; smoked ham, 35 and 40c; tenderloin, 50c; and spare ribs, 25c.

Potatoes are $3.25 a bag. Eggs are 25c and 28c a dozen, so that those desiring to try the old-fashioned contsst of seeing how many eggs can be eaten on Easter day, could do so at a very reasonable cost. A great quantity of butter came into town on Thursday. It is selling at 35c and 40c a pound for dairy, but creamery is still at 50c. Hot Cross buns for Good Friday were on hand at 25c a dozen.

AT LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, April 5 — Dairy products — Dairy butter is still 43 cents a pound but creamery has gone up a cent in the past week and is 49 cents. Cream is stationary at 60 cents a quart. Cheese is 32 cents a pound.

Sugar is $6.80 to $6.90 a hundred and potatoes are $3.05 to $3.75 a bag and scarce at that. Northern Spy apples are plentiful at 30 cents a peck.

Salt water herrings at 4 pounds for 25 cents and haddie at 3 pounds for 25 cents are to be had. Lettuce is 5 cents a bunch and head lettuce 10 to 15 cents each. New cabbage are 10 to 12 cents a pound, green onions sell at 5 cents a bunch.

Hot Cross buns were 20 cents a dozen on Thursday.

Chickens are scarce and sell at 38 cents a pound. Beef runs from 15 to 30 cents a pound, pork for 23 to 30 cents, veal from 15 to 30 cents and lambs from 22 to 40 cents a pound.

AT BAILIEBORO

BAILIEBORO, April 5 — The price of hogs paid at the local stock yards during this last week has been somewhat higher than it has for the past couple of weeks. W. Barnard shipped two hogs with the U.F.O. shipper on Monday, weighing 370 pounds and received forty-nine dollars and fifty-three cents. The prices for cattle have been a little lower during the past week, possibly owing to it being Easter season.

Eggs locally are selling at from 26 to 22 cents a dozen, and butter around 40 cents a pound.

A. Woods, the U. F. O. shipper, shipped from Fraserville on Monday 4 cattle, 9 calves, 53 hogs, 3 sheep. There were 18 selects and 24 thick smooths among the hogs.

AT BONAR LAW

BONAR LAW, April 5—Prices at Bonar Law on Saturday were: butter, 40 cents a pound; eggs 30 cents a dozen; beef, 8c to 10c by the quarter; veal calves, 15 cents a pound; live hogs, 13 cents a pound; deacon hides, 75 cents.

AT DOURO

DOURO, April 5 — At the local store the price paid for dairy butter is 42 cents and eggs No. 1 28c and No. 2 20 cents.

AT OMEMEE.

The price of butter remains firm at 40 cents a pound. Eggs took a drop of 2c. on Saturday the price now being 26 cents a dozen.

Green onions and nice large radishes were 5 cents a bunch. Celery 15, 20 and 25 cents a bunch. Cabbage 10 cents a pound.

Oranges are 50 cents and 60 cents a dozen, lemons 40 cents and bananas 50 cents a dozen.

Potatoes are scarce and very few are offered for sale, but the market price is $3.00 a bag.

Maple syrup was almost off the market last week owing to the unfavorable weather, but is retailing at $2.50 a gallon.

The cattle market was steady last week. Butcher cattle sold for 6 3-5 to 7 3-4 cents a lb. Cows brought 4 1-2 to 5 1-2 cents a pound, while calves sold for 10 1-2 to 13 1-2 cents a pound.

Live hogs advanced 25 cents last week, the market price being $13.00 a hundred.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 5. — The price for pigs in this district continues high, and there is always a brisk demand for these animals at auction sales. At a sale held last week on the farm of William Grills, a sow and six young pigs sold for $91. Pigs shipped from the depot here bring from 12 to 13c a pound live weight.

The demand for milk cows is good, as the farmers anticipate another profitable year in the cheese business.

Wheat sells here for $1.20 a bushel and the price of loose hay is unchanged at $12.

The price of produce in the stores is as follows: Eggs, 25c to 30c a dozen; butter, dairy, 45c; creamery, 55c a pound; maple syrup, $2.50 to $2.75 a gallon; potatoes, $3 a bag, or 60c a peck; apples, $1 a bushel; chickens, 30c a pound; beefsteak, 20 to 22c a pound; roast, 15 to 25c a pound; pork chops, 28c a pound; bacon, 40c a pound.

AT ROSENEATH.

ROSENEATH, April 5. — Prices in the Roseneath stores on Saturday were as follows:

Dairy butter, 42c a pound, eggs, 25c to 30c a dozen; cheese, 30c a pound; sausage, 25c a pound; honey, 5 pound pail, 50c; celery, 25c a bunch; lettuce, 15, 18 and 20c a head, according to size. bread 22c a loaf; buns, 20c a dozen.

AT KEENE.

KEENE, April 5. — The following are the prices paid to farmers in Keene on Saturday:

Eggs, 24 to 30c a dozen.
Butter, 40c a pound in prints.
Veal calves, 8 to 10½c a pound.
Hogs, $10.50 to $12.50 a cwt.
Wood, $8 to $11 a cord.
Honey, 15c a pound.
Potatoes, $2.75 to $3 a bag.

AT BURNBRAE.

BURNBRAE, April 5. — Hog prices are holding steady at somewhat lower prices, around $12.50 a hundred pounds. Young pigs sell higher at $12 to $15 a pair. Brood sows with litters of eight and ten sell at auction sales from $70 to $100. Veal prices are just fair with shippers offering 8c a pound and local butchers giving up to 10c a pound for choice stuff alive or 12c dressed with the hide on.

Egg prices are lower averaging around 26c a dozen. Butter is scarce and sells at 40c to 45c a pound.

Feed oats are selling off cars at 56 to 58c a bushel while good seed oats from crop competition fields bring 90c a bushel. A local farmer has sold most of his crop of oats and barley at 55c and 80c a bushel at the barn.

Potato prices look strong with quotations from $2.50 to $3.25 a bag.

There is little demand for calves, and good pure bred heifers are being offered at grade prices by those overstocked. Deakins are weak at around 75c each, although they may be higher later in the spring.

AT HAVELOCK.

HAVELOCK, April 5.— Market prices at Havelock Saturday, April 3rd, showed very little change.

Retail—Eggs No. 1, 33c. a dozen, No. 2 28c. a dozen. Dairy butter 43c. a pound. Creamery butter 50c. a pound. New cabbage 10c. a pound. Leaf lettuce 5c. a bunch. Turnips 5c. each. Cooking onions 5c. a pound. Beef 15c. to 25c. a pound. Fresh pork 28c. a pound.

Prices to Farmers—Eggs No. 1 29c. a dozen; No. 2, 24c. a dozen. Butter 40c. a pound.

AT NORWOOD.

NORWOOD, April 5.—Prices of produce in local stores on Saturday were: Creamery butter 50c., dairy butter 45c., Eggs 30c. Cabbage (fresh) 10c. a pound. Beans, 4 lbs. for 25c. Onions, 6 lbs. for 25c. Bread, 20c. and 22c. Cream, 25c. and 30c.

Prices for beef and pork remain the same as do also hay, straw and wood.

AT MARMORA.

AT LINDSAY.

LINDSAY, April 5.—(Special.) —There are slight variations in the local market quotations for the week end. Very little activity has been in evidence owing to the bad roads, and the situation has been greatly aggravated by the recent bad storm. For the first time in years there has been no Easter market.

In the stores creamery butter sold for 52 cents a pound and choice dairy 47 cents a pound. There was a scarcity of the latter. Eggs brought 30 cents to 32 cents a dozen, and these were also reported scarce. Potatoes, 60 cents a peck; cooking onions, 6 pounds for 25c.; Spanish onions, 4 pounds for 25 cents; apples 30 cents a peck. New maple syrup has yet to make its appearance.

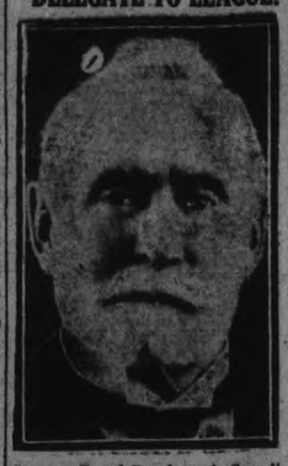
The grain market—Bran, $1.70; barley, 65c.; buckwheat, 65c.; oats, 45c.; wheat, goose, $1.20; fall, $1.30; spring, $1.20; shorts, $1.30; rolled oats, $3.50; flour, best pastry, $4.00; Manitoba, $4.60; alsike, No. 1, $14.50; No. 2, $13.00. Timothy hay and clover, $13.00 ton; straw, $6.00 and $7.00 a load.

The cattle market— Cattle, selects, heavy export, 6 1-2 cents to 7 1-2 cents; common butchers, 5 1-2 cents to 6 1-2 cents; sheep, 3 1-2 cents to 5 cents; choice yearlings, 7 cents to 8 cents; spring lamb, $9.00 to $12.00; hogs, best quality, 13 1-4 cents, selects, heavies, 4 cents to 7 cents; calves, choice, 5 cents to 10 cents.

AT WOOLER

WOOLER, April 5—Eggs, prices from 24 cents to 27 cents a dozen; butter, 42 cents a pound; potatoes, $3.25 a bag; cream, 47 cents a pound; hay, $10.00 a ton; beef, hind quarter, 11 cents a pound, front quarter, 10 cents a pound; bread 20 cents a loaf; milk, 10 cents a quart; apples, $1.00 to $1.75 a bushel.

DELEGATE TO LEAGUE.



Senator Raoul Dandurand, Canadian delegate to the League of Nations assembly at Geneva. The question of the extent to which he supported the views of Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, is causing speculation at Ottawa.

ST. JOHN'S BOYS CAPTURE SHIELD

Sell Most Boys' Parliament Bonds in East Northumberland.

MEDALS PRESENTED.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 5. — The boys of St. Johns Sunday school have won the shield, inscribed "Carpe Dien," that is given by the Boys' Parliament of Ontario to the group in East Northumberland selling the greatest number of the bonds that are issued every year for the purpose of carrying on the work among the rising generation. Jack Haig, member of the Boys' Parliament for this riding, and Stuart Carr are leaders of the local group.

Medals are given by the Parliament to the boys selling the greatest number of bonds and these were presented at the Easter session of the Sunday school by the Superintendent G. A. Kingston, the gold medal going to Miller Donald, who disposed of 53 bonds at $1 each.

Melvin Dunk and Lorne Scott were each given a silver medal, their sales being equal, 15 bonds each.

Ross Hind, George Palliser and Mervin Malcolm sold five bonds each and were awarded bronze medals. The total amount realized by this group from the sale of these bonds was $138.

A choir of 35 of the Sunday school scholars under the leadership of G. W. Lucy, rendered a number of Easter hymns.

WEDDING BELLS.

JAMIESON—HOLT.

COBOURG, April 3.—The marriage on Wednesday evening at Port Hope of Miss Dorothy Holt, of Quay's Crossing to Mr. Stanley Jamieson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Jamieson, Port Hope. Rev. F. W. Anderson conducted the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Jamieson left that evening for Fairfax, Sask., where the groom is engaged in farming. The good wishes of many friends go with them.

WADE—EARLE.

COBOURG, April 5.—The marriage took place on Monday at 1.30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Earle, James street of their daughter, Edith and Mr. Harry William Wade, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wade, Port Hope. Mr. Frank Parkinson played the wedding march and Rev. Dr. Brown conducted the ceremony. The bride wore a becoming wedding gown of shell pink crepe de chene and carried sweetheart roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Earle, wearing silver grey flat crepe and carrying Ophelia roses. Mr. Alex McAlpine, Port Hope, was best man. After the wedding luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Wade left for Toronto and other points on their honeymoon trip. They will reside in Port Hope.

HOWARD—TOPLIS

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at All Saint's church, Thursday evening, April 1, when Bessie Irene Toplis, of Peterborough, became the bride of Edwin John James Howard of Montreal. Rev. Mr. Paterson performed the ceremony.

MINISTER TAKES RECTOR'S PLACE

Service in Anglican Church Conducted By Presbyterian Pastor.

ON GOOD FRIDAY.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 5.— The members of Christ church held a lantern service in the Parish Hall on the evening of Good Friday, and owing to illness the Rector, Rev. G. C. Clarke, was unable to attend. His place was taken by the pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, who presided and delivered the lecture illustrating the views.

QUILT IS SOLD.

Auctioned Off By Campbellford Corps of Salvation Army.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 5.—At a meeting held in the Salvation Army Hall, an "autograph" quilt was auctioned and brought $6.00, Mr. Ernest Collard being the purchaser. This quilt had the Army shield embroidered in the centre, and over three hundred friends had contributed donations and had their names worked in the blocks. Miss Beatrice Collard worked most of the names and the ladies of the Corps realized about thirty-five dollars for the quilt.

CAMPBELLFORD CHURCH SERVICES

CAMPBELLFORD, April 5. — Special Easter services were held in all the churches Sunday, and musical programmes, in keeping with the Easter season were rendered by the choirs. St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was crowded in the evening when the service was entirely musical, the choir rendering the cantata, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace," the solo parts being taken by Miss Hazel Atkinson and Ivan Groh. Between the parts the congregation and choir joined in singing Easter hymns from the Book of Praise.

Before the Benediction, the pastor, Rev. James Grier, thanked the choir for their excellent service of song which, he felt sure, was appreciated by every member of the congregation. The church was beautifully decorated with Easter lilies, ferns and other floral offerings.

AT ST. JOHN'S

Special Easter services were held in St. John's United Church on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Elliot took as his theme, "Easter Gladness," in the morning, and in the evening his sermon was "The First Easter Messages." The choir rendered special music for both services. Mrs. (Dr.) H. O. Richardson took the solo in the anthem and Miss Helen Wood and G. W. Lucy sang a duet in the morning.

At the evening service Walter Lowe gave a cornet solo "My Task," and J. H. Bell took the solo part of the anthem. The organist, A. Hazel, played special music for both services.

The floral tributes of Easter lilies and carnations were beautiful. Miss Dorothy Heath of Windsor a former member of St. John's, each Easter supplies the flowers for the pulpit in memory of her brother, David Heath, who lost his life in the Great War.

AT CHRIST CHURCH

Rev. G. C. Clarke, rector of Christ Church, who had been ill all last week, was sufficiently recovered to take all the services, and both morning and evening the music rendered by the choir was of a high order.

SATURDAY'S APPEAL.

Although the inclement weather interfered considerably with the success of Saturday's appeal on behalf of the Humane Society, a substantial sum was realized from the sale of tags.

Few such campaigns have been conducted under such conditions, and the boys and girls and the women who supervised their efforts deserve credit for the manner in which they defied the weather and remained at their posts.

The "taggers" have the satisfaction of knowing that they proved their friendship for dumb animals beyond the shadow of a doubt when they faced such conditions and "carried on," and they, too, have the additional consolation that their own discomfort will be a factor in making conditions better for the animals of the city and district.

Saturday's receipts can be very materially increased if the citizens of Peterboro will show their interest in the work by allying themselves with the society's activities by becoming members.

THE CARBON MONOXIDE PERIL.

The action of the Canada Life Assurance Company in securing newspaper advertising space for the purpose of issuing a strong warning against the danger of carbon monoxide poisoning indicates that deaths from this cause have become so numerous as to justify unusual methods on the part of life assurance companies.

The advice given by the Canada Life Company should be observed by every motorist.

While it may be thought that by this time everybody knows that to run an automobile engine in a closed garage is a most dangerous practice because of the speedy over-powering effect of the deadly carbon monoxide gas thus generated, nearly every day there is a newspaper story of a tragedy caused by somebody forgetting the menace.

That there is almost equal peril in keeping all the windows of a car closed while the motor is running is not perhaps as generally known.

Nobody should take chances no matter what the weather conditions of being poisoned by carbon monoxide when an open window in the car is all that is needed to prevent danger from this source, yet many closed cars are seen in commission with every window tightly closed.

THE HOCKEY BANQUET.

The civic banquet to be tendered the Peterboro hockey team, champions of the O.H.A., by the City Council on Thursday, April 15th, it is hoped, will be made a complete success by the attendance of one hundred fans in addition to the invited guests.

Altogether there will be accommodation for one hundred and fifty at the function, and citizens interested in the team and anxious to show their appreciation of the efforts of the players during the season will be welcome.

For those who would like to attend one hundred tickets are to be placed on sale at $1.50 each, and these will be disposed of as they are applied for until the supply is exhausted.

The affair promises to be most enjoyable and interesting.

Prominent officials of the Ontario Hockey Association will be among the guests, and in addition to the souvenirs which the City Council are to present to the players, the John Ross Robertson Trophy, emblematic of the senior championship, and the O.H.A. medals will also be presented, while the player who is chosen as the subject of the successful essay in the Examiner's "Popular Player" Contest will receive a silver cup, donated by the Examiner and presented by the boy who wins the competition.

Doubtless many citizens will want to be present at this splendid function, and they would be well advised to make application to City Clerk Armstrong for tickets as soon as possible in order that the necessary arrangements may be made.

MALT TONIC.

The Treasury Department of the United States having given permission to two breweries to "market medicinal 3.75 malt extract," through the drug stores and groceries of the nation, the act can only be interpreted as an insertion of the thin edge of the wedge into Mr. Volstead's 18th amendment, says the Hamilton Spectator. The jubilation of wets is, in itself, warrant for the concern that is being felt by the drys, and the announcement of the chief chemist of the Government prohibition force that "the new malt is not a beer and is not intoxicating" has not relieved the minds of the reformers. If, as is explained, the product is "a heavy preparation of malted barley, containing 25 per cent. solids, with a bitterish taste, something of a cross between beer and molasses," and nauseating if taken in quantity in excess of a small wineglassful, and if dilution by water to make it palatable makes it insipid as a beverage, there will be conjecture as to why the breweries have engaged in such strenuous competition for the right to manufacture and market it. When prohibition was inaugurated in the United States, the druggists did a rushing business in tonics of alcoholic content until the Government discouraged their use as a beverage by the imposition of definite restrictions. The granting of permission to sell medicinal malt is not compliance with an insistent demand by the invalids of the nation. The only conclusion that can be drawn is that this tonic is to be marketed to the well, whom it will make sick, under a policy of "Drink it as a beverage if you must, but at your own risk."

THE PEACE RIVER SCANDAL.

The disclosures made in connection with the trial of election officials in the constituency of Peace River are such as to form a good test of the genuineness of the claim often made on behalf of the Progressive party that its members have political standards and ideals that are higher than those of the old parties.

Mr. Justice Walsh, who presided at the trial, announces that 90 votes were wrongfully taken from Collins, the Conservative candidate, and given to Rae, the Liberal standard-bearer.

As a result of this glaring manipulation, the Conservative candidate was deprived the seat but the benefit did not go to the aspirant for whom it was intended, but to the third man in the field, D. M. Kennedy, Progressive, who was ultimately declared elected.

It is true that Mr. Kennedy had nothing to do with the fraud; it was not done on his behalf, but in the interest of the Liberal candidate.

It is equally true that the Conservative party did not protest the election within the time limit set under the statutes governing corrupt election practices, and that, therefore, Mr. Kennedy is legally secure and cannot be unseated.

But surely as a member of a party on whose behalf so many claims of political purity, so many boasts of immaculacy have been made the member for Peace River cannot consistently ignore the moral side of the question.

The presiding judge declared during the trial that never in all the history of the Dominion has there been such a glaring instance of attempt to deprive the citizens of their rights as voters.

Further, he added that ninety voters had been deprived of their franchise, the Conservative candidate had been deprived of a seat in Parliament, and the people of the riding had been deprived of their rights in having the man of their choice to represent them.

The deputy returning officer chiefly responsible for the fraud has been sent to penitentiary for five years.

Looking these facts in the face and having regard to the pretensions of superiority in political virtue made on behalf of the party of which he is a member, Mr. Kennedy should be able to see that the only honourable course left open to him is to tender his resignation.

If, on the other hand, he decides to retain his seat, taking advantage of the fact that he is legally safe in doing so, he will leave his party open to the charge that political expediency and party advantage are as lively considerations among the Progressives as the latter have claimed them to be among members of the two old parties.

PRINCE PRAISED CANADA.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, it has been said, has been able in his extensive travels in various parts of the world to help to maintain friendship between Great Britain and other countries. By so doing, it has been contended, he has assisted in the promotion of British trade. For example, when he visited the Argentine Republic, it was asserted, he strengthened the amicable relations that had long existed between Great Britain and the Republic. His visit was expected to be followed by an increase in the volume of commerce between the two countries.

The Prince seized an opportunity the other day to speak some words of commendation of Canadian enterprise and Canadian products. He was called upon to deliver an address upon forestry in the British Empire to a gathering in London. He noted that large timber resources comprising many varieties of wood were to be found within the British Empire and that the countries of the Empire were giving attention to forestry problems. He spoke of the reforestration program being carried out by the British Government through its Forestry Commission. Already considerable tracts of land that were formerly forests have been replanted with trees and other land, not in recent times timbered, has been planted. South Africa and the States of Australia, too, were carrying out tree-planting schemes. As for Canada, His Royal Highness said the Dominion had "buckled to the task of surveying its vast resources and protecting them from fire and reckless exploitation." He added, "Canada produces the finest soft wood lumber in the world, as we saw at Wembley." The Prince directed attention to the opportunity for trade in lumber within the Empire. "Considering what excellent timber of every kind the Empire produces," he said, "it appears rather unfortunate that the United Kingdom should expend so much as it does on foreign supplies." He pointed out that last year the people of the United Kingdom paid more than $230,000,000 for imported timber of which only thirteen per cent. came from Empire sources. "I would appeal," he said, "to large users of timber, such as railway companies and builders to bear this in mind when placing orders." In that connection, it may be noted that newspaper despatches from Great Britain reported some months ago the intention of some British interests to look for certain forest products in Canada. Those despatches spoke of orders to be placed in this country for railway ties and other timber. It was said that Canada's display of woods and articles made from wood at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley had helped to secure orders for Canadian firms.

The Prince of Wales suggests that if British buyers of timber can secure their supplies on satisfactory terms from sources within the Empire they might well do so instead of going for those supplies to sources outside the Empire. With that doctrine the people of the Dominions will agree. They will also be gratified to observe that the Prince is anxious to promote Great Britain's purchases as well as Great Britain's sales within the Empire and so foster a trade that will be beneficial to all parts of the Empire.—Mail and Empire.

ROUGH ROAD DAMAGE

Rough roads cause considerable damage to the working parts of an automobile. Uneven roads are often unnoticed while driving as the body of the car does not shake with the axles and differential.

LADIES AID MEETING HELD AT BETHANY

Reports of Work Done During Past Year Are Presented.

BETHANY, April 5.—The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United church was held at the home of Mrs. A. Monk on Wednesday afternoon. Owing to the severe snow storm only ten ladies were present. They brought their sewing which, at present, is a quilt and, when finished, will be for sale.

Mrs. Lee presided and called the meeting to order with the use of a hymn, a passage of scripture and prayer. After a budget of business had been attended to, and as it was the annual meeting, reports were received from the secretary and treasurer. The ladies have done a great deal of repairing to the parsonage, such as having the building repainted and a new fence erected during the past year. They also gave $100 to the quarterly official board, besides almost $15 through the envelope system, so all felt they had not been idle during the past eleven months.

The election of officers was by ballot and resulted as follows: President, Mrs. William Lee 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. R. Reynolds 2nd vice-president, Mrs. W. L. Rowan secretary, Mrs. J. Jones treasurer, Miss Ella Jackson organist, Mrs. S. Arnott. Plans were then made for activities during the summer months and the meeting closed with a hymn and prayer by Mrs. Poulter.

A novel lunch was served, prepared by two young men from Napanee who were demonstrating aluminum ware, consisting of two courses: First course, meat, potatoes, apple sauce, bread and butter second course, pancakes and syrup and a light cake, all made by the young men. The ladies enjoyed the very palatable food and congratulated the young men on being such efficient cooks. Taken altogether, despite the inclement weather, the meeting was very satisfactory to the ladies present.

Miss Verna Belle Lee was a visitor to Millbrook on Wednesday.

Miss Dorothy Sisson, of Guelph College, is home for the Easter vacation.

Miss Olive Nelson left on Thursday afternoon to spend her Easter vacation with friends at Mono Road.

Mr. William Fair and family have moved to their farm in Cavan east of Ida. Mr. Charles Davis will move into the house vacated by the Fair family.

Miss Aleta Challice left on Friday morning to join her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Challice, at their new home in Millbrook.

GOOD PRICES PAID.

Auction Sale Held By Farmer Leaving Bonar Law.

BONAR LAW, April 5.—The auction sale held at the home of Mr. Earnest Eastwood was indeed a successful event. Mr. C. W. Clancy was auctioneer. Mr. Charles Vanallen of Stirling purchased the team of horses at $250.00.

The cows ranged in prices from $80 to $120.00 each.

The weather being fine, a large crowd was present, and every article brought a good price. Hay sold for $9.50 a ton and hens brought $1.00 each.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper Johnson spent a few days last week at Mr. Henry Mathew's home.

Mr. Andrew Thompson has returned home after spending the week-end with relatives in Toronto.

Master Harold Stiles is quite ill at present.

Mrs. William Stiles is also on the sick list.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 3 (Canadian Press).—Forced down by heavy selling, corn underwent a notable setback in value today, whereas wheat rallied from an early decline. Corn for May delivery touched the lowest price yet this season.

Eastern interests that are reported to be short of wheat were said to be the chief sellers of corn. Closing quotations on corn were unsettled 1 7-8 to 2 1-4 cents net lower, May 71 3-8 to 71 1-2. Wheat finished firm, unchanged to 5-8¢ higher, May (new) $1.56 1-8 to $1.56 1-4 and July $1.33 7-8 to $1.34; oats 3-8 to 1-2c off, and provisions at 15 to 22 cents decline.

For the first time in weeks, real liquidation appeared to have taken place in corn future deliveries. According to one authority there has been a large scattered holding of corn futures, the owners of which have unloaded, tiring of a prolonged wait of late for an expected advance. Talk was also current that although stormy weather, bad roads and other factors have prevented any big movement of corn from the country, the amount of corn in sight is considerably in excess of immediate needs.

UPPER HOUSE NOT ABOLISHED

New Members Vote Against Government and Their Pledges.

PREMIER INSISTENT.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 5.—(Canadian Press).—Australian State politics are not, as a rule, of very great interest to the rest of the world; but when a State government sets out to alter the whole constitution in an endeavor to abolish a legislative body, the matter at once takes on an Empire significance, and indeed finds a direct parallel in what is happening in Nova Scotia.

The position in the State of New South Wales is interesting. There is a Labor Government in power, with a majority of seats in the lower House—the Legislative Assembly. In the upper House—the Legislative Council—which is a nominee, and not an elected Chamber, opponents of Labor were in a majority. Appointments to this House are in the hands of the Government of the day, as advisers to the Governor of the State. The State premier, J. T. Lang, recently submitted 25 names to the Governor for appointment to the Council and, after considerable negotiation and discussion, the appointments were made.

It was stated at the time that the Governor exacted a promise from the Premier that the appointees would not be used to abolish the upper House—which can only be done by a vote of that House.

However, as soon as they had been sworn in as members, the Premier announced his intention of abolishing the Legislative Council and its 98 members. Every Labor man had, when appointed, signed a pledge to vote for the extinction of of the Council so soon as a bill for that purpose was brought down. It was part of the Labor Party's platform that the upper House should be abolished, but they also promised as a substitute, the "initiative referendum and recall," which was not advanced in this instance.

The measure by which the Council was called upon to commit political hari-kari was brought before the Council, in the form of a request by the Government's spokesman, A. C. [illegible]

Without any preliminary argument the House at once proceeded to a division and rejected the proposal by 47 votes to 41.

This remarkable defeat was brought about by the defection of several Labor members, who voted against the Government and against their pledges. Among them were even some of the 25 appointed and pledged only a few months ago.

The reasons for their defections have not yet been given. No pay is attached to the office, but there is the title of 'Honorable" and a gold pass entitling members to travel free on all government railways and tramways for life. There is also a comfortable club room and a status, invitations to many functions and a complacency and sense of importance attached to the job. Many of the members find it difficult to give up all this.

Premier Lang, however, is insistent, and will now submit more names to the Governor for appointment to the Council in a further effort to induce the House to abolish itself.

In the States of Queensland, the Legislative Council abolished itself about four years ago at the instance of the Labor government, which would suffer no interference with or revision of its measures advanced in the Lower House.

GIFT TO RIDLEY.

College Receives $200,000 From Col. Leonard.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., April 5 (Canadian Press) — The Board of Ridley College, St. Catharines, were notified Saturday that a gift of $200,000 was being made to the college by Lt.-Colonel R. W. Leonard of this town in order to complete the expansion programme that the board has been contemplating. While plans for a lower-intermediate school have been prepared for some time the money from Col. Lonard came as an Easter surprise and will permit a start to be made on construction almost immediately. It is expected that the new building will be ready within a year.

Troops Patrol Streets on Sunday After Street Fighting in Sectarian War Broke Out Again Sunday — Many Shops Looted.

MANY KILLED OR INJURED

CALCUTTA, India, April 5 (Canadian Press) — The fighting between the Hindus and Moslems, which has already caused the death or injury of many persons, was continued Sunday. Twenty-two injured were removed to hospitals and numerous Mohammedan shops were looted.

Troops heavily armed patroled the streets, and machine guns were placed at strategic points.

In the early riots, which began Friday with the approach to a mosque of a procession of Hindus, when Moslems interfered with the parade, twenty were reported killed, and immediately large bodies of police were sent out to various sections to quell the disorders. Throughout the night the streets were deserted, but the fighting started afresh Saturday morning with even greater severity.

Reg for Protection

The Burra bazaar area was particularly affected. In this quarter rich Hindus are in the majority, but their employees are largely Mohammedans. A deputation of Hindu merchants called at police headquarters and bagged for more protection from the European officers who control the police forces.

The mosques and Hindu temples in the north part of Calcutta are very close to each other and there is always danger of attacks between the two sects.

The European authorities have endeavored to bring peace, but the banging of drums and the blowing of trumpets by Hindus outside the big mosques while Moslems were at prayer within, had much to do with the recent outbreak in which clubs and knives were used.

The Hindus and Moslems, the two leading religious sects of India, frequently clash, although the Hindus outnumber the followers of Mohammed in the entire country by about three to one. The Hindus worship several gods and accept the Brahmanical supremacy and the caste system. The Moslems are limited as to their main tenets by the teachings of the Koran.

One of the principal causes of friction is the practice of the Moslems of sacrificing cows, which are held sacred by the Hindus. At Delhi in July, 1924, a riot took place in which several were killed when the Moslems persisted in taking cows for sacrifice through the prohibited area in which the Hindus live. Troops were four hours in restoring order.

Beautiful White Hands with Washing Dishes

No more harsh laundry soap for dishwashing. No more red, rough, chapped hands. Lux has done away with all that.

Lux has lightened the labour of dishwashing and made it possible for you to keep your hands as white and soft and your nails as trim and neat as though they had never touched dishwater. You know it isn't the grease from the dishes nor the temperature of the water that reddens the hands. Water itself and hard laundry soaps do the damage.

Lux softens the water and makes it harmless to the skin, hurries the whole operation of dishwashing, and actually keeps the skin in fine soft condition. The vegetable oils in Lux are bland oils—mild and soothing as well as highly efficient.

One tablespoon of Lux in each pan of dishwater is all you need.

Really, you should use Lux for the whole family wash—it's so efficient, so safe and reasonably priced—and it prolongs the life of fabrics. Many a garment goes to the cleaners that might better be washed with Lux.

WHITTEMORE ON TRIAL TO-DAY IN BUFFALO COURT

Police Will Press For Trial of His "Mob" of Six.

FOR BANK MURDERS.

Widows Prays For Execution of Her Husband's Slayer.

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 5. — When Richard R. Whittemore was arraigned before Judge Noonan in the Supreme Court here to-day to plead to a charge of murder in connection with the killing of two Marine Trust Company guards during a $93,000 hold-up last Oct. 29, it was with the prosecution's warning of "no compromise" in his ears.

District Attorney Guy B. Moore of Erie County made it plain that he is bent upon making Whittemore pay with his life in the electric chair for his part in the murder. Whittemore's statement Friday to the police that he would not "burn" alone for the Buffalo crime, but would take others with him if he went to the chair, is regarded by Mr. Moore as competent evidence, and may be used by him at the trial. He regards this statement as tantamount to an admission of guilt.

Moore After Whole Gang.

"There will be no compromise in the case of Whittemore or any other members of the gang who figured in the hold-up," District Attorney Moore declared after a conference this morning with Chief of Detectives Austin J. Roche. "The chief has dug up a lot of new evidence in Buffalo and New York, which positively connects Whittemore with the hold-up and murders, regardless of identifications or confessions. We now have an iron-bound case against him.

"Because of this I don't even consider it necessary to question Whittemore. Neither will I talk to him. I have the goods on him and don't intend to listen to any propositions or attempts at compromise. I am going to bring him to trial for murder in the first degree and to make that trial as speedy as possible."

Neither the District Attorney nor Chief Roche would divulge the nature of the evidence which the latter has in his possession.

"It's right here," Roche observed, tapping a large envelope which he caried in his hand. "And it absolutely puts the clincher to the Whittemore gang. I shan't talk to Whittemore, either. He can't tell us anything that we haven't got already on his 'mob.' Our case is stronger than the robbery charges against the gang in New York City, despite all the confessions that have been made by the gang members. I am certain that we can convict Whittemore and nearly every member of his 'mob' for first degree murder in connection with the bank hold-up. After we have disposed of Whittemore then we'll turn our attention to the rest of them and we will seek to have them brought here for trial."

Can Prove Guilt of Six.

Chief Roche said that, besides Whittemore, the others he can positively prove as having played a part either in framing or in the execution of the bank job were Leon and Jake Kramer, Milton (Shuffles) Goldberg, William G. Unklebach, Anthony Paladino and Nathan Weinzimmer, known generally as "Zimmer." The C of said that Morris H. Weinzimmer, arrested recently by the Cleveland police, was not the man whom the Buffalo police are seeking. Morris Weinzimmer, Chief Roche said, was arrested by mistake for his brother Nathan.

Whittemore Rails at Pals.

Whittemore sits sullen and brooding in his cell at Police Headquarters, and seems more concerned about avenging himself against Paladino nad Unkelbach than upon organizing his own defense.

"I made him seventy grand ($70,000) in short order," he told his guards, "and now he squawks on me and his pals. That's what hurts."

But for the most part, Whittemore is non-communicative. He has eaten but little since his arrival. Isolated from the other prisoners, and with no radio or other means of entertainment, his prospects for Easter was not pleasing. Chief Roche does not believe in coddling prisoners.

Mrs. Lewis Yarrington, widow of one of the murdered bank guards, asked permission yesterday of Chief Roche to see Whittemore. She wanted to know why he had shot her husband, she said. When her request was denied she announced that she would try to see him at the arraignment on Monday. Mrs. Charles Clifford, widow of the other murdered guard, moved to Rochester soon after her husband's death. Newspaper dispatches from that city quote her as saying that she spent three hours in church on Good Friday, praying for the conviction and execution of her husband's slayer.

Ferries Driven Back and River Cleared of Ice.

SARNIA, April 5.— (Canadian Press.)— It is forty years since Sarnia experienced an April storm as bad as the one which paralyzed transportation on land and water here Saturday. Whipped by a stiff north gale, driving snow drifted fast and forced the suspension of street car service before noon and the ferries between this city and Port Huron were also forced to lay to until the storm abated. Later in the day the ice bridge which had held in check thousands of tons of ice at the foot of Lake Huron gave way under wind pressure and the St. Clair river was choked with floating ice all afternoon and evening.

The ferries operated but cautiously. Sunday the ice had all vanished down stream and clear water was visible once more. Delivery of foodstuffs and Easter supplies was seriously handicapped by the eight inch snow fall Saturday and some of it was not completed until early Sunday morning. Telegraph service was interrupted between Sarnia and Toronto but telephone service locally was well maintained.

PILES DISAPPEAR

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M.D., a specialist set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at McDermid and Jury, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

BLOND ESKIMOS ARE NOT FOUND

R.C.M.P. Officers and Amundsen Agree That There Are None.

SOME BLUE EYED.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 5 (Canadian Press).—Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers here agree with Roald Amundsen, the explorer, that there are no blond Eskimos in the Arctic nor anywhere else for that matter.

But they also recall that Vilhjalmur Stefansson, popularly credited with the statement that such people existed, has himself largely retracted the statement saying that he had been misquoted, and that the term "blond" had never been used or intended by him.

The police oficers state that quite frequently natives of the north will be found with blue eyes and finer features than others, but these characteristics they attribute to the intermingling of Scandinavian whalers with the native women of the Canadian north.

One Mounted Police Officer who made a hazardous journey into Melbourne Peninsula to bring out an Eskimo murdered, said that he had travelled from the Arctic through Hudson Straits, Fury and Hecla Straits, and as far as Coronation Gulf, and knows every tribe of Eskimo for hundreds of miles in every direction from the straits and islands and he has yet to osee one of these natives with fair hair. Once he saw a native boy with almost red hair, but it was because his father was half Eskimo and half Scotch, being the son of a Hudson's Bay Company trapper. Thus, two generations removed, the boy had reddish hair, but in the native Eskimo none has ever been seen with fair hair, although many have blue eyes.

WINDSOR POLICE RAID TWO STORES

Proprietors Accused of Keeping Hand-Books on Races.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Raiding two tobacco stores at 44 Sandwich street west and 364 Ouellette avenue Saturday night, the Windsor police arrested 43 men and seized betting slips and several hundred dollars.

James P. Pennegar, 1173 Hall avenue, alleged proprietor of the Sandwich street place, was charged with operating a disorderly house. He and the frequenters were released on bail of $1,000 to appear before Magistrate Gundy to-day.

Harry Thomas, Windermere Road, Walkerville, who was found at the Ouellette avenue address with 13 frequenters, will face a charge of keeping a hand-book on horses. Bail of $250 was allowed in his case. The police believe that both Pennegar and Thomas are "taking the fall" for other men.

LINDSAY CUT OFF BY STORM'S HAVOC

Electric Power Service Weathered the Blizzard.

LINDSAY, April 5.— Although this town escaped the disastrous effects following the big blizzard which swept over the province during the week, it occupies an isolated position so far as communication with Toronto and eastern points are concerned. Not a telegraph instrument in either of the local offices has ticked off a message to the Queen City and other centres since Thursday and the same story can be told of the telephonic service. There was no interruption to power service, and no damage was sustained by the telephone and telegraph companies in this district.

The storm, however, completely demoralized business, and Saturday's driving snow storm proved the climax. Merchants looked forward to a brisk Easter trade, but the vast majority of the farmers remained indoors rather than face one of the worst storms of the year. Business men declare that it is the dullest Easter in years.

PRICES ARE HIGH AT 2 FARM SALES

Douro Men Realize Good Returns From Stock and Implements.

DOURO, April 5 — At two recent sales of farm stock and implements in the township, high prices prevailed.

At Frank Kennedy's sale cows sold from $65 to $100; year old cattle brought $34; sows with litters sold for $73 and $75; sheep $12 and $19.50, hens 85c; machinery also sold high. No horses were sold.

At John Barry's sale two fine teams of horses sold for $440 and $390 a team; a couple of other horses sold for about $140 apiece; cows of only medium quality brought $50 and $60; a brood sow with a litter of nine, brought $86; hens sold for $1.09; machinery brought very high prices.

Mr. Barry has sold his farm to Mr. Michael Leahy and may go to western Canada.

Watch Mounted On Tie Pin Claimed As Worlds Smallest

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 5 — (Canadian Press). —Walter Lett, Vanvcouver watchmaker, claims to have produced the smallest watch in the world after two years of labour.

Made for and mounted on a tie pin, the watch can be covered easily by a silver five-cent piece. Alongside of a regular railroad watch the tie-pin time shows as about one-fiftieth the size of the regular watch.

The delicacy of Mr. Lett's task may be appreciated when it is stated that the screws used would carry 250 threads to the inch, and that it would take 30,000 of them to make a pound. Similar screws, placed on a white sheet of paper show without a powerful glass as mere specks much smaller in length than the width of a pinhead.

The watch in its entirety weights three and one half pennyweight, or 84 grains. Yet it ticks right along and keeps perfect time. Mr. Lett made the special magnifying glass required in the manufacture of the watch, and made also what is believed to be the only dial indicator of measurement, which gives the exact dimensions of the thinnest sheet of paper.

Removes the Pain and the Cause instantly

Corns

PEOPLE who try to destroy corns by the risky practice of following old, antiquated methods, find they soon come back again, painful as ever. That's because such so-called remedies do not remove the cause—rubbing and pressing of shoes. Until the cause is stopped, corns will persist.

But now a new method, that works on the only correct, scientific principle of removing the cause, is replacing these old, antiquated makeshifts. Millions of people have adopted it.

It is Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads—a thin, medicated, antiseptic, protective, healing pad, that has completely revolutionized the treatment of corns. You put one on and the pain ends instantly. At the same time the rubbing and pressing of the shoe is completely removed.

A new corn can't come where the old one was, because Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads stops it before it can get started. Made in three sizes for Corns, Callouses, and Bunions. Get a package of Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads at your shoe dealer's or druggist's today. Mail coupon below for free sample.

MARCH MEETING OF WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Arrangements Made For Usual Summer Lecture.

MADOC, April 5.—The March meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. J. Hill. Forty-two members were present, and the president, Mrs. T. Tumulty, presided.

Letters of thanks for flowers were read from Mrs. J. L. Foster and Mrs. S. Ashley.

Arrangements were made for the usual summer lecture and June 18th was decided upon as the date. It was also decided to combine the lecture with the usual monthly meeting and to hold it at the home of Mrs. James Hill.

A letter from the McCallum Granite Works of Kingston was read, and a committee, consisting of the Executive and three other members, Mrs. A. H. Watson, Mrs. B. Miller and Mrs. G. Foote, was appointed to meet Mr. McCallum on Thursday evening, April 1, at Blue's hotel, to consider designs for the monument the Institute intends erecting to the memory of Madoc's heroes of the Great War.

Roll call was answered by many beautiful Easter thoughts. Mrs. Haugh gave a very enjoyable reading, "Springitis." The main topic for the afternoon was to have been taken by Mrs. Watson on the subject of Easter dishes, but unfortunately Mrs. Watson had been called to Windsor by illness in her niece's home, just a day or two before the meeting, so that part of the programme had to be cancelled.

A pleasant social hour was spent, the hostesses being Mrs. Springham, Mrs. W. E. Connor, Mrs. P. Embury Mrs. F. Nayler and Mrs. W. J. Hill

MADOC NEWS

MADOC, April 3.—A quiet but pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, March 31, at 10 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warcham T. COLONIZATION IS NATIONAL ISSUE

Increase of Farm Population Would Stabilize Values.

NOT CLASS PROBLEM.

At the last convention of the United Farmers of Alberta a resolution criticizing colonization effort at public expense was passed. The resolution recites that Western farmers cannot be expected to view with enthusiasm any proposal to contribute additional taxes merely to bring in outsiders to compete with existing agricultural producers, particularly in view of the demand of Canadian manufacturers for protective legislation for industrial products. To say the least, this resolution was somewhat unfortunately worded. It mixes issues. It lacks entirely the imprint of intelligent consideration and a proper sense of responsibility on the part of an organization which is now generally regarded as one of Canada's most important and sane deliberative bodies.

An Ill-advised Resolution.

The general views of the U. F. A. on the principle of protective tariffs are well known. The convention now, however, endorses what virtually is a protective policy for Canada in respect to agricultural development, which is hardly consistent. Of course, this resolution is not to be regarded too seriously. It was evidently intended as a piece of sarcastic pleasantry. But it was, nevertheless, distinctly out of place to vent the displeasure of the convention in respect to other matters upon a national issue of such vital importance as colonization. It might, however, be profitable to briefly consider to what extent additional agricultural producers might injuriously compete with or affect our domiciled rural population, and also what benefits might, on the other hand, accrue to our farmers from added agricultural population in Canada. These seem to be the questions involved in this resolution.

The Export Market.

To start with, we should clearly realize that the Western farmer is producing almost entirely for export sale. Also that there is not, within the next couple of generations, the faintest possibility of an industrial development in Canada on so magnificent a scale as to create a home market large enough to completely consume the staple products of our enormous Western agricultural empire. We need not, therefore, even consider the problems such a changed economic situation would present. The export market is, and will remain, our only outlet.

Starvation in 1960?

The increasing population of Europe and the development of trade in agricultural products with the teeming millions of oriental countries, coupled with the increasing home demands of many of the present exporting countries, will amply counterbalance any enced Canadian production of foodstuffs. Professor East, of Harvard University, has even made the cheerful prediction, after painstaking investigation, that by 1960 the whole world will face starvation through under supply of food! So we need not apparently concern ourselves over much about the question of not finding a ready market for any volume of Canadian staple agricultural products we are apt to raise. It is, therefore, difficult to see how an increased number of Canadian agricultural producers could seriously demoralise our present markets.

Advantages to Agriculture.

We might also reasonably conclude, that a farmer in Great Britain, Sweden or Roumania is just as much in competition with our Western farmers in the export market, whether he produces in his own country, in ours, or in any other. If, however, such a competitor settles in Canada his presence with us will tend to stabilize the value per acre of all agricultural lands, much to the advantage of the Canadian farmers. A healthy in-flow of new settlers also has a decidedly beneficial effect on the prices of work horses and domestic breeding stock of all classes. The absence of such an outlet for a class of stock not always in demand at the public market, owing to age and condition, has had its effect on all live-stock values during the past years of colonization stagnation. The Canadian farmer should welcome new settlers with open arms for these reasons only.

Not a Class Problem.

The colonization problem in Canada is not in any sense a class problem, and those who endeavour to make it so, assume a serious responsibility. A vigorous and intelligent policy to add further agricultural population to every province in this far-flung, undeveloped, young country must of necessity be of benefit to all classes, directly or indirectly. This question is, in the minds of thinking people, beginning to loom up as a great, national issue, the successful solution of which would automatically solve practically all other minor, national problems which now confront us. It would, for instance, lighten our heavy load of taxation by distributing the burden over many additional shoulders. It would effectually solve the transportation question. Every citizen in Canada, irrespective of occupation, should make this problem his own.

YOUNG MEN TRIED ON THEFT CHARGES

Released on Suspended Sentence By Marmora Magistrate.

MARMORA, April 5.—Two youn men, James Moffatt of Marmora township and Archie Crosson of Allen's Mills, were arraigned here before Magistrate Jarman on Thursday afternoon on a charge of theft. Last Monday the stores of Mr. Kowri, C. W. Gladney, F. N. Marett, and Dunlay Brothers were visited. Both were apprehended on Tuesday afternoon by Constable Gordenier and locked up that same evening. Moffatt was bailed out early next morning and Crosson the following afternoob. At their trial both were found guilty and released on two years suspended sentence upon payment of costs.

A large, interested crowd were refused admittance to the court-room owing to the epidemic.

At the same court, Donald McInroy of Springbrook was charged with an assault upon Robert Maguire of the same village. A fine of two dollars and costs was imposed.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches, get busy with good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Rub it on with your finger-tips. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

One Paris Paper Says Riffs May Be Covering New Offensive.

ACTION STARTED.

PARIS, April 5. — (Canadian Press.)—The newspaper "Le Ouevre," well informed in diplomatic circles, says the conversations now going on between accredited representatives of Abd el Krim and the French and Spanish governments are important and likely to have a favorable outcome.

The Petit Parisien, however, warns that the last news from Morocco indicated the beginning of a new Riff offensive and that it is not clear whether this action is designed as a diplomatic pressure or a foretaste of larger operations to come, which the present overtures are masking.

The biggest money's worth of comfort

You benefit from the economies of the world's largest production of beds and bedding when you buy a Slumber King. That is why you can get Canada's finest steel fabric spring for only $12.

Consider what value it represents. The frame is of stoutly riveted pressed steel for lifetime strength; built as high as a box spring for finest appearance. 26 ribbon strips of steel are suspended between extra-long coils and joined by four rows of continuous spirals. They conform to your body without sagging. Extra wide border strips and cables keep the edges trim and taut.

Make your dollars go farthest by insisting on a genuine Slumber King at any furniture store. Even such a spring, however, can provide only half of complete sleeping comfort. The other half depends on the mattress. Get the Ostermoor, Canada's finest in luxury and value for more than 30 years, now $25. Look for the Ostermoor label.

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST

At the evening service in Murray Street Baptist Church the spirit of Easter took the form of a baptismal ceremony. Jean Barringer, Jean Hardill, Genivieve Foster, Audrey Evans, Laura Baker, Mary Bulmer, and Harold Sage were baptized by Dr. Rose.

Special music too, gave expression to the joy and new hope of Easter. The choir under the direction of Francis Sutton, A.T.C.M., gave full voice to the Easter joy in anthems and solos. Miss Trucie Pearson, Mrs. A. A. Perrin, Dr. S. J. Graham and Mr. H. H. Graham were the soloists.

PARK STREET BAPTIST.

"The larger meaning of the death of Christ," was the subject chosen by Rev. N. R. McLeod yesterday morning.

"In the Cross of Christ," he said, "the abounding grace of God is matched against the degradation and iniquity of sin. The larger meaning of the Cross is suggested to us in our word redemption, which commercially involves the restoration of that which we have given, but which in Christian revelation includes the recreative work of Christ, bringing to us all the fulness of God.

The death of Christ is voluntary but not suicidal. Christ was not a victim, either in the hands of men or God. A volunteer is disinterested and unselfish, while a suicide is personally interested, selfish and cowardly.

"The death of Christ was not only physical but mental, moral and spiritual.

"Furthermore the death of Christ included the resurrection. Jesus, just like the sun setting, dips beneath the horizon, and lo! from the twilight of his setting bursts the dawn of His resurrection.

"Moreover the death of Christ involves the ascension and enduement of His followers with power from on high. When He ascended He took His place at the right hand of the Father and became our Intercessor continuing His atoning death. At the time of Jesus going the Holy Spirit came to make application of Christ's death to us.

"Further, the death of Christ was not a death only, but included a new union of the soul with Christ. From the very beginning the provision of salvation through the death of Christ was on the assumption that every believer in His death would become personally united with Him, thus making His death a death unto holiness of life."

Special music was rendered by the choir at both morning and evening services. In the morning the choir sang the hymn, "There is a Green Hill Far Away," unaccompanied, an anthem, "Christ is Risen," by F. L. Ashford. During the offertory Miss Cathie Taylor played a violin solo, "Minuet in G," Beethoven. The evening music by the choir was "Christ Arose," by Rev. R. Lowry, sung unaccompanied, "He is Risen," an anthem by Thomas Facer, and "The Strife is O'er," by Norman Churchill.

Mr. Cecil Lapp, organist and choir leader, presided at the organ, his offertory number being "Chanson Triste," by Tschaikowsky."

At the close of the evening service the ordinance of believers' baptism was observed, and four young Christions passed through the waters.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

Large congregations at all services marked the celebration of Easter at St. John's Anglican church yesterday. Special music had been prepared by the choir under the direction of Frederick G. Mann, choirmaster and organist, and the services throughout were bright and joyous in keeping with the occasion.

At the morning service the vicar, Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, reminded the congregation that while the conditions outside were not those usually associated with Easter, within the church brightness and happiness predominated as always at this time. In his eloquent sermon, Dr. Blagrave pointed out that the story of the resurrection of Christ was a union of historic fact and symbolic teaching. Dealing first briefly with the historic story of the first Easter, Dr. Blagrave passed on to stress the symbolic lessons that were to be found therein. The first was the old familiar story, so old as seem almost commonplace that Christ is breaking the seal of his own tomb, had broken the seal of all tombs, that the grave was not the end. Then there was the realization that it was necessary to have a share in bearing the cross in order to share in the glories of the resurrection followed by an appreciation of the wonderful fact that by his perfect life and sacrifice the Son of God had made it possible for all to share in those glories, even those who had failed to understand the cross or helped to bear it.

Many lilies adorned the altars in memory of members of St. John's congregation who have passed on.

A special children's Easter service was held in the church in the afternoon and in the evening Rev. Canon Vernon delivered an inspiring sermon to a large congregation.

ST. GEORGE'S ANGLICAN.

Rev. J. L. Hughes preached from the text, "For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that He might be Lord both of the dead and living," at the evening service at St. George's Church last night. This text is found in the epistle to the Romans, in the ninth verse of the fourteenth chapter.

"God's people never die," said the speaker, "but they live and are active, serving Him." Christ is Lord absolute over both the living and the dead, he said. He left a moral law for His people to follow, and He left a missionary law. The first thing He told anyone to do when He rose from the dead was to tell the disciples, which He told Mary Magdalene in the garden.

The choir rendered Jackson's Te Deum as an anthem at the evening service. Special music was given at the other services, all of which were well attended.

ALL SAINTS', ANGLICAN.

"It is a risen, living and powerful Christ that we gather together on this Easter Sunday morning to honor and to worship," said the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, at the morning service in All Saints' church yesterday morning. He spoke from the text in the fifteenth chapter of the first Epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians verses 3 and 4: "For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures; and that he was buried and that he rose again the third day according to the Scriptures."

Christianity, said the speaker, is the only practical religion in the world. In all the others the member is asked to believe certain things. The Christian has a moral code and a book of doctrine in the Bible, but he has the sacred story of a man, and his religion consists of faith in that man. The story of His life and death is a glorious story, but it is a simple story.

Some people, he said in conclusion, say they cannot understand or find the peace of God, but that is because they do not know and accept Christ crucified. The peace of God and the glory of the risen Christ come only to those who accept the cross.

Large congregations attended the various celebrations of the Holy Communion, and the members of the Sunday school were out in large numbers for the children's service in the afternoon. The Rev. Ralph Adye of Kinmount, assisted the rector at all the services and addressed the Sunday school in the afternoon service. Special Easter music was rendered by the choir and included the "Hallelujah Chorus" by Handel.

GEORGE STREET UNITED.

George Street United Church was thronged nearly to capacity on Easter Sunday morning by those eager to hear Rev. J. E. Todd's message, "The Resurrection."

The Scripture reading was from John's Gospel, chapter 20, and the text was the verse: "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in Me shall live though he is dead, and he that believeth shall never die."

The speaker compared the dire pessimistic cry of the Psalmist to these joyful tidings. The Psalmist goes down to the depths of despair while the words of Jesus raise us on the crest of hope.

The speaker drew a wonderful lesson from the awakening and growth of the Easter lily, and asked, "I wonder how much this flower believes in the resurrection?" From a hard, lifeless bulb, by a wonderful awakening, came forth the plant and the beautiful flower. "But if the plant had despaired of hope and shut itself up from the life-giving elements, how much would the resurrection have weight in its life?"

There are some things in human beings that can not be found in the operating room — mother-love and the love of a father for a child in a far country.

"Although we do not know life and we do not know the Bible, and we do not know the manufacture of clothing and food, we have enough intelligence to clothe and feed ourselves for strength. Then why should we not also take into our lives those higher things to arm ourselves against disaster?

"How much do you believe in the resurrection? Just to the extent that you have followed and taken Jesus into your life."

The music was of an exceptionally inspiring nature. A large children's chorus sang several times in their sweet young voices, and the large choir voiced the Easter joy in song.

There was a sunrise prayer meeting at seven o'clock, held in the Sunday School-room, which was well attended.

KNOX UNITED CHURCH

Basing his discourse upon the gospel stories of the Risen Christ the minister traced the spiritual experience of Jesus' friends from their dark despair when their master was crucified and buried unto their great joy and power when they realized His living presence. They came to the tomb with spices seeking a dead Christ. They found an empty tomb. His body was gone. But someone might have removed it. However, a Heavenly visitor assured them He was risen. If they themselves could only see Him! This was their next experience. They saw him. He is risen, indeed! No longer any doubt about it. But what is He like after His strange passing through death and the grave? Fear still haunted them. At last He convinced them He was the same Jesus who had companied graciously, lovingly and helpfully for three years with them. Then, all sadness gone, their hopes restored and transformed, they returned to Jerusalem with great joy and were continually in the temple blessing and praising God.

Small wonder they feared He might be changed. For He appeared in another form. At first they didn't recognize Him. Mary supposed He was the gardener. The two disciples walked in conversation with Him all the way to Emmaus only to find out later who He was. The eleven didn't recognize Him until He showed them His hands and His feet. The disciples on the sea didn't know Him at first, not until the nets were filled with fish. Then John whispered to Peter the glad words: "It is the Lord!" But before He went away He convinced them He was the same Jesus of the old days and fellowship. To the Magdalene out of whom He had cast the evil spirits He came first and she knew He was the same now to her that He had been in her earlier need. Peter had blasphemed in denying Him, and at a look from Jesus had gone out and wept bitterly. How now would the risen Lord deal with His friend who had failed Him in the shadow of Calvary? The answer was given in a special and gracious interview which convinced Peter there was no change in his Lord's love toward him; the only question raised was to make sure of the disciple's love for his Lord. The risen Christ is the same old friend.

ST. JAMES' UNITED

For Easter Sunday Rev. J. D. Richardson, M.A., the minister, took for his morning subject "On the Rim of the World." This he described as being the title of a recent book by a well known author. By the "Rim of the World" he means actual or conceived proximity to death. And the author's purpose is to offer assurance and consolation to those wistful ones who stand as it were "on the rim of the world" looking out through earth's mists towards that land where their loved ones have recently gone.

As we stand on the rim of the world and wonder what lies beyond, it is through the mists and into mystery that we are wont to gaze," said Rev. Mr. Richardson. The belief in immortality and the longing for a future home is almost universal and as men have sought to pierce the mists, and penetrate the mystery, this hope has expressed itself in many different forms. The Greeks and Romans of antiquity dreamed of an Elysium, a shadowy region of spirits beyond the pillars of Hercules. Our own far distant forebears dreamed of a Valhalla, a sort of sensuous banquetting hall, the reward of the brave. The Indians conceived of the future as a happy hunting ground whither he would take with him the implements of the chase. And even today the dwellers of the cold and icy land of the north, speak of a land of perpetual sunshine where the sun never sets behind the western hills and the reindeer is ever ready at the huntsman's hand.

These are all crude and imperfect attempts to peer through the mists into the mystery of what lies beyond, to grasp reality beyond the passing shadow of things and give a spiritual interpretation to life.

If we turn to the history of Christian thought with which we are more familiar we will find that throughout the Christian centuries this hope has expressed itself in many ways. This ideal state, this spiritual reality, this heavenly home is conceived of under varied forms. It is sometimes spoke of as a city, "the city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." Sometimes we speak of this ideal condition as a realm of light, "the light that never was on sea or land," the light of the ideal in the human heart, and this is what Tennyson had in mind when he urged men to "follow the gleam"

"Not of the moonlight, not of the sunlight;
Not of the starlight, O young mariner,
Follow the gleam."

Sometimes the future state is conceived of as an isle. So Tennyson puts into the mouth of Arthur, as he bids farewell to his friends, setting out on that last lone journey, the long, long trail—

"I am going a long way
To the island valley of Avilion
Where falls not hail or rain or any snow,
Nor ever wind blows loudly; but it lies
Deep-meadowed, happy, fair with orchard lawns
And bowery hollows crowned with summer sea."

What reason cannot prove the logic of the heart affirms. And the answer of faith to the fact of mortality is that there is this realm of light, this city of God, this "beautiful isle of somewhere." And that when God made man in His own image, He made him after the pattern of an endless life. It was said of Columbus "the instinct of another continent burned in his blood." The instinct is deep within us of another life. "He hath set eternity in our hearts." And this instinctive belief was voiced by Tennyson when he wrote:

"Thou wilt not leave us in the dust,
Thou madest man he knows not why
He thinks he was not made to die,
And Thou has made him, Thou art just."

Now all these aspirations of mankind assume their most beautiful form, and attain their highest fruition in Jesus. He took the terror out of men's hearts as they gazed into the cold face of the grim reaper, death. He changed humanity's vague yearning into a clear and blessed assurance. It is no mere fond dream but a well-grounded hope, which is yet to be most gloriously realized.

This is the message of Easter. The empty grave is the primary source of hope. It is the birth place of an indestructible belief that death is vanquished and that life is eternal. His resurrection is the promise and surety of the deathless life. It was from that rock-hewn tomb in the garden of Joseph of Arimathea there came the pure, calm faith of the disciples. And it is from that same rock-hewn tomb "empty amid the beauty of the lilies" that the world's highest hope also springs.

The music included a well rendered Easter anthem "This is the Day" (Stainer) and a beautiful solo by Mr. A. Lee. At the evening service the choir gave a beautiful, artistic rendering of the sacred cantata "Olivet to Calvary" (Maunder).

The pastor announced that anniversary services would be held next Sunday, at which Rev. Dr. W. T. G. Brown, Kingston, would preach, and Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw, Detroit, would sing.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH.

The Triumph of Redemption was Rev. A. J. Langford's morning subject. When God created the world he put man here to struggle, as in struggling it is the only way a man can create a moral character. Goodness is not compulsory, but it is blessed and divine and if God calls you friend you will hold fellowship with him.

Christ came as a little child into the very heart of humanity to be loved; he came not as a prophet but as a teacher loaned to us for a little time. Jesus grew and developed and we see him coming to John the Baptist to be baptized. He was baptized in the same manner as sinful men are, thus the only theory of atonement is identification. From there Christ went forth to preach, then came the night of the trial, there was no confusion, Jesus chose the way, he must needs see it to the end and thus they crucified him.

If Jesus had stopped when he bowed his head on the cross and gave up the ghost, the world would not have been saved, said the speaker. The disciples thought his life a failure, thus there was no hope, no redemption to them. The two women who went to the tomb early in the morning were of the same mind, they expected to find his body. When they got there and found the stone rolled, their first question to the Angel was, "Where have you laid Him?" and the answer was, "He is not here, he is risen as he said." Then the women got the first commission, "Go quickly and tell the disciples that he is risen from the dead and behold he goeth before you into Galilee. In Galilee the disciples received their commission to go and preach the gospel to all nations, "for lo I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

Mr. Langford concluded by saying: "To-day we have not had to go back to the first Easter morning but can hear him speaking to everyone now. He is the risen Christ, and if we listen to him, his Kingdom shall come and his Will will be done on earth as it is in Heaven."

There was a large congregation present to hear the Easter message and the music rendered by the choir was of a very high order, the anthems being: Resurrection Morn, Hosanna, and as It Began to Dawn. Miss Alma Blanchard sang a solo entitled Alleluia.

ST. ANDREW'S UNITED

Somewhere, somehow, sometime—a square deal for everybody. This was the message brought by Rev. James Gordon to the people of St. Andrew's United Church last night; a message that breathed the strength of Easter hope to all.

"Some people do not seem to have had a square deal," Mr. Gordon said, recalling instances of persons who had been apparently denied the good things of the world. He told of mothers in the slums; of millions born, living and dying, in heathen lands; of thousands of children living today without fathers who were killed in the Great War; of persons suffering grievous affliction all their lives; of aspirations blighted hopes deferred, loves denied. "There must be sometime, somewhere, somehow," he said, "when these things shall be straightened up by God. A debt of love is a debt that is always owing. Mother love has never been repaid. But there must be a kindly place where earth-worn mothers can rest and have their works follow them." This is the message of Easter, that disappointments and discouragements in this life are not final, but that the resurrection brings with it the assurance of better things.

There was special music by the choir, rendered under the efficient leadership of John Crane.

PRESIDENT OF GAS COMPANY

Miss Mary E. Dillon, who has been made President of the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company. She is the first woman to hold such a position. She has been with the company 23 years, starting as a clerk.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

The Easter Sunday services at St. Peter's Cathedral were attended by large congregations in every instance. The church was beautifully decorated for the special occasion, the high altar arranged with quantities of Easter lilies, pink roses and candelabra.

There were four Masses at the Cathedral yesterday morning, the last, a Pontifical High Mass, celebrated by His Lorship Bishop O'Brien, assisted by Rev. V. Corkery as deacon and Rev. C. McCarney as sub-deacon, and Rev. P. Butler and Rev. L. Cleary as honorary deacons. At the conclusion of Mass, the Bishop spoke on the significance of Easter, and also spoke in congratulatory terms of the attendance of the parishioners at the Lenten devotions, the excellent music rendered by the choir at this service, and the good work of the Sisters of St. Mary's Convent in decorating the altars and sanctuary.

The large choir of St. Peter's Cathedral, under the leadership of Mr. J. Minicolo, with Miss Hurley as organist, excelled itself yesterday in its rendition of a Liturgical Mass in C, the composition of A. Downey. The music of this beautiful Mass was rendered in splendid fashion by the choir, as was also the Regina Coeli, sung at the Offertory and repeated at the evening devotions, by a male sextette, composed of Messrs. J. Williams, J. Roche, J. Minicolo, W. Cook, Foley, J. J. Southern.

At the evening devotions, the Children's Choir also rendered in fine voice several Easter hymns, and a sermon on Easter was preached by Rev. P. Butler.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION.

High Mass was sung by the Rev. Father Guiry yesterday morning at the Immaculate Conception Church in commemoration of the resurrection of Jesus Christ. The Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl preached the sermon, while special music was rendered by the choir, under the leadership of Miss Humell.

And on the first day of the week, while it was yet dark, Mary Magdalene came to the tomb and she found the sepulchre empty. She ran and told Peter and John, who came unto the tomb and found it as Mary had said, said the speaker. Mary Magdalene then went into the garden, where she was found weeping by a man. Who was the Saviour, Whom she did not recognize, and Who said, "Woman, why weenest thou?" and she answered, "Because they have taken away my Lord and I know not where they have laid Him," and He said, "Mary," and she, upon recognizing Him, fell upon her knees and went, saying "Rabboni, Rabboni." Holy Scripture says," said the preacher, "that He first appeared to Mary Magdalen, who was once a great sinner, but who found happiness in the grace of God by repentance. So it is with us in our present day, those who sin and are penitent shall be forgiven, for what greater happiness can be found than that of a man with a clean conscience. For in this state he keeps away from sin and all occasion of sin.

"And secondly," said the preacher, "there is the love of our neighbor as we love God, for Holy Scripture says, 'He that loves God and hates his neighbor is a liar,' for how can a man profess to love God and hate his neighbor when all the people of this world are made unto His likeness? There is an old saying, and a true saying, that charity begins at home, that a man's first duty is to his household, but he also can earn the love of God by helping the poor and afflicted, for he that lives in the grace of God and loves his neighbor with his whole heart shall enjoy everlasting happiness in the kingdom of Heaven."

SACRED HEART.

The Church of the Sacred Heart was beautifully decorated for the solemn observance of Easter Sunday yesterday. It being the first Sunday of the month, was Communion Sunday for the Holy Name Society of the parish, and about four hundred members of this organization received Holy Communion in a body at the eight o'clock Mass, when the Children's Gregorian Choir rendered some lovely hymns, including "Strike, Strike the Harp," "Christ is Risen," and "Veni, Jesu Domine."

At the last Mass, a high Mass celebrated by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, with Rev. H. Black as deacon and Rev. J. Moloney as sub-deacon, beautiful music was finely rendered by the large choir, under the direction of Mr. John Armstrong, organist and choirmaster. The Mass sung was Hammerelle's Mass of the Blessed Sacrament, and the 'Regina Coeli' of Landrellotte was also splendidly rendered.

In the evening, Solemn Benediction was celebrated by Rev. J. Moloney, assisted by Rev. H. Black as deacon and Rev. C. McCarney as sub-deacon. The sermon was preached by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, and dealt with the significance of Easter, the reverend speaker dwelling on the proof given of the Divinity of Christ in His triumphant resurrection from the tomb.

GILMOUR MEMORIAL.

"The Significance of the Resurrection of Christ" was the subject of the sermon in Gilmour Memorial Church on Sunday morning. Taking as his text, Matthew 28, 6, "He is not here, for He is risen as He said. Come and see the place where the Lord lay." Rev. W. S. Edgar said:

"The word Easter is derived from the name of the Pagan Goddess of Light and Spring, in whose honor a festival was held every year in April. The very word Easter, like Sunday, is a monument of the power of Christianity to transform paganism. The resurrection of Christ is, as the apostles considered it, the very foundation of our Christian faith. If our Lord rose from the dead, there can be no doubt that He accomplished the lesser miracles recorded in the Gospels. If so, then He was Divine and all that He claimed to be.

"Our text is the angel's announcement of the glad fact of the resurrection to those sorrowing women who had come to pay their last respects to the sacred remains of their beloved Lord and Master.

"We Christians have been admonished by science to rest our hopes of immortality on the facts of Nature and not on an empty grave. But surely the facts of history are as trustworthy as the facts of nature and furnish a sure basis for faith and a valid source of illumination. The empty grave of our Lord is one of the best proved facts of history and is of the utmost significance to the entire human race. The graves of our dear departed ones are precious to us, not because they are empty, but because of what they contain. I stood at the grave of David Livingstone in Westminster Abbey. Why was I deeply moved? Because I remembered that there lay the mortal remains of one of the world's greatest benefactors. So it is with the graves of parents and friends. But one grave has imperishable glory because it is empty. What did this empty grave mean to the apostles themselves? Christ's death had dashed to the ground their fondest hopes. Then came the first Easter morning and the risen Christ moved in triumph in the world whereon He had been crucified. The sight of Him changed everything. The knowledge He was alive made them new men. They went everywhere preaching Jesus and the Resurrection. They testified that the Lord had brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel. What are the features of this immortality?

"It is a personal immortality. Poets and philosophers like Shelley preach a pantheistic immortality. They seek to satisfy our craving for eternal life by assuring us that at death we shall melt into the 'infinite azure' and live henceforth in the life of nature. But the empty grave reminds us that in perfected personality we enter on our life above. There is no scattering of the soul in the air, but as beings with consciousness, knowledge, will and affection do we live on High and live for ever. It is a personal immortality.

"2. It is an individual immortality. Each individual who trusts Christ and seeks to live the life of faith in the Son of God shall share it. Some people believe in an immortality that can only be called the immortality of patriotism. You know how national heroes and leaders live after death in the life of their country. Nelson, Wellington and Gladstone are household names in the Old Land although they have been dead for years. In Canada, you have Sir John A. MacDonald, Sir Wilfred Laurier and General Simcoe, who are still venerated. But this is far below the immortality pledged in the resurrection of Christ which is the resurrection to eternal life of the individual believer.

"3. Our Christian immortality is not that of Positivism. Auguste Comte tries to satisfy our craving for immortality by assuring us that we shall live in the life of humanity itself. The immortality that Easter brings is not that of Pantheism Patriotism or Positivism; not that we shall live again in the life of nature, of the nation or of humanity, but is a personal and individual immortality.

"The immortality of the New Testament is based on spirituality, not on intellectualism. Some are tempted to think there is a certain future for great men of genius, but that common people with no extraordinary powers will perish like the beasts of the field. But the whole significance of the resurrection of the Lord is moral and spiritual. If we are to share in the glory of His ascended life, we must know the power of His resurrection raising us from the death of sin to the life of righteousness."

RIOT SITUATION MUCH IMPROVED

Presence of Many Police and Soldiers Calms Calcutta Rioters.

MANY CASUALTIES.

CALCUTTA, April 5.— (Canadian Press.) — The situation between the rioting Hindus and Moslems was greatly improved to-day, the presence of many police and soldiers having a salutary effect. The arrest of forty-four Moslems for assaulting Assistant Police Chief Bannerjee brings the total Moslems in custody to three hundred.

The furious rioting between Hindus and Moslems which has lasted for three days in northern Calcutta resulted, up to late last night, in 23 deaths, and a great many wounded. Unofficial reports estimate casualties much greater.

It is difficult to get details of the disturbances. The disturbed area is enclosed by police and troops. The religious antagonists who started the fracas by obstructing a procession of Hindus were joined by roughs and several mosques and temples were attacked and desecrated. It is reported the police fired on the struggling mobs on one occasion. The rival religionists refused to be controlled by the leaders. The worst of the outbreak was quelled on Saturday by strengthening the police and soldiery.

Our country is the common parent of all. —Cicero.

TWO YOUNG LADIES LEAVING MILLBROOK

Misses Hattie Barnard and Dorothy Armstrong Receive Gifts.

MILLBROOK, April 5.—A large gathering, representative of the choir of the United church, the Mizpah Bible class, and the Golden Link Mission Circle, met at the home of Councillor and Mrs. R. Stinson on Wednesday evening and enjoyed a social occasion in honor of Miss Hattie Barnard who has been a faithful member of each of these organizations, and who is leaving the village because of her approaching marriage.

The choir met first and held its usual weekly practice, following which a "musical contest" was taken part in by all, and with social intercourse made the time pass pleasantly.

When suitable opportunity occurred Councillor Stinson called Miss Barnard forward under the arch separating the library and the drawing-room, and in his own inimitable manner made an informal address, expressing the general regret felt at the severing of her relationship to the choir, the class, and the circle, as well as her business connections in the community, and extending best wishes for her future happiness. On behalf of those present the bride-to-be was asked to accept the gift brought in by two little girls, Bernice Smith and Bryar Edmunds, a handsome pair of Kenwood blankets.

Taken completely by surprise the guest of honor found the situation a somewhat difficult one, but replied briefly thanking the friends for their tangible token of affection and goodwill. All joined in singing "For she's a jolly, good fellow." Mr. H. W. Johnston spoke on behalf of the choir, Mrs. P. Stinson for the Mizpah class, and Miss Burnham for the mission circle.

The hostess was assisted, during the refreshment hour, by Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, Mrs. F. W. Smith, and others, and shortly afterward the guests, with reiterated good wishes for the guest of the evening, and hearty thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Stinson for their generous hospitality, left for their respective homes.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Thorne entertained the officers and members of the Curling club at their home on Wednesday evening, supper being served at 7 p.m.

The event was in honor of the rink which recently went to Orillia to compete for the Carew cup, the members being H. B. Allen, W. G. Hetherington, Ross Edmunds, and J. Steele, skip. The local four were beaten by only three points, the score being 15-12.

Covers were laid for twenty guests, the table being most attractive with its floral decorations, and the menu being prepared with care and attention both to taste and satisfaction.

J. A. Vance, president of the Curling club, proposed the toast to Mr. and Mrs. Thorne, A. A. Smith, who is probably one of the charter members of the organization, responding. All joined in singing, "For they are jolly, good fellows," and others who spoke expressing the appreciation of the club for the hospitality extended were Messrs. H. R. Armstrong, Ross Edmunds, and J. Steele, the latter being also a charter member, and a veteran and successful skip.

Those present included: Messrs. R. H. Edmunds, H. B. Allen, J. Steele, W. E. Hetherington, Ross Edmunds, J. A. Vance, Jos. Lancashire, H. J. Grassett, W. Whyte, A. A. Smith, G. W. Sayles, J. N. McGill, W. F. Ball, H. R. Armstrong, P. Stinson, G. E. Burnham, C. C. Garside and L. C. Russell.

Mrs. G. W. Sayles and Mrs. Ross Edmunds assisted Mrs. Thorne in serving her guests. This was the first occasion for the curling club to have the pleasure of being entertained in a private home.

About forty of the young people of the community gathered at the home of Councillor and Mrs. G. W. Sayles on Tuesday evening for a farewell party in honor of Miss Dorothy Armstrong, who left for Detroit on Friday, and intends making her home in that city.

"Dot" has been a popular member of the younger set in the village and vicinity, having a place in its business life, and actively interested in sports of both the winter and summer varieties. Her removal leaves a vacancy that will not readily be filled.

Games and music made the time pass pleasantly and when an opportune moment arrived the guest of honor was given a seat in the midst of the company, and on behalf of her many friends, was presented with a solid leather steamer trunk, a sterling silver pie knife in the popular "Adam" pattern, and a big box of bon-bons. Miss Phyllis Richards read the address, Messrs. F. Gray and A. Jeffreys presented the trunk, and Miss S. McCorry the remaining gifts:

Miss Dorothy Armstrong, Millbrook.

Dear Dot—We, your friends, have gathered here this evening on the eve of your departure for Detroit, to express our regret and to wish you God-speed and every success, and happiness, in your new home.

During the years you have spent in Millbrook, you have endeared yourself not only to the girls and boys, but to the older folk as well. You have always had a smile for everyone, and you have always been ready to take part in any of the enterprises which the young people have undertaken.

As a small token of our high regard we ask you to accept these gifts. May they serve to remind you of the years spent in Millbrook.

Signed on behalf of your friends,
Frank Gray,
Amy Brock,
Phyllis Richards.

Suitable reply was made by Miss Armstrong, and after a dainty lunch had been served dancing and other entertainment was resumed until after the midnight hour.

THIRTY-TWO DIE IN GREAT FIRE

Tantah District of Cairo Swept By Blaze—4,000 Homeless.

CAUSING CONCERN.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 5 (Canadian Press). — Thirty-two persons are dead and four thousand homeless through a great fire which raged in the Tantah district on Saturday and Sunday. Six hundred odd dwellings were destroyed. The recurrence of village fires is causing concern. The Government is sending instructions to the local authorities on preven-

CHAPMAN ASKS FOR LIFE TERM

First Time in Criminal Career He Moved For Clemency.

LAST PLEA FAILS.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 5.—Failing again to get a stay of execution for a new trial, Gerald Chapman for the first time in his criminal career appealed for clemency when he signed a petition addressed to the Connecticut Board of Pardons, asking that the death sentence under which he is to be hanged early Tuesday for the murder of Policeman Skelly in New Britain, be commuted to life imprisonment.

The condemned man affixed his signature to the document. His counsel, former Magistrate J. Groehl of New York City, said only upon representations that a commutation might be his only chance to escape hanging and that the application, as distinct from a petition for a pardon, did not imply admission of guilt.

The step was decided upon by Chapman's lawyers after Judges Newell Jennings and L. P. Waldo Marvin of the Superior Court refused to listen to the testimony of New witnesses, which, Mr. Groehl declares, is strong enough to have prevented the mail robber's conviction if it had been available for his trial a year ago.

Eight affidavits were presented to the two judges in their chambers. Five of the witnesses who had made them were waiting in the court house corridor to be called. After examining their contents from noon until 1.08 p.m., Judge Jennings called the reporters in and said that he would not recommend that Governor Trumbull issue a fourth reprieve.

CONVENTION OPENS AT LOCAL CHURCH

Annual Missionary Meeting of Christian and Missionary Alliance.

The annual missionary convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance will be held in Bethany Tabernacle this week, the opening service being to-night at eight o'clock. A noted pioneer missionary to Palestine is being brought to Peterborough for this convention, Rev. E. O. Jago, one of the foremost missionaries among the Moslems. Rev. Jago served as an officer of the Red Cross during the Great War. He was attached to Lord Allenby's command during the campaign around Jerusalem, and went into Jerusalem with its conqueror on Dec. 9, 1917. Rev. Jago was invited to meet Lord Allenby in Ottawa, as an old campaigner with him.

When Rev. Jago tells of his labors among the Arabs his hearers are thrilled, and so well is he acquainted with eastern life that he seems to be a native himself. His story of the first break in the solid Moslem wall and the first public baptism of a convict is inspiring as is his story of how with great tact and cool nerve he collected clubs from the hands of men who had come to start a riot, and became master of a serious situation.

Mr. Jago is familiar with recent developments in the Near East, and has twenty-one years' experience of missionary service. To miss one of his addresses will be a permanent loss.

Dr. D. M. Cameron, pastor and Bible teacher on the faculty of the Canadian Bible Instiute at Toronto, will speak afternoon and evening. He will give a series of Bible studies from the Epistle of John, and from the Book of Psalms. Mr. Cameron has a wonderful faculty of making the Bible "live" to his hearers. He is a man of deep spiritual life and speaks from heart experiences with a special appeal to young people.

The convention will be under the direction of Mr. T. Watson, assistant superintendent of the Christian and Missionary Alliance for Canada.

Menus for the Family

(By Sister Mary.)

Breakfast—Cereal cooked with dates, thin cream, scrambled eggs with spinach, crisp bran toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Baked cheese, bran bread, cornstarch prune pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Chicken loaf, candied sweet potatoes, creamed onions, stuffed celery, vanilla ice-cream with maple sauce, sponge cake, whole wheat rolls, milk, coffee.

This time of year fowls are prone to be somewhat tough so to be on the safe side it's just as well to serve them some other way than "au naturelle." This chicken loaf is delicious and very little work to prepare.

Chicken Loaf.

One four-pound chicken, 1 loaf stale bread, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, butter, salt and pepper, 2 cups chicken broth.

Clean and disjoint chicken. Cook in boiling water until tender but not falling from bones. When tender remove from both and pick meat from bones. Carefully discard all skin and bits of gristle. Cut large pieces of meat into meat cubes not more than inch large. Pull the bread into coarse crumbs. Put a layer of crumbs into a well-buttered baking dish, dot generously with butter and cover with a layer of chicken. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and parsley. Continue layer for layer of crumbs and chicken until all is used, making the last layer of crumbs. Pour over chicken broth and bake 45 minutes in a hot oven.

ECLIPSE FASHIONS

Exclusive Patterns by Hazel Rayne

Two Materials Are Smarter Than One

Printed crêpe, in large floral designs, is fashionably combined with plain material in this interpretation of a smart afternoon frock. The circular panels in the skirt fall in graceful ripples from the low waistline, which is accentuated by a swathed girdle drawn into a round buckle at the center front. A tie collar festens above the V-shaped neck, and there are rows of shirring at the shoulders where the back comes over to meet the front. Long full sleeves are gathered into flaring cuffs at the wrists. No. 1306 is for misses and small women, and is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years, or (34, 36 and 38 inches bust only). Size 18 years (36 bust) requires 4¼ yards 39-inch for dress all of one material; or 1⅞ yards 39-inch plain, and 2¼ yards figured material for dress as illustrated. Price 20 cents.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE—

Like many others I am coming to you for advice. I had a boy friend of whom I was very fond, but he threw me over for my dearest girl friend. Now he is trying to come back to me, as my girl friend threw him down. Should I take him back or not. Hoping to see my answer soon, I am

SNOOKY.

SNOOKY: I would certainly advise you to have nothing to do with this young man. You must be rather spineless to even think of it. You say he threw you over for your girl friend, probably making you two enemies. Then the young lady, with probably more sense than you have, turned him down and now he comes back to you. Well, suit yourself. Probably you love him and don't care if he is rather a second-hand type of man. If you do take him back, try to land him quickly, otherwise he will probably forsake you again for the next young lady he happens to fancy.

THE CHINESE VASE

By Juanita Hamel

Dreams—dear dreams of bygone days. And although they've lain forgotten for years, the sight of the old Ming vase, with its dainty figurine, brings visions of the days when Tu-San, the geisha, was, in his eyes, the daintiest most adorable bit of femininity that ever was or ever would be. But East is East and West is West'—and the twain parted. But the dreams! Who can deny them? Who wants to? Cupid plays mischievous tricks but he sees to it that memory supplies his failings. So Tu-San dreams of "what might have been," and he visions his dreams. And the Ming vase contentedly squats on the mantelpiece and Life goes on.

HER OWN WAY

A GIRL of TODAY

A THREAT

"I was very happy, Julie. I thrust that letter of Tortentio's into my bosom and every time I moved I was conscious of the crackling of the paper and it sent a little glow all over me.

"I do not think I was ever so happy in all my life before that and I know I have never been so happy since. It almost hurt me, I was so afraid that it wouldn't last.

"Alas! It did not.

"But, I didn't know it then. All I could think of was that I could give my mother that extra ten dollars a week that I had promised her and yet I could take lessons in voice culture from this wonderful teacher. I thought to myself that no one else in all this world had ever had such good fortune before.

"Of course it never entered my mind that I wouldn't make good. I know I have a voice and if God will only let me some day show the world what I can do, I won't care whether I have happiness or joy or pleasure. I only want to sing.

"That afternoon I received orders from Madame Seria that Miss Lawrence would be at the shop and that I was to put on a number of frocks that she had seemed to like. Miss Lawrence came in alone, but she didn't come to try on frocks. She was perfectly furious. She asked for Madame Seria and told her, not in the politest manner, that she must discharge me or lose a customer.

"I was just outside the curtain waiting to be called and when I heard this I almost fainted. I saw all my rosy dreams being dissipated. If it came to a choice between Lola Lawrence and Mamie Riley, Madame Seria would certainly not keep me.

"Lola Lawrence probably spent more during the year than any one person among all Madame's wealthy customers.

"Nervously I began to unbutton the dress I had been going to model for Miss Lawrence, when I heard Madame say:

"'My dear Miss Lawrence, surely you will not ask me to let Miss Riley go when you know her story. I happen to know she is the only wage earner in her family and that she has a mother and an invalid sister to support. Surely you would not have me turn a girl like that out.'

"'She could easily get another place,' was the sullen answer of Miss Lawrence. 'I myself will give her a couple of hundred dollars to tide her over until she places herself, but I cannot have her here. I don't want ever to see her again. There's something about her that I cannot endure.'

TOMORROW: A Threat Answered.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A STUNNING TAILORED SUIT.

"I'm so thrilled that tailored suits are back in the height of fashion I don't know what to do."

This enthusiastic remark came from a youthful client who had stopped in to look over Madame's new showings.

"Anyone with your trim figure would be," I thought to myself, for of course there are some figures that don't show up to advantage in a garment so straight in outline as the tailored suit.

However, Madame can make even the straightest of garments becoming to almost anyone, for she knows how to cut things so as to hide defects and accent good points.

Anyway, the young lady who spoke was in no need of this, and she proceeded to take great interest in the suits.

I must say they present an interesting collection, for there are navy blue suits, black satin suits, white serge and rep suits, and finnael suits in every lovely pastel shade under the sun.

"If there's one thing I like more than another, it is a white suit," the young lady commented, eyeing an all-white model that I was showing.

"But you have an all-white kasha suit. How about this very attractive white rep outlined with black silk braid?" Madame asked.

Now the client in question is a young lady to whom one white suit means nothing She can have as many as she likes, just for the variety, so she didn't hesitate.

"Will you have one of the girls model it for me?" she asked of Madame.

Madame immediately sent the suit out to the model room for Gaby to try on, as it had been made to her measurements.

Gaby soon came strolling in. She wore a white English broadcloth blouse with a black tie, a medium sized white felt hat, and carried a flat shiny leather pocketbook. Gaby, too, has one of those interrogation mark figures, and she did look simply slick.

"Please have one made up immediately to my measurements," ordered the client. "And may I try the hat and order a pocketbook?"

This is the way Madame does business!

THE SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori.

When women understand the natural health and beauty requirements of their bodies they are just that much better equipped to care for themselves in the health and beauty way.

For instance, the tired child will be perfectly willing to go to bed without having its face washed first. The tired woman always takes time to wash or cold cream her face because she knows that the dust must be removed from her face if the pores are to be allowed to breathe as they should.

The same stipulations hold true in the care of your hair. If you once understand the underlying principles of caring for your scalp, as do the hair specialists who make this their business, then you will be better equipped to beautify your hair, to care for it in every way. I want all my readers to understand these underlying principles so they will know why they take the beauty measures that I advise, and for this reason I am going to mention the fundamental steps in caring for your scalp.

In the first place, the roots of your hair depend upon good, brisk circulation, for it is by this means that nourishment is carried to the roots. Thus when a woman allows herself to become run down her circulation becomes poorer and her hair immediately takes on a dull, deadened appearance.

So you can see how essential it is to keep your body in good health, for it affects even your hair.

Another thing, even the healthy person is prone to have a scalp which becomes very tight and hard if it is not loosened up occasionally by good massage.

In massaging the fingers should not be rubbed loosely over the scalp, but they should fasten firmly on the scalp and move it about.

Follow the massage by a good brushing. This cleanses the hair if your brush is perfectly clean and it also pulls the roots, which in itself is good to stir up circulation. In fact, men, who have short hair, will do well to pull their hair gently all over. This helps to strengthen it and is a treatment used to renew hair that is falling out.

Keep the circulation of your scalp brisk, your hair clean and you will be rewarded by the new beauty imparted to your hair.

PRINCESS BETTER.

Slight Improvement Noted in Health of King's Sister.

LONDON, April 5.— (Canadian Press.)—A slight but definite improvement in the condition of Princess Victoria, sister of King George, was reported by physicians to-day. She is suffering from influenzal pneumonia. Weakness remains great, however.

The longest high voltage system in the world, costing $1,000,000,000, is being planned to carry hydro-electric power from the St. Lawrence River and the Adirondacks to New England, northern New Jersey and New York.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

DRESS ECONOMY

By HEDDA HOYT

(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, April 5 (United Press).—The woman who is limited to a small dressing expenditure can be well dressed if she knows when to buy, how to buy and how to renovate the clothes that she has hanging in her closet. Clothes have never been cheaper but unless one has taste in buying and can artistically combine new materials with old ones, one is apt to look cheaply dressed.

Next door to me lives a little girl who could pass on the Atlantic City board walk for one of the elite. She spends $250 a year on clothing. I stepped in to see what steps she had taken toward her Spring wardrobe knowing that she is always a few steps ahead of the fashion season. I found that she had purchased sufficient clothes to carry her through the first Spring months for $29. Here's what she had:

A scarf choker of pastel yellow printed at the ends in rose, green and black cost $1.95. This was to brighten up last season's tan suit. A small green bankok hat similar to the popular felt shapes was edged in silver upholstery braid and had a flat silver flower appliqued at one side. The untrimmed shape originally cost $12 but was purchased in a basement for $3 because it had been damaged, the damaged portion now hid beneath the silver flower which cost together with the braid $1.00. A light green leather hand bag pressed in imitation of lizard skin cost $2.98.

A fawn-colored jersey jumper dress cost $7.50 at a small shop and the little lady had appliqued with silver thread a spray of imported vari-colored felt flowers on the pocket at a cost of seventy-five cents. A last season's black satin dinner frock which was embroidered in blue, gold and purple was renewed with huge purple chiffon sleeves which gathered into a wristband for $2.50. This gave her a dressy afternoon frock. Matching this was a black satin turban costing $2.95, trimmed with a nail-head shoe buckle costing fifty cents.

Last season's rose dance frock was renovated with five ruffles of tulle of matching shade at a cost of $4. Her silver slippers had new rose colored satin heels costing $1.50. A beaded gown of last season had it's skirt transformed into a jumper and one and one half yards of matching material formed a new circular hem. The material cost $2.50.

At a cost of $39 this young woman had 2 hats, 1 sports dress, 1 dance frock (renovated), dinner gown (renovated), day-time dress, (renovated) and renewed dance slippers.

Of course, one might say, "But the girl had something to start out with." And of course, she had. We all have but the trouble is we don't bother to make use of old things. My contention is that one can look mighty well dressed on $300 worth of clothes a year if one knows the art of color, of buying and of renovating. It isn't the amount of money spent which counts!

The Woman's Day

Written by a Woman for Women.

Touching brightly on woman's every major interest in life from books and babies to politics and psycho analysis.

(By Allene Sumner)

It Seems to Il

Women are more irritable than men, decides a medical man, because their knee jerk is more intensive and they kick higher in reflex than do men. You know that little stunt of doc's—hitting you below the knee and watching your kick. It seems that that tabulates the work of the spinal cord, and the higher kick signifies extreme nervousness.

People may have a right to their own ideas, but they have no right to expound them unless experience gives them knowledge. That's why a remark from Captain Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army about prohibition means something. She knows her stuff. "We no longer have drunks to feed," she says. "Our nightly room full of 'bench drunks' are putting money in the bank, and their children have shoes. Their wives no longer cry their eyes out over bruises given their children by drunken brutish fathers."

The Golden Wedding.

One hears, even in this day of marital discord, of so many old couples celebrating their 50 years together. Many daughters have asked for "tips" on celebration ideas. Try these:

Write the invitations in gold ink on gold-edged cards. For a spring golden wedding, nothing is so lovely for decorations as the spring yellow flowers — forsythia, daffodils, yellow crocus, yellow tulips. And nothing so lovely for a table centerpiece as just a huge bowl filled with the yellow flowers and fern. Gold-banded dishes or little gold lace paper doilies on the dishes make a pretty table. Orange sherbet with yellow frosted cake give the right note to the menu, and tiny white boxes tied with gold cord and filled with a piece of the wedding cake should be given the guests at parting.

"Read Me a Story!"

"My youngster clamors for animal stories, and my list is exhausted, writes "Mother of Three!"

Does your library contain Wiggin's "Tales of Laughter"; Kipling's "Just so Stories" and his "Jungle Book"; Pyle's "Wonder Clock"?

Whenever the gentle readers wish to purchase these books direct from publisher, if there is neither local library nor book store, a card of request addressed to me will bring the address.

Making Money.

It seems to be in the spring air, this feminine desire everywhere to "make some extra money." My mail is jammed with requests.

How about a bunch of young high school girls or young matrons giving a puppet show for the town's youngsters —and bigsters, too, for that matter? The equipment is not expensive, and with a little study you can give a good show. Procure McIsaac's "Tony Sarg Marionette Book"; Schneider's "Model Vaudeville Theater"; Joseph's "Book of Marionettes."

Style Tip.

If—and since—the tailored suit has come back, what about the crepe over-blouse? So far, not very visible!

Style-makers expect the two-piece suit to be worn as an ensemble dress, and the tucked-in blouse is really merely a vest, since only the front is supposed to show. Suit skirts are attached to camisole tops and vests can be easily pinned to them. But—when it's really warm, the girls will insist upon shedding their coats, and we prophecy that the stylists must give us over-blouses.

The Home Kitchen

By Jeannette Norton

BREAKFAST TRAY FOODS

Foods selected for the breakfast tray should be light and nourishing. The tray itself should be daintily arranged with fresh, clean linen. The fruit may be a tumbler of chilled orange juice, a half grapefruit very carefully prepared, baked apple, applesauce or stewed friut.

If a soft boiled egg is used, open it, add butter, pepper and salt, then put it in the egg cup and set the cup in a basin of hot water to keep it hot until served. Where toast is made, the crusts should be neatly trimmed off, buttered and placed on a hot dish under a cover so that it keeps hot. Coffee or tea should be in special small pots of their own.

Butter for the tray should be rather soft. Cream jugs must never be filled to over-flowing and glasses of milk or water only three quarters full.

If dry toast is served, cut it in fingers before placing on the hot dish. If the simple European breakfast of rolls and coffee are served, the rolls should be fresh and crisp, and the coffee the very best. Marmalade is often added to this simple breakfast.

Oranges may be served cut in halves to eat with a spoon, or pared and sliced, or peeled, the segments loosened and pressed together and set back in the skin cut down in quarters, the points turned in to form a decoration at the bottom. Grapefruit may be taken out of the white skin in as large pieces as possible and put into a glass which is set in cracked ice.

The dainty breakfast sets which shops are showing now in various colors and attractive design, go far toward making the breakfast tray something to look forward to. And they are so much handier than hunting around for china that will fit on the tray and which, when arranged, produces a more or less conglomerate effect. Some housewives have the sets to match the decorations of the guest rooms.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

B. M. H.—You have a good deal o heavy physical power and also a nervous anxious nature that is inclined to be changeable. What you should strive constantly to get away from is a real leaning toward morbid introspection. The out of doors is the best place for you to get to, especially when you become nervously tensed up about something that may never happen. You rarely do a thing because you see good resulting from it, but rather from dread of some imaginary evil that may transpire if you neglect to do it, so that even your happy moments are colored by this nervous anxiety of possible persecution from unseen powers. You have somewhat of the viewpoint of the Chinese, who are perpetually trying to propitiate malicious deities, bent on contriving the destruction of mankind. Instead of dwelling so much on these thoughts, try to think of all the noble and good forces that are constantly and successfully combating the powers of darkness and resolve to make of your life a constructive thing of good, rather than an existence that is spent mainly in trying to sidestep coming ills. You are quite keenly intellectual. Feed your mind with things of education and art and literature. Read good books and try to follow a consecutive line in study, instead of taking up new fads and then dropping them without a good reason. You were born on Thursday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are blue and silver.

Kitty: Although you have a gentle, affectionate disposition, you are quite lively and energetic in your ways, and are extremely fond of music and dancing, are quite sincere and have a very active brain. You are said by those about you to be stubborn, but if reasoned with, can readily see the rights and wrongs of any question. You like order and harmony in your surroundings, and should always try to have everything clean and neat about you, as opposite conditions affect your health unfavorably. You need a good deal of rest and quiet. You are restless and talk too much for your own good. You have not enough self-esteem and should cultivate more self-assertiveness. A conflicting element in your nature is a fickle, changeable quality that makes you very uncertain at most times as to just what you want to do. You will have to try to make up your mind carefully on any question, then stick to your decision. Changefulness is not an attractive quality in anyone. You would make a good cashier or bookkeeper. Do not give way to fits of melancholy and weeping. These will work you no good and control of them will give you much reliance. Imaginary worries are the cause of much of your unrest and nervousness. Dress in pale, delicate shades and give more attention to the details of your toilet. Marry a man born in September, October or July. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are gold and violet.

Etak: You have a sympathetic, friendly disposition, charming, but lacking efficiency. You have a natural bearing and are an animated and convincing talker. Being quite emotional, you are liable to extremes of great rage, and are inclined to be sulky when your dignity is offended. You are not naturally studious but are very observant, and learn much in this way, readily adapting yourself to circumstances and people around you. Although you have a great respect for law and authority, you do not wish to be commanded in any way, resenting orders of any sort. You are very devoted to your friends, who often impose upon you. Your actions are mainly guided by your emotions and impulses, but you can be depended upon to carry out what you believe to be right. You must associate yourself carefully with others in any enterprise. You will not achieve anything by trying to stand alone and should never attempt, either, to control the affairs of others. Try always to conquer your sensitiveness. Think, "Why should others wish to harm me?" Seek good cheer and sunshine at all times, and cheerful companionship. Marry a man born in November, March or January. February and September are your good months, Monday your lucky day, which was also your birthdate. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are gold and violet.

E. M.: You have neglected to give me the date of your birth, only mentioning the month and the year. Without this information, I cannot give you a reading.

Pansy: You are kind-hearted, generous and magnetic, with strong intuitions, which you should mostly follow, except when you are angry, for although you are naturally kind and loving, you are liable to rages in which you are not able to see matters clearly. You are rather sensitive and are sulky when offended. You often take a dislike to a person without a real cause and cannot conquer this tendency. You have a strong individuality and noble ideals. You are an ideal homekeeper and are fond of rich foods, which you should be careful about, as your stomach is your weak point. I find a good deal of similarity between your disposition and your husband's. You were born with a temperament exactly like his, charming, but rather fickle and changeable. I wonder if you two ever have these tendencies at the same moment? But your marriage has changed you to a certain extent, and you have found in home-making and in domestic service your forte. You make a very good wife. Try at all times to control your temper, learn the value of silence and the foolishness of arguing much about anything, and strive for poise and self-possession. Do not worry and take care of your heart, avoiding undue excitement and hard climbing. Like your husband, you were born on Tuesday and again like him, your color is pink. My best regards to you both.

Joe: You belong to the type of person that is said to be the strongest and the weakest in the world, endowed with great possibilities, which they do not always use to the best advantage. Naturally, you have a great deal of attractiveness in your makeup, both social and personal, but you are inclined with this to be vacillating and to lack stick-to-itiveness. The way in which you can best achieve success and happiness is in bringing joy and happiness to the lives of those about you, and you should be able to do this quite easily, as you are a good "mixer" and a broad judge of human nature. You make a very pleasant companion, quickly seizing and sympathizing with the other man's point of view. Your difficulty will be not in trying to be a good fellow, but in striving to not be too good a one for your own detriment. Learn even at this stage of the game, that perfect honesty and truthfulness are necessary to the characters of great men and women. Do not think so much of personal appearances in others and do not give way to indolence and materialism. Read good books and never make engagements that you do not intend to keep. You were born on Tuesday. Your color is pink.

A. F. B.: You have a friendly disposition and an affectionate tendency that makes you like people at once. A certain outspokenness in speech will get you into trouble, however, even with friends, if you do not watch it. At times you are very cautious and suspicious, preferring to know the worst at once and detesting secrecy or anything that savors of deception. You are quick tempered and impulsive and have a keen sense of humour. In finding success in life, you will have to associate your self at all times with others. You will gain nothing by trying to stand alone. You were born busy and remain busy at all times, having little patience with people who cannot keep pace with you and see your individual way of doing things. You mind your own business and keep your own secrets. Cultivate the faculty of not seeing little things that annoy and strive for calmness and repose, as your habit of hurrying will lead to worrying in time. Remember that other people were not born with your great regard for truth and do not depend too much on appreciation and gratitude. Marry a man born in April, August or November. You were born on Thursday, your lucky day. The date you ask about is past. Your colors are grey and scarlet.

Daffodil: You were born with a strong, self-centred nature, active and daring, but inclined to disregard the rights of others and to domineer whenever you have the chance. The way in which you can turn this strength of nature to best account is by the road of service to others. You would make a splendid nurse. You have much natural dignity and make friends readily when you wish, having the knack too of freezing up hard when you wish to do so. When your sympathies are aroused, you are kindly disposed, but you feel at most times that your own interests require all your attention. You have a good deal of control over the minds of others but little power over your own impulses. You are impulsive and headstrong and are very impatient of results. Fits of energy alternate with you with fits of laziness in which you want to do absolutely nothing. You have reverence for persons in authority and not much sympathy for those who fail in life. When angered, you have a high temper and should always avoid excitement and should guard too against a slight tendency to jealousy. You have an undercurrent of sentiment in your nature which you are rather ashamed of, and much fondness for music of a weird type. Your mind being always at work, you are at most times restless and dissatisfied. You were born on Monday. Your color is flame. The day you enquire about is past.

Tibbie—You were born with a decided leaning toward mental and scientific knowledge and achievement and your life has not conflicted with this, although you may not have always paid as much attention to these things as you might have done. You have had many demands on your understanding and sympathy as you walked through the world and a good deal has been expected of you. Possibly you might have done more in the way of lessening the burdens of those about you. Although you have warm sympathies when aroused, you are inclined to consider your own affairs of paramount importance. Try to get away from this viewpoint, if possible. You will have a fuller life if you take more interest in the woes of others, not the interest that makes you feel only sorry and helpless, but an active, practical interest that stretches out a helping hand whenever possible, in mental and spiritual, as well as in physical matters. You have always had periods of energy in your life when you were very industrious, and these alternated with fits of laziness when you wished to do absolutely nothing. You have a good deal of control over the minds of others but not much over your own impulses, which are inclined occasionally to be wayward. You are very fond of the water. Your mind is rarely at rest and is nearly always unsatisfied. You should get a good deal of rest. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are tan and buff.

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER FIVE — THE MONEY ON THE WALL

"Excuse me for a minute, please," said Mrs. Cracknuts, the squirrel lady, bustling out of her parlor to get the rent money.

"Just sit down! Sit down," said Daddy Cracknuts, hospitably motioning the visitors toward chairs with his hand.

Mister Tingaling, the fairy landlord, sat down in the green plush chair, and Nick sat down in the red plush chair and Nancy sat down in the blue plush chair. Daddy himself sat down in his old easy chair and filled his pipe.

"I'm sorry I can't afford to paper the dining room this year for Mrs. Cracknuts," apologized the fairyman. "I'm sorry if it's all brown in spots from the maple syrup that has soaked through the walls. But that's the trouble with maple-tree apartments—especially in the spring."

"Yes, I know," nodded Daddy Cracknuts. "But don't worry, sir! Women are too fussy. It doesn't bother me one bit what kind of paper is on the walls of the dining room. The only thing that worries me is the kind of food that is on the table of the dining room." And the squirrel gentleman laughed and laughed at his own joke.

Mister Tingaling looked at his watch uneasily. Time was going and there was no sign of Mrs. Cracknuts returning. Could it be that she could not find the dollar for the rent money?

But just then in rushed that lady herself. "Oh, dear! Oh, dear me! Gracious, goodness, mercy on us, land alive!" she cried. "Somebody has done something dreadful! Just come and see! It's right out in the dining room. Oh, dear me!"

Out rushed Mister Tingaling and at his heels were Nancy and Nick and Daddy Cracknuts.

"Look!" Mrs. Cracknuts. "Look! Someone has pasted my dollar bill right onto the wall paper and I can't get it off."

What she said was true. There on the wall, right where it showed the most, a dollar bill in fairy money was pasted on the wall paper.

Mister Tingaling looked as though he'd hit his crazy bone or lost a diamond ring, or was going to have a tooth pulled or something. How was he ever to get his rent money now?

But Nick had an idea. "I'll take my knife and get it off," he said. "I can scrape it off."

"But you'll ruin the wall," cried Mrs. Cracknuts. "You'll have to cut a great big piece right out of the wall paper! And that would look horrible. I never could live in a house that had a big piece cut out of the wall paper!"

Mister Tingaling looked at his rent money, then he said, "Go ahead, Nick. Scrape off the bill, and I'll see that Mrs. Cracknuts gets new paper put on her dining romo this spring."

Nick got the money off and Mister Tingaling put it into his big pocketbook, and Nancy wrote out a receipt for the money and handed it to Mrs. Cracknuts, who was fairly dancing with joy over the good news.

Everybody said good-bye and then Mister Tingaling and the Twins went down in the elevator.

"It must have been the bad little goblin or the Gazookumses who played that trick," said the fairyman thoughtfully.

"Yes, it must be," said Nancy and Nick.

At that very minute Mrs. Cracknuts was laughing to herself as she carefully put away a bottle of glue.

"What Daddy doesn't know, won't hurt him," she chuckled. "But there are more ways than one of getting what you want in the world."

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

PEGGY HAS A CHAT WITH MRS. TIGER SWALLOWTAIL

"Oh, oh!" Peggy exclaimed when she caught sight of the beautiful butterfly hovering around the goldenrod. "What a lovely fellow! I'd like to know who are you?"

"Why," chuckled the pretty brown, yellow and black butterfly, "I'm Mrs. Tiger Swallowtail Butterfly. Have you seen my youngster around here any place?"

"No, I haven't," replied Peggy. "I'm mighty glad to know you, Mrs. Tiger Swallowtail. Where in the world did they find such a queer name for you?"

"Well, I guess I get the tiger part from the way my wings are marked, and of course if you've ever seen a swallowtail butterfly, you'll notice my wings are shaped like theirs," laughed Mrs. Tiger Swallowtail Butterfly.

"Your wings do run down to a tail just like Daddy's evening coat," laughed Peggy. "They do look like wee little swallowtail coats. About your baby, was she around here some place? Did she look like you?"

"Goodness no," laughed Mrs. Tiger Swallowtail Butterfly. "You'd never in the world connect her with me at all. Why, there she is right now."

Mrs. Tiger Swallowtail Butterfly flew down on a weed right near Peggy beside a queer looking caterpillar.

"Where in the world have you been?" she asked merrily. "Peggy, this is one of my youngsters. Do you see any resemblance to me?"

"Where Did you Get Your Name?"

Peggy looked at the funny looking caterpillar and laughed.

The queer looking caterpillar had a head that looked very much like a snake and when she raised the front part of her body, drew her queer looking head back and shot out her little slender scent organs, Peggy stepped back. The rings of her body just back of the head were rather swollen looking and the two large circular marks on them resembled eyes.

"Well, no wonder I said I'd never seen your children," laughed Peggy. "I never in the world would have taken this caterpillar for one of your babies."

"Another queer thing about my family," said Mrs. Tiger Swallowtail Butterfly, "is, a mother can never tell when she lays her eggs, whether her young caterpillars will look like her or not after they make their final change."

"Why, how's that?" Peggy asked. "I always thought the young butterflies looked like their mothers."

"Not in the Tiger Swallowtails," replied Mrs. Tiger Swallowtail Butterfly. "Now that child there is just as liable to be black with her hind wings touched with lines of blue, bordered with crescents of yellow and orange. I laid quite a number of eggs and there's no telling how many of the butter flies will turn out to look like me. I hope this caterpillar will look like me. Well, I must be on my way," and waving her beautiful yellow and black wings she sailed away.

Peggy watched the curious caterpillar until her Mama called her to lunch and when she went back to the garden after lunch, the queer looking baby had disappeared.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

NURSERY NOTES.

Washing a baby is often a trying experience for a young mother. There has appeared a most up-to-the-minute dressing table. On the right hand side there are two drawers for clothing, at the left an open space to set the basket in. The top lifts up and, though apparently solid, it works on a swivel to allow a canvas shelf to come up and, upon this the baby is bathed. There is a four-inch space underneath where all the jars, boxes and bath materials may be kept. At the left side of the stand there is a drop shelf with a little rack around it upon which the things may stand during the bath when they are needed. When the bath is over, the canvas shelf is swung underneath and the solid top takes its place.

Then there are little double clothes trees to match to hand the wee garments upon, and a chair just the right height and of the right width to use when bathing the baby. The chair is higher than ordinary ones, but this is necessary to reach the canvas shelf comfortably.

The baby pillow has never had such alluring cases as those provided by the specialty shops this season. The finest of the Italian cut work is used with the filmy lace ruffles and edges, Venetian embroidery and lace motifs, delicate French laces and embroidery that is fine as a cobweb, all showing at their best over the delicate slips of dainty silk underneath.

WHILE MOM'S AWAY

The icebox has been raided; there are crumbs upon the floor. There once was good food stored away—that isn't any more. The kitchen sink is all messed up with dirty plates galore. Oh, can't you hear the shrilly shriek of children's voices soar?

The quilts out in the bedroom show faint footprints on the top. The springs are squeaking loudly as a jumping tot goes flop. The curtains, due to tugging hands, are just about to drop. Why is it little youngsters never know just when to stop?

The dining room and living room have added to the joys of peppy little youngsters who are making lots of noise. In every nook and corner three are games and books and toys. You can't expect a kid to know a thing like that annoys.

It's just the chance that seldom comes, so kids do things up brown. The house is like a riot and completely up side-down. They dare the little spanks ings, and they risk the sigh and frown that mother's gonna register, when she comes home from town.

MAIL DROPPED BY PARACHUTE

When airplane mailing facilities are fully developed it will be necessary to provide some means of dropping mail without stopping the plane. Experiments are being conducted in England using parachutes attached to bags of mail and dropped from great heights into roped-off areas known as air mail "letter-boxes." The parachutes open after the mail has been dropped a short distance and the mail weight is sufficient to direct the descent fairly acurately to within the inclosure.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

One of the most disagreeable of the common diseases of adult life is known as "Rigg's disease" or "pyrorhoea." This is a pus infection of the gums. The tissues become soggy and inflamed. The gums draw away from the teeth and, losing the support of these structures, the teeth get loose.

You can see that the pus poured out from the diseased tissues in this region must be swallowed. Taken into the stomach, it makes it easy to have infection carried to other parts of the body.

No matter what may be the original location of pus production, the whole system is in danger while there is pus anywhere. Every person who has pyorrhoea is in danger of other ailments, worse than the first trouble.

I doubt if the gums would acquire this disease if there were not a lowering of resistance from some cause. Nature is very generous to those who obey her rules. She is very resentful of disobedience.

Before considering what may be done in the treatment of pyorrhoea, you should make a survey to find out what is wrong with your habits and what disturbances are involving other parts of the body.

An Ohio reader has written me about the use of ultra-violet rays in the treatment of this disease. He asks: "Is the use of the ultra-violet rays in the treatment of pyorrhoea safe and effective, and, if so, under what methods and conditions should it be applied?"

If I were to outline the rules of procedure in the conduct and control of Rigg's disease I think I should establish this order.

1. Make a thorough examination of the victim, to determine if ears are free from discharge, if the nose and nasal sinuses are without serious catarrhal condition, if the stomach, gall bladder, liver, kidneys and intestines are performing as they should.

2. An investigation to determine if exercise, fresh air, sunlight, good water and proper food are the habitual possession of the victim.

3. To make sure that the teeth are clean, free from tartar and other deposits, and without abscess or cavity.

4. Lastly, to select some method of cleaning and stimulating the diseased gums.

These four steps are essential to the removal of pyorrhoea. Among the agents which may be employed to supply local stimulation, I include the ultra-violet rays.

Pleasant and prosperous conditions are the presage of this day's ruling planetary operations. This applies to all manner of business and financial activities as well as holds sway in all that pertains to heart and home affiliations. There is likely to be a welcome change after the removal of some long obstructing condition. It may be a good time for the renewal of old associations and contracts.

Those whose birthdays it is may anticipate a pleasant and prosperous year, with a pleasant change following the removal of an old obstruction to happiness and endeavour. The financial outlook is good for renewal of old contracts and old friends and scenes will give social gratification. A child born on this day should be ambitious, generous, popular and respected. It may also be industrious and inclined to invention and metaphysical research.

THIRD GAME OF THE STANLEY CUP SERIES WON BY VICTORIA AFTER MAROONS CRACKED UNDER STRAIN

Montreal Took Early Lead, But Wilted When Cougars Got a Break.

CHANCES IMPROVED

Tonight's Game Under Western Rules—Maroons Appeared Stale.

MONTREAL, Que., April 5. — (Canadian Press).—After having the Stanley Cup and world's pro-hockey honors practically cinched, the Montreal Maroons cracked in the third game of the series Saturday night, and Victoria Cougars, defending champions, battled to a 3-2 win. The victory, coming under Eastern rules and with the fourth game tonight to be played under the Western code, has brought the Westerners from rank outsiders to almost even favorites with the Maroons as probable winners of the series.

Despite the mental hazard of having dropped the first two games and being one goal down early in the third tussle, after Siebert had scored on his own rebound little more than three minutes after the start of the battle Saturday night, the Cougars, far from being tamed, fought like wildcats. They evened the score in the last minute of the first session on a soft goal by Slim Halderson, who shot from the blue line. Benedict ducked his head as the disc went whistling over the top of the net. The puck struck the wire netting in front of Goal Umpire Dave Ritchie and bounded back to the top of the netting on the Maroon goal. It balanced there for a moment and, as Benedict was turning around to look for the puck, the rubber took a slow fall into the goal.

Maroons Off Stride.

Right there Victoria won the game. The break in their favor gave them the start for which they had been searching since the beginning of the series. It was their first tally and gave them the heart. They opened up in the second period with rushes that were irresistible, for the Maroons were taken aback by the reverse. Tired after a strenuous five-week campaign, the Montrealers could not regain their true stride. They became disorganized defensively, and before they could tighten up Clem Loughlin, leader of the coast team, had come in unmolested in the second period to bat in the rebound on a shot from Frederickson. For the first time in three games Victoria were in the lead. There was no holding them. They outskated the jaded Maroons until half way through the final session when Frederickson, speedy centre of the visiting team, clinched the game completely, tying the Maroon defense and outguessing Benedict.

Montreal fought back. The Cougars went to a defensive game to hold their margin. They tied up one Montreal rush after another with a stubborn, guerilla-like barrier that could not be beaten. Five minutes before the end of the game, the Maroons got back to within one goal of the cup defenders, Stewart taking a back pass from Siebert to shoot from outside the defence. The final five minutes was a procession around the Victoria goal, but the tying counter would not come and the game ended with Benedict being forced to make a brilliant save to prevent Russell Oatman from adding to the coasters' margin.

Shock to Crowd.

The defeat came as a distinct shock to the crowd of over 10,000 spectators, practically all of them supporters of the local team, who were out fully anticipating a Maroon victory and determined to be among those present to witness the Montreal players cop their first Stanley Cup series. Siebert's first goal looked like the start of the finish of the series and the crowd roared its delight. The rooters fairly burrowed into their seats with a disappointed gasp when Halderson sniped his lucky counter to even the count. They implored the Maroons to score in the second session, and when Clem Loughlin put Victoria one up and the Maroons were apparently unable to furnish a scoring punch, the rooters became apprehensive and started to exhort the local stars to "play hockey."

WON DETROIT RACE.

40 Year Old Runner First in Marathon.

DETROIT, April 5.—Running in a blinding snowstorm over icy highways, Percy Wyer, 40 years old and weighing only 98 pounds, won the annual Irish-American Pontiac-to-Detroit race Saturday in 2 hours 51 minutes 30 seconds. Wyer ran under the colors of the Monarch Athletic Club of Toronto, Ontario. The distance was 26 miles, 285 yards.

Arne Sourminen of Chicago finished second, three minutes behind Wyer. Charles Morton, who had held the lead for 21 miles, barely finished, taking third. He represented the Hamilton (Ontario) Y.M.C.A. Strom, Detroit, was fourth, and Robert May Toronto, was fifth.

So unpropitious for marathon racing was the weather that only two of the 24 officials were present when the race started. The worst blizzard of the year was driving at the runners' backs and a dropping temperature laid an icy course.

Morton ran a pretty race until the 21st mile, when his willing pace told on him and Wyer forged into the lead and was never afterward threatened.

Ott is a catcher "by trade" but his hitting and fielding ability has so impressed McGraw that it is planned to develop the tot into an outfielder.

VANCE CRUSHED BY THE YANKS

Nine Hits and Nine Runs in Third Inning Dimmed Dazzler.

BROTHER AMAZED

ATLANTA, Ga., April 5.—The destructive Yanks pulverized the high-toned pitching of Dazzy Vance at Spiller Field Saturday, while inflicting their sixth straight defeat on the Robins. The runs were distributed, 11 to 5.

Dazzy took a bruising lacing in the third, when the surcharged Yankee clubs jarred him for nine hits and as many runs. The batting of the Huggins lads has become delirious. The Robins are hanging on the ropes.

There came all the way from Guide Ridge, Neb., Bill Vance, a brother of Dazzy, to see him pitch. Bill could hardly believe his eyes. It was the first time he has ever seen Brother Dazz fling in the big leagues and he wasn't so sure that it was his brother after all.

After Dazzy had been carefully tucked away in warm blankets, George, Boehler served a ball up to Babe Ruth when the count was three and nothing. Babe pumped the ball high over the right-field fence which is perched on the top of a hill.

Blow Clears Everything.

The ball the Babe hit went over the hill, over the fence and over everything else within a quarter of a mile outside of the park.

The Robins popped Pennock for three hits and separated him from two passes in the first of the third, which gave them a three-run lead. It was the first time the Robins were in front in more than a week and they were feeling happy until the volcano of Yank hits started to erupt.

Turn the pitiless glare of publicity on that third inning. Koenig singled and Combs doubled, both scoring on Gehrig's single. Ruth singled. Maranville bobbled Meusel's grounder and Gehrig scored. Lazzeri's single propelled Ruth and Meusel over. Dugan singled and Tony and Joe scored on a whistling double by Collins. Pennock fanned for the first out, but Koenig hit through the box, his second of the inning. Combs got his second safe rap of the inning, scoring Collins. Koenig scored while Gehrig was being thrown out and the carnival ended when Ruth grounded out to Fournier.

The inning was quite a shock to Vance and his brother Bill and in the next inning George Boehler went to the mound. Boehler is an old-timer and has pitched in almost every town on the Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroads.

TAMPA TRACK CLOSED.

Small Patronage and Bad Weather.

TAMPA, Fla., April 5 (Canadian Press)—The ponies will not run at Tampa any more this season despite the fact that the meeting was scheduled to continue for another race.

Horse racing was terminated abruptly here Saturday by officers of the West Coast Jockey Club when Harvey Myers, president, gave instructions to close the meet on account of recent small patronage and bad weather. He denied reports that his decision to close the track was caused by the action of R. L. Chancey, county solicitor, who filed information charging violation of the anti-gambling laws against forty officials and employes of the club.

SHEIKS WIN GAME AND OTTAWA ROUND

Defeated Senators 7 To 5 on Saturday Night.

OTTAWA, April 5 (Canadian Press).—Playing brilliant and spectacular hockey from start to finish the Saskatoon Sheiks wound up their post-season exhibition series with the Senators here Saturday night by scoring a well-earned 7 to 5 victory. The visitors gave an impressive display and were good value for their two goal margin on the game and their 10 to 9 victory on the round, having lost the first game Thursday by 4 to 3.

Hooley Smith gave the Ottawas an early lead, but Bill Cook evened the score before the first period ended. In the middle frame the westerners went on a scoring bee and were leading 5 to 3 at the second rest. Each team tallied twice in the final twenty minutes.

Although playing under the eastern rules, the Sheiks capitalized every opportunity to make the best possible use of their forward passing game, and in this manner killed the usual solid defensive game of the locals.

Bill Cook and Laurie Scott divided the scoring honors for the winners, Cook beating Connell for four tallies, while Scott took the other three. This pair and Bourgeault shone for the westerners with Clancy and Neighbor standing out for the locals. The game was replete with sensational plays by the rival goalers.

"STUFFY" McINNIS.

Made major league debut with Athletics in 1909. In 1918 traded to Red Sox. In 1922 went to Cleveland, being unconditionally released at close of same season. In 1923 signed with Boston Braves, being unconditionally released just prior to start of 1925 campaign. Signed with Rittsburgh late in same season. Started in as shortstop, but later switched to first base.

Has been consistent .300 hitter, having best year in 1925, when he turned in a mark of .368, though only taking part in 59 games.

Has been in five world series, three with the Athletics, one with the Red Sox and the other with the Pirates.

He's best remembered as one of that famous quartette of Mack infielders known as the "million-dollar infield."

WALTER BUETTZENBACH

This college athlete likes to play on winners. During his athletic career at Peru (Neb.) Normal he has been with six championship outfits. For three years he was all-state fullback and this winter captained the basketball team which copped the Nebraska Conference title. Over a certain stretch the cagers had a run of 54 straight victories. Buttzenbach playing in every one.

TREASURY OF ONTARIO BASEBALL DEPLETED MORE THAN $2,000 LAST YEAR BY DECLINE IN RECEIPTS

Grants to Minor Series Also Accounted for Season's Deficit.

$3,618.45 BALANCE

Sudden Death Games Ordered in Intermediate Sectional Playoffs.

(Special to the Examiner.)

OSHAWA, April 5. — With baseball moguls from all parts of the Province of Ontario, coming from as far as Windsor in the west, Ottawa in the east, Copper Cliff in the north, and many intermediate points, the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association's 1926 season was officially opened on Saturday with the annual meeting in Toronto.

The officers elected for the coming season are as follows:

President, W. J. Snyder, Hamilton; 1st Vice-President, W. H. Farrell, late of Sudbury, but now of Toronto; 2nd Vice-President, G. S. Marain, London; Secretary, A. J. Walsh, 91 Quebec avenue, Toronto; Treasurer, C. K. Jutten, Hamilton; A. A. U. of C. Governor, P. M. Kennedy, Toronto; Executive Committee, John G. Nott, Oshawa, William Wiley, Ottawa; Arthur, Hillman, Oakville; W. A. Smith, Galt.

Two more members are to be appointed by President Snyder and the likely choices are Jack Turner, Toronto, and Hugh C. Maquire of St. Catharines.

Secretary Walsh in his report spoke of the splendid assistance of those who looked after the various playdowns of the championship series of last season, saying that sixty-eight league winners had to be looked after before the following champions in the six series of the Association were declared:

Senior Division, Copper Cliff. Nickel Belt League; Intermediate Division, Goodyears, Lake Shore League; Junior Division, McCormicks, Toronto Playgrounds; Juvenile Division McCormicks, Toronto Playgrounds; Midget Division, Guelph; Bantam Division, Elizabeth H. S., Toronto Playgrounds.

Deficit of $2000.

Treasurer Jutten in his financial statement, reported a bank balance of $3,618.45, as compared with $5655.34 of a year ago. The deficit on the year's operations amounted to over $2000, the larger portion of which went to paying umpires in the minor series and grants to them as a help for travelling expenses.

The receipts from the senior championship series fell away below that of the previous season, but although no surplus was shown in the Toronto-Osler at Kingston game, the game played in Toronto, and the final at Oshawa turned in more money to the O.B.A.A. treasury than any other series, $102.07 more than the London-Dresden series. In the minor series, Eastern Ontario were also the leaders in making returns, as the game of the Kingston Six Circle Juniors played at Belleville, and the same two teams playing at Picton sent in a total of $14.55, while the Oshawa Motors-Cedardale play off, and the Oshawa Motors-Toronto McCormicks at Oshawa forwarded a total of $88.63.

New Legislature.

In the new legislation enacted at Saturday's meeting the Ontario executive was given over to group senior teams. The Intermediate clubs qualifying for Ontario play-offs are to be divided into four sections, viz., East, West, North and Centre, with sudden death games in each section; while in the semi-finals and finals home and home games are to be scheduled for the Juniors, Juvenile, Midget and Bantam playdowns.

The clubs are to be divided into two sections, East and West, with sudden death games to be played until the semi-finals and finals are reached, when home and home games are to be arranged.

The amount of mileage to be paid in the Senior series is to be curtailed to read 15c a mile up to one hundred and fifty miles, and after that 10c a mile.

The meeting voted strongly against the different Leagues arranging a schedule and then having a play-off between the first, second and third teams, as it smelled of too much commercializing baseball as regards gate receipts.

Delegates were present from Peterborough, Belleville, Ottawa, Port Hope, Picton and Oshawa of Eastern Ontario.

HOPPE YIELDS TITLE

NEW YORK, April 5 (Canadian Press). — Willie Hoppe billiard champion for almost two decades, relinquished the last of his titles Saturday night to Jake Schaefer of Chicago by losing the final block of a 3,600 point match for the world's 18.1 balkline crown, 300 to 230. The final score read Schaefer, 3,600; Hoppe, 2,926.

Giants and Athletics Are Favorites In Wall Street

NEW YORK, April 5 (Canadian Press).—The New York Giants and Philadelphia Athletics have been installed favorites in the forthcomonig major league pennant races by Wall Street.

One firm of betting commissioners reported general wagers at odds of 8 to 5 on the chances of these two teams.

The world's champion Pittsburgh Pirates and the Washington Senators, American League titleholders, ruled second choices in wagers placed by the same firm. The odds were 9 to 5 against in each case.

FLEET AFOOT

EDGAR HOUSE

One of the most promising athletes on the University of Southern California track team this season is Edgar House. He's a sprinter, specializing in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. The Trojans expect him to garner many points during the outdoor campaign.

FIRPO WON FROM SPALLA ON POINTS

Argentine Disappointed Followers in Buenos Aires.

BUENOS AIRES, April 5 (Canadian Press).—Luis Firpo proved a disappointment to his followers here Saturday night in a 12-round bout with Erminio Spalla, the Italian heavyweight champion. The Argentine champion won on points, but failed to display anything like his former driving power. There was much clinching throughout the fight, and Spalla, who was 35 pounds lighter than Firpo (Firpo weighed 228) showed streaks of aggressiveness that might have spelled disaster for the South American had not the bell given him timely grace.

Only in the sixth and eighth rounds was there any outstanding action. In the sixth Firpo landed heavily to the body and head and had his opponent groggy. Spalla battled gamely too, withstanding the rain of blows, but for a few seconds it seemed as though he would not weather the storm.

In the eighth he landed on Firpo's jaw, and with some hard swings and straight punches sent Firpo to the ropes. Firpo appeared dazed and took a lot of punishment before the bell.

PIRATES SNOWBOUND.

Last Week's Practice on Eastern Trip.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 4.—The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates arrived here Saturday from Kansas City, where they had been marooned by snow for several days.

"We left twelve inches of snow behind us and the players have not been in uniform since we left Los Angeles last Sunday," said Manager McKechnie. "We will remain here until there is a break in the cold weather now prevailing in the North."

KARRY'S IN MONEY

TOLEDO, Ohio, April 5 (Canadian Press)—The Karry's Recreation Club, of Toronto, Ont., bowled into a share of the prize money in the five men event of the American Bowling Congress tournament here Saturday night with a score of 2857. The single game scores were 918, 926 and 977.

"LITTLE, BUT OH, MY!"

"HACK" WILSON, LEFT, AND "SPARKY" ADAMS.

AVALON, Catalina Island, March 24.—"They're little, but oh, my!" Such is the expression one hears when reference is made to "Hack" Wilson and "Sparky" Adams of the Chicago Cubs. They are two of the smallest players in the National League, but Manager Joe McCarthy and followers of the team are counting strongly on the pair this season. Wilson is an outfielder, while Adams cavorts around second base.

TEAMS RETURN TO THE NORTH

Yanks and Brooklyn Oppose Each Other in New York Saturday.

OPENING IN WEEK

NEW YORK, April 5. — After spending six weeks or so in the Southland, the Yankees and Robins will return to New York this week. Followers of these two teams will get a chance to see them in action next Saturday, when they meet at the Yankee Stadium in one of their big usual Spring exhibition games. The final game of the long series between the Yankees and the Robins will be played at the Yankee Stadium on next Sunday. The two teams will then enjoy a day of rest before opening their regular season a week from next Tuesday.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the Yanks and Robins will oppose each other at Asheville, N.C. From that town they will go to Charlotte, N.C., where they will play on Thursday. Their last game before returning to this city will be played in Richmond, Va., on Friday. They will leave that night for New York, arriving here on the following morning.

Following the completion of their series with the Robins at the Yankee Stadium, the Yanks will go to Boston to play their first regular game of the season with the Red Sox a week from Tuesday. This series will consist of four games and they will then go to Washington to meet the Senators a week from Saturday. This series also will consist of two games. The Yankees will then return to New York to open their home series with the Red Sox on April 21. Four games will be played here with the Boston club.

The Giants will resume their series with the Senators to-day at Birmingham, Ala. On Tuesday and Wednesday the Giants and their American League rivals will oppose each other at Augusta, Ga. On Thursday they will go to Atlanta for a single game. On Friday they will move to Norfolk and on the following day they will clash in Washington. The final game of the series between the Giants and the Senators will be played in Washington next Sunday.

First Game a Week From Tuesday.

Following their final game in Washington next Sunday, the Giants will return to this city to open their regular season at the Polo Grounds a week from Tuesday. Their opponents in the opening game will be the Robins. The series with the Brooklyn club will consist of four games and the Giants will then entertain the Braves a week from Saturday. Four games also will be played with the Boston club and the Giants will then enjoy one day of rest before playing their first game of the season away from home. This will be in Brooklyn on April 22.

The first of the major league teams to play in this section of the country this year is the Braves. The Boston club clashed with the Jersey City club of the International League in Jersey City yesterday. On Tuesday Dave Bancroft's team will return to Boston for a game with the Baltimore club of the International League. These two clubs will also play there on the following day. On Thursday the Braves will meet the Red Sox at Fenway Park, Boston, and on the next day these two teams will meet at Braves' Field.

The Cleveland players are not scheduled to engage in competition again until Friday, when they will meet the University of Alabama team at Tuscaloona. This will be the Indians' final game in the South. They will then go to Cincinnati for two games with the Reds. These contests will be played next Saturday and Sunday.

The Cubs, who have been training on the Coast, also will start homeward this week. To-day they leave for Kansas City, where they are scheduled to arrive on Wednesday evening. On Thursday they will start a series with the Kansas City club of the American Association. This series will consist of four games and the last of them will be played next Sunday. The Cubs will leave Kansas City that night for Cincinnati, where they are scheduled to open their regular season with the Reds a week from Tuesday.

Greyhound Track In Newark Will Cost About $500,000

NEWARK, N.J., April 5.—Theodore Walgren of New Orleans, vice chairman of the Board of Governors of the International Greyhound Races' Association, on Saturday purchased 11½ acres of land here for about $300,000. A quarter-mile greyhound dirt race track is to be built on it at a cost of about $200,000, Walgren said. Work is to start on April 15 and an attempt will be made to have the track ready for opening on Decoration Day.

The NUT Cracker

By JOE WILLIAMS

Even though custom dictates a change in headwear at Easter time, many of the boys keep right on wearing the high hat.

The baseball experts seem to know their A B C's this year. . . . At any rate, they are picking the Athletics, Browns and Chicagos.

The first heavyweight Berlenbach met whipped him. . . . Which serves him right. . . . He should have started with Dempsey and worked up to the good ones.

Rogers Hornsby has batted better than .400 for five straight years. . . . Better may be the proper word, but any pitcher will tell you he is worse than a .400 hitter.

"Is he tight? Say that bird wouldn't give you an organe in Florida!"

Ty Cobb says the young ball player of today doesn't work as hard as the old ones used to. . . . Thereby proving Ty has never seen a young ball player tackle a mess of corn beef and cabbage.

NEWARK STADIUM.

Completion of $125,000 Park Is Assured.

NEWARK, NJ., April 5.—A fund of $125,000 needed to guarantee the completion of the stadium for the Newark International League Baseball Club Saturday was oversubscribed by $5,920 in gifts from citizens. Work is expected to be resumed on the stadium Monday.

President John Heydler of the National League; President John C. Toole of the International League; Larry Sutton of the Brooklyn Nationals and city officials will be the guests at a luncheon in honor of the Newark club on Monday.

DULUTH SHUT OUT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 5 (Canadian Press).—The Minneapolis hockey team scored its second shutout victory in its series with Duluth for the Central hockey league championship winning 4 to 0 here Saturday.

BLOOMINGTON STAGES GREAT PASSION PLAY

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., April 1.—(United Press).—Bloomington promises to become the Oberammergau of America. This, the third year of the production of the Passion Play in this city is attracting nation-wide interest and inquiries are pouring in from all parts of the country regarding it.

Those who have seen both the Bavarian play and the one produced here seem to be unanimous that not only is the acting of equal character, but the scenery, stage effects, and lighting are similar.

The huge stage of the Scottish Rite temple where the play is produced has a width of 100 feet and the building will seat 5,000 people.

Several hundred persons take part in the play.

not a valid objection to the resolutions."

Scores Woman Magistrate

Women's needs were a prominent part of the day's discussions. There was a resolution from the Toronto executive of the Canadian Labor Party urging the provincial government to appoint two women members to the Ontario Parole Board. During the discussion, Magistrate Margaret Patterson, at present on the bench in Toronto, came in for criticism and plain speaking.

"I am not sure that a woman would get any better treatment from a woman than a man," said John Loane of Toronto. "At the present time we have Margaret Patterson on the bench. She is an appointee of the Drury Government and has become one of the most hardened wretches on the bench today."

"Better withdraw the term 'wretch' suggested President Smith.

"Well, I'll make a concession, and call her a hardened woman," replied the Toronto delegate.

Vice-President Muldowney said that what was needed was a parole board to deal with women's cases composed entirely of women.

James Simpson voiced the opinion of the meeting by saying "The best way to get a really broad and sane opinion on any question is to get it from a body composed of intelligent members of both sexes. Therefore, I am in favor of adding two women members to the existing parole board." The resolution was carried unanimously.

Public Bus Lines.

The maintenance of way railway workers and the Toronto Labor party brought in a resolution asking the provincial government to consider the advisability of forming and operating a public ownership system of bus and truck lines on the highways and the abolition of private road transportation lines. It was claimed that at present private lines were stealing business from the Canadian National Railroad and that this was having a deleterious effect on a publicly owned system and its employes.

Re-organization of the Ontario Minimum Wage Board was urged in another resolution, partly on the ground "That the labor member has recently publicly declared his lack of sympathy with the cause of labor and because the workers of Ontario have ever since lost all confidence in the operation of the board.

Moral support was given by the convention to the operations of the Canadian Workers' Defence League in agreeing to an amendment to this purpose from W. Moriarty of Toronto. The committee on resolutions had brought in a recommendation that the matter be referred to the executive of the Dominion Trades Council. This was another straight vote between Communists and their adherents and the old line labor men. The latter, though admitting that workers defense was an urgent and important matter held that it was a question for the Dominion Trades Council to handle, but they lost their case.

Other Resolutions.

Some of the other resolutions favored the extension of the present facilities of the Ontario government for the care of defective children, recommending the resumption of trade between Russia and Canada, asking for a judicial enquiry into the matter of the issue of "legals" in connection with the newspaper Rural Canada, as charged in the Provincial House, and a recommendation to the Provincial Government that the interest rate of the Provincial Bank be restored to four per cent, opposing the present passport tax, asking all Central Labor bodies to announce to locals the visits of distinguished labor men from other countries, and a strong recommendation to the incoming executive to urge on the Dominion Trades Council some action to relieve the working conditions of navy workers in British India.

It is said that there is a great demand throughout Great Britain for automobiles of the low price class. However, large taxes make it difficult for manufacturers to give the Britishers autos at a price they can afford.

FIELD DAY HELD BY PATRIARCHS

Local Encampments of I.O. O.F. Entertain Visitors.

DEGREES CONFERRED.

The Patriarchs of the two local encampments, Mount Hebron, No. 56, and Hiawatha, No. 66, of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows held their annual field day on Good Friday, having an attendance of between 250 and 300 Patriarch to participate in the ceremonies.

The Grand Encampment of Ontario was ably represented by Grand High Priest, M. L. Andrews, of Aurora; Grand Scribe, S. C. Parks, Toronto, and Grand Outside Sentinel, R. N. Jones, Peterborough.

Encampments from Port Hope and Toronto were present on invitation to assist in conferring the three Degrees of Patriarchal Oddfellowship. Visitors from Havelock, Millbrook and Lindsay were also present, all of whom were invited to the Montgomery House, where a full course dinner was served, after which all adjourned to the I.O.O.F. Temple, where a class of 15 candidates was waiting advancement in the Order.

The Patriarchal Degree was conferred by Imperial Encampment No. 97 of Toronto; the Golden Rule by Hiawatha Encampment, No. 66 Peterborough, and the Royal Purple by Victoria Encampment, No. 25, Port Hope, and the several degree teams excelled in the work allotted to them.

Special mention must be made of the splendid manner in which the Imperial Degree Team performed the ceremonies entrusted to them, and which received the hearty plaudits of all privileged to be present and witness them.

The fame of this splendid team in conferring degrees was already long known, and the announcement that it would be present for the occasion was the magnet that drew such a large attendance, and needless to say the members lived up to their reputation, and were a credit to their Degree Captain William D. Sloght, P.G.P.

The several offices were filled as follows, viz.: Chief Patriarch, George Bear; Senior Warden, Ernest Hart; High Priest, Robert Henderson; Junior Warden, William Heap; Guide, Harold Murry; 1st Watch, Fred Nightingale; 2nd Watch, Thomas Silverthorne; 3rd Watch, Edward Taylor; 4th Watch Morley Watson; 1st G. of T., John Grace; 2nd G. of T., Robert Perchard; I. Sentinal, William Lankin; Pianist, William Neal, P.C.P. Past District Deputy Grand Patriarch E. H. Bouchier was also present, and gave valuable assistance during the day.

Other members of Imperial Encampment present were: Wm. Baker, P.C.P.; C. Latimer, A. Summers, A. Turner, Fred Bryce, John Williamson, Norman Mosaler, P.C.P.; Gordon Pickering, A. Sutherland.

The Imperials travelled in a large Transportation bus, leaving Toronto at 8 a.m. and reaching Peterborough at 1.40 p.m., after being held up a short distance out from this city by several cars ahead of them being stalled in the snow.

They left for home again at 10.15 p.m., the Port Hope Patriarchs leaving at 9 p.m. by C.N. Railway.

A banquet in the dining rom was a pleasant interruption between the conferring of degrees. Golden Link Lodge, No. 81, Daughters of Rebekah, provided a sumptuous dinner to which all present did ample justice, while the Follis' Orchestra provided suitable music at short intervals. District Deputy Grand Patriarch R. J. Craig was chairman of the proceedings.

The decorations in the dining room engaged the eyes of all on entering, and were certainly a great credit to Patriarch G. C. Mowry. Emblems of the Patriarchal Order, bunting and colored lights all showed to advantage, and greatly added to the pleasure of the event.

Adjournment was then made to the lodge room, where Victoria Encampment conferred Royal Purple Degree on the candidates, after which D.D.G.P. R. J. Graig took the chair, and votes of thanks were passed to the visitors for their much appreciated services and the willing manner in which they came and shared so largely in forwarding the good work of the Order in this district.

At the conclusion of the degree work, splendid addresses were delivered by Patriarchs J. Wearing, M. L. Andrews, G.H.P.; and S. C. Parks, G.S.

The joint meeting was then brought to a close by Acting Chief Patriarch Fred Read, P.D.D.G.P., who occupied the chair during the session.

Two of the biggest pitching disappointments of the 1925 season were Joe Shaute and George Uhle of Cleveland. Shaute, especially, was far below form. Much depends on their showing this year. If they come through the Indians may get somewhere, if not, the Tribe will be lost in the rush.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

FRANCIS OUIMET—VALUE OF KNOWING PITCH SHOT

Many a time the average golfer faces a pitch shot over a deep sand trap with fear and trembling.

Give him a fifteen-foot putt to win a match and it bothers him but slightly because he feels he may make that putt and if he doesn't, well, the chances are against anybody's holing fifteen-foot putts and consequently it fails to upset his poise, or emotions. But that pitch to the well guarded green scares him most to death.

That same pitch shot for the star player is greeted with joy for he knows he can pitch safely to the green and that is the least of his worries. The one foremost thought in his mind is how close can he get his ball to the hole.

Jock Hutchinson, a master hand when it comes to pitching a golf ball to a green, scored a great many threes on par four holes of this type when he won his British title, simply because this sort of shot was the easiest for him to play. All-star players are not nearly as expert as Jock when it comes to playing pitch shots, but nevertheless all golfers among the top ranks are extremely accurate with a mashie or mashie-niblick.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

BRAVES SHOOTING FOR FIRST SECTION BERTH

Boss Bancroft looks for Much Improved Team This Year.

By Billy Evans.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 5.—The champions of the Florida League is what rival teams are calling the Boston Braves.

During the spring training games the Braves have soundly trounced the opposition, the Americna League clubs in particular.

Sitting on the bench with Manager Dave Bancroft as his team recently came from behind with a six-run rally to beat Washington, I commented on the smooth play of his club in these spring games.

Bancroft, one of the greatest shortstops baseball has ever known, a keen student of the game and a level-headed manager, is not being swept away with the success of the exhibition contests.

"Yes, my team does look pretty good and I am much pleased at the showing we are making, but I would trade six of these victories for any one game during the season," he laughingly replied.

"I have a young club and it is ambitious. Young players respond more quickly to spring training. My pitchers seem a little farther advanced than the opposition. That explains our spring success.

"I am glad to be able to win consistently in these exhibition games, because it is supplying my club with a confidence in its ability that should help us during the season."

When you talk pennant, Bancroft interrupts with a "that's what I am shooting at but I have no thoughts for 1926. We are on the way, however."

Since taking charge of the Boston club the Braves have shown steady improvement under his direction. Last season the club finished at the top of the second division and was playing as good ball as any team in the league when the curtain was rung down.

"It is really remarkable how some slight change can bolster up a ball club," said Bancroft as he continued to discuss his team. "Take, for instance, the signing of Second Baseman Walter Gautreau.

"When Connie Mack turns a ball player loose, the opinion is general that he isn't quite ready. Needing assistance at second, I took a chance on the former Holy Cross star.

"Little 'Gat' at once became the spark-plug of our team. He's never going to be a Rogers Hornsby at the bat but he welded together our infield in a most effective manner."

"Who is the best looking youngster on your ball club?" I asked.

"I have several promising recruits but I lean strongly to the pitcher warming up over there."

He pointed to a husky athlete by the name of Wertz, with Worcester last season.

"That boy is going to be a great pitcher. As a matter of fact, he is pretty good right now. I look for him to win a lot of ball games."

Later as I watched him toy with the Washington club for three innings, I could see the wisdom of Bancroft's speech.

There is no outstanding star on the Boston Braves, with the exception of Manager Bancroft, yet it impressed me as a well-rounded club.

The Braves look like the dark horse in the National. The Braves may emulate the feats of the 1914 team. However, it would be difficult to concede the club a chance to beat Pittsburgh, New York and St. Louis, and then there is also Cincinnati.

Fourth place would be a source of great delight to Manager Bancroft. And it's not beyond the bounds of reason.

Bowling

K. OF C. ALLEYS.

The ladies who have been bowling at the Knights of Columbus' alleys all season, and who have just completed their long schedule of games, have started a six weeks' schedule, which will be run off in two sections. In the first section are the following teams: Orioles (Miss Alma Fontaine, captain), Wrens (Miss Myra Moloney, captain), Marigolds (Miss Norah Shevlin, captain), Bluebells (Miss Gertrude Doyle, captain), Tulips (Miss Josephine Hunt, captain), Regler Fellers (Miss Florence Giroux, captain), and Owls (Miss Katherine McDonald, captain). In the second section: West Ends (Mrs. J. J. Doris, captain), Sunflowers (Miss Helen Lynch, captain), Pansies (Miss Ada Shaughnessy, captain), Buttercups (Miss Margaret O'Toole, captain), Orchids (Miss Marita Collins, captain), Larks (Miss Margaret O'Brien, captain) and Bluebirds (Miss E. Leahy, captain). Playing in this league commences on Monday evening.

On Tuesday afternoon, the games in the Ladies' Matinee League start. Ladies' teams contesting in this schedule are headed by the following captains: Mrs. J. J. Doris, Mrs. J. Legros, Mrs. J. Roach, Mrs. E. Conroy, Mrs. J. Crowley, Mrs. H. A. Owen, Mrs. M. F. Sharpe and Miss B. O'Brien.

BRAVES' ACE

LARRY BENTON

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 5.—Larry Benton is the Walter Johnson of the Braves' pitching staff. With a second section ball club last year Benton won 14 games and lost but seven, ranking fifth in the won and lost column. This spring he looks better than ever and is being counted strongly upon in the Braves' efforts for a place in the first division. Benton, as you know, is a right hander.

Ostriches Prove Balky Big Race Is a Failure

ADELAIDE, South Australia, April 5 (United Press).—The much touted ostrich race held here on Sunday proved a farce.

Five ostriches were entered in the race and when the word "Go" was given, one bolted in the wrong direction, while the others set out at various speed, but either fell or sat down after a brief run.

SPANISH FLIERS START LONG TRIP

Leave Spain To-day For Flight To Phillippine Islands.

THREE PLANES.

MADRID, April 5.— (Canadian Press.)—Spanish airmen attempting to fly from Spain to the Phillippine Islands, took off early to-day. The first stop will be Algiers, in North Africa, five hundred miles away. Three machines are being used, commanded by Captains Loriga Taboada, Martinez Estevez, and Gonzalez Gallarza. The planes are said to be able to make the eleven thousand mile journey in eighteen stages.

ALGIERS, April 5 (Canadian Press).—The Spanish aviators flying from Madrid to Philippine Islands arrived here at one o'clock this afternon, completing the first leg of their long journey.

LANGUAGES ARE VARIED.

NEW YORK, March 31.—American exporters who are newcomers to the English trade fields have experienced considerable difficulty in establishing business relations with some of the foremost English buyers due to variations in the use of the English language in the two countries.

DOUG AND MARY ON WORLD TOUR

Motion Picture Stars Found Cameras an Ordeal on Ship.

VISION IN BIEGE.

NEW YORK, April 5. — Mary Pickford told what an ordeal it was to face a battery of news reel and still cameras Saturday afternoon just before she and her husband Douglas Fairbanks sailed on the Lloyd Sabaudo liner, Conte Biancamano, for Genoa. They started on a trip which Miss Pickford said, might take them around the world. They might not get back home for two years.

News photographers who shift their open air studios from deck to deck of arriving and sailing steamships caused Miss Pickford to spend one of the most uncomfortable half hours of her life. After she had faced the lens alone and with her husband on deck, on the railing, on stairs and hatches, she explained why it was so hard to pose for the news cameras.

"In the light of a brilliant sun, on the open deck of a ship, the photographer gets us at a great disadvantage," said Miss Pickford. "The white paint on the cabin walls heightens the terrific glare which makes you look old.

Wanted to Look Natural.

"Why, what chance have you in such a glare in the open light to control your expression! Think of trying to look merry with the sunlight in your eyes! You see it's a different thing from being filmed in our studios. The lights are all correctly placed to give the proper effect and all we are concerned about is being just natural."

Miss Pickford's Easter travelling costume was a symphony of beige, from hat to slippers. She wore a beige color hat of gross-grain silk, with a bow of the same color transfixed in front by a double arrowhead pin set with white stones. To match her beige costume she wore a coat of Summer ermine, trimmed with fox.

She wore a beige sport costume piped with brown. Her blouse was of beige and her pleated skirt of the same color. Miss Pickford wore beige silk stockings and beige colored lizzard skin slippers. A futuristic silk scarf with all the colors of the spectrum stood out against the subdued background of the rest of her clothes.

Miss Pickford and Mr. Fairbanks were accompanied by her mother, Mrs Charlotte Pickford, and Gwynne Pickford, adopted daughter of Miss Pickford's sister, Lottie Pickford. The screen star said that her mother, who was seized with an attack of acute indigestion on the eve of sailing, was slightly improved and her temperature normal. Mrs. Pickford was taken aboard ship in a wheel chair and was under the care of physicians. She remained in her stateroom.

Somebody asked Miss Pickford if she were going to make a moving picture actress of her little niece by adoption, and she said:

"No; we're going to make just a sweet little girl of her."

Will Send Girl to College.

Miss Pickford said that she and sister planned to send the child to college but she hadn't picked the college.

"We are going to wait and let her have time to think for herself. We are hoping she may be able to go to some western college so we may have her near us.

Miss Pickford said she was happy in the thought of giving the little girl a college education, which she herself did not have to her great regret.

When Miss Pickford and Mr. Fairbanks were asked to stand before the cameras and go through all the motions of waving good bye to friends, shaking hands, the motion picture camera men unlimbered and took an enormous stock of films. Indeed they took so many that Miss Pickford opened her eyes very wide and asked:

"What are you going to do with all those that you dont use?"

Camera men to the right of them, left of them and in front of them "shot" from the deck, the top of the hatches, ventilators, winches and coils of hawsers as well as from the level of the deck. They advanced to close ups and retreated for group pictures.

Miss Pickford and Mr. Fairbanks good naturedly undertook to follow a dozen amateur film directors all shouting at the same time. They showed they were good soldiers when one of the aggressive picture men stood them close together and like a dead shot at Cooney Island tossed a life preserver around their necks. The movie stars laughed and tried to reply to the running fire of the photographers even when they were asked to squeeze their faces close together in the life preserver to make room for Gwynne.

There is no one more unfortunate than the man who has never been unfortunate, for it has never been in his power to try himself.
—Seneca.

Thrice Wed, Wants All Her Husbands To Call

BEDFORD, N.Y., April 5 (United Press)—It's rank partiality, if you ask Virginia Gorham.

Virginia, the "girl who couldn't say no" was sent to the state reformatory from New York for having three husbands and has been insisting on the privilege of having all three husbands visit her.

But despite her insistent coaxing the officials don't agree with her and the only one of Virginia's husbands it will permit in the institution is Frank Adams who eloped with her from Tuckaho.

BYRD EXPEDITION SAILS FOR NORTH FOR POLE FLIGHT

Two Planes Carefully Packed in Hold of Vessel.

MEN CONFIDENT.

Ships Start From New York To-day For Spitzbergen.

NEW YORK, April 5 (Canadian Press)—The Byrd Arctic expedition which seeks new land in the great unexplored portion of the polar regions, today set its face northward on the first lap of its venturesome journey to the land of the midnight sun.

The departure, scheduled this afternoon, will mark the second appearance in the field of the half dozen Arctic expeditions planned for this summer. Captain George H. Wilkins, leader of another exploration party is now at Point Barrow, Alasaka, having completed a flight from Fairbanks 500 miles away, last Wednesday. The two planes which Lieut. Commander Richard E. Byrd will use will be packed inthe ship's hold to guard against damage from heavy seas.

Of the hundreds of last minute applicants for a position only one was successful. He was "Dynamite" a fox terrier sent to Commander Byrd by friends in Washington. He was accepted joyfully, and will be official mascot.

The Chantier will sail for King's Bay, Spitzbergen, its base of operations.

Commander Byrd and the forty-six members of the expedition, all veteran explorers, are confident of success. The triple object of the expedition is charting new lands, furthering commercial aviation and gathering meteorological data. Incidentally, an attempt to fly around the north pole will be made.

WETS PRESENT CASE IN SENATE

Urge Changes in Volstead Act at First Hearing By Committee.

DRYS' TURN NEXT.

WASHINGTON, April 5 (Canadian Press).—The Senate judiciary subcommittee, conducting the first comprehensive congerssional hearing on prohibition, began its hearings today with the West given four hours to lay the ground work of their case. The Wets have four hours a day for a week and the Drys have the same time next week. The Wet leaders have set out with the primary purpose of getting their case formally before congress and the people with an eye to the future.

Senator Bruce, Democrat, Maryland, speaker for the Wets, said that prohibition has had no effect on the whole, except that of blighting human happiness, debasing human morals, and discrediting human laws. He urged support of his constitutional amendment to permit Government manufacture and sale of liquors in those States which were wet before national prohibition. Julien Codman, counsel for the Wets, demanded that Congress at least amend the Volstead Act so as to permit the sale of beverages non-intoxacating in fact. The "cry for relief" was heard all over the country and a concrete plan was demanded, he declared. Senator? Edge, Republican, New Jersey, urged modification of the Volstead Act up to the point of constitutional limitation, claiming that much of the existing spirit of challenge and protest would be eliminated thereby.

MILLBROOK MAN GOES TO DETROIT

Farewell Gathering For Maurice Gray, Who is Given Club Bag.

MILLBROOK, April 5. — The farewell gathering held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth Gray on Thursday evening, in honor of ther second son, Mr. Maurice Gray, who is leaving for Detroit in the immediate future, was practically of a community nature.

Maurice was born and brought up in the village, has been active in business and church circles, and is decidedly popular with both young and old.

Mr. G. E. Burnham, in whose employ Maurice has been for the past five or six years, took the chair, referring in his brief remarks to the faithful and efficient service invariably given by his head clerk, his complete trustworthiness at all times, his obliging disposition, and his commendable ambition in seeking to better his business prospects.

Councillor P. Stinson was the next speaker called upon, and he also spoke in the highest terms of the place Maurice had won for himself as a friend of both the aged and the young, his active part in the A.Y.-P.A., the choir, and other organizations of his church, his cheerful and obliging nature, and the general regreat felt at his departure necessity compelling his seeking a larger centre if promotion in any sense is to be attained. The concluding remark was, "He is the type of young man this country can ill afford to lose."

Called upon to take a position in the centre of the company, Mr. Gray was presented, on behalf of his many friends in the community, with a solid leather club bag, and a substantial purse, David Fowler presenting the gifts, and Mr. R. Stone reading the address:

Mr. Maurice Gray,
Millbrook.

Dear Maurice.—On the eve of your departure for what we sincerely hope and trust will prove to be a wider field of opportunity, we desire to join together in expressing our appreciation of the services you have rendered, to recall many pleasant associations we have mutually shared in, to voice our deep sense of loss at your leaving, and to convey to you our very best wishes for your future success.

We feel assured that the same straightforward and manly conduct the same geniality and kindliness that have characterized your life here will in the future bring you new friends, and new avenues of usefulness, happiness, and prosperity.

Will you please accept this gift as in some measure a token of our appreciation, as a memento of past associations, and as an expression of our good wishes for the future?

Signed on behalf of your friends,
R. Stone and D. R. Fowler.

The embarrassment incident to a public presentation was carried off with commendable self-possession by the recipient of the gifts, whose remarks in thanking the donors, were sincere and of a most suitable character.

Rev. D. R. Dewdney briefly addressed the gathering, expressing his personal regard for Mr. Gray in the short period since they became acquainted, his appreciation of his fidelity to the activities of the church, and his conviction that the faithfulness and efficiency which have marked his busines career, and his work in connection with church organizations here, will continue to be outstanding wherever his future path of life may lead.

The hearty singing of "For He's a Jolly, Good Fellow," brought the formal programme to a close; community singing, and other entertainment, with a dainty supper served by the committee in charge, filled out the evening with pleasure for all present.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT

JOHNNY HINES SCORES AGAIN IN AMUSING COMEDY.

Clever Comedian at His Best in "The Early Bird."

It's the early bird who gets the worm, and it's the early bird who will laugh provided he hurries to the Regent to see Johnny Hines' excruciatingly funny picture aptly titled "The Early Bird."

Never have we laughed so heartily as we did last night when the ingenuous feature made its debut to a highly appreciative audience. The comedy is really infectuous, for so heartily did the audience laugh that the Rialto patrons seemed like one large merry family. The comedy incidents come fast and often and there is never a let up. Here and there one is greeted by a sudden twist in the story and thrills become the order, but Johnny eventually comes back to rock the house with laughter only to follow it up with a bit of hectic drama. Most cleverly is this story devised that it holds one entranced throughout its entire showing.

"The Early Bird" is none other than Johny Hines cast in the role of a milk driver who climbs over a heap of obstacles to gradually become the moving spirit in an organization of milk drivers who form their own company to combat the milk trust.

"The Early Bird" proves an exceptionally attractive production. Our advice to all is "see it and laugh, see it and pulsate, see it and be happy.

DOM. GOVERNMENT TO SHARE EXPENSE

Canada's Share of the Proposed International Bridge Estimated at $400,000.

KENORA, Ont., April 5 (Canadian Press).—Peter Heenan, Federal member for the constituency of Kenora-Rainy River, addressing a public meeting, said he had it "in black and white" that the Federal Government would pay Canada's share, estimated at $400,000, for the construction of the proposed international bridge to connect the town of Rainy River with Spooner, Minn. He urged civic authorities to see that the railway was built from Kenora to Red Lake mining field, and pointed to the efforts being made to divert traffic to Winnipeg.

WEDDING BELLS.

STEINBURGH—PERRY.

A very pretty but quiet wedding took place at the George Street Methodist Parsonage on April 3rd, when Ruby Irene Perry, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Perry, of 476 Chamberlain Street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Milford Alfonse Steinburgh, of Tweed. The bride looked charming in a satin pansy dress, with gray hat. The bride was attended by Miss Theo Woodcock, a cousin of the bride, and the bridegroom was supported by Mr. Elden Perry, a brother of the bride.

After the ceremony about thirty guests sat down to a dainty supper at the bride's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Steinburgh will reside in Peterboro.

SISSON—WHEELER.

On Wednesday, March 31, at 227 Wescott street, Eldon H., only son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Sisson of this city and Sarah (Daisy), youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Wheeler, Smith, were united in marriage by the Rev. N. R. McLeod.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Ruby Avery, and the groom was supported by Mr. George Graham.

The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony for Lindsay. They will reside in Peterborough.

Many beautiful gifts, including clocks from fellow workers at the Western Clock and Quaker Oats plants, testified to their popularity.

SEED GRAIN TRAIN VISITS PETERBORO

Demonstrations of Cleaning Machinery Given—Exhibits of Seeds.

The seed train sent out by the Department of Agriculture for Ontario is on the C.P.R. siding to-day. The train is in charge of A. R. G. Smith, of New Hamburg, who is a farmer. The Department of Agriculture also has the co-operation of the Dominion Seed Branch.

The train consists of three cars, a lecture car with seating accommodation for about a hundred people, a show car where all kinds of seed are on display; and a car where the latest machinery for the cleaning and separating of seed is demonstrated in actual operation.

In the lecture car talks are given on the grading of seed grain and the best varieties to sow. They also stress the sowing of alfalfa.

In the demonstration car the latest methods of cleaning and separating seed are shown. Here the machinery could be seen at work cleaning seed, which was dusty and dirty as it was placed in the feeder, but which in a very few minutes was turned out absolutely clean in every respect. Machinery was also in operation separating the different kinds of seed which had been purposely mixed. The Department is recommending the establishing of seed cleaning establishments at different places in the country, where the farmers may bring their seed to be cleaned and graded. "At least half the places so far stopped at will be seed cleaning centres," stated the demonstrator.

In the show car samples of the different kinds of seeds are shown; there is also a display of 300 different kinds of weed seeds, with colored hand paintings of the different kinds of weeds.

One of the greatest interests in the display is the soy bean which is being introduced into Ontario. The bean is used for feeding or when cut green is used for hay. The oil of this bean is very valuable, and it is on account of this oil that it is a poor grain to feed hogs. The soy bean has been averaging better than pease the last few years, and the price has been around $3 per bushel. So far the bean has been found to be free of all pests.

There is also a new variety of oats, O.A.C. No. 144, which are good yielders and have a very strong straw. There are tubes of the different kinds of grain showing the average yield for the past six years at different times of seeding. They also show the average yield of the different grains when mixed, showing a mixture of oats and barley giving the highest yield with mixtures of oats, barley and pease and oats, barley and wheat a close second and third.

The train finishes its scheduled trip in Ontario on Wednesday, but it has been such a success this year that the Government is sending it into Northern Ontario.

TAGGERS COLLECT SUBSTANTIAL SUM

Did Good Work For Humane Society in Spite of Slush.

Considering the bad weather conditions, the Humane Tag Day which was held on Saturday, was a great success, $400 being realized. Apart from the tag money several donations and memberships were received. The store at 440 George street was suitably fitted with chairs and heaters for comfort of taggers when off duty. The windows were decorated with Humane mottoes, also Pekingese dogs and guinea pigs, which attracted scores of onlookers. "Byng," the Newfoundland dog belong to Donald Henderson, "Barney," the Scotch collie, belonging to Donald Reid, and "Tinker" the English bulldog belonging to Mr. C. Matthews, were also great window attractions. "Barney" and "Byng" also did their bit for their fellow creatures by tagging on the street wearing blankets with "Humane Tag Day" printed on them, and carrying a box for money on their backs. Another very interesting and amusing novelty was the little spaniel belonging to Mr. Reg. Turner, which carried a sign in its mouth, "This is our day; help us."

Over 50 violet rosettes were worn by horses.

Most people who responded to the tagging did so very willingly and many interesting questions were asked pertaining to Humane work. One man remarked that he was not in favor of money going to Toronto. The Humane Society would like to contradict this and wishes to state that all money received is retained by the local society, whose funds are very limited, and is used principally for the Inspector's salary, and any other expense which might occur in order to carry on the work.

The Peterboro Society is affiliated with the Ontario Society, headquarters Toronto, without which no local society would have power to act.

Apart frm paying the yearly affiliation fee all money raised is kept in the local treasury

Any further information regarding the humane work may be received upon application or by attending the meetings, which are held the last Tuesday of each month.

PLANK ROAD RULINGS

This ruling is for the protection of the plank road across the sandhills. In addition to the weight limit over the timber structure, speed is to be reduced to 10 miles an hour.

ART STUDY CLUB HEARS MRS. SEELS

Interesting Paper on Claude Monet—Miss Beatty Entertains.

At the recent meeting of the Art Study Club of the Women's Art Association, held at the home of Miss B. Beatty, Weller Street, an interesting paper on Claude Monet was given by Mrs. J. H. Seels. The response to the roll call was the choice of a favorite author by each member, and the reason for the choice.

The next meeting of the Art Study Club will be held on Tuesday, April 13th, at the home of Mrs. R. A. Brown, Rubidge Street when a paper on "The Alhambra," will be given by Mrs. J. Mackintosh, and the response to the roll call will be a proverb.

Mrs. Seel's paper dealt with the life of Claude Monet and the school of art to which he belonged. This artist was born in Paris on November 14th, 1840. At the age of fifteen years, he met the painter, Eugene Boudin, who taught him the love of nature, and at seventeen he entered an art school in Paris, remaining there until he was twenty years old, when he was obliged to put in the usual period of military training. He was sent to Africa, where he contracted fever and was sent back home. Later, he entered the school of Charles Gleyre, a conscientious classical painter of the highest ideals who tried to keep Monet working at conventional subjects and away from nature. Later, with several other of this artist's pupils, Monet left Gleyre's studio in disgust at the dogmas of the conventionalist.

On the breaking out of the Franco-Prussian War in 1870, Monet went to England, where he fell under the influence of Turner, imitating his style very closely in the handling of color. His impressionist ideas increased and found favor with dealers. Pictures of this type were first exhibited by him in Paris in 1874 and in London in 1882. They were at first ridiculed, but later, the criticisms grew less and at last about 1890, the critics began to realize that this new school must be treated with respect and Monet lived to see his pictures, once selling for a few pounds, bringing thousands of pounds each. In Chicago alone, a whole room in the Art Gallery is devoted to his works.

Monet once said, "I have never found an ugly thing in Nature." For some years past he has been gradually losing the sight of his eyes, but he still enjoys his cigarettes and his evening games of backgammon with his housekeeper, who cares for him well in his cosy little cottage on a hillside at Giverny, in France. He is described as a man of medium height, brisk and active in his movements; in conversation, brief and explosive, wearing simple but comfortable clothes and a heavy white beard. "He impresses you at once as a man who has found and followed his own way in face of all opposition."

Madame Monet died in 1911. For three years her husband did no painting but when the Great War broke out, he resumed his work in quest of mental relief, beginning a series of panels as a gift to the State. They were formally presented on Armistice Day, although they are not yet finished and still remain in his studio.

Mrs. Seels concluded her paper with a description of the methods used by Monet and of the School of Impressionism to which he belongs.

EDUCATION LEADERS ARE MEETING TODAY

Ontario Education Association is Holding Annual Convention.

TORONTO, April 5 (Canadian Press).—Educational leaders from all parts of the province gathered in Toronto to-day for the 65th annual convention of the Ontario Education Association. LOCAL COLLIE TAKES PRIZES

Commanding Style, Owned By K. M. Sine, Wins Many Points.

BEST OF BREED.

At the annual show of the Toronto Kennel Club the sable and white collie, "Commanding Style" of the Stylo Collie Kennels, owned by K. M. Sine, Harvey street, won all his classes and gained three more points towards his championship and lacks only two more to be classed as a Dominion champion.

The dog also defeated two champions, winning a silver cup for best of breed. It also defeated three more champions and won another silver cup for the best non-sporting dog in the show.

Mr. Sine said that the dog was conceded by two American and one Canadian judge to be one of the best collies in North America, and that he had been informed that this was the first time in twenty years that a collie has won the non-sporting cup.

These kennels also won two third prizes on a seven months old puppy in a big field.

MARKET CONFERENCE COMING IN U. D. C. ANNUAL MEETING

Delegates Expected From All Parts of Province and From U. S.

DEPARTMENT HELPS.

Important Gathering To Be Held in Peterborough This Month.

Peterboro is to be the meeting place on April 15 and 16 of one of the most important marketing conferences ever held in Ontario. It will take place in connection with the United Dairymen Cooperative Ltd. The occasion is being taken advantage of by the Department of Agriculture to bring together dairymen from all over the province to hear prominent speakers in connection with marketing problems.

The progress made during the past five years by United Dairymen Cooperative, Ltd., the head office of which is in Peterboro, and which last year sold cheese for some 160 cheese factories to a value exceeding $3,200,000, has been attracting attention throughout the province. During the past few months a large number of cheese factories have arranged to sell cooperatively this season, with the result that another large increase in the sales of the company is expected. The Agricultural Enquiry Committee of the Ontario Legislature, which has been investigating methods of marketing farm products, has reported strongly in favour of cooperative marketing wherever this can be carried out on a large scale. The Ontario Department of Agriculture desires to disseminate information bearing on cooperative marketing and for this reason is assisting with the conference to be held in Peterboro. It is intended to hold a banquet the evening of April 15 at which the main speakers will be Hon. John S. Martin, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, and F. G. Swaboda, General Manager of the Wisconsin Cheese Producers Federation. Mr. Swoboda will also speak on the following day on the cooperative selling of cheese for the home market.

The annual meeting of United Dairymen Cooperative, Ltd., will be held on Thursday afternoon. At this meeting and also on Friday morning, addresses will be given by W. W. Moore of Montreal, General Manager of United Dairymen Cooperative, Ltd., who has recently returned from a trip to Great Britain where he investigated marketing conditions including the systems of selling their products being followed by the New Zealand and Australian Dairy Produce Control Boards. Much interest is felt in the information to be presented by Mr. Moore. Other speakers who will take part during the two days of the conference are W. H. Roadhouse, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, Ontario; J. F. Singleton, Chief Dairy Market and Cold Storage branch of the Dominion Dairy Division, Ottawa; N. A. Labbe, Executive officer of The Quebec Cooperative Federation, Quebec; Dairy Commissioner Geo. H. Barr, Toronto; F. C. Hart, Director of Cooperative Marketing, Toronto, and others. Invitations are being sent to all the cheese factories in the province to send delegates.

SEARCH SUSPENDED.

Bad Condition of Roads Holds Up Hunt For Body of Man.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Search for the body of a man believed by the police to have been murdered in Howell's woods a week ago, was suspended over the week end on account of the bad condition of the roads.

Blood-stained jacket and cap found in the bush have been handed over to the city pathologist who will determine whether the stains were caused by human blood.

PARKS COMMITTEE REPORT ON WADING POOL IN PARK IS SENT BACK FOR FURTHER DISCUSSION

Council Has No Funds to Pay for Connections and Caretaker.

RINK STRIKES SNAG

Lease Description Covers Too Much Land—Routine Business Transacted.

Alderman J. M. Greene's Parks Committee's report was the cause of most of the discussion at the regular April meeting of the City Council last night. One clause, recommending that the Kiwanis Club be given permission to build a wading pool in King Edward Park, was struck out and sent back to the committee, while the clause calling for James Stevenson Park to be handled in the same way as last year was saved only by Mayor Holloway's casting vote.

After reading the report of his committee, Ald. Greene said that he would move its adoption but for one thing; he wanted to know where the money was to come from to pay for the sewer and water connections, which the city was to install, and to pay the caretaker, as there had been no allowance for these in the estimates.

Alderman Fife voiced the protest of the people who live around the park when he inquired if the sewer connection proposed was also to serve a lavatory for those using the athletic portion of the grounds. Alderman Turner said that he understood that it was the intention to construct the connections so that lavatories could later be installed.

Alderman Denne suggested that the Kiwanis Club would pay the caretaker, and Alderman Phelan said that he had the idea at the committee meeting that no caretaker would be needed, and that the Utilities Commission could be asked to provide the water connection, the city paying for the sewer connection. He suggested renting the athletic section of James Stevenson Park by tender, saying that there would be a greater income from the park if it were handled in that way, and that the extra money could be used for the sewer connection.

Alderman Greene said that he was not opposed to the establishment of the pool, but that he wanted to know where the money was to come from. Alderman Denne reiterated Alderman Phelan's suggestion about renting James Stevenson Park. Alderman MacDonald said that a caretaker would be needed, but opposed the idea of letting the park by tender.

No Nursemaids Needed.

Alderman Ackerman said that the boys of former days had learned to swim in the river without protection, and that nursemaids weren't needed now. Rejection of this plan would mean that other ideas would not even be presented.

Mayor Holloway said that there was the matter of liability in case of an accident, and the matter of funds for the sewer connection to be considered. He said, as had all the Aldermen, that he thought the wading pool would be a forward step. It was finally decided to strike out the clause of the report, sending it back to the committee.

Alderman Phelan moved that the athletic section of James Stevenson Park should be let by tender instead of being rented by the Chairman of the committee on a percentage basis as had been done last year, and wanted that clause of the committee's report altered. Alderman Turner, who was Chairman of the committee last year, recounted the experiences of handling the park in the two ways, and said that the pleasure derived from it more

Live and let live is no doubt a great idea.

But why is it that so many things happen every day that tear it down?

For instance, consider the fellow who gets a great kick out of life through doing for the other fellow as well as for himself; through giving as much, or more, as he takes; through playing the fifty-fifty game in things in general, and through always being willing to help someone else, even at his own expense.

That's a fine spirit—except that for every man who plays life that way, there are ten men just waiting to take advantage of him.

When some men discover they are losing flesh, they might try letting a barber shave them.

COLLEGE OPENS FOR PALESTINE GIRLS THURSDAY

Will Teach Agricultural and Domestic Sciences at Nahalal.

HAS COST $80,000

Founded With Money Raised by Canadian Women Zionists.

OTTAWA, April 6 Canadian Press An event of the deepest interest to thousands of women Zionists of Canada belonging to the Hadassah organization will take place in far-off Palestine on Thursday of this week, in the formal opening of a girls' agricultural and domestic science school founded with money raised by the women of Canada during the past three years. Mrs. A. J. Freiman, Ottawa, Dominion president of the organization, has received notification that the inaugural ceremonies will be performed by Lady Beatrice Samuel, wife of Sir Herbert Samuel, who was Palestine's first High Commissioner. The presiding officer on the occasion will be Dr. Chaim Weizman, president of the World Zionist organization.

The school is situated at Nahalal, and occupies more than 100 acres of ground, which was provided by the Jewish national fund.

The number of students at present accommodated is forty but when a second building has been made ready, the capacity of the school will be increased to seventy pupils.

They will be taught the sciences of agriculture, horticulture and the business-like management of farms, and the care of the farm homes. They will particularly study poultry raising, bee-keeping and other small farming pursuits. They will also be given general academical training.

The school is the first of its kind not only in Palestine, but also in the east. The cost of the undertaking, when complete, will have been approximately $80,000, with an annual maintenance charge of $12,000, all of which the women Zionists of Canada will provide.

Funds have been furnished for the school by Hadassan Chapters in every city and important town in Canada from coast to coast.

HEAVY DAMAGE DONE BY FLOOD

Heaviest April Rain in 20 Years Occurs in Los Angeles.

TRAFFIC TIED UP.

LOS ANGELES, April 6. — Canadian Press. — Los Angeles and the sorrowing district to-day began checking up on losses of the heaviest April rainstorm in twenty years. The rainfall, though highly beneficial in some aspects, was not without damage. Highways were washed out, tieing up traffic, trains were delayed several hours by earth slides, and portions of the city were flooded. One bridge was destroyed and others endangered The damage in the harbor of San Pedro was ten thousand dollars, when 60 small fishing craft piled on the rocks.

HELD FOR ARSON FOLLOWING FIRE

Former Owner of Damaged Drug Store Is Under Arrest.

LOSS $700.

TORONTO, April 6. — (Canadian Press.)—Following a fire which damaged the drug store at 481 Queen street east last night, Fred Nolan, a former owner of the premises, was taken into custody by Detectives Black and Donaldson, on a charge of arson. He is held on bail of $10,000. The blaze, which was mainly in the basement and main floor, caused a loss of $300 to the building and $400 to the contents.

Cow Falls Over Dead As Milker Leaves Task

ORLAND, April 6.—Miss Rosa Tackaberry, who was milking a cow on Friday morning in the stable, when a neighbor came to the door and asked her as to her brother's whereabouts, left the milking and went to the door to direct him. Immediately the cow fell over dead where Miss Tackaberry had been sitting.

HOSPITAL FIRE KILLS A NURSE

Patients Have Narrow Escape and Suffer From Smoke.

CAUSE UNKNOWN.

OLD TOWN, Maine April 6. — Canadian Press. — Miss Blanche Frost, an employee, was burned to death, and nine patients three of whom had been operated upon yesterday) were removed with difficulty when fire broke out in the Penobscot general hospital early to-day. The building was badly damaged.

Several of the patients were carried out partially overcome by smoke which filled the rooms as the flames swept through the upper stories of the hospital.

BLOOD HOUND FOR FOX FARM

Patte and Wolfe Co. Taking No Chances With Thieves.

GOOD TRAILER

As there have been two thefts of live foxes from ranches in Ontario within the past five months and no trace has been found of either foxes or thieves, the Patte and Wolffe ranch have imported a large man-trailing blood hound for protection. This ranch is now in a position to trail and run down any thief should such an occasion arise. The special dog comes from a strain of well-known criminal trackers for more than a generation back.

POLICE ATTACKED BY RIVER WORKERS

Rendezvous For Europeans Besieged By Mohammedans—Many Wounded.

CALCUTTA, April 6. (United Press.) — A large force of Mohammedan river workers to-day attacked a police outpost at a park which is used as a rendezvous for Europeans. The police were obliged to use their revolvers, wounding many.

The known casualties during the riot total six hundred.

Incendiarism threatens the safety of the city. The press is demanding concerted measures to end the trouble.

U. S. PROHIBITION LAW ASSAILED AS INTOLERABLE BY WET LEADERS AT SENATE COMMITTEE ENQUIRY

Republican and Democrat Senators Demand Change in Volstead Act.

FIVE-DAY HEARING

Force of 1,600 Men Wanted to Patrol Canadian Border.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(Canadian Press.)— Arguments against the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead Act rolled in yesterday upon the Senate judiciary sub-committee at the opening of the first real congressional inquiry into the workings of statutory prohibition. A flood of oratory, furnished largely by such wet leaders as Senators Bruce, (Democrat), Maryland, and Edge, (Republican), New Jersey, preceded testimony which will be offered during the next five days in the effort to convince the committee that modification of the law is essential to the public welfare.

After Senators Bruce and Edge, and Julian Codman, of Boston, who has charge of the wets' cause, had made statements to the sub-committee, Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury, upon whose shoulders rests responsibility for dry law enforcement, was called as the first witness.

The prohibition field marshal made clear his policy to dry up the sources of supply, but conceded that he would have to have a largely increased force to do it.

1,500 For Border Patrol

The federal forces are not concerning themselves much with distributors, Mr. Andrews said, leaving that task to the local police. He said it was useless to arrest a bootlegger because "his brother or his uncle" would take up the traffic where the arrested man left off.

Disclosing a plan for a patrol of 1,500 to 1,600 men on the Canadian and Mexican borders, General Andrews said he believed this force would break up any organized smuggling traffic.

"Smuggling from Canada and Mexico does not furnish the supply," he explained. "Alcohol diversion, moonshining and smuggling from the sea furnish the real sources."

Pass By "Small Fry."

Increased forces to handle all these problems are being sought and the assistant secretary expressed hope that with additional men he could reduce to a minimum the illegal diversion of alcohol from industrial channels.. Explaining that he did not want to crowd court dockets with minor cases, he said his agents and the district attorneys picked out big cases in each district for trial.

"In other words, you don't arrest all who are guilty," interrupted Senator Reed, (Democrat), Missouri. "You just arrest those of the guilty you select?"

"We do not begin to arrest all guilty of small offences," returned the witness. "We want to leave that to the local enforcement officers."

Assail the Act.

Senator Bruce opened the presentation for the wets with an argument for modification, in the course of which he brought more than a score of indictments against the Volstead Act, the operation of which he declared to be farcical. He also assailed the treasury proposal that the government be allowed to search homes where liquor is being distilled for commercial uses.

Senator Edge and Mr. Codman condemned the Volstead Act and both declared the time had come when congress must take cognizance of conditions that had grown intolerable and to seek to apply a remedy.

Senator Bruce suggested as a remedy an amendment of the prohibition amendment so as to permit government manufacture and sale of intoxicants in territories that were wet when national prohibition became operative or that might vote wet hereafter.

Amendment of the Volstead Act so as to permit the manufacture and sale of beer and wine "non-intoxicating in fact," was urged by Senator Edge and Mr. Codman. They argued that this would give the working classes beer and thus remove the discrimination in the law which permits farmers to ferment fruit juices "non-intoxicating in fact."

THE WEATHER.

The temperature was down to ten degrees last night. Yesterday's highest point was 37 degrees. While the nights remain so cold there is little hope of a genuine thaw. Below zero temperatures continue nightly in many sections of the prairie provinces, and winter conditions still largely prevail. As a general rule spring comes to the west before it does to this more southern section of the Dominion. — W. P.

Boys Detest Cuddles But Learn With Age

LONDON, April 6.—(Canadian Press.)— "It is strange that young boys prefer cuffs from a man to cuddles from a woman," declared a delegate at the National Headmaster's Conference here to-day.

Another delegate, however, suggested that boys changed in this respect after they left school.

The conference went on record as protesting against the policy of the Board of Education in replacing men teachers for boys under 11 years of age by women teachers.

BANDIT BURIED WITHOUT RITES OF HIS CHURCH

Gerald Chapman's Body Claimed By Roman Catholic Priest To-day.

SISTER THERE.

Clergyman Says Man's Life Is Now To Him a Closed Book.

(By Frank Beaman, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

HARTFORD, Conn., April 6. — Gerald Chapman, notorious bandit, is dead and buried. Hanged at Wethersfield Prison, a few minutes after midnight, for murdering a New Britain policeman, he was buried before noon without a religious service.

The body was taken from the morgue in a plain black hearse to Mount St. Benedict's Cemetery and then at the very grave of Chapman there was a new element of that mystery which had surrounded him to the end, a heavily-veiled woman, who turned away from all gaze and whose identity was not revealed, rode with Chapman's lawyers to the cemetery and stood beside the grave as Chapman's body was lowered. Word went out that this was Chapman's sister, a survivor of the mysterious family from which Chapman sprang. The burial was without religious service of any kind. The little group stood, the three men with heads bared, while the undertakers lowered the body into the grave and poured fresh earth upon the plain casket. The bandit was buried in consecrated ground—but no priest was there to offer a final prayer. It was but the work of a minute to lay away the strange man —and to write the last word in the history of Gerald Chapman.

Body Claimed

No priest went with the body to its final resting place and there was no service of the Roman Catholic church. The body was claimed, as was possible under the law, by Rev. Michael P. Lavarry, the Roman Catholic chaplain of the prison, who said he would see that it was given burial such as he would desire a friend should have. He had already departed on a vacation, leaving no word of what had transpired yesterday while he was in the room across the entry from the death chamber with Chapman.

He would answer no questions for to him, as the priest said, "the life of the man was a closed book."

Gathered about the grave as the body was lowered into its final resting place, were Frederick Grochl, the bandit's chief counsel, an assistant defense counsel, and a sister of Chapman's who arrived in the city yesterday.

VILLAGE DESTROYED THIRTY-FIVE PERISH

Egyptian Government Organizes Relief For Fire Stricken Inhabitants.

CAIRO, April. April 6. — Canadian Press. — The Egyptian government has organized relief measures for the four thousand persons rendered homeless when a fire swept the village of Sagin-Eld-Kon, six miles from Tantah.

At least 35 persons perished in the fire, which started on Saturday when a sudden change in the wind carried sparks from the fire to straw dwelling.

Two hundred or more dwellings were ablaze within a few minutes. Many of the villagers cut off were women and children. Fire brigades from nearby towns were unable to control the fire until practically the entire village had been levelled.

Toronto Welcomes Farm Helpers From Old Land

TORONTO, April 6.—(Canadian Press.) — One hundred new immigrants, almost all farmers or rural folk, bound for the rural parts of Ontario, were welcomed to this city today on their arrival from Halifax. They had come mostly from North England and North Ireland. Large and small families were in the party, which also included a number of young farmers.

MOTOR STRIKES RAILWAY TRAIN

Miraculous Escape of Driver, Who Receives a Few Severe Cuts.

CAR BADLY WRECKED.

KINGSTON, April 6 (Canadian Press).—At Napanee last night, William Hawley, an employee of the Farmers' Dairy, had a miraculous escape from death. He was driving a Ford car and crashed into westbound freight train of the Canadian National Railways at the Selby crossing. His car was completely demolished and Mr. Hawley received five severe cuts on the back of the head.

Mr. Hawley was coming down the Selby Road from the north. There was an eastbound freight train shunting just west of the crossing and this no doubt took his attention. The westbound freight train was moving along at a fast rat of speed and Mr. Hawley did not notice the westbound train until he was right up to the engine. He turned the steering wheel of his car slightly which threw the car when struck by the train, to the right, throwing him clear of the track, which no doubt saved his life. The car was thrown a considerable distance and was badly wrecked.

BILL FOR CORN RELIEF URGED

U. S. Farmers Approve Fee on Other Agricultural Commodities.

AID COTTON, TOO

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(Canadian Press).—Agricultural leaders of the middle west and the south untied Monday in an effort to get congressional action on the corn belt farm relief bill.

The measure, designed to stabilize surplus crop prices by levying an equalization fee on basic farm commodities, was endorsed before the Senate Agriculture committee by C. D. Stayley, general manager of the Oklahoma Cotton Growers' Co-Operative Association, representing a delegation of cotton growers from ten states which has been conferring in Washington.

He suggested, however, several amendments, which Frank W. Murphy, of the American Council of Agriculture, and one of the bill's sponsors, agreed to on behalf of the middle western group. These would add corn as an assessable product, but both corn and cotton would be exempt from the fee for three years. The fee would be levied on wheat, hogs and cattle as soon as the proposed federal farm board considered desirable.

GRAIN SHIPMENTS WILL BE HEAVIER

Over Railways Through Lindsay and Peterboro.

LINDSAY, April 6—According to the statement of railway officials the erection of the new elevator at Midland and the proposed addition to the big C.P.R. elevator at Port McNicoll will result in greatly increased grain shipments through Lindsay and Peterboro via C.N.R. C.P.R. lines. The work on the C. N.R. elevator is being prosecuted with vigor and will be ready to receive the western grain in November. This increased storage capacity means much to the railroad employees, who have a somewhat lean year.

The addition to the C.P.R. elevators at Port McNicoll means an increased capacity of 4,200,000 bushels, bringing the storage capacity at that point up to 6,200,000. The cost of the new addition is estimated to be $1,170,000. The work will be proceeded with as early in the summer as possible so as to provide storage for next fall's grain rush.

William Irwin Crushed Under Slide of Gravel; Eric Morin Is Injured

Second Fatality at Government Works on Trent Canal Within a Week—To-day's Victim Dies Within a Few Seconds of Accident.

CORONER VISITS SCENE OF TRAGEDY AND WILL PROBABLY ORDER INQUEST

Irwin Employed in Shovelling Gravel When Bank Caved in—Supposed To Have Been Struck on Head—Morin's Leg Hurt.

YOUNG'S POINT, April 6 (Special to The Examiner).—William Irwin, 21, was almost instantly killed in a cave-in at Young's gravel pit here just before noon today. This is the second fatality of the same nature to occur in connection with the re-building of the Young's Point lock on the Trent Canal within a week.

Irwin, whose home was at Rockcroft, where his father, George Irwin, lives, was employed in shovelling gravel when the bank caved in and he was struck on the head. He died within a few seconds of being taken out.

Eric Morin, of Lakefield, who was working near Irwin, had his leg injured, but is believed to be not seriously hurt.

Inquest to Be Held

The victim of today's tragedy had been working at the pit only a short time.

Coroner Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield was notified and at once visited the scene of the accident. He is expected to order an inquest immediately, in accordance with the regulations governing works of this nature.

Second in Week

One week ago today Guido de Massimo, an Italian laborer, was killed at Young's Point in a very similar accident. De Massimo was shovelling mud when a big rock fell on him, striking him on the neck and causing his death. The cornorer's jury investigating this fatality returned a verdict of accidental death, and absolved the company and everyone from responsibility.

The general opinion in Lakefield and Young's Point following today's accident seems to be that something should be done to give greater protection to the workmen. It is not known by the man in the street just what stens can be taken, but the two fatalities, following so closely upon each other, have caused a distinct shock in the district.

CUSTOMS MAN HELPS RUN RUM SAYS WITNESS

R.C.M.P. Constable Tells of Watching Rum Running at Wharf.

SEIZED LIQUOR.

Ship's Officers Prosecuted and Customs Officer Freed of Charge.

OTTAWA, April 6 (Canadian Press).—The attempted smuggling of 100 bottles of rum in a taxi cab across the wharf in Montreal was described in the customs probe this morning by Constable Frank Cahill of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

A customs officer was implicated in the transaction.

Constable Cahill said that he watched four men, three of them ship's officers, carrying cases from the ship Borden to a taxi. Finally when the car was driving away, he halted it. Four men and two women got out and disclosed that about a hundred bottles of contraband rum was in the auto. He detained the group and sent for his superior officer, Sergeant Salt. The ship's officers assured him that the transaction was quite regular because they had a customs officer with them. The customs officer left the party. When Sergeant Salt seized the liquor he exacted a promise from the ship's officers that they would remain in Montreal until the incident was investigated. Two of them kept their word, were prosecuted and fined $50. The third escaped down the St. Lawrence River and the charge against him is still pending. Later Customs Officer J. P. Landy was charged with being the customs officer implicated, but later the charge was dropped on instructions from customs headquarters.

Counsel Tighe, who was conducting the case for the committee stated that the Deputy Minister of Customs would be called to testify why the case against Landy was dropped.

RIFFS ATTACK ON TWO FRONTS

Driven Back By French at Taza—Meet Spanish at Larache.

ARMISTICE IN EAST.

PARIS, April 6 (Canadian Press) —A tacit armistice along the eastern extremity of the Franco-Riffian front was the only indication pointing toward peace in the Moroccan situation today. At Taza, however, the Riffians attacked today and were driven off after a sharp engagement. An offensive against the Spanish in the direction of Larache also reported.

ALDERMANIC ENVY.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 6. Canadian Press. — Winnipeg aldermen have cast envious glances in the direction of Toronto, when it is reported, councillors of the city go about the city's business in limousines.

Alderman F. H. Davidson informed a committee meeting on Monday of this state of affairs and a persistent but hitherto inarticulate murmur swelled into an open drive to secure automobiles for the use of Winnipeg aldermen.

SIXTY-ONE YEARS IN SAME STORE

Kingston Plumber Started as Apprentice Where He is Master Now.

RECALLS OLD DAYS

KINGSTON, April 6.—(Special). —To have completed 61 years in business and during all that time to have occupied the same shop, is the unique experience of Mr. David Hall, plumber. On Saturday Mr. Hall completed 61 years in the plumbing business, and during all this time he has been located in the same store he occupied on Brock street. As a small boy he was apprenticed to Neil McNeill in the shop which Mr. Hall now occupies, and in 1900 he took the business over himself.

Speaking about the early days in his business, Mr. Hall stated that there was nothing except lead pipe used by the plumbers, and that sinks and bath-tubs were made of wood, lined with lead. Steam heating was introduced into Kingston in 1858, and this gave the plumbers considerable work, but it was not until the early seventies that hot water was used for heating here.

Mr. Hall recalled that ex-Mayor R. J. Carson, wholesale grocer, is the only man engaged in the business now who was employed here in the first year of his apprenticeship. He remembers the building of all the stores which are at present standing between King and Wellington streets, and an interesting fact is that when he was a boy learning his trade there were seven tailor shops in this block. In those days suits sold at about $15 and made-to-order shoes ranged from $5 to $7. Money was at that time reckoned in pounds, shillings and pence.

There is evidence that aphids, which infest so many crops, may carry plant diseases from one family of plants to another distinct family.

ITALIAN DEPUTY DIES OF BEATING

Amendola, Dying at Cannes, Clubbed By Fascists Last July.

MUSSOLINI TROUBLED.

PARIS, April 6. — Canadian Press. Deputy Giovanni Amendola, leader of the constitutional opposition to Premier Mussolini in the Italian Parliament, dying in a sanitorium at Cannes as the result of a clubbing by Fascist bravos at Montecatini last July.

It became known only to-day that he was in France and that the long struggle to save his life from the effects of the Fascisti blows is failing.

The news reaching Italy, is troubling the Mussolini government for Amendole was as surely attacked by Fascist assassins as was the Socialist Deputy Matteoti, for whose killing three Fascisti have recently been given short prison sentences.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK.

Marvelous beyond conception inaptly describes the glories of Canada's Rockies. To be fully appreciated they must be seen. To start out on a trip by one's self into this unfamiliar but far-famed paradise-on-earth, to many appears quite a task. Realizing this, Dean Sinclair Laird of Macdonald College, an experienced Rocky Mountains Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious wonderland.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation compartment cars has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th via the Canadian Pacific Railway. Stops will be made at Port Arthur and Fort William, which together form Canada's greatest grain port; Winnipeg Beach, the popular summer resort for Winnipegers; Winnipeg, Canada's third largest city; Indian Head, the chief tree distributing centre of the Federal Forestry Branch; Regina, the capital of Saskatchewan; Calgary, Alberta's largest city; Banff, the world-famous mountain resort; by automobile for 104 miles over the Banff-Windermere Highway, the most spectacular drive in Canada; through Kootenay Lake to Nelson, the commercial centre of Southern British Columbia; then through the Doukhobor country to Penticton; along lovely Okanagan Lake, and to Vancouver, thence by steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be by the main line of the Canadian Pacific, through the great canyons of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, and through the Selkirks, and Rockies, affording scenery such as can be found nowhere else on earth; Lake Louise, the Pearl of the Rockies, the most perfect gem of scenery on the world; another day at Banff, Edmonton, the Capital of Alberta; Saskatoon, the city of optimism; Devils Camp, on the Lake of the Woods, near Kenora, thence to Fort William, where one of the fine Canadian Pacific steamers will be used across Lake Superior and Huron to Port McNicoll, then rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate.

Everything is included in the price of $330.00, from Toronto; transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in hotels, and bungalow camps, meals in diners, hotels and on steamers, and sight-seeing tours at points visited.

The trip is open to all, and applications for accommodation, are being received.

Fares from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrate. booklet sent on application to Dean Sinclair Laird, Macdonald College Post Office, Que. t.t.-107.

PANGALOS RE-ELECTED.

Gets Ninety Per Cent. of Votes Cast in Twelve Districts.

ATHENS, April 6. — Canadian Press. — General Theodorus Pangalos received about 90 per cent of the votes cast in 12 electoral districts yesterday for the office of president. The voting was conducted in only about a third of the districts but the indications are that the election of the present Premier and Dictator of Greece is assured.

"BRINGING UP FATHER"

Geo. McManus

Put on the kettle—

Mrs. Housewife, and make yourself a cup of BOVRIL

You will accomplish more—you will renew your strength and energy—if you stop in the midst of the day's work, put on the kettle, and make yourself a cup of hot, energising Bovril. And it is so easy to do—a spoonful of Bovril, a pinch of salt, in a cup of boiling water. That's all—but how it will refresh and "buck you up". Try it!

BOVRIL

PEACE SENTIMENT OF RIFFIAN REBELS IS DOUBTED BY FRENCH

If Intentions Serious, Negotiations May be Opened in Few Days.

OFFENSIVE SIGNS

PARIS, April 6.— (Canadian Press).—The French Government is ready for either peace or war in Morocco, and while its leaders have made known their preference for peace they are counting about equally on the cances of peace and war. However, reports of progress toward cessation of the war come from Morocco. The persistent efforts of Abd-El-Krim, leader of the insurgent Riffians, to get into negotiations with the French have finally come to a point where it is likely that his emissaries will soon meet representatives of the sultan and the French protectorate at Rabet. In official circles here, however, it is pointed out that it is in the Spanish zone that peace must be made and that the Riffians continue to insist on terms which the Spaniards reject.

Choice With Riffs.

How to begin negotiations is the first question to be settled. French spokesmen say that if the Riffian leader's peace intentions are serious, there should be contact between his representatives and those of the sultan and the French within a day or two.

There is some skepticism here, however, regarding Abd-El-Krim's desire or peace. This is due to the fact that the activities of his peace emissaries coincide with the reinforcement of his troops at certain points and Riffian local offensives, which the French military authorities believe are intended to feel out the strength of the French forces.

Bandits Rob Mail Coach In Washington Bad Lands

SPOKANE, Wash., April 6 (Canadian Press)—A special despatch to the Chronicle said that five masked men Monday held up the Spokane-Pasco stage coach, carrying a load of mail as a feature of the inauguration of air mail service on the Pasco-Elko route, and took the mail. A sheriff's posse is trailing them, the reports said.

The hold-up occurred shortly after the stage left Wallula in the "bad lands" along the Snake river. It carried an armed guard.

Plane Damaged

PASCO, Wash., April 6 (Canadian Press) — The air mail plane coming to Pasco to take the first cargo south this morning was damaged Monday afternoon in a forced landing near here. Pilots George Back and Joe Taft were injured, neither seriously.

LIPTON'S FIFTH CHALLENGE FOR CUP CONFIRMED

Will be Filed in October for Race Probably in July, 1927.

YACHTSMAN IS 76

"No Moral Turpitude," Says Sir Thomas Arriving in New York.

NEW YORK, April 6.—(Canadian Press).—Sir Thomas Lipton arrived Monday on the Leviathan with the confirmation of his purpose to file his fifth challenge for the American Cup, international yachting trophy.

Although efforts to obtain definite statements regarding the Irish yachtman's plans were submerged in the ripple of good natured repartee which crossed the Atlantic with the genial challenger, the visiting sportsman admitted that he had the "finest collection of cups in the world, but I'd give them all for the America Cup."

Sir Thomas said he did not intend to formally file his challenge until October, thus providing the required ten months for the New York club, holder of the cup, to prepare for an international race. This would make the date of the international test sometime in July next year.

Assuring reporters that he brought "no moral turpitude" with him, Sir Thomas said he could see no reason for the cup remaining longer in this country, since "America has nothing to put in it." Now 76 years old, he said he had enjoyed the voyage.

Sir Thomas made his first effort to lift the cup in 1899 with the Shamrock. Other unsuccessful attempts were made in 1901, 1903 and 1920. Shamrock IV, which sailed the races of 1920, was in the City Island yards here for some time and was broken up last year.

WAGES INCREASE

For Kingston Plumbers and Painters.

KINGSTON, April 6 (Canadian Press) — The plumbers and sheet metal workers and their employers have agreed to continue the old wage rate of 80 cents an hour to June 1 after which the rate will be 90 cents. Painters have secured an agreement calling for an increase from 65 to 70 cents per hour.

DIFFICULTIES SAID TO BE ILL FOUNDED

No Differences Between Delegates For the League of Nations.

MONTREAL, April 6.—(Canadian Press).—There was no deep plot at the bottom of the difficulties between Germany and Brazil and other members of the League of Nations at the special session recently concluded, in the opinion of Senator Raoul Dandurand, just returned from Geneva. Primary cause of this and other difficulties into which efforts have been made to read plots was to be found, the Senator said, in the necessity of delegates and those behind them satisfying demands of public opinion in their own countries.

INDIANS USE AUTOS.

The increased number of motor cars in use on Indian reservations of the country has necessitated the expenditure of $510,525 in the construction of highways in nine western states, according to the Department of Interior.

SPANISH AIR SQUADRON AT ALGIERS ON FLIGHT FROM MADRID TO PHILIPPINES

Three Planes Assume Name of "El Cano" Squadron After First Circumnavigator of Earth — Airmen Carry No Food.

MADRID, April 6.—(Canadian Press).—The "El Cano" air squadron, flying from Madrid to Manila, Philippines, completed the first 500 mile link of the 10,000 mile journey with its arrival at the White House flying field in Algiers, French North Africa. Since none of the three machines carries radio equipment, news of their progress was received only after their arrival at Algiers.

An Historic Name.

The squadron, led by Captain Estevez, has been christened El Cano, after Juan Debastian Del Cano, the first circumnavigator of the globe, who after the death of Magellan and the deposition of Carabello, finished the memorable trip in 1522.

Their departure was business like. A crowd of about 1,000 persons bade them farewell. No relatives were present, by the express wish of the airmen. After about 250 gallons of gasoline and 75 of oil were put aboard the Broguet airplanes the motors were set in motion and, at 8.15 o'clock, they adventured forth amid the cheers of the multitude assembled around the Guatro Vientos flying field.

Carry Only Coffee.

The airmen refused to carry food with them. Only a few vacuum bottles of coffee were takenalong.

The Spanish-Philippine committee entrusted the airmen with the following message to be delivered at Manila:

"The committee, praying for the safe arrival of the airmen at Manila, sends greetings."

The squadron flew over Cartagena at 10.50 o'clock Monday morning, and then headed toward the sea in the direction of the African coast.

PRINCESS IMPROVES.

Prince of Wales Dines With Parents.

LONDON, April 6. — Canadian Press. — Princess Victoria, sister of King George, who is suffering from influenzal pneumonia, continues to improve, her physiciasn announced last night. The evening bulletin said: "There has been further slight and satisfactory progress in Princess Victoria's condition durnig the day."

The Prince of Wales dined last night with King George and Queen Mary at Buckingham Palace. He has made such good progress in his recovery from his recent aural operation that his physicians consider it unnecesary to make further reports on his condition.

WOMENS CARD GAME RAIDED BY GUNMEN

Friendly Game Yielded Several Hundreds.

NEW YORK, April 6—A young man appeared at the door of the apartment of Mrs. Una Orr, the Bronx, during Sunday night and asked if "Mrs. Brown" was there.

Informed that she was not, he called two companions and the three burst into the room, drew guns and ordered the 14 women who were having "a little game" to hold up their hands.

"Get in there!" the bandits ordered in subdued voices.

The women walked quietly into a bedroom. But just then the robbers saw Mrs. Orr's two children, Sylvia, aged 7, and Myra, aged 6, quietly sleeping in the room.

"Get out here," they whispered. "We don't want those kids to yell."

And all the women marched into the living's room again, where they lined up around the wall.

While two of the men kept the women covered with their guns, the third swept the money from the table—a sum said to have been a few hundred dollars. They then ordered the women to make no outcry, and left.

The police said it was the first robbery of a woman's poker party on record where no one screamed and no one fainted.

CHANNEL BILL TO BE FINISHED

Authorizes Lakes - to - Gulf Waterway and Study of All-American Route.

FIGHT EXPECTED

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(Canadian Press).—Finishing touches will likely be put on the river and harbor bill, authorizing the Lakes-to-the-Gulf channel when the House Rivers and Harbors committee renews its session here today. The bill also contains provisions for a survey of the all American canal route through New York state. The efforts of congressional members from Illinois to sway the committee into authorizing in its bill the diversion by Chicago of 10,000 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan, have already been defeated. The majority of the committee members favored leaving the diversion question as it stands, in the hands of the Secretary of War. When the bill is brought up in the congregational chamber a lively fight by Illinois representatives is likely over the 10,000 cubic feet diversion angle.

Will Survey 5,000 To Find Effects Of Sport On Life

NEW YORK, April 6 — An effort to determine the effect of college athletics upon longevity will be made by a group of university officials and Faculty members, as a result of a conference here, according to The Associated Press. A survey will be made of more than 5,000 athletes who graduated or resigned from leading institutions prior to 1905. The study will be made largely among men who attended the older and larger colleges because of the availability of more complete records. Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Cornell, Michigan, Chicago and California were among the large institutions whose Faculty members partficipated in the conference.

GASOLINE FUMES FIRED BUILDING

Spark From Motor May Caused Explosion.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 6 (Canadian Press) — Gasoline fumes which were ignited by a spark from a small motor used to run a pump, or by fire in a stove in the building was the probable cause of the disastrous explosion and fire which destroyed the warehouse of the Independent Oil Company at Brandon, Man., March 30, and caused the death of one man and the injury to two others.

The report issued by the Provincial Fire Commissioner, E. McGrath, yesterday, after an investigation, states that "conditions in the warehouse were just right for such an occurrence" and that the building in which the business was carried on and the manner in which the gasoline was handled "was particularly dangerous."

The report states that the handling of gasoline is covered by regulations under Dominion legislation, but that there appears to be no federal department taking any interest in the matter and further inquiries are being made in this direction.

ROSENEATH W.M.S.

Officers Elected by Ladies' Society of United Church.

ROSENEATH, April 6.—The W. M. S. of the United Church held its annual meeting on Tuesday afternoon, and in spite of the inclement weather and bad roads, there was a fairly good attendance, testifying to the interest of the women in the cause. A short programme was given and the election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. (Rev.) Wilding.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. Arthur.
2nd Vice-President —Mrs. Wm. Jibb.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. M. Davey.
Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. A. Brown.
Treasurer—Mrs. Robert Mouncey.

Officers for the Mission Band and other circles of the church will be elected at the next meeting, which is to be held in Fenella on Tuesday, May 11.

Mrs. Smith and Miss Swan were appointed delegates to visit the district convention, which is to be held in Cobourg.

A social cup of tea and light refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Personals.

Miss Bertha Clark is spending Easter holidays at her home in Campbellford.

Mr. Bruce Ingham, Bowmanville, is home for his holidays.

TO SUCCEED EVERTON.

J. L. Grocner Appointed as Professor in Woodstock University.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., April 6. — (Canadian Press). — Appointment was announced Saturday of J. L. Grocner, formerly of Brandon College, to be professor of mathematics at Woodstock College, to succeed Rev. Samuel Everton, who has gone to a ministerial appointment in Olympia, Washington.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 6 (Canadian Press)—R. G. Persse was re-elected president of the Greater Winnipeg Board of Trade Monday. A. E. Parker, will continue as managing secretary.

Look for this Gold Seal on the rugs you buy

So cheerful and so spick and span—thanks to the Congoleum Rug!

The attractiveness of every kitchen depends largely on the floor-covering. That is one of the reasons why the many beautiful patterns in Congoleum Gold Seal Rugs are so popular.

On the floor of this cheery kitchen is shown the "Kashmir" design, Congoleum Rug No. 562. It has a moire field of warm buff with contrasting border and floral figures. If you should prefer a conventional pattern you can select from neat tile and mosaic reproductions. And for the dining, living and bedrooms there are many Oriental and other elaborate motifs.

Exceptional Quality

And you're sure of getting full value for your money when you choose a Congoleum Gold Seal Rug. All the materials are carefully selected — every step in the process of manufacture closely inspected.

Result: a waterproof, rot-proof floor-covering with a wearing surface that retains its beauty through long service.

Congoleum Gold Seal Rugs save you any amount of work — their smooth, firm surface is so easy to clean. Moreover, they lie flat without any fastening.

Very Inexpensive and Durable

With all these advantages Congoleum Rugs are very inexpensive. Their low cost and extreme durability make them the most economical floor-covering you can buy. They are made in many different sizes — from small mats to room-size rugs.

Look for the Gold Seal

Every woman demands value—an assurance that her money is wisely spent. That vital point is taken care of by the Gold Seal pasted on every Congoleum Gold Seal Rug. This Gold Seal is your positive guarantee of good workmanship, first-class materials, and unequalled durability—in other words, complete satisfaction.

265th Anniversary of the "Cup that Cheers"

It is 265 years since Samuel Pepys of London, England, said in his diary that he had just had his first "dish of tea."

While undoubtedly it came to Canada early in the 18th Century, one of the first printed references to it was in the Saint John "Gazette," founded by the Loyalists.

In Pepys' time people paid as high as $50 for a pound of tea. In 1783 the price was around $5. Nowadays you can buy far better made, nicer flavored tea at a fraction of the cost to our ancestors, milk and sugar included.

Just remember to ask for RED ROSE TEA, and if you would like what judges declare is the very best, ask, by its full name, for RED ROSE ORANGE PEKOE TEA. It is always sold in sealed packages which preserve its freshness and fragrance.

The name "RED ROSE" has been a guarantee of quality for over 30 years.

And our personal guarantee is that if ever a package of RED ROSE TEA fails to please you the price you paid will be refunded. Will you try it? It is sure to prove its quality to you.

SEYMOUR TOWNSHIP INSURED AGAINST ACCIDENTS ON ROADS

Council Secures Policy for $150 Covering Any Damage Claims.

COUNCIL MEETING

CAMPBELLFORD, April 6.— If an American tourist or any other travellers over the roads in Seymour which are under the jurisdiction of the Township Council, should meet with an accident this year, the council will have no occasion to worry over a suit for damages, as immunity for all liability was purchased at the meeting Monday, when an insurance policy was taken out from The Globe Indemnity Company, represented by S. B. Hueston of Toronto. This policy will cost the Township $150 a year, the amount of the premium being based on the number of miles of township roads and the annual payroll for work on the same. Seymour has about 150 miles, and last year the pay roll was nearly $12 000. In order to keep the commission at home, J. P. Archer, a local insurance agent, was appointed as broker for the council.

The Globe Company obligates itself to pay up to $5,000 for any one person injured or killed in one accident and $10,000 for more than one person injured or killed in a single accident. For accident to the property of the public the maximum damage to be paid amounts to $1,000. All legal fees in the case of an accident are to be paid by the company, so that there is no chance that the Council will be put to any expense whatever.

The resolution dealing with this matter was moved by Councillor Allan and seconded by Councillor Linn.

School Law Changes

William M. Stephens, one of the Township members of the Campbellford Board of Education, asked that there be an equalization of the assessment of S.S. No. 8, which forms part of the Campbellford school district. Mr. Stephens said that there had been no such equalization since the paper mill was made part of the corporation about 15 years ago.

Dr. G. L. Hay, the clerk, explained that the school law dealing with such cases had been changed three years ago and that now an equalization is required every year instead of every five years as formerly. When the Board of Education strikes its estimates for the year, it should appoint a representative, the Township Council to select another, and these two to choose a third, the three to apportion the cost of maintaining the High and Public Schools between the town and township. He said that unless this course is followed he would be justified in refusing to honor the requisition of the Board for school funds.

Board of Health Matters

There have been several cases of contagious diseases in the township during the winter and complaint was made that these were not reported to the town clerk as required by law. A meeting of the township board of health will be held on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock.

Accounts amounting to $198.83 were ordered paid.

Every township in the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham are now insured against liability for damages due to accidents on their highways with the exception of Hamilton and the council of that municipality has the matter under consideration.

OBITUARY.

MRS. FRED MORGAN.

WARSAW, April 5.—After an illness of about three months, Lavina Jane Crowe, wife of Fred Morgan, passed peacefully away at her home, about ten o'clock on the evening of Thursday, April the first.

Mrs. Morgan bore her long and painful illness with Christian fortitude. Every care was given her by a most devoted husband and family.

She was a faithful member of the Anglican church but was always willing and ready to help any other organization, and she will be greatly missed in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Morgan was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Crowe, Halls Glen. She lived her life in Dummer, having been born and brought up near Hall's Glen. Since her marriage to Fred Morgan she and her husband have lived in, or near Warsaw. Besides her sorrowing husband she leaves three sons, Harry and John on the farm at home, and Arthur in Toronto, and one daughter Mrs. Howard Patterson, living in South Dummer. There are also four brothers, T. H. Crowe and J. A. Crowe, near Warsaw, Jordan Crowe and William Crowe, near Halls Glen; and one sister, Mrs. Thomas Ganon, who lives in Ennismore.

GUIDO DE MASSINO.

YOUNG'S POINT, April 6.—The funeral service of the late Guido de Massino, who was accidentally killed on Tuesday evening, March 30, while at work on the construction o the new lock was held in St. Paul's church, Lakefield, on Friday afternoon. Rev. Father Garvey conducted the funeral service after which the remains were conveyed to Young's Point and laid to rest in St. Mary's cemetery.

The late Guido de Massino, formerly made his home in Toronto and his parents, one brother and sister reside in Italy, and a brother resides in New York, U.S.A.

Although a stranger in a strange land the late Mr. Massino had made many friends in the village during the time of his employment on the building of the dam and for the past eight months on the locks. Work on the locks was suspended from 3.00 o'clock on Friday afternoon and a very large number of fellow workers and friends gathered at his graveside to pay a last tribute to his memory.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Alex. Spence, Hector Robinson, Roy McGee, Irwin, John Hill and Percy Junkin.

Messrs. T. Sabatino and Ralph Mose of Lakefield attended the funeral.

LAWRENCE McDONALD.

ORLAND, April 6.—Lawrence McDonald passed away at his late residence in the village of Brighton on Friday. He had a very bad spell from heart trouble about two years ago, and has been ailing more or less ever since, until Thursday when he became very bad, and his two sons, who were trapping at Percy Boom, were telephoned that they must come at once if they wished to see him alive.

Mr. McDonald was about 65 years of age and was born near Orland, from where he moved to the bay shore near Brighton, where he engaged in the fishing business, in which he was very successful financially. Lately he has been running a restaurant near the Clarendon Hotel.

He leaves a widow and a large family to mourn his loss.

Mr. McDonald was a member of the Roman Catholic Church and was a lifelong Liberal in politics, and in pursuit of his vocation was well known all over the county.

He was of Irish decent and was endowed with far more of the native wit than Ireland's sons usually have given them, and many of his old customers will miss his cheery greeting, his jokes and witty retorts, and his musical fish call.

He was interred in the Roman Catholic Cemetery near his birthplace on Monday, April 5.

TIMOTHY FITZPATRICK.

LINDSAY, April 6. — The death occurred on Sunday of Timothy Fitzpatrick of Downeyville, following an accident which he sustained a week ago. The aged man, who was unmarried, and lived with his brother, was leading a horse to water when he slipped on the ice. The horse also slipped on the icy surface, and fell on the unfortunate man. He sustained several broken ribs, a broken shoulder, and was also badly bruised about the body. The funeral took place this morning to St. Luke's church, and thence to the parish cemetery.

GEORGE ROBINSON.

MADOC, April 5. — The death occurred at Madoc on April 2nd, of George Robinson, after a long illness. Mr. Robinson was agent at the Grand Trunk station for many years and was well known in Madoc.

The funeral took place on Monday afternoon from his late residence on Livingstone avenue, to St .Peter's Presbyterian church, the services being under the auspices of Masonic Lodge A. F. & A. M., No. 48.

Mr. Robinson is survived by his wife and one child, and by a sister, Mrs. F. Vandervoort of Madoc.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER SIX—THE TWINS AT THE CORNSHOCK HOUSE

"Whose name comes next in the big book, Nick?" asked Mister Tingaling, the fat little fairy landlord of Out-of-Door Land.

He was still feeling a bit grumpy, poor fellow, about having to paper Mrs. Cracknuts' dining room, so he jerked out the words as though he were biting through ginger-snaps.

Nick opened the big rent book and looked up and down the page. "Bob White comes next," said he. "Mister Bob Q. White, 1st Cornshock, Cornfield, Out-of-Door Land! That's his address!"

"All right. Come along," saidM ister Tingaling grumpily. "But I just feel in my bones that something is going to happen. I think the thirty second day of the month must be unlucky. If things keep on I shall change my rent-collecting day to the thirty-third. Here, Nancy, you carry the pocketbook, will you? It's so empty it doesn't weigh more than a spool of thread anyway."

Off they went past the briar-patch and the potato-patch until they came to the old dead cornfield.

That is, the field that was full of old brown cornstalks, piled into shocks that looked like Indian tents.

At the first cornshock they stopped, and Nick rapped on the tiny front door almost hidden among the leaves.

Instantly the door opened and out walked Mister Bob Q. White, looking for all the world like a cuckoo coming out of a clock.

"How d' do," said he in a friendly voice. "What do you want, please?"

"Rent," spoke up Mister Tingaling briskly.

"Rent!" cried Bob White. "Why, I'm just about to move. I only live here in the winter. In the spring this field has to be plowed and planted again and all the cornshocks will be taken away."

"Winter rent, Bob," said the fairyman. "You lived here all winter, I happen to know and I also know that every week or so the farmer came down and scattered food about for you."

"Very well," said Bib White finally. "I'll pay you, Mister Tingaling. How much is it?"

"Twenty-five cents in fairy money," said Mister Tingaling.

"Who's there, Bob?" asked a tiny voice just then from inside the cornshock.

"Who is that?" said the fairyman quickly.

"Oh, just one of my boarders, the harvest mouse," said Bob White. "He was cold, poor little thing, so I took him in."

"You don't say," said Mister Tingaling. "Then I'll have to charge you thirty cents, Bob White. Thirty cents in fairy money."

"Don't forget me," said another voice from within.

"And who is that?" demanded the fairy.

"Just a little field-mouse. He was cold, too," said the quail, I mean Bob White. "So I took him in."

"Thirty-five cents, Bob. The more boarders, the more rent, you see."

"Don't forget me," called another voice.

"That's the mole. I let him live in the cellar," said Bob White.

Suddenly Mister Tingaling said, "Bob White, you don't owe me a cent! You've not only been sharing your home, but your meals also, with your friends. You have a kind heart, so you have. Good-day!"

And to the astonishment of everybody, away marched the fat little fairyman—his pocketbook as empty as ever.

BUTTERFLIES GO TO ARCTIC

It is said that thousands of butterflies yearly leave their balmy French and English shores and strike out for the Arctic country in Iceland, a distance of some 4000 miles. Naturalists have traced these swarms to Iceland, but they have never been able to detect any of the "painted ladies" going back to the south. The butterflies start out originally from the tropics reaching France and England about May and Iceland about July.

FRASERVILLE GIRL GIVEN FOUNTAIN PEN

Miss Mary Lackey to Train for Nursing in Nicholls Hospital.

FRASERVILLE, April 6. — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wood of Fraserville was the scene of a very pleasant gathering last Monday evening. The Young People's Society and choir of the United Church, Fraserville, met for the purpose of doing honor to one of their members, Miss Mary Lackey, who is leaving to enter Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro, as a nurse-in-training. The evening was spent in games and music. Miss Laura Foley rendered two recitations in a very pleasing manner. As the evening drew to a close, Mr. Willard Waterman gave a splendid address testifying to the esteem in which the young lady was held. This was followed by Miss Bessie Wood presenting her with a gold-filled fountain pen. Although taken completely by surprise, Miss Lackey made a suitable reply, thanking her many friends for their kindness and expressing her pleasure at being privileged to work with them. Lunch was served and the evening closed by singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Personals.

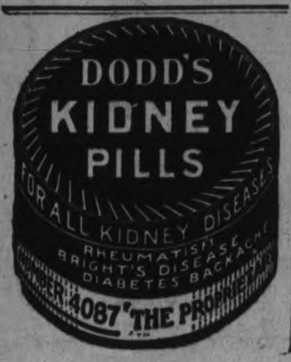
Mr. Frank Foley of Victoria College, Toronto, is spending his Easter holidays under the parental roof.

Miss M. Weir, teacher at S. S. No. 5, South Monaghan, is home for her holidays.

The annual meeting of the Fraserville United Sunday School is to be held Friday evening.

Mrs. Davidson of Toronto is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lackey.

Miss Nellie Waterman is spending her Easter vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Waterman.



PARKS COMMITTEE

than made up any slight money loss that might be incurred by letting it on a percentage basis. Alderman MacDonald supported Alderman Turner, and Alderman Phelan said that the lease could call for the park to be open for the public when the leasee was not using it.

On a vote, Aldermen Turner, MacDonald, Fife, Ackerman and Meyers supported the system used last year, and Aldermen Phelan, Cotton, Hancock, Greene and Denne favored a lease. Mayor Holloway voted for the inclusion of the clause in the report calling for the park to be handled by the Chairman as it had been last year.

The bylaw and lease for the land to be used for the proposed artificial ice arena struck a snag when the surveyor's description of the land was read and was found to cover much more land than was intended, so that the Committee of the Whole Council had to report progress on the second reading.

Caledonians Refuse Grant.

The band grant bylaw was left as it had been made out, calling for a grant of $100 to the Caledonian Pipe Band, although members of that organization had told various Aldermen that they would prefer not to be tied down to giving concerts at stated times and would not accept the grant. The other grants, $100 for the Male Voice Choir and $800 for the Peterborough Rangers' Band, were also passed. Alderman Greene protested against a motion by Alderman Turner that the grant to the Rangers be increased to $900, saying that there was too much talk of spending money and none of saving any.

The applications of Coleman Bros. and Mrs. Peel for eating-house licenses were granted.

One hundred copies of the auditors' report will be printed.

The request of A H. Fisher for permission to instal a gasoline pump on Charlotte street was complied with. While this matter was up Alderman Turner said there was a pump on Charlotte street too close to a hydrant, and asked for a report.

Tracks to be Moved.

The C.N.R. was given authority to shift the tracks crossing King street further east to serve the new freight shed which is to be built, and the Mayor and Clerk will sign the blue prints showing the change.

The Mayor suggested that the Board of Education be approached in regard to having the monthly grants paid at the end of every month instead of at the beginning. The fact that this proposal was threshed out last year was brought up, but the Board of Education will be asked to meet the Finance Committee to talk over the matter again.

The matter of a new arrangement of the bonds on some of the city officials was referred to the Mayor and Alderman Phelan.

Aldermen Turner and Fife moved that the City Solicitor be asked to approach the Railway Board asking that the C.N.R. be ordered to give protection at Barnardo avenue and McDonnell street, and that the C.P.R. be ordered to give protection at Park street.

The Barnardo Home authorities will be asked for permission to remove trees from their property so as to give a clearer view at the C. N. R. crossing at Barnardo avenue.

LEAVE FOR WEST

Campbellford Man and Wife Go to Run Son's Farm.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Dinwoodie have left for Govan, Sask., to spend the summer with their sons, Fred. and Roland, who are located there. They also have a daughter, Mrs. Walter Govan, whose husband, a former resident of Seymour, died recently at Indian Head, Sask.

The son, Roland, met with a serious accident last winter and is partially incapacitated, and the father, in spite of the fact that he is 85 years old, intends to assume the management of the former's large farm.

Her Nerves Were "All Broken Up" She Could Not Sleep

Y. W. A. MEETING HELD AT NORWOOD

Delegate Named to Attend Presbyterial—Norwood News.

NORWOOD, April 6.—The Y.W.A. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church held its April meeting on Thursday evening at the home of the president, Miss Edith Tedford. A very interesting paper was given by Mrs. Harold McClure.

Miss Annie Ferguson was appointed a delegate to attend the Presbyterial which is to meet in Port Hope on April 15 and 16.

The Easter meeting of the W.M.S. of the United church was held on Wednesday afternoon last at the home of Mrs. Charles Copen. In spite of the very stormy weather there were about thirty present. The president, Mrs. R. G. Lawlor occupied the chair. After the opening devotional exercises, business of importance was dealt with. Delegates were appointed to attend the first Presbyterial of the United church to be held in Lindsay this month. The delegates are: Mrs. Lawlor, Mrs. E. C. Squire and Mrs. G. A. Brethen. Miss Rose Squire was appointed to represent the Mission Band.

The meeting was then given over to Mrs. B. W. Squire, convenor of the group, for the month of April. After the singing of a hymn, Miss Edith Burgess gave a reading "What Easter Means to the World." This was followed by the Bible reading by Mrs. W. E. Elliott. A season of prayer was lead by Mrs. Squire, Mrs. (Rev.) Stillman and others. Rev. T. M. Wesley then gave a very interesting address on the "Dynamies of Missions." After singing another hymn the meeting was closed with prayer.

Refreshments were served by the group in charge and a social time spent. The thanks of the society were tendered to the hostess.

Mrs. John Weir and Miss Lila Burgess will represent the Y.W.A. (former Presbyterian group) of the United church at the Presbyterial to be held in Lindsay on Wednesday and Thursday, April 21 and 22.

Easter Services.

The Sunday services in the United church, Norwood, were in keeping with the Easter season. The morning service in charge of the pastor, Rev. F. Stillman opened with the hymn, "Hail the Glad Morn that Sees Him Rise", by the choir. Other musical numbers were an anthem, "Soldiers of Christ Arise", and a solo, "The Resurrection Morn", by Mr. Patterson of Toronto. A very appropriate and interesting sermon was preached by Mr. Stillman. Mrs. Norval presided at the organ. At the evening service the anthem rendered by the choir was entitled, "Great and Glorious". A duet was also sung by Messrs. Patterson and E. C. Squire.

Geese Lost.

Norwood was visited by a very heavy snowfall on Saturday. Snow began to fall quite early in the morning and continued practically all the time until after ten o'clock at night. About this time the cry of wild geese could be distinctly heard. These feathered creatures had evidently become lost in the storm.

Messrs. Oliver and John Baskin held a credit auction sale at their stables, Peterboro street, Norwood, on Saturday, April 3. Horses, harness, lumber, vehicles an auto, hens, etc. were offered for sale. Mr.. Thos. W. Morrison was the auctioneer.

The special government seed train visited Norwood on Saturday. On account of the exceedingly disagreeable day not as many farmers visited it as would have, had the weather been better.

THYSSEN HELPED GERMANY TO POWER

Was One of Founders of Great Ruhr Steel Industry.

BERLIN, April 6.—(Canadian Press).—August Thyssen, who died at Muelheim on Sunday, aged eighty five, was one of the most active of the Ruhr steel and coal magnates to whose vision and far flung plans Germany owed her world industrial ascendancy following the Franco-Prussian war.

Thyssen's fortune and his industrial prestige were due primarily to his early recognition of the importance of steel production in which he specialized. He founded the firm of Thyssen and Co. at Muelheim, in 1811 with only $60,000 capital. From this modest beginning he became a large holders of caol and iron mines and a heavy producer of armor plate. The elder Thyssen retired from the active management of his interest mor than ten years ago leaving the administration to his son, Fritz, who figured prominently in the passive resistance against the France-Belgium occupation of the Ruhr.

Miss Jean Shearer has successfully passed the teacher training examination of the O.R.E.C. in the programme of christianity, a second year subject taught by Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, and summer school.

KILLED HIS BRIDE.

Threatened To Leave Him—Shot Himself.

ANNISTON, Ala., April 6.—Angered when she threatened to leave him after learning he had another wife, Pte. Joseph Floris, stationed at Camp McClellan, Monday killed his bride of six months, wounded his mother-in-law and then shot himself in the mouth.

Attendants at the hospital where Floris was removed said he would die.

The first bullet fired by the soldier passed through the body of his 21 year old bride and struck her mother, Mrs. Sallie Millington, in the foot.

Nothing can bring you peace but yourself. Nothing can bring you peace but the triumph of principles.

EDUCATIONAL BUREAU NEEDED FOR TEACHERS OF THIS COUNTRY

Tangible Results Expected From Conference Opening in Montreal.

LECTURE BUREAUS

MONTREAL April 6 (Canadian Press).—Much practical benefit to education is hoped for from the conference of the National Council on Education which opens here today. Not only do delegates express the belief that the results in interchange of ideas and information may prove stimulating, but that tangible results will prove of inestimable value to the Dominion as a whole.

Dean Mary L. Ballert, who is Dean of Women and Assistant Professor of English at the University of British Columbia, spoke yesterday of the hope cherished that a central bureau of statistics may be formed as an outcome of the conference.

"In speaking on educational topics, the lecturer must back up her statements with figures, which have been very difficult to obtain. The bureau at Washington has been the only source easy of access, and the lack of bureau in Canada has greatly handicapped those interested in educational problems and educational movements.

Guess at Results.

"This lack deprives us of the possibility of making scientific and accurate comparisons between the work done in the different provinces. We in British Columbia have no really scientific way of knowing whether our work in the schools is approximately as productive as the work in the schools of other provinces. We are not content with results which can only be guessed at.—we want them to be based on figures, as for instance when it is a question of determining the degree of retardation in schools, writing to the different provinces for information makes slow and difficult work, and it is much to be hoped that the National Council will establish a central bureau.

"I also hope that we shall have a lectureship bureau on a regularly established basis. The National Council has brought to Canada many noted persons, and the establishment of the bureau would be of great assistance.

National Ideals

"Ideals are intangible matters and hard to define. Yet I personally feel that the gathering together of people from all parts of Canada must help to clarify the matter in the minds of the persons interested. While it is difficult to define a national ideal, it ought to be possible for us to tell roughly and broadly whether we want a comercial or a spiritual ideal to prevail."

Questioned as to which ideal appears to be held in Canada, Dean Bollert declared that the tendency appears to be decidedly towards a broadly spiritual ideal. "People who are thinking seriously feel that the development of character is, in the last analysis, the finest service that can be rendered any country," she said.

Dean Bollert is of Canadian birth, hailing from Ontario, and is a graduate of the University of Toronto. The University of British Columbia has the third largest enrolment of women students of all Canadian universities numbering 650, or somewhat less than half of the total enrolment of the university.

Is Your Back The Weak Point

Then get your kidneys right by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Very few people are in perfect health. There is a weak spot somewhere. When you get tired or your system gets a little run down you feel the effects at your weak spot.

If your weak spot is your back, then you may suspect that your kidneys are not in perfect order. The back aches or is weak and sore; you may have headaches; there will be dryness of the skin, pains in the limbs and disorders of the bladder.

The quickest way to regulate the kidneys is by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They are bound to be effective because they arouse the action of the kidneys, liver and bowels and thereby ensure the elimination of poisons from the system.

EGGS PLENTIFUL AROUND WARSAW

Price Has Gone Down a Little Recently—Warsaw News.

WARSAW, April 6. — Lakefield Creamery paid 45 cents a pound for butterfat last week. Eggs are plentiful, and down a little. They bring from 25 to 30 cents a dozen, averaging 28 cents. Dairy butter is 42 cents a pound.

The regular meeting of Warsaw W.M.S. was held at Mrs. George Taylor's home on Thursday afternoon. Owing to illness and bad roads, the attendance was small. Mrs. Moore was ill and the vice-president took the chair.

The life membership certificate for Mrs. Stewart Payne, formerly an earnest worker in the missionary society, sent for some time ago, and the ladies are disappointed that it has not come in time to send to Mrs. Payne for Easter. However, she is to have a letter telling her it is to be an Easter gift from the United Church people. There was enough for the pin, too. That came. Unfortunately it had "Presbyterian" on it, and Mrs. Payne belonged to the Methodist church." The pin was, therefore, returned, with the request that one be sent with only the missionary motto, "The World for Christ."

During the past year there were eleven meetings; 22 members and six life members. There was raised $117.44; the expenses were $3.23. There was sent to the branch $110, leaving a balance of $4.21 in the treasury.

The president, Mrs. Robert Moore, was appointed delegate to attend the Presbyterial meeting, to be held in Lindsay on April 21 and 22.

At the close of the service, Mrs. Taylor served a dainty lunch.

One of the village young men had his car running around the village streets on Friday.

There are many cases of 'flue in the district, and several cases of measles.

Mr. Mark Edwards, who has been confined to his bed for some time, is at present much weaker.

A VERITABLE RESURRECTION

Brought About By Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

"I didn't 'Go West' in France, but I came home to Canada carrying my death warrant, the doctor declared. I weighed exactly 120 pounds—not much for a six-footer. Look at me now! Just 185, and as hard as nails."

The speaker (name if requested), a young Canadian from Victoria, B.C., who had served overseas with the Royal Flying Corps, had returned in 1918 a mere shadow of a man. His mother despaired of his life and he, himself, felt that he had come home to die.

His uncle, a prominent doctor, suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and he decided to give it a trial. In one month he felt better. He persevered, and in three months was back at his position, healthy and happy.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will relieve constipation; relieve it permanently if used regularly. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily — in chronic cases with every meal. Only ALL-BRAN can conquer constipation.

TOWN COUNCIL WILL APPEAL DECISION MADE BY MAGISTRATE

Will Defend Transient Traders' By-law Passed By Council.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

Insurance To Be Taken Out To Cover Liability in Street Accidents.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 6. — The decision of Magistrate G. A. Payne dealing with the question of transient traders as published in full in The Examiner last week, is to be carried on appeal to a higher court. This action was decided upon at the April meeting of the Town Council Monday night, all the members being present except Councillors Cole and Wiggins. In this case the bylaw which the council passed two years ago and which was designed for the protection of local merchants from the competition of outside dealers who pay no taxes here is the real issue, and it is that bylaw that the council now proposes to defend. Town Solicitor Lynch explained the matter last night and was in favor of an appeal. He said that the bylaw was almost word for word the same as the provincial statute and that it could not be improved upon.

In order to appeal the case it will be necessary for the town treasurer to deposit with the magistrate a cheque for ten or fifteen dollars to cover the costs in the event of the town losing the appeal, and on motion of Reeve Davidson and Councillor McDonald, authority to do this was given the treasurer. The appeal must be filed within ten days after the handing down of the decision.

Take Out Insurance

The Council decided to take out a policy with the Globe Indemnity Company, so as to relieve the town from all liability for damage sustained by any person in street accidents. The annual premium will be $210 and all legal fees will be paid by the company. The matter was presented to the Council by S. B. Hueston of Toronto, who appeared before the Seymour Council during the afternoon, and prevailed on that body to take out a policy. J. P. Archer will act as broker for the town as well as for the township.

Application for the policy was made last night. It will be considered at the next regular meeting and if the terms are not satisfactory the Council is under no obligation to accept it. In the event of a suit for damages, the insurance people will conduct the case and a local solicitor will be engaged to defend it.

A Statutory Statement

The Campbellford Cloth Company, through its vice-president, sent in a statutory declaration, as requested by the Council some time ago showing the number of employees carried on the pay roll during the past year. The number so employed each month was given, but nothing was said as to the length of time each was actually employed.

As this statement according to the terms of the bylaw granting the company a fixed assessment of $50,000 should have been filed at least a month earlier, the Council decided that there was no course but to charge the company taxes on the full assessed value of its plant amounting to $131,000. With that understanding, the matter was allowed to rest.

New Duty for Police

Mayor Kingston suggested that a lower fire insurance rate might be secured if Night Policeman Light were required to punch a clock at the fire alarm box in each of the four wards in the town at stated intervals during the night. This idea was adopted on motion of Councillors McDonald and Abernethy. Officer Light will carry a clock which he will punch with the keys found at the fire alarm boxes, making the rounds once every four hours during his tour of duty and turning in the clock to the fire hall every morning. This system was in effect here some years ago and was dropped by a former officer when only one policeman was employed.

Simpson Street Bridge

It was decided to purchase from McGregor and McIntyre six steel girders for the Simpson Street bridge at a cost of about $500, the surface of the structure to consist of cement. The work of building will be done by day labor under the supervision of Street Superintendent Fox who is regarded as fully capable of the task.

Buying a Safe

Two representatives of safe manufacturing companies were present to demonstrate the merits of their different wares but it was decided to postpone the purchase of this equipment until the next regular meeting as Councillor Wiggins, one of the special committee who inspected the different makes of safes in Peterboro who was not at the meeting.

Other Business Matters

The matter of oiling the streets was laid over until the May meeting. Several offers were received for the oil which will be required for this purpose.

The Firemen's Association of Ontario wrote to ask that the local brigade be enrolled as a member and that a delegate be sent from here to the next annual convention. On motion of Reeve Davidson, who is chief of the firemen, this communication was tabled.

Similar action was taken with a communication from the Ontario Safety League requesting the Council to have its truck drivers join the league so that they might be educated in the care of equipment and in safe driving. Campbellford, as Councillor McDonald stated, has only one truck, the fire apparatus, and this vehicle while on the streets always has the right off.

Clerk McGregor Ill

For the first time in years Town Clerk J. F. McGregor was too ill to attend a meeting of the Council, place was taken last night as recorder of the official minutes was taken by Councillor Stone.

CHAPMAN DIES FOR HIS CRIMES

Shows Little Emotion as He Pays Penalty For Murder.

EVENTUAL DAY.

WETHERSFIELD PRISON, Conn., April 6 (Canadian Press).—Gerald Chapman, notorious for 20 years of sensational crimes, ended his life on the gallows of the Connecticut State Prison as a murderer at four minutes past midnight. Calm and showing little emotion, he stepped under the noose of the State's new hanging machine and paid the penalty for the murder of Policeman James Skelly at New Britain, Conn., in October, 1924.

Seven minutes later physicians pronounced him dead, after a life of crime that began when he was 16, led him through jails and penitentiaries, and made his name a byword in every police station in the country.

The robber's body was claimed by Father Barry, prison chaplain, who buries it today.

A sensational $1 454,000 mail truck robbery in New York and an equally sensational escape from Atlanta Penitentiary, to which he had been sentenced for 25 years for crime, were the high spots of a criminal career. Three times had Chapman been reprieved in last minute efforts of counsel to save his life.

Chapman paid the penalty after a greatly eventful day. He had personally appeared before the Board of Pardons to make his own plea for mercy to the extent of commutation to life imprisonment. The board, however, without much deliberation, refused a pardon.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM WILSON

ORLAND, April 6. — William Wilson, a prominent farmer living in the Orser neighborhood, passed away at an early hour yesterday morning at his late home.

Mr. Wilson was very well known throughout this community as during the last several years he has owned several farms in different parts of the township. He was about 50 years of age and leaves to mourn his loss a wife, a son about 10 years of age, and a widowed mother.

He had been in his usual good health until about a week ago when he received a slight scratch on the hand which resulted in blood poisoning, and after local physicians had done all in their power a specialist was secured but nothing could be done to save his life, as in the last few hours pneumonia set in with fatal results.

At the time of his death his grief-stricken mother was unconscious and little hopes are held for her recovery.

The late Mr. Wilson was a lifelong Conservative, and was of a business turn of mind, and if he had been spared would have gone into business in the near future.

THE "DRIVER"

Well, where are we going? Oh, nobody knows. Just out in the open where everyone goes. A drivin' the car full o'kids is the thing that always occurs with the comin' of spring.

There's something about it that gets in the blood. The air's full o' pep—and the road full o' mud. But, shucks, it's real fun to be flirtin' with luck, and trust to the fates that the car won't get stuck.

You see little byways where traffic is thin and clatter along in yer bundle of tin. You're driving the family, an' oughta be glad—in spite of the fact that they're drivin' you mad.

The wife tells you this, and the kids tell you that. No wonder you never know just where you're at. They call you the driver—that's just a wise crack, 'cause really the driver is sittin' in back.

The man at the wheel has my sympathy, yea. He drives, but he has very little to say. It's fun to go touring. It's pleasant to roam. But, shucks, for the driver—it's fun to get home.

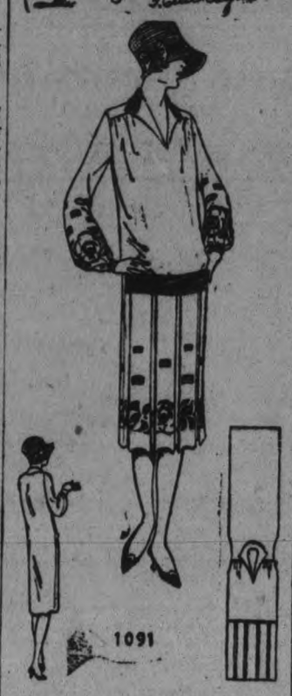
ECLIPSE FASHIONS

Exclusive Patterns by Hazel Bayne



One-piece Frock With a Two-piece Look

JEAN PATOU, in his recent showing, has returned to the type of wearable one-piece sports clothes for which he is best known; many of them flare with plaits, but all with bodice cut straight and comfortably loose, and having the waistline around the top of the hips. This type of dress is seen in the model pictured here, whose box-plaited skirt-front is joined to the bodice under a deep tuck. Note the back view shows a flat silhouette. There are gathers at the shoulders, and the collar is of the convertible type, to be worn high or turned back. No. 1091 is for misses and small women, and is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years, or (34, 36 and 38 inches bust only.) Size 18 years (36 bust) requires 4¾ yards 36-inch for dress of plain material; or 3 yards wide bordered material for dress as illustrated. Price 20 cents.

Our Fashion Book, illustrating the newest and most practical styles, will be of interest to every home dressmaker. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

SECRETS OF CHARM

Do you really know when you look your best?

I ask you to ponder this question conscientiously, for I have decided that many women err in this direction.

The question of slimness is one of them: I continually meet thin women who are dieting to become thinner. They are not only losing what rounded contour they possessed, but they are actually starving their bodies until their faces become pinched and harsh and tired and old. These women, I claim, do not know when they look their best.

Then there is the question of colors. Do you really know what are your best colors? And have you the strength of mind to stick to them when you see a really lovely dress, except that's its color is rather trying for you? This is the time when you must remember what colors really flatter you distinctly, and not be lured by an attractive line alone.

Don't think from this that I object to an ever-ready eye for experiments, provided you can judge which experiments will work and which will not. Ask a friend's advice. If you are not sure for yourself. And ask a friend who will tell you if she does not like it.

Shoes are another item that often lead women astray. Mrs. X, for instance, whose feet and ankles are not her best points, may see a pair of adorable little fancy slippers on pretty Miss Y. What does Mrs. X do. She goes down and buys the shoes for herself, in several sizes larger and several lasts wider than Miss Y's, and she looks awful.

And so it goes all down the line. If your legs are fat, don't wear the lighter shades in hose. Stick to darker tones. Gunmetal is very flattering to the large leg, and quite smart as a color.

The mind is like a sheet of white paper in this, that the impressions it receives the oftenest, and retains the longest, are black ones.—Hare.

My back was so weak that I could not do much heavy work and lots of times I could not work at all. Could not straighten my back. I tried different doctors and different plasters, but they did me no good. I met a friend who told me to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. He said if one box won't relieve you, two will. So that very day I sent for two boxes to the nearest druggist, then 20 miles away and took them as directed. The two boxes relieved me. HER OWN WAY

A THREAT ANSWERED

"Lola Lawrence's voice rose to almost a shriek, as she said that she could not endure me.

"'Oh, that's all right,' answered Madame Seria, easily. 'You don't have to see her, Miss Lawrence. I'll just give orders that she's not to come into the reception room when you're in the house. I know you like Melba Morton. She'll model for you.'

"'No, that won't do at all. That Irish girl will be sure to make herself known some way. I am quite certain that she sang that song the other day because she knew that Buddy Tremaine was with me and she knew how insane he is over a new voice.'

"I could not help wondering what Madame Seria would say to this for she must have remembered that she had made the plan to have me sing so that Mr. Tremaine would hear me, herself.

"Madam's voice was silky and sauve, as she asked:

"'Oh, do you think Miss Riley has a voice? I wasn't paying very much attention to it the other day.'

"'Of course she has a voice and you can make up your mind that she knows it, just as she knew that the quickest way to catch Buddy Tremaine would be to sing for him. She might even have known that he is getting tired of my voice. Do you know he has been talking about her all the time since that day? No, Madame, that girl must go.'

"'I'm very sorry, Miss Lawrence, but I've never allowed anyone to dictate to me about anyone on my staff. If I lose your patronage, I must lose it. That is up to you. But I would lose my own self-respect if I allowed a splendid, courageous little girl to go out from my shop, not because she had done anything wrong, but because of some selfish woman's whim.'

"Julie, Julie, I wanted to go out and hug as much of Madame as I could, her kindness was so unexpected. She had never paid any particular attention to me. I don't think she had spoken three words to me until after I had sung for her that morning and she gave me the fifty dollars.

"Now, however, I knew I was costing her a great deal of money, for already I had heard Lola Lawrence flounce out of the room.

"I rushed over to Madame and dropping on my knees I begged her, somewhat incoherently to let me go. I tried to tell her that I didn't want her to lose such a good client as Miss Lawrence.

"She pulled me up beside her and put her arms around my waist.

Breakfast—Baked apples cereal thin cream broiled bacon with scrambled eggs crisp whole wheat toast rhubarb and orange marmalade milk coffee.

Luncheon—Fish fritters creamed celery bran bread orange sponge, milk, tea.

Dinner—Casserole of lamb, browned potatoes, curly endive, stuffed figs with whipped cream, graham bread, milk, coffee.

If your supply of jelly and jams is running low try some of this rhubarb and orange marmalade. It's delicious and has enough tang to pep up a jaded morning appetite. A piquant marmalade of some sort is needed when so bland a fruit as baked apples is used.

This marmalade is good with hot biscuits for supper or luncheon and with hot buttered toast for afternoon tea. Combined with chopped nuts it makes an unusual filling for sandwiches.

Rhubarb and Orange Marmalade.

Two cups finely cut rhubarb, 3 oranges, 3 cups granulated sugar.

Remove the outer stringy skin of the rhubarb and cut in small pieces. Cut oranges in half, remove seeds and squeeze out juice. Put skins into a sauce pan, cover with cold water and bring to the boiling point. Simmer 15 minutes and drain. Scrape as much of the white part from the skins as possible and cut the yellow rind in thin strips. Combine rhubarb, orange juice—which is not strained—rind and sugar. Put into smooth sauce pan and bring slowly to the boiling point. Skim as necessary and cook until a spoonful of the mixture thickens when tested on a cold saucer. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with paraffin when cold.

FLAPPER FANNY says

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

HATS.

(Written for the United Press by Hedda Hoyt.)

NEW YORK, April 6 (United Press).

The inner side of every hat
Is bright, spic-span and shining
I therefore turn them inside out
And show the lovely lining.

Did you know that a felt hat that has been soiled can be turned inside out with very little trouble? All one has to do is take out the lining, remove the trimming and turn the shape inside out, pressing it back into its original shape. One saves a hat and also a cleaner's bill.

Even models with brims can be turned since the under side of the brim seldom becomes soiled and by reversing the shape the under brim then becomes the upper brim. True, the underbrim of the reversed shape may be a trifle soiled but unless the brim turns abruptly downwards this will not show to any degree.

In turning a felt hat that has a crushed brim one should be careful to press the creases back again with the fingers. Should the brim edge be worn grosgraine ribbon can be used as a binding without taking the smartness away from the hat.

Spots can be removed with tailor's chalk in many cases. The chalk is put on heavily and left on over night and brushed off again. Where the hat has a long velour nap one can use a small wire brush such as those used for brushing suede shoes to bring out the nap again.

The felt hat will not go out of style for sports wear for some time since women find it the most comfortable hat for bobbed heads. Small boyish shapes still predominate although they are not as distinctive as some of the new Spring shapes such as the little tam with a bandeau which fits snugly about the head or the up-turned brimmed shapes. One sees many larger felts with rather wide side-brims and with short rear brims. Felts appliqued with metal trimming provide interest for those who are tired of plain hats.

NEW S. A. OFFICERS AT CAMPBELLFORD

Captain Wright and Lieut. Ross Are Skilled Musicians.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 6. — Captain Robert Wright and Lieutenant William Ross, formerly of Toronto, who have been detailed for duty as leaders of the local corps of the Salvation Army, have arrived here and are now conducting the regular services. Both are experienced officers and skilled cornet players and they have already given a number of concerts on the streets, attracting large crowds.

The employees of the Hydro held a successful dance in the auditorium of the High school Monday night, the first after Lent entertainment of the kind given here. Music was furnished by Leonard'n orchestra and card tables were provided for those who did not care to dance.

P. C. Denyes, who has been confined to his home for several days with the 'flu' was able to get down to business for the first time Monday.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 7.

An active day but one with anxieties and adventures may be forecast from the dominant lunar transits. Mars, the precipitator, rules the day making for strife and impetuosity, a situation which is magnified by the Uranian position, bringing about the abrupt and unplanned. Mercury, however, saves the day and may promote success in business and in all that pertains to letters. Wisely planned speculations may succeed.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an active year but one calling for calm and well-planned action. The sudden and unexpected may characterize the year, which may produce success in business, speculation and letters. A child born on this day may be tempestuous and inclined to precipitate acts. Under restraint it may be successful in business, or the professions. It may have an adventurous career.

Corns Gone—after 2 years' misery

That obstinate corn which makes you wince with pain every time you put your foot to the ground cannot be cured by cutting and plastering. Such treatment only relieves the pain for a few days because the root of the corn has not been removed, so the corn grows again to torture you once more. But a few Radox foot baths will get the most obstinate corn right out.

Enthusiastic user of Radox writes: "I have been suffering with corns on the bottom of my feet these last two years. I have tried everything to get rid of them. I was told to get a packet of Radox Bath Salts—the corns have gone, and I can walk again free and easy after two years' misery. I have thanked the man a dozen times over for telling me about Radox Bath Salts. I am a well-known athlete."

10th July, 1925. T.J.

When you put your feet into a foot-bath containing Radox the salts soften the hard outer layers of the corn, and the oxygen which Radox liberates enters the pores, opens them, and penetrates further and further, carrying the corn-softening salts right to the root of the corn, which is thus loosened so that it may be lifted out bodily. This life-giving oxygen leaves the feet clean and healthy. Because it is the oxygen which carries the corn solvents to the root of the corn, and because Radox liberates, by test, more oxygen than other salts, it is clear that Radox is more efficient in removing corns than any other salts.

WELSHMEN PULLED DOWN EARLY LEAD OF FRENCH WINNING FINAL RUGBY GAME IN BACK LINE MUFF

International League Ends Season With Great Game in Paris.

SCORE WAS 7 TO 5

Wales Fought Doggedly Against Reverse in First Half.

PARIS, April 6 (Canadian Press Cable)—Having made several radical changes in their fifteen with the inclusion of a number of new "caps," the French International team gave an excellent display at the Colombe stadium here Monday afternoon, and were beaten only by a bare couple of points in a hard-fought game. The final score, coming after France had led by one goal after the first half, was seven to five in favor of Wales.

The French fielded what was perhaps the flashiest line-up for some years. Their three-quarters, led by the redoubtable Jarreguay, veteran of many an international tussle, unleashed an offensive combination that took the Welsh by surprise, while in "the many-legged heart of things" the French forwards packed well and heeled with spirit. It was largely due to the pack that the scoring was kept down. At fullback, Destarac stopped many Welsh rushes and his fine record in the game was marred only by the slip that brought to the Welshmen their scrambling try near the end.

The game witnessed France's fourth straight defeat and their second at the Colombes stadium this year. It also marked the wind-up of the rugby international series.

Confident of victory, the Welsh "nailed" their national emblem to the mast prior to the game, when an enthusiast climbed the goalposts and tied a bunch of leeks to it. The retaliation of the Gauls was the affixing of the republican tri-color to the opposite posts, and these amenities concluded the game began.

French Attack First

From the commencement it was evident that France was out for a win. They attacked at the outset, and Jarreguay went away in a fine dash. He was bundled into touch. From a scrum Graciot tried a drop at goal, but failed and the Welshmen then took a hand. They launched a vigorous assault on the French line and were over for a try, but this was disallowed, the French being awarded a free-kick.

The Welsh again pressed and for a while Destarac was kept busy, but he was equal to all occasions and cleared well. The visitors came back once more and a fine combined run looked bad for the French, but Besson intercepted a pass. This beautiful piece of work met with the result it deserved, for Besson set his three-quarters going. Flying at top speed Gerintes gathered the ball and romped over the Welsh line, scoring between the posts. Gonnet was entrusted with the kick and from an easy position brought out the major points.

Taken aback at this reverse, the Welsh threw everything they had into the fray, but they were met with a stubborn defence and the half-time whistle found them down the five points.

Second Half

The resumption saw both teams playing a furious game, the Welsh in an effort to pull the match out of the fire, and the French to register their first victory of the season. Wales attacked and again pinned the French down into their own Terrain, but Destarac relieved with a kick to touch. This brought out a French attack that looked dangerous until Cornish eased up the situation by a long kick. The Welsh pack crowded on the ball and swept down in a threatening dribble that would have taken them over the line, but Lafont dropped on the ball, throwing himself valiantly at the feet of the oncoming pack.

The Welsh were satisfied to let their powerful forward line do the work in the closing minutes and they carried the game well into French territory. Cornish secured in a fine position in front of the home goalposts and took a drop. He had better fortune than Graciet in the first half, for the ball sailed between the bars, thus reducing the margin from five points to one.

Encouraged by a distant prospect of victory, the Welsh again resumed with a great rush. The French line held, however, and some desperate play took place in the home twenty-five. The game might have ended with France two points ahead but for the fatal error of Destarac, whose slip allowed R. Jones to slide over for a try. The attempt at goal failed.

In the few minutes remaining, the French lost Lafont, who retired injured. A fierce struggle featured the ending of the game with France fighting strongly to regain the lead, but the Welsh defence, sorely tried nevertheless held firm and the encounter ended.

Wales—1 dropped goal, 1 try—7 points.

France—1 goal—5 points.

The wind-up of the season sees Scotland in the lead, beating Ireland out by a fractional margin in scoring average. The games ended as follows:

	P.	W.	D.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
Scotland	4	3	0	1	45	23	6
Ireland	4	3	0	1	41	26	6
Wales	4	2	1	1	26	24	5
England	4	1	1	2	38	39	3
France	4	0	0	4	11	49	0

Team records were:

Scotland 20; France 6, at Paris.

Scotland 8; Wales 3, at Edinburgh

Scotland 17; England 9; at Twickenham.

Ireland 3; Scotland 0, at Edinburgh.

Ireland 11; France 0; at Belfast.

Ireland 19; England 15, at Dublin.

Wales 11; Ireland 8, at Swansea.

Wales 7; France 5, at Paris.

Wales 3; England 3, at Cardiff.

RINK SOLD OUT FOR PRO GAME

Victoria and Montreal Resume Hostilities for Stanley Cup Tonight.

WESTERN RULES

MONTREAL, Que., April 6. — Capacity crowds have been the order in the Stanley cup series between the Montreal Maroons and the Victoria Cougars at the Forum in the past week and a fourth bumper gathering of over 10,000 is assured for the tussle under western rules to-night. The seat sale for the extra cup game was opened on Monday morning and by evening the tickets had been practically all taken up.

The race has changed from one in which it appeared that Montreal would romp through in three straight games to one which is now causing considerable speculation. With the game to-night under the westerners' code Victoria are conceded a fair chance of tying the series at two wins each and forcing a fifth game on Thursday to decide the honors. In their victory under eastern rules Saturday night the Cougars from the Pacific Coast showed their smartest hockey since their arrival here to defend the trophy and title.

Montreal on the other hand fell decidedly below form, and the big question among local fans is "Can the Maroons come back to their true pitch and duplicate their victory of last Thursday when they blanked the Westerners at their own game?"

In the three games to date the Maroons have shown that they pack the scoring punch to win games. In the first two games the defence aided them by holding the Cougars. On Saturday night the defence was the weak link in the local machine. With a tightened guard in front of Benedict to-night Montreal will have its opportunity to repeat last Thursday's win.

But Victoria will not go down with out a fight—if they go down at all. The Cougars have taken a new lease of life and sense an excellent chance of throwing the whole series into a "rubber" game. With their own rules in their favor, their defence strengthened and the players as a whole having found their feet, they stand an equal chance of winning the fourth battle.

Date Moved Forward.

Following a conference of the managers of the two teams and the rink management it was decided to postpone the fourth Stanley Cup game between the Montreal Maroons and the Victoria Cougars from last night to to-night. This action was necessary owing to the impossibility of putting the tickets for the game on sale in time for Monday night.

CECIL LEITCH — GREATEST FAULT IN PUTTING

In the event there are any players who, like myself, experience times on the green when they are hitting the ball here, there and everywhere, I must point out what I have in my own case found to be the cause. This temporary paralysis is caused by the tightening of the muscles of the wrists and forearms, with the result that the ball is stabbed by means of a stiff jerk of the arms. The wrists must be allowed freedom and the club must not be gribbed too firmly for putting, but those who are suffering from an attack of putting paralysis should exaggerate the looseness of the grip and wrists.

There is one other common fault in putting to which I must refer, and that is the tendency to turn the right hand over at the moment of impact. This action is to be avoided at all costs on the green, as it applies a slight pull to the ball at the end of its journey.

When suffering from disappointing results of this nature it is well to see what position the head of the putter is in at the end of the stroke. The toe of the club will generally be found to be pointing in the direction of the hole instead of being at right angles to it.

TO FIGHT FOR TITLE.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Emil Paluso, Salt Lake City flyweight, will meet Fidel La Barbara, world's flyweight champion, at Los Angeles, May 4, according to Leo P. Flynn, Paluso's manager, who said to-day the match would be for twelve rounds and involve La Barbara's title.

Newsy Lalonde's Father, Cornwall Pioneer, Dying

CORNWALL, April 6 (Canadian Press).—Peter Lalonde, 79, one of Cornwall's pioneer residents, and the father of the famous Newsy Lalonde, is lying in a critical state at his home here and little hope is held out by the attending physician for his recovery. Newsy came up from Montreal Monday and is with his father and mother. He expected to take part in the benefit game for Anderson, of Lester Patrick's Victoria Cougars in Montreal last night, but the serious turn in the illness of his father prevented him from leaving on the afternoon train.

BILLY EVANS SAYS.

FORT MYERS, Fla., April 6.—The Philadelphia Athletics lost the American League pennant last season because they faltered in the stretch due to lack of poise.

The Athletics comprise a great ball club. Any team that beats the Mackmen out this year is going to be mighty close to the top.

As I watched the Athletics prepare hopes will bring him his first pennant since 1914, the actions of one athlete stood out. He struck me as the most valuable addition of the winter to the Athletics.

I have in mind that youthful rookie, William "Kid" Gleason, age 62, as spry as any man on the field and, as Al Simmons remarked to me:

"He can trim anybody on the ball club." Al had reference to physical prowess.

"Kid's Work Already Apparent.

I look for "Kid" Gleason to work a marvelous change for the better in the morale of the Athletics. As a matter of fact, it is already apparent.

Gleason is one of baseball's most colorful characters. He understands men. He caters to a player's disposition and temperament. He gets the most out of him.

"Kid" Gleason is making the Mackmen believe in their greatness. On each individual he is impressing the fact that there isn't a better ball club in the league than the A's. Likewise, he is stressing the importance of the work of each player in bringing about a desired result—the winning of the pennant.

Any ball player who has ever worked under "Kid" Gleason is strong for him. The "Kid" has no greater admirer than Eddie Collins, who played under him as a White Sox—was his captain.

"Gleason will work wonders with the Athletics," remarked Collins to me when I looked over his team at Shrevepot. "Gleason is the greatest single influence for good I ever saw on any ball club. He inspires you."

With Connie Mack supplying the strategy and "Kid" Gleason the inspiration, the Athletics have just about the best combination possible in baseball.

Has World of Stuff.

In the ranks of the Athletics is a pitcher who aside from Gleason, just about holds the destiny of the club in his hands. I am speaking of "Lefty" Groves.

If "Lefty" Groves can win 20 ball games the Athletics will be tough to beat. If he can turn in 25 victories the team will be all the tougher.

I watched Groves pitch five innings against the Philadelphia Nationals at Bradentown. It was the most impressive spring pitching I have seen.

Groves retired nine of the 15 batters on strikes. It seemed as if he had two strikes on every man that faced him. He allowed only four hits.

RECRUIT RELEASED.

PHILADELPHIA, April 6. — (Canadian Press.)—Ray Crumpler, recruit pitcher for the Philadelphia Nationals, Monday was released by Manager Art Fletcher to the Waco club of the Texas League, from which he was purchased last fall.

CHANGES IN BASEBALL RULES IMPORTANT BUT NOT RADICAL

Use of Rosin on Pitchers' Hands is Optional—Illegal on Ball.

OTHER CHANGES

Rules Have Been Re-written for Clarity in Many Cases.

Although the changes made in the playing rules of baseball for 1926 are not revolutionary, nevertheless they will have considerable bearing upon the outcome of many games. There has been no upheaval of pitching rules as have been made at various times in the history of the game. Perhaps it would have been better if there had been a little more freedom granted to the pitcher, but that is something that can await the turn of the tide.

Wherever a change has been made in the rules in their publication in Spalding's Base Ball Guide, it has been noted in the marginal directory. In the explanations of the rules which are a feature of the Guide, and which are not found elsewhere, the changes have been commented upon by the editor of the Guide.

There has been some misunderstanding even this early about the changes. This is due to the fact that criticism made of the amendments without the critics awaiting the official text. Although the changes were noted and carefully explained by the committee, wrong impressions have been created by confusing one change with another.

The coacher may no longer go father back toward the outfield than an extension of the base lines from first to second to third bases into foul ground indefinitely. The coacher's assistance must therefore be confined to the infield and is not to be used in rambling toward the outfield in an effort to get the "signs" of the pitcher and the catcher. This modifies Rule 6.

Where the words "the alternate ball" occur now and then, a change has been made to "an alternate ball." This came because so many baseballs are now used in each contest and each baseball must bear its legal significance to the game.

A paragraph has been added to Section 5 of Rule 14 which is more for the benefit of the minor leagues than it is for the majors, although both may profit by it. It provides that baseballs which have been used may again be used in succeeding games if they are accepted by the umpires. If a game is started with six new balls and they are lost, the umpire must finish the game with six balls that have been used previously, if they are delivered to him by the home club and are satisfactory to him. He may throw them out if he is not satisfied with them. The amendment is largely one of economy.

The rule regarding the bat is rewritten. It is not changed in intent, but it is clear. In the original form it was not. It asserted originally that one end of the bat could be "wound," but did not state specifically which end.

In Rule 16 it says that a player may act as captain. That means that if a team does not want its captain on the field it can have him in the coacher's box. It has become the custom to have the captain a player other than one of the regulars.

The double-header rule, which makes the first game of the afternoon the legal game for the day, has been set apart by itself instead of being classified with the "regulation game" rule.

In Section 2 of Rule 28, about substituting players, there has been no end of confusion among the youngsters as to what "any stage of the game" means when one player was put in the contest for another. Frequently it has been ruled that a player could break down between first base and second, and if another player touched first base and continued to run for the injured player, the run would count. Of course, that would result in a farce, because slow runners could pretend to break down at first base and faster runners could take their places. The rule has been so changed now that a substitution cannot be made while the ball is in play. The umpire always calls "time" when a substitution is made.

To Section 2 of Rule 30 there is appended the rosin bag paragraph which has become famous thus early. The National League will use it and the American League will have none of it.

The rule does not say that the pitcher must dry his hands on the rosin bag. It says he may. There can be a legal rosin bag, and if there is a league that doesn't want to carry the bag, there is nothing to compel it to do so.

Note one thing very carefully. Not a word of the rule about the use of a foreign substance on the ball has been changed. To daub or maltreat the ball is as illegal as ever it was.

The rule in regard to the pitcher throwing to an unoccupied base has been changed so that if he does it once he is warned, and if he repeats it he is out of the game. This change has been erroneously confounded in some way with the intentional pass, but has nothing whatever to do with it. The change is very proper and a good one, as it prevents needless delay of the game.

Various slight changes have been made in the balk rule, but none of them alter the balk or its penalty. The changes have made the rule much clearer.

If a batsman stand at the plate and, in the opinion of the umpire, dodges into a slow ball so that he spoils either a ball or a strike, the umpire may put a penalty of a ball or a strike on the batsman. In the past it has often been ruled a dead ball, and thus the batsman got away with a play at the expense of the pitcher. Of course, if the batsman is hit accidentally, the rule of hit by pitcher applies as it always did.

The rule about the intentional pass stands as it did, although the members of the rules committee were quite willing to admit that it is superfluous and unnecessary. However it had been incorporated into the rules as sort of a precautionary warning to the catcher, and so it was permitted to remain. The words "the intentional pass" were stricken from the rule. The leagues do not recognize, or pretend longer to recognize, that there is not such a thing as an "intentional pass." Mindreaders can not play baseball in the capacity of umpires.

The distance of a home run is 250 feet, and yet the size of a ground does not necessarily have a minimum limit of 250 feet. A ground may be 235 feet at its best measurement, but home runs will not be legal over that 235-foot wall. That point is flatly settled by increasing the distance of a home run to 250 feet.

The umpire, by the change in the rule regarding suspension of play, may call the game at the end of thirty minutes if he wishes to do so. If, in his opinion, he can afford to wait five minutes longer, he may; but on the other hand there is nothing which prevents him from stopping short at the end of thirty minutes. It might have been better if the rule had been drawn so that the expiration of thirty minutes was a final dictum to the umpire to stop play, but the rule as it reads is better than it was in 1925.

There will be found many one word changes made necessary by reason of the fact that the coach brought into the game now as a separate unit. There can be a professional coach exactly as there is a professional manager, neither of whom is actively engaged with the ball or bat.

In the future if a batsman wants a home run he must touch all bases under all conditions. There are to be no freak home runs as presents solely to make records.

If the batsman gets to first on a wild pitch it will be an error in the future. It should always have been. There is no reason in the world why the pitch should not stand for anything which puts a batsman on first base.

If the catcher musses up a strike-out the pitcher must get credit for what he accomplished, or rather would have accomplished with proper co-operation. It was found that scorers were depriving the pitcher of a strikeout when the catcher muffed the ball.

The stolen base rule is so modified that the scorer may use his judgement and give a stolen base if the runner has shown an active play that is baffling to the pitcher. With all that has been done to encourage base running, scorers have been in the habit of not giving the runner on first a stolen base when it was evident that he was trying to draw a throw that would help a runner to score for third. If there ever was intent in a play to advance a runner it was in the action of the man on first, who was recorded with nothing simply because the scorers followed a rule exactly as it read.

The sacrifice hit rule has been changed to read, "when no one is out or when but one man is out the batsman hits a fly ball that is caught but results in a base-runner advancing on the catch." The change is in the words "base-runner advancing." Frequently, or at least often enough to make it worth while, a run has been scored by two long flies in succession. The chap who batted the last got a sacrifice hit and the one who batted the first got nothing, yet the run could not have scored had it not been for this play. The rules committee logically decided that if one fly helped to score a run, so did the other. And so it did, and so it will.

If the change does anything it may assist some batters to a slightly lower percentage; but if there are any who hold that such sacrifices are not sacrifices, then let the rule about sacrifice flies be abolished in its entirety. If a batsman advances a runner by any kind of a play which is perfectly played in the field the batsman is entitled to credit, and that is as certain as spring.

Ty Cobb conceded to be the greatest baseball player of all time, does all things well. Among his many accomplishments is an uncanny ability to solve the offerings of opposing pitchers.

Cob, for nine successive years, led the American League at bat and has 12 championships to his credit. That makes him an authority on batting.

On the Detroit club is another outfielder who can hit the pill, Al "Red" Wingo. Like Cobb, Wingo is a left-hander and hits 'em hard to all fields.

"He's the greatest natural hitter in baseball," is Cobb's tribute to Wingo.

"Once he acquires the habit of waiting out the pitcher and picking the ball he likes to hit, he is going to be even tougher to fool. At present 'Red' overlooks the value of getting the pitcher in the hole, being content to swing at any ball delivered close to the plate."

Since Wingo hits well using only natural ability, Cobb has let well enough alone and not tried to change his style.

LEADERS Their Records of 1925 BATTING

AL SIMMONS

Made major league with Athletics in 1924 coming from Milwaukee in American Association. Started professional career with Aberdeen in Dakota League in 1922.

Had best season in 1925, hitting over .350. Was in race for American League batting championship until last few weeks of campaign.

One of main reasons for great showing of Mackmen in battle with Washington for pennant.

In 1924 batted .308, making 183 safeties in 152 games.

Has peculiar and very unorthodox style at bat with has earned him the nickname of "Foot-in-the-Water-Bucket Al." In other words, has tendency to step back from the plate when meeting the ball.

Plays center field, covers plenty of ground and possesses a strong arm. He's considered one of the best-looking prospects to come into the American League in seasons.

The closing of the British Empire Exposition at Wembley in 1924 threw 3,000 waitresses out of work.

JOHNNY MOSTIL FUTURE GREAT

That is Opinion of Sox Pilot —Showed Worth in 1925.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 19.—Outfielder Johnny Mostil of the Chicago White Sox is destined shortly to take his place as the greatest outfielder in the American League.

That is the opinion held by his manager, Eddie Collins. No one is much better qualified to pass on the merits of "Bananas," as Collins years ago nicknamed Mostil.

Last season Mostil improved 100 per cent over the Mostil of 1924. In spring training Collins made that prediction and Mostil more than lived up to the advance notices his manager had painted for him.

This year Collins is more than ever won over by the remarkable possibilities of Mostil.

"The White Sox fans were always wild about 'Happy' Felsh. Well, in another year, perhaps it may be two, they will be telling you that Mostil is a better man.

"For the first time in his career Mostil, last year, played with initiative. I impressed upon him that I wanted him to take advantage of his great ability and when he failed to pull something there would be no one to chide him.

"The moment I made Mostil believe in himself as a fielder and baserunner he began to do the marvelous things of which he is capable.

"Mostil is as good a hitter as he is a fielder and baserunner, but he doesn't quite believe in himself yet. The moment he gets the proper confidence in himself at the plate he is going to be the sensation of the American League.

"And I don't mean maybe."

GIANTS PICKED WITH MACKMEN FOR EARLY LEAD

Observers See Uphill Fights Again for Senators and Pirates.

VIEW OF EXPERTS

Repetition of Last Year's Campaigns Expected If Results Are Same.

NEW YORK, April 6 (Canadian Press)—The Senators and Pirates will be compelled to repeat their uphill fights of 1925 to overcome anticipated slow starts in defense of their major league titles, if the forecasts of many baseball observers are borne out.

On the basis of spring training condition, the Giants in the National and the Athletics in the American again are favored to break in front with flying starts.

Last year, barring one week in April and two weeks in July, the team of Bucky Harris trailed the Mackmen until the latter part of August. At that point the Athletics cracked, a long losing streak putting them definitely out of the running. Pittsburgh players although they gained the peak quicker than the Senators, had a longer and hard climb in 1925. In the cellar in April they did not begin their ascent definitely until the middle of May. They reached third place in June and vaulted to the pinnacle in July, remaining there until the end, except for a few days in August.

RENAULT OFFERED BOUT WITH WILLS

But Wills' Manager Has Not Yet Agreed.

NEW YORK April 6 (Canadian Press). — Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight champion, was inserted in Tex Rickard's 1926 heavyweight programme yesterday, when Jess McMahon, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, obtained Renault's signature to a contract calling for a 15-round match with Harry Wills at the Yankee Stadium late in June. Paddy Mullins, Wills manager, withheld discussion of the match until after a conference with McMahon today. McMahon said he had an attractive proposition to offer Wills which would open the way to future matches for the negro heavyweight.

Tied up by a contract with Floyd Fitzsimmons for a match with Dempsey which makes it impossible to discuss another match until the contract is satisfied or abrogated, April 15, Mullins is expected to assume a silent attitude toward McMahon's offer. He did say, however, that he would consider the proposition and make a decision after April 15.

STRIBLING TO MEET CARPENTIER JULY 4

12 Round Bout at Macon—$30,000 For Carp.

LOS ANGELES, April 6. — Georges Carpentier, light-heavyweight champion of Europe, and Young Stribling, Dixie's aspirant for the world heavyweight championship, have signed to fight 12 rounds to a decision in Macon, Ga., July 4, Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan City, Ind., promoter, announced yesterday. Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will be Fitzsimmons' partner in promoting the bout.

Under the contract Fitzsimmons says he holds, Carpentier will receive a flat $30,000, while Stribling will get 37½ per cent of the gross receipts.

Dempsey will appear in a six-round exhibition fight. The champion returned to his Pinehills Lodge, 60 miles from San Diego Monday, to resume training for another exhibition tour. The champion is to appear in El Paso, April 16. He will go to Henderson, N.C., in the latter part of April for a month's training, preliminary to the exhibition match, July 4 and the title bout with Harry Wills on Labor Day.

Reports that Tex Rickard has bought out Floyd Fitzsimmons' option on the Dempsey-Wills bout were denied.

PRO TEAMS BARRED

Cannot Compete With Amateurs for Connaught Cup, Says D.F.A.

TORONTO, April 6.—(Canadian Press).—Professional soccer football clubs are barred from this year's competition for the Connaught Cup, the Dominion Football Association has notified all provincial associations. The decision was arrived at following a vote by mail on the suggestion of the Province of Quebec Football Association that amateur and professional teams be allowed to compete for the Dominion championships.

HOLLYWOOD, April 6.—If you think Charleston steps are easy to acquire. If you do, ask Gloria Swanson how long she practiced them while rehearsing for her coming Paramount picture, "Fine Manners," and how many hours she was forced to spend with a masseuse so that she could get to the studio the day after trying these steps. But she knows them now and performs them like a regular campaigner.

In "Fine Manners" Miss Swanson has the role of a chorus girl in a burlesque troupe. Of course, every burlesque chorus has to dance. Many of the girls had had chorus experience, so the steps came easily to them, but the others had an awful time.

Miss Swanson had been one of the most enthusiastic of the pupils. She learned quicker than most of the others, but she also worked harder.

When she reached home the first night, however, and tried to get out of her car, it wasn't so funny. She had more aches than she imagined existed. A masseuse was called and, after a long session with her, the star was able to get around pretty well.

It was the same story for several days, but Miss Swanson didn't weaken. She found the "strut," the "off to Buffalo" and the "French twist," the hardest of the lot, but in course of time she conquered them.

RUPTURE APPLIANCES Expert Coming

Retention Not Effected by Age so Reports Visiting Expert

T. Y. Egan, 1507 College, Toronto, the long established Canadian rupture appliance specialist, will visit Peterboro, White's Hotel, 173 Charlotte street, Friday (hours 8 a.m. till 8 p.m.), 1 day, April 9.

The "Curatrus" with new sanitary retentive shield acts, feels and retains rupture more like the human hand than anything yet invented, the pliable flesh-like touch of the velvety finished shield gives a mild life-like massage, exercising and allowing a free blood circulation around hermial opening. Its free action is intended to allow nature to strengthen the muscles in the shortest time known and at small cost, specifically prepared to order (men, women, children) for individual indications.

These new appliances have received the highest approval wherever shown, and are designed in accordance with the principles set forth by the world's text-book authorities on this subject; "made in Canada" and effecting results without harmful ready-made old fashioned imported trusses. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. Free demonstration and examination of samples. Now is the time to make yourself safe and comfortable for your daily work. Note dates; ask at hotel office for his sample room; tear this out.

EXPECT BUDGET TO BE BROUGHT DOWN SHORTLY

Commons Looks For Little Delay Now Recess is Over.

INTERIM VOTE.

Reductions in Income Tax and Tariff Are Forecast.

OTTAWA, April 6 (Canadian Press).— Parliament resumes today after the Easter recess with members of both the House of Commons and the Senate in attendance. The meeting of the Cabinet will take place before the House meets.

Government business legislation already on the Order Paper, and possibly the estimates will occupy the attention of the members of the House of Commons. The Senate will be asked to approve an interim supply bill providing for one twelfth of the total amount of the main estimates.

This bill passed the House of Commons several days ago. Its passage insures payment of civil service salaries, which fall on the 15th of the month. The Government will, it is expected, bring down the budget with as little delay as possible now that the Easter holiday is over. No indication has been given yet as to the exact date that the Finance Minister will choose on which to make his annual statement. Preparations however, are under way for what is generally regarded as the most important item on the sessional programme. Reductions in taxation have been forecasted on a number of occasions. A cut in the income fax as well as tariff reductions are said to be under consideration.

YOUNG FARMERS ASK QUESTIONS ABOUT CANADA

Party of Young Britishers Seeks Information About New Home.

WERE UNEMPLOYED.

Sent to Canada By British Ministry of Labor After Training.

MONTREAL, April 6. —. (Special.) — "Why do they have such narrow fields in Quebec? What do they grow on the farms we saw from the train? What does a loaf cost? How much is cheese? Where can I get a good meal? When do we get to work? How far will a dollar go? Where is Toronto? Why do they pile stones in the middle of the field instead of building a fence?"

These queries form but a random selection of those hurled at a newspaper man who last night at Bonaventure station fell in with a party of forty-three young Britishers who have come to Canada under the auspices of the British Ministry of Labor —an experimental group sent out to test the merits of a scheme by which young men who had been receiving the benefits of unemployment insurance, were sent to a farm training community for six months with the ultimate view of placing them in agricultural work in Canada and Australia.

The special party referred to reached Halifax on board the Alauria and arrived in Montreal last night on a special train over the C.N.R., all the passengers on which were of British origin. In charge of the party came Captain H. L. Bluck, as representative of the Ministry of Labor. Capt. Bluck has been acting in an executive capacity at Claydon, a small village close to Ipsich in Suffolk where an old workhouse and farm was taken over last November, and converted into a modern instructional centre.

Captain Bluck explained: "Two hundred men, practically all former recipients of unemployment insurance benefit, popularly known as the "dole" have been in attendance for six months. One hundred of them have been trained for work in home trades and the balance for settlement in the Dominions, 50 in Canada, 50 in Australia. These men have received their board, lodging, training and an allowance of five shillings weekly. They also received a free issue of boots, breeches, elggings and coats. In other word: some of the money which would otherwise have been paid to them in "dole" has been used to train and equip them for farm work in the Dominion."

"The purpose of this and the other larger training centre now started at Brandon in Norfolk County, as well as others which may be opened later by the Ministry of Labor is to give some of the young men who have little or no opportunity since the war of the opportunity of learning a trade a chance to fit themselves for settlement in the Dominion. The course has been short and they have not had all the proper things with which to work ,but they have been well introduced to a number of useful things such as milking, ploughing and driving horses. They have at least been given such a measure of acquaintance with some of the main features of work as to give them confidence in starting in a new country.

"One feature is that they have been working with Canadian farm implements so as to accustom them to the forms of plough, seeder and disc harrows they will find out here."

Rotary's Variety Entertainment

The variety entertainment arranged by Rotarian Douglas Fletcher in aid of the Rotary Boys' Camp Fund provided a most artistic, varied and enjoyable programme at the Grand last night. The visiting artists, Madame Helen Farnum, dramatic contralto, Miss Catherine McIntosh, lyric soprano, Martin B. Chenhall, Jr., cellist, Archie Hardyment, violinist, and Harold Bradley, pianist, all of the Hambourg Conservatory, Toronto, and Miss Marion May Perry and her clever dancers, assisted by the Grand Opera House orchestra, united in an entertainment that was pleasing in every detail, and the appreciation of the audience was evidenced in the hearty reception accorded the artists.

The concert is to be repeated tonight and with the good things that are being said about the programme to-day by those who were present last night, there will undoubtedly be a large audience for the final offering. The merit of the entertainment as well as the worthiness of the cause should ensure liberal patronage.

Madame Helen Farnum, who is shortly to become a resident of Peterborough, was heard in several song groups last night that showed conclusively that she will be a decided acquistion to the city's musical forces. Madame Farnum possesses a rich, warm contralto and she sings with a clearness of ennunciation and a dramatic artistry that make her every number a delight. In her aria, "Voce di Douna," from La Giaconda in Tschaikowsky's plaintive song, "Ye Who Have Yearned Alone," in the ever popular "Kashmiri song" and the dramatic number, "I Am Fate," the singer scored a triumph, and in response to the applause that greeted the last number she was forced to give an encore.

Miss McIntosh, a soprano well above the average, made a most favourable impression in her well chosen numbers, which included the aria, "Vissi D'Arte" from "La Tosca," the popular "The Answer," always an effective number, Mascagni's "Ave Maria," and "Coming Through the Rye." Miss McIntosh sang these offerings most effectively, displaying a purity of voice and a proper appreciation of the value of the words.

Miss Marion May Perry's dance number formed a very welcome addition to the programme. Miss Perry's solo offerings demonstrated her own proficiency in the art most successfully and the clever work of her pupils was a revelation of her ability as a teacher. Her waltz duet with Stanley Bishop was most artistic ly done and later on in the programme Miss Perry danced "The Merry Widow" waltz and a Charleston number with equal success. In the two numbers she was assisted by her dancing chorus, Dorothy Graham, Bunty Dunlop, Irene Chambers, Alma Stinchcomb, Florence Geary, Adelle Robinson and Lillian Farthing, whose clean-cut work won general admiration. The costumes worn by Miss Perry and her pupils were designed by her and were most striking.

One of the hits of the evening was contributed during the dance numbers by two little tots, Moira Coutts and Sofia Yeotes, who not only danced most charmingly the cute little Rose dance, but also showed surprising cleverness in the Charleston number.

A Peterborough boy who is making a name for himself in the musical world, Martin Chenhall, Jr., was responsible for much of last evening's success. He has made vast strides as a 'cellist, as he proved to the satisfaction of his audience in his masterly playing of Popper's "Hungarian Rhapsodie," an offering that enabled Mr. Chenhall to show his thorough mastery of technique. His second number, Saint Saens' "My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice," was distinguished by the beautiful tone produced by the clever artist.

Archie Hardyment, a twelve-year-old youngster, scored an individual triumph in his violin numbers. The manner in which this young musician played the Allegro from Godard's Concerto in C took the audience by storm and he was equally effective in his brilliant playing of a medley of Scottish airs.

Harvey Bradley, the pianist, upon whose shoulders fell the burden of providing the acompaniments to all the numbers except the dances, proved fully equal to the task. His solo numbers, Chopin's "Militaire Polonaise" and a Ballade of his own composition, were a fitting introduction to a fine performance by this most promising young artist.

A notable feature was the work of the three artists, Messrs. Chenhall, Bradley and Hardyment in two trio numbers, "By the River," by Morse, and Franz Schubert's always popular "Moment Musical," both played most effectively.

Madame Farnum and Miss McIntosh were heard to advantage in Irving Berlin's hit "Remember," in which the instrumental trio provided the accompaniment.

All in all, last night's programme was a rare treat and Peterborough music lovers should avail themselves of the opportunity given them by repetition of the concert to hear these artists tonight.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

J. H. H.: You have an attractive type of nature, kind and loving and eminently fitted for marriage. Your mate can always place trust and confidence in you. But there is a certain degree of change and uncertainty in your makeup that will not always spell happiness for you. You have a sympathetic, free and friendly disposition, jovial at most times but capable of great rages and of a sulky demeanor when offended. Although not naturally studious, you are quite observant and can readily learn and accomplish anything you set your mind to, being especially handy in mechanical matters. You have a great respect for law and authority, but feel resentment when commanded by others. You are devoted to your friends, who often impose upon you. You can be depended upon to carry out all you believe to be right or attainable in life. You have a healthy, vital physique, large perceptive faculties, a friendly expression of eye and a quick and buoyant step. Guard your heart at all times, and avoid undue excitement and hard climbing. You were born on Saturday. Your colors are orange and gray. The day you ask about, a Tuesday, is one on which you should be patient and agreeable. Do not exercise strenuously and make no important purchases on that day.

H. P. C. B.: You have what might be termed a very strong and splendid type of character, one that should be able to do much good in the world if you can control some minor faults. You are one of the type from whom others instinctively demand much, and who are not easily forgiven when these expectations are not lived up to. But you will not always be understood. You have an unconquerable desire to do good to others and in carrying out this inclination, you often try to do good by force and the very people you wish to benefit are alienated from you by a misunderstanding of your very worthy motives. To you, the cause is always greater than the individual, and you are often cruel and at all times dominant. You look at most things, not as they are, but as they will ultimately affect the good of mankind. You have a strong will and much control over others but little over your own impulses, and you are inclined to be jealous and exacting in the attention you require from those about you. What you need to cultivate more than anything else is the habit of mental tolerance. If others go the wrong way, shrug your shoulders and let them go. You were not born to set the world right. Strive for love of all things, including animals, and for patience. The small faults of your life may in time choke the really great attributes that are yours. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are red and brown. The date you ask about is past.

D. V. B.: Although indications in your reading point to a considerable degree of attainment and success in matters involving science of business, there is an element of change and uncertainty in your nature which will not mean the very highest attainment in life for you unless you take steps to correct it. You have a vivacious, nervous and somewhat anxious nature, and become very intent on the business in hand at the moment. You have a fluency of speech that is marred at times by a too frequent use of personalities. Whenever you think of doing a thing, the mainspring of your actions is the fear of evil resulting from not doing it, rather than the benefti to be derived from the doing hereof. When you are ill, it is very difficult to keep you quiet. You are a great lover of education and take a philosophical and practical view of all subjects. Your mind is almost a perfect balance between the sentimentally ideal and the grossly worldly. You trouble is your habit of inconstancy, taking up new fads, appropriating the best in them for a time, then dropping them. You find difficulty in keeping your hands still. You were born on Wednesday. Opal and canary shades are your colors. The day you ask about, a Monday, is one for confidently assuming any responsibility offered you. Don't put anything off.

SPECIAL MUSIC AT KNOX SUNDAY

Soloists and Choir Give Effective Rendering of Easter Music.

The joyousness of Easter was the theme both from pulpit and choir at the services in Knox Church last Sunday.

Soloists and chorus gave a reverently effective rendering of the beautiful music composed for the greatest of all festivals, their singing of such a number of standard compositions in such an excellent manner being worthy of all commendation, particularly as the choir is purely voluntary.

The numbers selected were:

Morning.—Organ, "Lift Up Your Heads," Handel; Solo, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," Handel; Organ, "The Son of God Goes Forth," Goodwin; Anthem, "I Heard a Great Voice," Cobb.

Evening.—Organ Prelude, "Hosanna," Paul Wachs; Solo, 'Hosanna," Grainier, Mrs. Clarence Scholey; Organ, "Grand Offertorie in F," Batiste; Anthem, "Ye Choirs of New Jerusalem," Hopkins; Recit., "And As Moses," Stainer, Mr. Arthur Pitchford; Chorus, 'God So Loved the World," Stainer; Solo, "King Ever Glorious," Stainer; Anthem, "He is Risen," Wilson; Organ, "Intermezzo," Op. 2, Macbeth; Anthem, "King of Kings," Simper; Chorus, "Hallelujah," Handel.

Many of the above numbers were new to Knox choir a month ago, when Mr. Devey was appointed as organist, whose work at the organ on Sunday was very effective.

GOOD ATTENDANCE CONVENTION OPENS

Many Hear Dr. Cameron's Address at Bethany Tabernacle.

A splendid and interested crowd gathered at the opening service of the Missionary Convention now in progress at Bethany Tabernacle. The pastor, Mr. Mills, led in the opening song service and introduced Mr. T. Watson, the Assistant Superintendent of the Canadian District, who is in charge of the local convention. Mr. Watson made some appropriate remarks and presented the speaker of the evening, Dr. D. N. Cameron of Toronto.

Mr. Cameron gave a searching and deeply spiritual exposition of the First Psalm. Mr. Cameron's messages have an appeal that is both gripping and resistless. Mr. Cameron will speak each afternoon and evening.

Owing to injury received by a fall on Saturday in Montreal, Rev. E. O. Jago did not speak last evening, but will be present and speak tonight. The subject of his address tonight will be "The Jew."

The Convention will continue for the entire week with services at three and eight o'clock each day except Saturday. Th public is invited.

SOCCER INJURY FATAL.

LONDON, April 6.— Injured on the rugby field last Saturday, S. A. Brown, vice-captain and leading try-getter of the Gloucester Club, finished out the match and died later of a ruptured kidney. Gloucester was playing Aberavon. This is the second fatality of its kind to happen to Gloucester, which last year lost Stanley Bayliss, who died after being injured in a match.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DICKY MEETS A NEW MEMBER OF THE ZOO

"C-O-N-Y," Dicky spelled the name on the board above the wire pen, then he laughed. "Wonder what in the world a cony can be?" he mused. Then out loud he began to call the little fellow by name.

The grasses by the big rock stirred and out hopped a queer little animal.

He was just about eighteen inches long, covered with thick fur and great big bristles.

"Did you call me?" inquired the little animal winking his pretty eyes at Dicky. "Did I hear you call me?"

"No, I didn't call you, Mr. Rabbit," laughed Dicky. "But maybe you can tell me who Mr. Cony is?"

"I'm not a rabbit, I'm Mr. Cony himself," laughed the furry creature. "I do look like a rabbit, don't I? But I'm not. Look at my teeth," and he opened his mouth and came closer to the fence where Dicky was standing. "Don't back away, I'm not going to bite you. Folks say my teeth are like those of Mr. Rhinoceros. I've never seen Mr. Rhinoceros."

"Neither have I," declared Dicky. "But I'll take your word for it. Where in the world did you come from anyway? I mean, where did you live before they brought you to the Zoo?"

"In Africa, son, near what they call Cape of Good Hope," replied Mr. Cony. "I lived there in a hole in the rocks with my mother and brothers and sisters. Every day we used to come out into the meadows and eat grass, fruit seeds and roots. You see we lived in quite a big colony. When it was feeding time, everyone would come out and eat, while one of the crowd would perch himself on a rock to keep watch."

"Watch for what?" asked Dicky. "Didn't you see the hunter or fellow who caught you?"

"At that time none of us thought about hunters," replied Mr. Cony. "All we feared were the great lions who would hunt us out and devour us. It was my turn to watch. I was perched on a stone keeping guard. I saw the weeds and grasses moving. I gave the signal of alarm, but before I could get back to my hole in the great rock, I found myself wrapped in a great big thing which I learned afterwards was a net. Of course I fought and tried to get away. But I was a prisoner. I was carried back to camp, and slid into a box with holes in it so I could breathe. Terrible things happened from then on. I was jostled in a cart over stony roads and at last found myself in the dark hole of a big boat. In this dark place I had to stay for days. I learned from Wharf Rat that I was on my way to America. When the big ship landed I was brought up here. I'm not sorry, though, for every day someone stops and admires me, and I tell them my story just as I have told it to you. Here no lions can harm me and I get plenty to eat."

"That reminds me, it's dinner time now," laughed Dicky, "I'll see you again." So waving good-by, Dicky hurried home for his dinner.

QUAKER TENNIS CLUB DANCE

The first annual dance held under the auspices of the Quaker Tennis Club was given in the Great War Veterans' Hall last evening, and was attended by about two hundred and twenty-five people, all of whom appeared to have a very enjoyable time. Arrangements were carried out in excellent style by an energetic committee, and the music provided by Ken Blood's four-piece orchestra was exceptionally good, and met with much appreciative comment. The decorations were effectively done in Easter colors of purple and orchid, with paper streamers in the two tones forming window and door curtains, bordered with strips of decorative Easter paper novelties. Shades on the electroliers were also formed of the two colors and across the hall were strung two lines of miniature feather dusters in vari-colored papers, these being used later for a novelty dance. A large "Quaker Oats" gentleman in red and buff topped the piano.

A number of novelty dances on the programme added to the general interest of the evening. One took the form of a "Robbers' Dance" and was a variation of the ordinary "tag," being carried out in a moonlight waltz when tagging was done by the aid of small electric flashlights. Another novelty was in connection with the small feather dusters and a third was a puffed rice specialty, in which sample packages of the product held the name of a famous tennis player, the holder of the winning name getting a prize. Mr. J. G. Scott of Peterboro, the city's "singles" champion, was chosen ofr the lucky name.

Among those present were the following:

PEACE TERMS NEARLY SETTLED

Marshal Wu and Kuominchum Agree, Leaving Out Feng and Chang.

NEW GOVERNMENT.

PEKING, April 6. Canadian Press. —An agreement between the Kuominchun and Mashal W Pei Fu, Chisli war chief, providing for the elmination of Chang Tso Lin's influence south of the great wall, has practically been reached, according to Chinese reports, after a conference of the interested parties at Pao Ting Fu.

The terms submitted for final acceptance included release of former President Tsao Kun, the reconstruction of the Peking government on a constitutional basis, Peking to be garrisoned, the combined armies of Wu Pei Fu to be given full control of the Peking-Hankow Railway, the complete elimination of Feng Yu Hsiang's influence and the suppression of Bolshevism.

The Kuominchun leaders assert that there is every prospect that the terms will be ratified by both sides.

Bowling

K. OF C. ALLEYS

At the Knights of Columbus' bowling alleys last evening the first games in the ladies' new schedule of six weeks' duration, were played:

CALCUTTA QUIET AFTER TROUBLES

Final Outbreak of Riots Results in One More Death.

BUSINESS RESUMED.

CALCUTTA, April 6 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of troops patrolling the streets of the city, there was little evidence today of the inter-communal rioting and bloodshed of the past few days when thirty persons are reported to have been killed and many wounded. Business was again in full swing.

Police state the entire city is quiet the passions of Hindus and Moslems gradually dying down, but a final outburst last night resulted in one death and four persons wounded, when three hundred Moslems attacked a police post.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

COLLEEN MOORE IN "IRENE"

There were good crowds at the Easter Monday performances at the Capitol Theatre yesterday afternoon and evening, and there is plenty of fun and entertainment in the feature picture for the first three days of this week, with the jazzy Colleen Moore as "Irene," in the name part of the film dramatization of the Broadway stage success.

As Irene O'Dare, daughter of an energetic Irish "washlady" and her equally un-energetic, tippling spouse, Colleen Moore has one of her very best roles. She is the gayest thing imaginable in this role, one of the most attractive of her many recent successes. The brightness and youth and prettiness of the dark-haired little lady have plenty of scope in this likeable picture, in which the story opens with a presentation of the house of O'Dare, a tenement filled with the steam of Ma O'Dare's constant washings and the odor of Pa O'Dare's equally constant bottle. There is a snappy quality and a vernacular flavor to the sub-titles of the picture that adds much to its effectiveness.

Irene, who starts out on a commercial carer by delivering, or failing to deliver, her mother's washing, progresses to a job in a department store window, and then, after a hectic episode with a "fresh guy" in a roadhouse, and a ride home on roller skates, to a New York decorating firm. Here she meets Donald Marshall, the youthful, handsome hero, and also the ladylike gentleman "Madame Lucy," a modiste, and embarks on a trial as a fashion model. There is plenty of humor in the entire production and particularly in the scenes in which the disgusted "Madame" tries to turn Irene into something fashionable.

There is a gorgeous section in colored work of a Fashion Show, staged at "Marshallmere," in which the four seasons of the year are represented in up-to-date fashion, and a wonderful showing of beautiful gowns. Irene leads the parade, which is interrupted rudely by the arrival of the O'Dare family en masse, but the picture ends on a happy note. It owes its entertainment to the vivid art of the charming little star, the excellent cast supporting her and the general effect of excellence in minor details. Even the blush of the shocked Irene, caught in a skimpy costume, is simulated oddly and in original fashion by a sudden influx of red color in the black and white film. "Irene" is exceptionally worth while.

—Jeanette.

AT THE REGENT

A GREAT SCREEN COMBINATION

Johnny Hines and Edmund Breese Together Again For Fifth Time.

That unbeatable combination of Johnny Hines and Edmund Breese can once more be seen in "The Early Bird," coming to the Regent Theatre. Of all the character actors of the stage and screen none perhaps is so highly regarded by the American public as the famous Edmund Breese. Mr. Breese was cast in "Burn 'em Up Barnes." Johnny Hines' first starring feature and later appeared with Johnny in "Sure Fire Flint," "Luck" and "The Speed Spook." The nation-wide success accorded these productions prompted Hines to demand that Mr. Breese be cast with him again when production on "The Early Bird" was started. This was done with the result that Mr. Breese is again coming in for a great amount of glory. Johnny and this veteran actor are inseparable companions and may properly be called the Damon and Pythias of the screen.

"The Early Bird" suits Johnny Hines to a nicety, for it gives him one of those character roles that he is always anxious to portray. The hardships of the milkman, his problems and his ambitions are blended perfectly with a mixture of wholesome humor that really makes this feature one of the real worthwhile contributions to the screen world.

IN POLICE COURT.

Magistrate O. A. Langley had a busy session this morning in connection with 39 local young men who had neglected to pay their poll tax.

His Worship stated that it was necessary for these young men to realize that they, as well as their elders, had to assume the burden of citizenship and fined each man $1 and $3.25 costs, to be paid within one week.

George Meharry, who was summoned on the same charge did not put in his appearance and as a result a fresh summons was issued.

Three local young men appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning on charges of vagrancy. As the young men had already been in jail five days on remand, Chief Newhall stated that he would be satisfied with suspended sentence. Mr. Langley gave the boys a severe lecture and let them go, to appear when called upon for sentence.

CONGREGATIONS OF KEENE CHARGE MEET

Elders and Stewards Appointed by Former Methodist Churches.

KEENE, April 6.— The annual congregational meetings of the appointments of the Keene (former Methodist) pastoral charge were held at Keene and Bethel last week.

By resolution of the Official Board on March 24th, the pastoral charge is being re-organized in its officiary into the type approved by the General Council for the United church. It was decided to have an Official Board, consisting of a sessino and committee of stewards, with four elders at Keene, three at Bethel, and two at Zion, with a like number of stewards. At Keene on Monday night the constituent roll of the congregation was set up, and the congregation organized with Mrs. Chas. Mather as secretary and William Stewart as treasurer. Reports were received from each organization showing an exceptionally successful year. The W.M.S. report was presented by Mrs. Ida Kindred, showing $289 raised, and the various reports of the Sunday school showed a healthy condition. The church finances are all paid to date, and during the year nearly $200 has been paid out of current revenue for parsonage repairs without any special appeal. There are no debts anywhere. The minister reported a membership of 109 resident and 10 non-resident, with 7 on the appendix. The election resulted as follows: Elders—John Edwards, Sr., W. David Edwards, Andrew Rennie and Edgar Wood; stewards, Gordon Taylor, Alfred Fletcher, Charles Mather and David Tucker.

At Bethel the roll was read and accepted and the congregation organized, with Mr. Henry Borland as secretary for one year and Mr. Henry A. Reid as secretary-treasurer of the stewards. The minister reported 63 members and 3 non- residents with 2 on the appendix. The elections were: Elders, Samuel Armstrong, John H. Pallin and George E. Patterson and stewards, Edwin J. Fife, Harry Reid and Fred Fife, Jr.

The congregational meeting at Zion had to be postponed on account of Wednesday's storm.

The elders at Keene were ordained at a special Good Friday meeting in the former Methodist church, at which the minister, Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, was assisted by Rev. John Archibald and the following of his elders, Messrs. Mark Plunkett, Ralph Drummond and John Henderson. Miss Constance Passey was received as the first member to come into the United church under the new session. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wood were received from Bethel congregation. The communion service was administered by the new elders, assisted by those of the former Presbyterian church and was according to the service recommended by the general council committee on ritual.

Mr. Samuel Armstrong announced a meeting of the joint boards of Keene former Methodist and Presbyterian churches to meet April 14 to reconsider action previously adopted re the amalgamation of the two charges. A new arrangement is being proposed for submission to the presbytery through its committee on delimitation of charges and commissioners Revs. McKinnon and Edmison.

The Keene charge reports $825 for the maintenance fund budget which is above the previous highest mark for the same purposes and considered above the amount previously estimated. It has a total of 203 resident members, thirteen non-resident and twelve on appendix, a total of 228 for 125 families.

Mr. Andrew Rennie will represent the charge at presbytery in Lindsay on May 4th.

OBITUARY.

MARY JANE BELL.

The death occurred on Monday, April 5th, in this city, of Mary Jane Bell, widow of the late Robert Braden, who predeceased her twenty years ago.

Deceased was 74 years old and is the last surviving member of the late surviving member of the family of the late Matthew Bell and Nancy Nichols of Smith township. Her brother and two sisters died several years ago.

The late Mrs. Braden resided in Smith township until recently when she moved to 223 London street.

The funeral will take place from the funeral chapel of D. Belleghem and Sons on Thursday, April 8th, at 11.00 a.m. The service will be conducted by Rev. J. W. Gordon of St. Andrew's church. The remains will be forwarded to Lakefield and interment will take place on the arrival of the noon train these.

DR. J. M. SHAW

The Masonic fraternity of the city and district, as well as many citizens will be interested to learn of the death of Dr. John M. Shaw, which occurred at Victoria, B.C., on March 27th, last. His death took place at the family residence, 29 Menzies Street.

The Daly Colonist, of that city, prints the following account of the funeral and observances.

Rev. E. Leslie Best, pastor of the James Bay United Church, conducted an impressive service, during which the hymns sung were "Nearer, My God to Thee," and "Abide With Me." Mrs. S. M. Morton sang a solo, "Lead, Kindly Light" (D'Auvergne Barnard), Mr. Lawton Partington presiding at the organ.

There were many friends present, and the beautiful floral designs covering the casket and hearse, bore testimony to the high esteem in which the doctor was held by his many friends.

Britannia Lodge, No. 73, A.F. and A.M., and visiting brethren, turned out in a body to pay their last respects to a departed brother. W.M. E. S. Harris, of Britannia Lodge, read the Masonic burial service at the open grave.

Among those present at the service was the Rev. F. H. Fatt, Grand Chaplain of the Great Priority, Knights Templar of Canada, also officers of the Western Gate Preceptory, No. 30, of Victoria. Brother C. F. L. Money represented the N.W.M.P. Lodge, No. 11, Saskatchewan.

The following brothers acted as pallbearers: Brother Robert Baird, representing the Grand Lodge of Saskatchewan; Brothers V. W. Stewart and W. R. Yule, representing the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of B.C., and Brothers Frank Nash, William Drever, and W. Mollard, members of Saskatchewan lodges.

The body was laid to rest in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

Dr. Shaw was the eldest of seven children of Rev. John Shaw, a Methodist clergyman, living at the time of the birth of the subject of this sketch, at Cayuga, Ont., April 22, 1859. Afterwards Rev. Mr. Shaw came into this district and was pastor of the George Street Methodist Church in Peterborough.

Dr. Shaw studied at Trinity College, Toronto, and graduated in 1880, with degree of M.D.C.M. He practiced for a time in several parts of the country and eventually settled at Keene, Ont., and remained in that village until 1905, when he removed to the northwest and settled in Regina, Sask. While in Keene he identified himself with the work of the Masonic Order and was a member of Keene Lodge. He carried this love and liking for craft intercourse and association with him and when the Masonic Grand Lodge of Saskatchewan was organized in 1906, he was selected for the position of Grand Secretary, which he carried on until the end of 1914. During his incumbency the Masonic Temple was erected at Regina, and he took over the direction and administration of the building, the rental of offices and rooms to a large number of tenants, many of the legal profession.

Early in 1915, feeling that failing health required that he should find some other occupation that would meet his condition, he engaged with the trans-Pacific service of the C.P.R., and remained four years on the steamship lines of that company, crossing the Pacific ocean on vessels plying form Vancouver to the Asiatic ports and the Japanese coast.

In 1919 he found this work more than he could sustain, and brought his family to Victoria, B.C., where the climate seemed congenial and where he lived in retirement.

Dr. Shaw was married in 1882 to Mary Kate Dennis, who lived near Weston, Ont., a daughter of Col. Dennis, late of Ottawa. Of the family, his wife and son, Maurice, Seattle, U.S.A. and daughters, Mary S. J., (wife of Rev. S. J. Sibley, Drinkwater, Sask), Irene (wife of Mr. W. S. Sinister, Saskatoon, Sask., and Jean H., at home, survive. One son, Arthur, is dead.

WEALTHY SYNDICATE.

Sir Alfred Mond and Sollis Joel Head Concession Holders.

LONDON, April 6 (Canadian Press).—Gold lying free on the surface, great reefs of gold bearing rock underneath, tropical jungle all around, and hope of a strike such as will rival the biggest fields of history.

This is what a British expedition is reported to have found in Panama, on land to which a British syndicate has a concession.

The names of some of the men financially interested are enough to cause the story to be taken seriously. These backers include Sir Alfred Mond; his son, Henry Mond; and "Solly" Joel, famous South African diamond and gold mining magnate. Henry Monds says: "The discoveries have been extraordinary. None of us make claims, but I have no hesitation in saying we think we have found a great goldfield, bigger in area than the Rand goldfield in South Africa."

He explained that concessions had been obtained from Panama, and a syndicate of fifty important men formed to finance the undertaking.

PEACE RIVER PROGRESSIVE WILL NOT RESIGN AS CONSEQUENCE OF ELECTION OFFICER'S CONVICTION

R. W. Kennedy Asserts Alleged Irregularities Cost Him More Votes Than Conservative.

HIS STATEMENT.

Subject Will Be Discussed in Commons at First Convenient Opportunity.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 7.—(Canadian Press).—Irregularities in the Peace River election will be brought before the House at the "first convenient opportunity." When the House met Tuesday afternoon, following the Easter recess, R. W. Kennedy, member for Peace River, rose and in a review of the situation declared he could not resign if he would, and would not resign if he could. He claimed that other irregularities in Peace River had cost him more votes than the alleged switching of ballots at Brule had cost the Conservative candidate.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, who followed, charged that Mr. Kennedy owed his alleged return "to the report of a returning officer acting in behalf of a Government by whose agents frauds and crimes have been perpetrated. The hon. member," went on Mr. Meighen, "represents those frauds in this House, and today he represents the men who perpetrated them. He is here because of them."

Mr. Meighen thought Mr. Kennedy would have done himself more credit by retiring from membership of the House pending the finding of the action under the Controverted Elections Act. But the subject should receive further consideration. The House should have the right to pass upon it, and at the first convenient opportunity would be called on to exercise that right.

Mr. Kennedy read the following statement: "I rise to a question of privilege. On April 2 there appeared in various newspapers reports of the trial of Baldy Robb at Edmonton, Alberta. He was charged with and convicted for irregularities in the performance of his duties as deputy returning officer at poll No. 4, near Brule, in the Peace River constituency, at the Federal election on October 29 last.

Edmonton Report.

"Justice Walsh presided at the trial and is reported as having said when addressing the jury (Edmonton Journal, April 1, report):

"'The fraud which was alleged to have been perpetrated was one of a very serious character. In all the history of the Dominion there has never been an instance of such a glaring attempt to deprive citizens of their rights as voters. If this was true, then 90 voters had been deprived of their franchise, Mr. Collins had been deprived of his seat in the Dominion Parliament, and the people of this riding had been deprived of their rights in having a man of their choice to represent them at Ottawa. There was the evidence of the 111 people who had sworn that they voted for Collins on that day. This was the foundation on which the Crown had built their structure. There was a possibility that these people might have committed wholesale perjury. Personally, said His Lordship, he found it hard to believe that a number of apparently respectable people like these had perjured themselves through fear of their employers.'

Says Phrases Omitted.

"In order to appeal to my sense of fairness the Ottawa Journal in an editorial headed, 'Should Mr. Kennedy Vote,' strips this statement of Chief Justice Walsh of all qualification, and makes the statement as follows:

"'The fraud, which was perpetrated was one of a very serious character. In all the history of the Dominion there had never been an instance of such glaring attempt to deprive citizens of their rights as voters. Ninety citizens had been deprived of their franchise.'

"The words 'if this was true,' and the reference to the possibility of wholesale perjury are omitted—and the editorial is built up to convince me that I have no moral right to

Killips has been jointly charged with another youth of the same age, Nick Hawrylck, with the murder of Jacob Milnes, an aged grocer of this city on the night of January 4th last, with robbery as the motive.

OFFICER SAVED BY COMPASSION

Dropping of Prosecution Ordered By Bureau, Witness Says at Probe.

"FIRST OFFENCE."

OTTAWA, April 7. — Canadian Press. — The prosecution of Customs Officer J. P. Landy, of Montreal, charged with complicity in rum smuggling, was dropped "on compassionate grounds," it was testified at to-days customs probe. Noel Chasse, legal adviser to the Customs Department, said that he had written a letter instructing the department's lawyers to drop the case, after he had been instructed to do so by Senator Jacques Bureau, then Minister of Customs.

Quoting from memory, Mr. Chasse said that Senator Bureau had written him that this was Landy's first offense, he was well spoken of by his superiors, and the prosecution had better be withdrawn.

Earlier in the proceedings a table had been filed showing that the case had dragged from January to September, 1924, with some 25 postponements. R. L. Calder, committee counsel, asked why Landy had been retained in the public service, and had not been disciplined. Mr. Chasse could not explain this.

BEER SHIPMENT TO BE INVESTIGATED

Stevens Asks For Papers Concerning Shipment of 8,000 Cases.

OTTAWA, April 7.—(Canadian Press).—One of the matters to be investigated by the customs probe in Ottawa is the shipment of four carloads of beer which were shipped to the United States from the neighborhood of Waterloo, Ont., as "ginger ale."

Hon. H. H. Stevens moved today for the production by the customs department of all papers concerning the shipment. His motion says that there was a total of 8,000 cases of beer in the whole consignment.

Russians Must Pay High For Permit To Leave Country

MOSCOW, April 7. — United Press. — The Soviet government has issued a decree providing that a Russian must pay $100 or $150, depending on his social status, for permission to leave the country.

SETTLERS' LOANS BILL ATTACKED BY OPPOSITION

Government Measure Still in Committee Stage of House.

CHANGES MADE.

Limit of Total Lowered From Five To One Million.

OTTAWA, April 7 (Canadian Press). —Under Conservative attack the Government bill to grant loans to settlers on Crown lands held the stage during practically the whole of yesterday's sitting of the House. It was the first day after the Easter recess and galleries were filled at the outset.

As submitted to the House, the bill authorized the Government to make loans to settlers on Crown lands, such loans not to total more than five million dollars in any one year.

Loans were to be made on security of improvements made by the settler on Crown land occupied by him. Loan to each settler were not to exceed:

1. To a Canadian citizen as defined in the Immigration Act, $1,000.
2. To a settler other than a Canadian citizen, $500.

One amendment accepted to the bill (but not yet adopted) will limit the total loans to $1,000,000 in any one year instead of five millions. Another change is the definition of Crown lands within the meaning of the bill. The original definition was land suitable and available for settlement, owned by the Dominion or a Provincial Government, and within fifteen miles of a railway. The amendment changes the latter part of the definition to read: "Within reasonable distance of a railway."

But the bill was not formally reported. It was still in committee of the whole when the House passed to other business. Progress was reported.

Duke Of Guise Succeeds As Leader Of French Royalists

PARIS, April 7.— (Canadian Press.)—The Duke of Guise will replace the late Duke of Orleans as head of the Royalists and "pretender." He has sent the following letter to all the friends of the late duke:

"As chief of the house of France since the death of his highness the Duke of Orleans, I claim all rights, assume all responsibilities and accept all duties thereof. I thank all those whose affections and devotion made forty years of exile bearable for him whom God has just called.

"Exile myself now, as well as my son, I ask those friends to bring us the same allegiance and fidelity."

RUSSIAN OFFICER DRINKS POISON

When Charged With Absconding With $41,000 Trust Funds.

DIES QUICKLY.

NEW YORK, April 7 (Canadian Press).—General Alexander de Halinop, one time officer of the Czar's bodyguard and commander of a division of the Imperial Russian Army in the Great War, committed suicide yesterday in a local hotel, while detectives waited to question him about a charge laid by a Watertown, N.Y., jeweler, alleging the general had absconded with $41,000 of trust funds. After detectives were admitted to his room in the local hotel, the general retired to an adjoining room to finish dressing. Emerging a few minutes later, he said, "Don't bother getting a doctor. I have taken strychnine and I am told the effect is quite rapid." He was dead when doctors arrived.

Three Crosses Placed at Different Parts of Railway Village.

HAVELOCK, April 7. — The presence of the Klu Klux Klan in the community was manifested on Monday evening by the burning of three fiery crosses. They were placed as follows: Alexander Street, Ontario Street in front of the United Churih Parsonage, and on the Town Hall Hill.

Lawyers and Doctors Are Perhaps Farmers At Heart

TORONTO, April 7 (Canadian Press).—"More money can be made at intelligent farming than at any other profession," Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, said in an address to the Rural Trustees' Section of the Ontario Educational Association today. "There are in the cities today," he continued, "thousands of second-class lawyers and thousands of doctors of ordinary ability who would have made first class farmers."

Farmers Lose Sheep Failed To Move Refuse

Two farmers in this district have learned severe lessons with their ewes. One cleaned out his pig-pen; some of his ewes took to nibbling what they could find, and he lost some lambs and one ewe. Another did not draw away the refuse from his henhouse at once, and the ewes got at it, and several lambs were lost.

There are nearly 4000 picture theaters, large and small, in the British Isles, and at least 15,000,000 persons visit them every week.

Pilot Lost On First Trip Over New Air Mail Route

BOISE, Idaho, April 7 (Canadian Press).—Franklin Rose, pilot of the first northbound airplane on the Elko, Nevada-Pasco, Washington contract air mail route, was lost last night somewhere in the wilderness of Idaho and Nevada.

Rose, with about 150 pounds of mail, left Elko at 2 o'clock Pacific time and was due here about six o'clock Mountain time. His plane has not been sighted after leaving Elko.

LOCARNO PACT IS ATTACKED BY SENATE MEMBER

Senator Casgrain Also Scores League of Nations as "Too Good."

DESTROYING TREATY.

Ruining Versailles Treaty and Wiping Out German Atrocities.

OTTAWA, April 7 (Canadian Press). —The Senate resumed its sittings last night. Senator Dandurand introduced a bill asking for one-twelfth of supply. Senator Ross said that this was customary and that in voting for this no one was committed in any degree to any item. The bill received its second reading and will be up for its third reading today.

Senator Casgrain drew attention to the fact that Senator Dandurand, the Government leader, had been Canada's representative at Geneva and had given several interviews on what happened there. He personally felt that the Locarno treaty was simply wiping out German atrocities and asking us to forget the German crimes.

He said: "I, for one, must say I think no more of the Locarno treaty than I do of the League of Nations. The League of Nations is too good for mortals."

He felt that the Locarno treaty and the League of Nations would simply destroy the Treaty of Versailles and the people of Canada should know where we were drifting. The senators had more than once expressed their faith in the League of Nations, said Senator Dandurand, and he felt that if we had a League of Nations in 1914 the Great War would have been prevented.

PETERBOROUGH SHOULD TAKE ADVANTAGE OF RISING TIDE OF DOMINION'S PROSPERITY

Development Of Water Powers In This District Would Save $400,000 To Canada Every Year, Declares R. R. Hall, K.C.

PROFIT OF $100,000 A YEAR IN SIGHT; CITY PAYS DOMINION $1,000,000 A YEAR

"As the door turns upon its hinges, so the slothful turns upon his bed." That describes the spirit of Peterborough during this last ten years. No wonder she does not progress. No wonder our population is at a standstill. No wonder our taxes are increasing. No wonder the cost of power is going up. No wonder our gas bills are soaring. No wonder our street railway is "bumpity bump."

SELF VERSUS OTHER FELLOW

Our chief trouble is, we have become too altruistic. We want to help the other fellow and do nothing for ourselves as a city. We are content to have a lot of leeches suck out our life blood. We are paying heavy gas bills. Our power bills are increasing. Our street railway service is a disgraceful return for the money we pay. These items are small, as compared to the enormous tribute we pay and get little in return.

PETERBOROUGH TRIBUTE $1,000,000 A YEAR

During this last ten years this city and county has paid, year in and year out, into the coffers of the Dominion Treasury upwards of $1,000,000.00 per year in customs returns, income taxes and sale taxes, making a total sum of over ten million dollars, and yet during all that time this city has not one new public work to show for all that money except maintenance repairs and operations. The members of the Dominion Government, either Liberal or Conservative are not to blame, because I have yet to see where we have asked for anything that have not in justice fairly received.

HELP OURSELVES AND OTHERS

We now have a chance to help ourselves and help the Dominion of Canada as well. It is in the interest of this city and of the Dominion that the water powers to the North should be developed to produce 6,000 horsepowers which is equal to from 40,000 to 60,000 tons of coal per annum. That would represent a national saving to this country of over $400,000.00 per annum. It is not worth our while to point out to the Dominion Government, that if Dams 4 and 5 are operated by a single lock and Lovesick and Burleigh are operated by a single lock and a reasonable lease is given to this city of the water powers connected therewith, that this country can save $400,000 per year in coal bills alone? One year's national saving would about pay the cost of the new locks.

NEW LOCKS AND NEW INDUSTRIES

But look what these new locks would do for Peterborough if the Government do not "play the hog" and charge us too high rental? We could save for this city $100,000 per year on power prices that are right now in sight. We would have 2,500 horse-power to attract new industries. We could sell honest power and not the Hydro-brand of "peak loaded," "power factored" power that deceives no one, but the bone-headed worshipper who wants to deceive himself. We could, with confidence, join in with progressive cities in bidding for new industries. We could ask, with confidence, our American industries already located here, to ask their American neighbors to come over and see what we can do for them.

PUT YOUR EAR TO THE GROUND

The Dominion of Canada is on the eve of the greatest development that has ever been known. The United States furnished the last great example when the Western statesman put his ear to the ground and "heard the tramp of the coming millions," so we right now in Canada can place our ear to the ground and

"Hear the great low wash
Where soon shall roll the Human sea."

To the citizens of Peterborough can clearly be heard the voice: "Awake! Awake! Arise! Arise: and your noble city will neither slumber nor sleep."

WOMAN WOUNDS MUSSOLINI WITH REVOLVER SHOT

Shoots Italian Premier Through Nose in Assassination Attempt.

WOMAN ARRESTED.

Saved From Crowd With Great Difficulty—Order Preserved.

ROME, April 7 (Canadian Press).—An attempt was made to assassinate Premier Mussolini this morning. A woman fired a revolver point blank at him, but he escaped with a slight wound. Mussolini was shot through the nose.

The shooting occurred at about 11.15 a.m., while he was leaving a session of the congress of international surgery, in the Place di Capitole to enter his automobile.

A great crowd was around the entrance cheering when the woman pressed to the front and pointing a revolver directly at him, pulled the trigger. The woman, whose identity has not been disclosed, was rescued rom the crowd with great difficulty and was rushed to the jail where women prisoners are confined.

Meanwhile Mussolini, submitting to medical attention, maintained great composure. He ordered that immediate dispositions be taken to preserve order and that no retribution be taken.

The woman who fired the shot gave her name to the police as Violet Albina Gibson, nee Dalkey. She is fifty years old and a British subject. News of the attack created a sensation not only in Rome but in other cities throughout the country.

The semi-official Stefani agency says the immediate reaction was the organization of manifestations of loyalty to the Fascisti chief.

Sensation in London

LONDON, April 7 — News that Premier Mussolini of Italy had been shot and wounded by a woman giving the name of Violet Albina Gibson caused a sensation in London. The third daughter of the late Lord Ashbourne is the Honorable Violet Albina Gibson, aged 50.

The Press Association says: "In connection with today's attack on Mussolini, the Press Association is informed by a member of the family of the late Lord Ashborne in London that the Honorable Violet Albina Gibson is at present in Rome. She is a lady of somewhat eccentric temperament."

Not Serious

ROME, April 7 (Canadian Press) —Dr. Giuseppe Bastianelli, one of the best known medical specialists in Italy, attended the Premier and later issued a bulletin saying:

"A wound due to a gunshot perforated the nostril, but it is not serious."

Out This Afternoon

ROME, April 7 (Canadian Press) —Despite the attempt on his life this morning, Premier Mussolini went this afternoon to the Palais Littorio to preside at the ceremony of the presentation of Provincial secretaries to the new directorate of the Fascist party.

ROME, April 7 (Canadian Press) —After her arrest the woman who made the attempt replied to the first questions in an unintelligible manner, speaking in English. It was brought out, however, that she is named Violet Albina Gibson, and she was born at Dalkey Island, Dublin, Ireland. It was learned that on February 27, 1925, while she was living in a family hotel in Rome, Miss Gibson tried to commit suicide by shooting herself in the breast with a revolver.

Printing Plant Wrecked

PARIS, April 7 (Canadian Press) —A Havas despatch from Rome says the attempt upon Mussolini's life was followed by demonstrations in one of which the printing plant of Il Mundo, anti-Fascist newspaper, was destroyed.

Since the first London-Paris airplanes began flying in August, 1919, British civil machines have carried more than 60,000 passengers between London and the Continent.

NOT ADVISABLE TO SPEND MUCH ON OLD SCHOOL

Board of Education Property Committee Opposed To Expenditure.

REPORT ADOPTED.

Value of Vocational Classes Pointed Out By Department Inspectors.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held last night. The chairman, J. A. McKone, occupied the chair. The report of the Property committee about the proposed improvements to the South Central school was given by the chairman, E. F. Reid and adopted. The report was as follows:

We are of the opinion that it would not to advisable to spend from twenty-five to thirty thousand dollars, as estimated, to install a new heating and ventilating system, new plumbing and wiring and some minor alterations to the building. We would, however, recommend that some money be spent on repairing the present furnaces this summer in order to make them do until such time as the erection of the the proposed Combination school is proceeded with.

"Your committee further recommends that, if feasible, some improvement be made in the lavatory accommodation, for the use of the staff."

Dr. J. C. Green sent in his report showing that in the past month's examination of King Edward school the teeth of the children show a great improvement over 1925 and 1923. The average cavities to-day in permanent teeth were found to be 1.27, while in 1923 it was 2. per child.

R. J. Bolton, principal of King Edward school, wrote the board notifying them that the cadet uniforms were unfit to wear and asked for money to buy new uniforms. The money will be returned after the cadet inspection as the Department of Militia grants $1.25 for every cadet in uniform that day. This request was granted.

Inspector A. Mowat wrote asking the board for $150, to buy supplementary reading books for the entrance classes in the schools. These books are to become the property of the school libraries. Mr. Mowat was granted his request.

The Deputy Minister of Education sent in the report of the inspectors for the night classes. They recommend that classes be held two nights a week in some of the departments.

The general remarks were:

All classes have a direct vocational value and many of them have a direct bearing on the daily employment of the pupil.

The committee should make arrangements to have accommodation available for classes enrolled by the principal. Experience shows that the pupils of the evening classes do not interfere with the books of the day pupils.

The arrangement which has been made to give special courses in instruction in commercial business practise for employees of the Canadian General Electric Company is an excellent sample of the flexibility of these classes to meet the requirements of employed adults.

J. Abraham, the school attendance officer was appointed a delegate to his department of the Educational Council meeting in Toronto.

The school nurse reported that there were no infectious diseases among school children.

The attendance for the different schools for the past month was read.

DR. YOUNG WILL HOLD INQUEST IN IRWIN CASE

Dr. Smith Attended Fatally Injured Man and is Barred.

HEARING TO-MORROW.

Victim Was Under Overhanging Bank, Provincial Constable Finds.

The inquest into the cause of death of the late William Irwin who was killed by falling gravel in a gravel pit at Young's Point yesterday forenoon will be held in the Memorial Hall, Lakefield, tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock.

Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield is debarred by the Coroners' Act from conducting the enquiry. This Act states that the medical attendant in the case cannot act as coroner. Dr. T. W. H. Young of Peterborough has been asked by Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., to officiate as Coroner, and the enquiry will be conducted by him.

Mile from Canal.

The gravel pit in which the tragedy occurred is situated about one mile west of Young's Point, and is owned and operated by Victor Young.

T. A. Brown, the contractor in charge of the new dam, said that he had been getting his gravel from the pit ever since he had commenced the job. They were getting the gravel faster than Young could supply it, and in order to speed up the supply he sent the gang of four men together with a team to the pit yesterday morning. Michael Scott, the teamster, had drawn his wagon up close to the base, and E. Davis and E. Morin, together with the deceased, were engaged in filling it, when the accident occurred. Two large pieces of solid earth, one measuring three feet by two and the other measuring four feet by three, became detached from the top of the bank, and fell on top of the deceased, pinning him by the head. The right hand side of his face was smashed in, also the top of his skull, the injuries being of such a nature that death must have been instantaneous.

Had been Dynamited.

Mr. Brown said that the gang had been working in the other corner of the pit and had just moved to the section where the accident happened, yesterday morning. The particular spot, he said, had been dynamited yesterday morning.

Bob Mace, Martley Godfrey, Dan Heard, together with Dave Darling, the teamster, constituted the other gang, and at the time were working about 40 feet from the deceased.

The pit itself had been in use for some time, gravel having been drawn from it when the last dam was built. At the place where the accident occurred it measured 9 feet from the top of the bank to the ground, and although the two large pieces had fallen from the top there was still a section overlapping measuring three feet. From the base to where a pool of blood lay, the measurements were 7 feet.

The measurements were taken by Provincial Constable Norman F. Maker, at considerable risk to himself as all the time he was engaged in the task one could hear and see loose gravel falling. This condition seemed to exist all through the pit as the rattling noise was quite evident no matter where a person was standing. Constable Maker at one point picked at the wall with his fingers, and had no difficulty in dislodging a part of the bank. He went a little deeper at that point in order to ascertain if it was just the surface that had thawed and found that the same condition existed there.

The deceased was a splendid type of man. Although only 21 years of age he was 6 feet 2 inches in height, and weighed 200 pounds. Only the previous night he and some of his mates were weighed on the scales in Young's store.

An uncle of his, Wiliam Irwin, is resident in Peterboro.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

SPEAKER TELLS OF JEWISH RACE

More Jews in World Now Than When Solomon Was a Great Monarch.

AT TABERNACLE.

"The Jews are a strange people, strange because of their mysterious origin, remarkable preservation and world wide diffusion," was the statement of Rev. E. O. Jago, a veteran missionary of twenty-one years of service among the Jews and Arabians in the ancient bible land of Palestine, in his opening address on "The Jew" last night at Bethany Tabernacle.

A splendid company of interested people was in attendance at the second evening service of the convention last night.

Dr. D. M. Cameron brought his second discourse on the Psalms in the opening message of the evening. He gave an intensely strong, spiritual message from the Second Psalm in the twenty minutes allotted him that his hearers will not soon forget. Dr. Cameron speaks with an unction of divine power that drives his messages deep in the heart of his hearers with a sweet but resistless power to reprove and correct as well as instruct and edify.

Each afternoon Dr. Cameron will speak from the Epistles of John and each evening from the Psalms.

Mrs. E. V. Warne and Mrs. George Johnson rendered a duet after Dr. Cameron's message.

Mr. T. Watson, the assistant superintendent of the Canadian work of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, then introduced Rev. E. A. Jago, a missionary of remarkable and varied experience among the ancient people, "the Jews." Mr. Jago read from Romans chapter one and ten, drawing the attention of his hearers to the promises of the Word of God regarding them, this "strange race." He showed that the "Jew" was a strange race in point of its genesis or origin, alluding to the scriptural account of the birth of Isaac. In speaking of the preservation of this strange people the speaker drew the analogy. In the height of Israel's power, under the reign of King Solomon, the Jews numbered about seven million people and today after years of most wretched treatment from every nation of earth, being murdered, tortured, the victims of many progroms, driven from their homes and lands, they number above sixteen million. The equally wretchedly treated Armenian nation at the hands of the terrible Turk, who the time of Constantinople numbered thirty-three millions today hardly pass the one million mark. Mr. Jago said a Moslem sheik said to him in the streets of Jerusalem: "Pastor, it's useless to kill the Jew for, for every one killed two spring up in his place."

Inspeaking about the world-wide dispersion of this people Mr. Jago said that every land where he has travelled he has found them. Why, he said, the descendants of this strange people are on George street in Peterboro doing business today and, he added, I have seen but few of the descendants of contemporary nations in my travels in the United States and Canada. One man, the speaker said he had met in the United States who was a descendant of Isaac's half brother, Ishmael.

Mr. Jago referred to the remarkable abilities of the descendant's of this ancient people, competing successfully with the keenest minds of the Anglo-Saxon race in business, education, art and science. There are one and a half million of these people in New York city and the speaker said if they were to withdraw it is a question if the United States would be able to withstand the financial crash that would follow.

Mr. Jago knows the Jewish question being a resident in Jerusalem during the years of Turkish rule and war days and under the British flag.

Mr. Jago will speak tonight on the subject: "The Jew gathering home to Palestine as the last sign before the coming of our Lord."

Students of world problems and Collegiate students are especially urged to attend by Mr. Jago.

RUPTURE APPLIANCES Expert Coming

Retention Not Effected by Age so Reports Visiting Expert

T. Y. Egan, 1507 College, Toronto, the long established Canadian rupture appliance specialist, will visit Peterboro, White's Hotel, 173 Charlotte street, Friday (hours 8 a.m. till 8 p.m.), 1 day, April 9.

The "Curatrus" with new sanitary retentive shield acts, feels and retains rupture more like the human hand than anything yet invented, the pliable flesh-like touch of the velvety finished shield gives a mild life-like massage, exercising and allowing a free blood circulation around hermial opening. Its free action is intended to allow nature to strengthen the muscles in the shortest time known and at small cost, specifically prepared to order (men, women, children) for individual indications.

These new appliances have received the highest approval wherever shown, and are designed in accordance with the principles set forth by the world's text-book authorities on this subject; "made in Canada" and effecting results without harmful ready-made old fashioned imported trusses. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. Free demonstration and examination of samples. Now is the time to make yourself safe and comfortable for your daily work. Note dates; ask at hotel office for his sample room; tear this out.

TORONTO MEMBER'S SPEECH RESENTED

"Farmers in House Not Young Cubs," Says Liberal.

OTTAWA, April 7.—(Canadian Press.)—George W. McPhee (Liberal, Yorkton), rose to a question of privilege in the House of Commons Tuesday afternoon on the references made to former members of parliament by R. L. Baker, (Conservative, Northeast Toronto) at a meeting in that city.

"On behalf of members of parliament from Saskatchewan I say that I resent these insults. They represent a mean and a narrow conception of Canadianism," declared Mr. McPhee, after reading the press reports of Mr. Baker's speech in which he had spoken of the farmer members as "young cubs."

"We are no cubs, and we refuse to be stigmatized by any gentleman from Toronto."

Mr. McPhee said that pictures were being placed in the Canadian archives of persons who had distinguished themselves in past generations, and he suggested that a picture of the member from Northeast Toronto might also be hung there.

DOCTOR SAYS

Liver Causes 90 Per Cent of Sickness

The liver does not excrete bile into the intestines—waste and poisons remain in the bowels. The blood distributed the poison to all parts of the body, causing headaches, indigestion, sallow complexion, bad breath, coated tongue, tired feeling in the morning, all out of sorts, rheumatism, biliousness, etc.

These troubles can now be quickly driven out of system by Calomel, the only drug known that acts upon the liver.

Get a few of the new improved Calomel, called Tanol Calomel. They act quickly upon the liver, causing an easy natural elimination of all the poisons, with no bad after-effects. Does not nauseate. No salts or seidlits are needed. Like ordinary Calomel. Get a few Tanol Calomel tablets from Weber's Drug Store, Peterborough, and they will make you feel 100 per cent better.

RIOTING CONTINUES.

Military Authorities Compelled To Quieten Outbreak in Religious Communities.

CALCUTTA, British India, April 7.—(Canadian Press).—Rioting between the Hindus and Moslems again broke out in the northern section of Calcutta about 4 o'clock this afternoon. Moslem Mosques were vigorously attacked by the Hindus.

Police and military units quickly isolated the scene of the outbreak. Spasmodic attacks on individuals of both religious communities are also continuing.

The Board of Works reported as follows:—

Your Board received a report from the City Engineer saying that the pipe across the river to the sewage disposal plant, which had leaked, ahd been repaired and that the contractors were entitled to be settled with and paid $15,600.

Your Board received reports from the City Engineer saying that F. R. Wilford & Co., claimed $1,411.61 for extras on their contract for the work at the sewage disposal plant and saying that they were entitled to $981.11 for extras and also $911.20 for work done on compressor foundation and column piers. We recommend that this report be received and these amounts be paid.

We received a report from the City Engineer of quotations he had received for road oil and saying that it would be necessary to have an analysis made of the samples received with the quotations. We recommend that the Chairman of this Board and the City Engineer be a committee to purchase the road oil with power to act.

We recommend that a petition that attention be given to Waterford Street, from London to Dublin streets be referred to the Chairman of this Board, and the City Engineer, with power to act.

We recommend that a petition for a cement sidewalk on the south side of Woodbine avenue from Armour road, 334 feet easterly, be referred to the Engineer for a report.

We recommend that a letter from the Peterborough Branch of the Motor League asking that sidewalks be sanded and ruts cut out of the streets be received.

We recommend that an account from W. A. Fife for Ten Dollars on account of expense he had been put to by not being correctly directed as to the location of a sewer service, be paid.

We recommend that tenders be asked from the local dealers for the cement required for this season to be delivered as required.

We recommend that the Chairman of this Board and the City Engineer be requested to bring in a report on a street paving programme.

We recommend that the Chairman of this Board be authorized to sell the team of horses used in the street department and to purchase another team and that if he purchase a team they be paid for on the ceertificate of the said Chairman.

We recommend that the Chairman of this Board be authorized to purchase a wagon for the street department.

Committee of The Whole Council.

The Committee of the Whole Council reported as follows.

We authorized the Chairman of the Reception Committee and the Mayor to make arrangements for the reception of the Senior Hockey Team when they returned after winning the Championship of Ontario.

We authorized the Reception Committee to arrange for a banquet for the Peterborough Hockey Teams.

We recommend that the Chairman of the Board of Works and the City Engineer be authorized to purchase a horse for the street department.

We instructed the City Solicitor to prepare a lease to a company to be formed of a site for an ice arena ino the James Stevenson Park, and a By-law to authorize its execution, the lease to be for a term of forty years at a rental of $1.00 a year and taxes for the first twenty years and the rental for the second twenty to be fixed by arbitration.

We authorized that a pump belonging to the City be loaned to Col. Bradburn to drain pipes at the Armouries.

Property Committee.

The Property Committee reported as follows:—

We recommend with reference to the letter from the Local Board of Health that the fee for Milk Vendor Licenses be left as it is.

We received the following tenders for the market tolls and charges for the year beginning April 1st, 1926:—

Walter Fisher, without privilege of gasoline pump	$1,000.00

Walter Stocker, with privilege of gasolene pump	$1,025.00
R. Killen, without privilege of gasolene pump	$ 720.00

We accepted the tender of Walter Fisher of $1,000.00 without the privilege of having a gasolene pump on the market square, provided he furnishes sureties satisfactory to the Chairman of this Committee.

We recommend that the matter of having the market scales repaired be left with the Chairman of this Committee with power to act.

Legal Committee.

The Legal Committee reported as follows:—

We recommend that a letter from the City Council of Brantford asking Council to petition the Government to enact unemployment insurance legislation be received.

We recommend that the Ontario Legislature be requested to amend the Municipal Act to provide for a membership of five on the Board of Commissioners of Police, such membership to be composed of two members of the City Council in addition to the present membership, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, and Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.

We authorized the Mayor, the Chairman of this Committee and Ald. Phelan to make all arrangements for the banquet for the Senior Hockey Team and to procure a watch for presentation to each member of the Team, and a ring for each of the trainers.

Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee reported and recommended as follows:—

That the offer from the Bank of Montreal to grant a five and three-quarters per cent rate on borrowings and allow three and three-quarters per cent on credit balances with the continuance of the service that the Bank has been giving the City be accepted.

That no action be taken at present to charge a license fee for bill boards that are illuminated and that those who have advertising boards be required to give a bond indemnifying the Corporation against any claims which may be made on account of the advertising boards having been erected and being maintained.

Grippe

Now when the germs of Grippe abound, physicians advise keeping the bowels open. Constipation poisons the blood, lowering your resistance to the germs of infectious diseases.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

PEACE RIVER PROGRESSIVE WILL

sit in Parliament or vote for or against Government measures. I intend to do both.

Only One Poll.

"The statement of Justice Walsh, even if it were as the Ottawa Journal has it, was made at a trial held in connection with one poll out of 278. I claim now and have claimed ever since the early part of November that other irregularities in Peace River cost me more votes than the alleged switching of ballots at Grulle cost Collins, even assuming that none of my ballots were switched at that point.

"The final results of No. 4 poll were: Collins (Conservative), 22; Kennedy, 12; Rae (Liberal), 127.

"It would, therefore, appear from the evidence that 89 votes were switched to Rae.

"I was elected by a plurality of 17 votes over Collins and 41 votes over Rae.

"Six neighboring polls in one district had all the election machinery set up and ballot boxes mailed addressed to the deputy returning officer—but no deputy returning officers had been appointed.

No Poll Held.

"At three of these polls through the initiative of the people themselves three of these polls were opened and the total results were: Collins, 15; Kennedy, 114; Rae, 15. The other three boxes remained in the nearest post-office all day, but no poll was held. At the latter three polls 225 persons had the right to vote. Many of them went to look for the polling place, and, of course, found none. My information is that the vote was similarly divided to the vote of the three polls that were opened.

"The recount in Peace River was completed on December 19.

"A representative of the Conservative candidate asked me if, in view of the Brule situation, I would not consent to go through the first session of Parliament and then resign. I told him at once that in my judgment I had lost at least as many votes as Collins and that the proper course to follow if they were not satisfied was to petition under the Controverted Act. Instead of this they appealed to a Supreme Court judge to have the poll at Paddle River where the vote stood Collins 11, Kennedy 87, Rae 5, thrown out and 103 voters disfranchised on the technical ground that the deputy returning officer was not properly sworn in. It appears the commissioner was not present when he signed the oath form.

'In any event with 60 days in which to set under the controverted elections act nothing was done by Conservatives.

"However a petition has been filed in the supreme court of Alberta under the controverted elections act against my return—by J. B. Page of Coalspur, through the legal firm of my honorable friend from Athabasca. If Conservatives have now any desire to act and Page fails to press his petition I am informed that they can do so.

Must Clear It Up

"The petition charges me with everything the election act prohibits and asks that I be completely disfranchised. In view of this fact, even if I were otherwise disposed to resign, I would not do so until the matter was disposed of. I fully intend to press for action in this matter if no one else does as soon as this session is over.

"But, Mr. Speaker, I cannot resign Chapter 11, section 8, of the revised statutes of Canada, 1906, reads as follows:

"'No member shall tender his resignation while his election is lawfully contested, or until after the expiration of time during which it may by law be contested on other grounds than corruption or bribery.'

"Until this position is disposed of I intend to assume all the responsibilities and exercise all the privileges of a member of the House of Commons.

"I do not wish, however, to take shelter behind the petition or the law. I would refuse to resign even if there were no petition.

"I would not resign if I could and could not if I would."

Mr. Meighen's Reply

Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the opposition, said that the matter was one which affected not only the members but the privileges of the house of commons. The house had not been apprised "until this very moment" of the stand which was to be taken by Mr. Kennedy. Up to the time of Mr. Kennedy's announcement, there had been only rumor as to what he proposed to do. Mr. Meighen said he could agree with neither the reasoning nor the conclusions which the member for Peace River had reached. It was true that while a petition against a member was in the courts, the member could not resign his seat. But the acts of resignation and exercising the functions of the House were widely different.

Mr. Meighen took issue with the conclusions of Mr. Kennedy. No charge had been made that there was malpractice on the part of the member or that anyone was acting wrongly in his behalf. The only fault was that Mr. Kennedy had not in reality been elected. Mr. Kennedy had argued that but for the other irregularities — namely that certain ballot boxes had not been sent in—he would have been elected. It was difficult to understand this reasoning. Certainly Mr. Kennedy had not the ability to read the minds of the voters. He was attributing the fact that he didn't get enough votes to the frauds perpetrated by the agents of the same government which had appointed these men who were convicted. The matter was one that would require the further consideration of the house and at the first convenient moment the house should be called upon to do so.

SPLENDID ADDRESS AT Y.P.L. BANQUET

Successful Banquet Given in the Basement of the Welcome Church.

WELCOME, April 7.—On Thursday evening, April 1, in the basement of the Welcome church, the Young People's League held a very successful banquet.

It was the finale of the contest in the League which closed the previous Thursday when the members of the Missionary Department were the winners and therefore the guests of the banquet.

The basement was prettily decorated in the League colors, red and white while daffodils and flowering plants brightened the tables. Colored candles also added to the festive scene.

There were about one hundred and twenty who were seated at the banquet. This included the members of the congregation as well as League members.

Rev. Roy Rickard of Northport was the guest of honor. Mr. E. H. Martin was toast-master and Miss Marjorie Runnals was accompanist.

After ample justice had been done to the bounteous repast prepared, Mr. Martin gave a short address of welcome, in his usual genial and humorous manner.

Then he presented the following toast list:

Our King—God Save the King.
Our Country—Miss Edna Pearce;

The Real Cause Of Constipation Is A Bad Liver

Mrs. Jean Bocheir, Nelson, B.C., writes:—"For many years I have been troubled with my liver, and suffered terribly with constipation.

I HEARD ABOUT

Milburn's

LAXA-LIVER PILLS

and have been greatly improved since I started to take them.

I cannot recommend them too highly to any one who is troubled with their liver."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are not a new and untried remedy. They have been on the market for the past 32 years; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FROM THE LIVERS OF THE LOWLY CODFISH, WEAK, FRAIL, THIN PEOPLE GAIN NEEDED WEIGHT AND STRENGTH

McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets will increase your weight 5 pounds in 30 days or money returned from any druggist.

Medical science progresses rapidly and now you can get at your druggist's, real, genuine cod liver extract in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the rundown and skinny grown-ups, who need to take the health, strength and weight producing elements that comes from codfish livers, because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver extract in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing, health creating tablets just as easy as a box of talcum powder.

Thin, run-down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets and if the gain is not 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor. Another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets. McDermid and Jury, James Lynch, Bond's Drug Store or any druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only 60 cents for 60 Tablets—and don't forget that they are wonder workers for feeble old folks.

Get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and beware of imitations.

Gas Causes a Serious Condition

Brooklyn, Mr. O. Hinricks writes.—"I want you to know that no day passed for months that did not find my stomach bloated with gas and shooting pains through my stomach. I felt hungry at times but as soon as I started eating I became bilious. My tongue was coated and I always had a bad taste. I never thought this could all be from constipation. It must have been for the very first day after taking Carter's Little Liver Pills I felt fine."

Carter's Little Liver Pills move the bowels free from pain.

The Welcome Y.P. League—Rev. D. R. Clare.

Piano Duet—Miss Woodger and Mrs. R. C. Symons.

Address—Rev. Roy Rickard.

Auld Lang Syne.

Misses Pearce and and Clare gave bright little addresses on the glories of our splendid Dominion.

Mr. Bamsey gave a very clever and witty "resume" of Welcome and Welcome people. In proposing the toast to the guests, he said, "Welcome by name and welcome by nature" was the sentiment of the evening.

Mr. Mars Westington, an old Welcome boy and, at present, a member of the classical staff of Victoria College, Toronto, responded, prefacing his remarks by several humorous anecdotes. In referring to the League contest he spoke of the value of competiton in every phase of life. He illustrated his point by a classical reference to the competition in the Roman life and also in the academic life.

Mr. McHolm, the citizenship vice-president, gave much credit to the winning side for the energetic work the members did in the contest and also spoke of the value of the contest to the League.

Mr. Roy McCann, in answering, said his side had set out to win but also that they had determined to "play the game" and he thought they had.

During the toast to the Welcome League the banner for efficiency for the Cobourg district was presented to Welcome by Rev. D. R. Clare in the absence of Mr. Elwin Brown of Port Hope, president of the Conference League, who was to have made the presentation.

Rev. F. W. White, a former pastor, who was to second the address, was also absent.

Rev. Roy Rickard was then introduced by the pastor, Rev. D. R. Clare.

Mr. Rickard spoke of the reasons he was pleased to be present. One was that Welcome was his mother's home, and he was pleased to renew old associations.

His address was to the young people on "Real Success in Life—High Ideals". He urged the young people (1) to see it through, (2) not to change their high ideals, and emphasized the fact that the children of to-day are the men of to-morrow.

FAMOUS FEET ..how they're kept free from corns..

ADELAIDE HUGHES' Famous Dancing Feet

"I think a lot of my feet," writes Adelaide Hughes, the charming danseuse of Broadway musical hits.

"So much rests on them—including my pay check . . . that's why I am so strong for Blue-jay. . . . A dancer's feet lead a hard life. . . . but I never fear corns.

"As soon as I sight a sign of one, I put on a Blue-jay. . . . and it goes before it comes, if you know what I mean."

Thousands of noted folks who reap fame and fortune from their feet, including actors, screen stars and athletes, keep a supply of Blue-jay always at hand—both to keep corns from coming and to banish, quickly and easily, those that insist on arriving . . . At all drug stores.

THE YOUNG'S POINT FATALITIES.

A second fatal accident in connection with the work at the Young's Point lock, under circumstances almost identical with those surrounding the death of the first victim, calls for a vigorous investigation as to the cause of these accidents with a view to protecting the workmen against dangers of this kind.

In the first case a labourer working in the lock was killed by a cave-in of the bank; in the second the scene of the fatality was a gravel pit from which gravel was being taken for use at the lock, and the victim was also caught by a cave-in.

The second accident, following so closely upon the first, is causing a public demand that the work at this point shall be made safe.

If proper precautions have not been taken to safeguard the workers there must be a change.

Two lives have already been sacrificed, and the sentiment of the community is strongly in favour of an exhaustive inquiry that will seek not only the causes of the accident but that will result in such precautions being taken as will ensure the workmen on this contract being protected against perils that apparently might be avoided with ordinary care.

LEARNING FRENCH.

Hon. George P. Graham's suggestion that the people of Ontario should make greater efforts to learn French is being received with much editorial approval, to which the Examiner is glad to add its quota.

It is a subject upon which this paper has more than once expressed itself.

The inability of English-speaking members of Parliament to speak or understand the French language is an inglorious contrast to the facility with which the average French-Canadian member can express himself in English.

In this respect the political leaders have no reason to feel proud of themselves, although Mr. Meighen has recently, with some success, devoted himself to a study of the French tongue, and a few years ago the veteran Sir George Foster astonished Canadians by tackling the task of learning French.

Every Canadian who aspires to a place of prominence in the political life of this country would do well to perservere until he can speak fluently both the official languages of Canada.

If this were done the spectacle of English-speaking members fleeing from the House when a French member begins to speak in his own tongue would be banished forever.

In most cases sheer laziness or indifference have prevented our English members from studying French, and as a result they have placed themselves in rather pitiful contrast to the representatives from Quebec.

MR. KENNEDY'S POSITION.

The demand is being made by a number of newspapers, including the Globe, for a new election in Peace River, following the disclosure of the manipulation by which the Conservative candidate was deprived of the seat.

That perhaps is the only solution that is possible at the present time, in view of the failure of the Conservative standard-bearer to protest the election within the time limit.

Mr. Kennedy, he Progressive who now holds the seat, has no moral right to it.

He is at Ottawa because a number of the electors were robbed of their franchise through the action of dishonest officials.

If he is an honourable man he will decline to continue to set at naught the will of the majority of the electors of Peace River.

If his party is made up of honourable men—and on its behalf extravagant claims of spotlessness have been made from many a platform—he will be advised by his colleagues and his leader that to hold a seat that is his only because of gross corruption and trickery is to betray the principles of the Progressive party and to cheapen that party in the eyes of every fair-minded citizen of Canada.

Mr. Kennedy was in no wise responsible for the nefarious work of crooked officials, but if he persists in retaining office in the face of what has been revealed he is in exactly the same position as a receiver of stolen goods.

THIRD WEALTHIEST.

Unseasonable weather may give a person the individual blues, but Canadians have no reason for a station of national depression, despite the present era of high Federal, Provincial and municipal taxation, says the Brantford Expositor.

Canadians may be extravagantly governed, and there may seem to be no end to governmental expenditures for the sake of expediency, but the country as a whole is sound. Comparisons are odious perhaps, but comparisons of Canada's finances of today with those of some years ago show that this soundness is well based. In 1889, savings of the people were roughly $134,000,000. By 1900 they had risen to $200,000,000, a substantial gain. From 1900 to 1925, however, they rose to $1,300,000,000, a gain almost unbelievably enormous. In 1903, again, the national wealth was estimated at $1,100 per capital. Today, according to the estimate of the League of Nations and the U. S. Department of Commerce, the per capita wealth is $2,406. This gives Canada third place rating among the nations of the world, exceeded only by the United States, with $2,918 and Great Britain, with $2,459.

These figures do not count Canada's undeveloped resources, or the mineral wealth known to exist. Arable land cultivated in Canada is but 3.1 per cent. of the possible, as against 26 per cent. for the United States and a similar proportion for Great Britain. This means that if Canada only approaches the degree of cultivation now existent in the two more thickly settled counties, its wealth must increase to such a point that it will surpass the two in its per capita wealth.

Canada has a large debt, Federal, Provincial and municipal, but Canadians can face the future with confidence and justified optimism.

THE PLAINT OF THE ACTOR.

From the earliest days of dramatic representation, the lot of the actor has not been a particularly happy one. Esteemed by the Greeks for the sake of the art he practised, he was despised and shunned by the Romans who, in the words of St. Augustin, "accounting stage playing and the whole scene infamous, ordained that he should not only want the honor of other citizens, but also be disfranchised and thrust out of their tribe." In France, and other European countries, he was classed with beggars and buffoons, and subjected to all kinds of indignities; while in England, for many years, he was treated as a vagrant or vagabond licensed to entertain under severe restrictions.

It was not until about the middle of the eighteenth century that acting began to be recognized, not merely as a profession worthy of respect, but as an art which lent itself to the exercise of genius and talent that merited something more than the sneers of the Philistines or the plaudits of the pit. From that time onward, the development of the theatre has been attended by a corresponding growth of public appreciation of the character and status of the player, and of his or her place in the scheme of things that constitutes modern life; yet the story of the stage in relation to those who have followed it as a profession is largely and consistently a record of vicissitudes from which even the most honored have seldom escaped.

Nor have the trials and troubles of the actor diminished in recent years. In every country he has been confronted with new conditions that make inceasing demands upon his versatility, and render his calling more and more precarious. Everywhere, in some countries more than in others, the spoken drama has suffered decline under the challenge of the moving picture, with the inevitable result of limiting stage production and the opportunities of the professional players who, in many cases, have found their occupation gone. Other elements that have entered into the situation and strewn the path of the actor with increasing difficulties are the demands of the various unions associated with the stage, the competitive popularity of outdoor sport, and the greatly enhanced cost of stage productions, which necessarily affects public patronage and adds to the risk of failure.

And now, as if these handicaps were not grievous enough to be borne by those who seek to make a living on the stage, comes news of another menace to their existence more serious than any they have hitherto had to face. When Shakespeare wrote that "all the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players," he little dreamt that a time would come in which his words would find a literal application, particularly to conditions in his own country.

According to the representative of a professional actors' organization in England, that country has actually been transformed into a vast stage, upon which nearly everybody plays a part, and makes his or her entrances and exits. Only, it is a stage dominated by amateurs. As in the old days, when miracle plays and morality representations were the vogue, acting has become a popular pastime, with all and sundry joining in the exposition of the Thespian art, and gravely striving to emulate the triumphs of its trained professors.

Every village has its dramatic club or society; every town its drama league or guild. The large industrial establishments, with their football and cricket teams, have also their companies of players eager to display their histrionic talent on occasion; while churches, fraternal societies, social clubs and other institutions throughout the length and breadth of the land are actively represented in the movement which finds expression in the amateur theatricals of every community. So widespread has that movement become that the number of amateur actors in England is estimated to be over 400,000.

What, on its face, suggests a remarkable revival of public interest in the drama is by the professional actor regarded as a misfortune which aims another serious blow at his means of livelihood. It is not, he points out, merely a question of competition under conditions that tend to deprive him of the public patronage he would otherwise receive; it is a matter of actually driving him off the stage.

No longer are the budding Henry Irvings and Ellen Terrys content to play their parts before an admiring audience of friends and relatives in the village school or the town hall. In these days they must appear in a real theatre, with the result that the professional companies are finding it increasingly difficult to secure playhouses for their productions. It is a curious situation, the consequences of which may have an important influence upon the development of the drama in England.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The case of Gerald Chapman, mail robber and murderer, proves once again that there is only one end to a career of crime.

The new and better terms for financing the city through the Bank of Montreal are largely a result of the initiative and efforts of Ald. Denne, who has given the matter considerable attention.

The Motherland has been having mid-July weather, while Canada is running along at an early March rate. And yet they say the Old Country is slow.

Quebec is proving that Government control is at least a financial success. A surplus in excess of $6,000,000 is expected as a result of the last year's operations.

Jail Term For Attempt To Swindle Immigrants.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 7. — Canadian Press. — A scheme whereby he sought to victimize gullible immigrants, brought a sentence of one year in jail yesterday to John Bybyk.

Representing himself as an employment agent for one of the railway companies, Bybyk encountered newcomers on the streets and tried to sell them jobs at $5. Two of the victims discovered their mistake and reported to the police.

Bybyk following his arrest, boasted that he was out to sell the phoney jobs to anyone "foolish enough to buy them."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

SAYS HUMANE SOCIETY NOT NEEDED

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—In your article on "Members Wanted" for the Humane Society; you overlook the fact that punishment for cruelty, etc., to animals is now on an entirely different footing from what it used to be. Formerly some especial officer had to gather information and a lawyer had to be engaged to prosecute. The law was changed. Now information given to any policeman by anybody must be acted upon by the officer at once, who summons or arrests the offender and has the very great power of the law behind him, which a society's inspector has not. Under this police system, all are members. Everybody is a member and it is many times better to have a system by which secret information can be given by anybody and promptly acted upon by the police, than it should depend upon any society and its members.

There is really no need for such a society at all. In fact the other system will cease to function if a society takes its place and people who can and do telephone to or speak to the police about cases will feel that some new plan has taken the place of their wide-open police opportunity, with disastrous results. Make known how splendid the present law is and never mind narrowing it down.

The police plan is far the best. A policeman can slope round and inspect without raising an uproar over it, and if finds there is really no cause for complaint, no one is the wiser, no one's feelings are needlessly hurt. Policemen often roam about looking for suspects, etc., and few people know that and think nothing of their visits. There is no hard feeling about it, and it is a hundred times more general, quicker and better than any humane society plan. That's the plan I will follow, anyhow.

Are we going to have another plague of dogs?

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 6.—Butchers' cattle were firmer on Monday by 10 to 15 cents a cwt., and this level is being held today. Choice handyweight mixed butchers' are $7.50 a cwt. and a load of these sold at $7.40 a cwt. Butchers, just good, went at $6.75 to $7 a cwt. Butchers' cows are steady to firm. Good cows, but not choice, sold up to $6 a cwt. and a fair quantity at $5 to $5.25. All of Monday's Western stockers and feeders sold firm. The former brought $5.25 to $5.50 and the feeders $6.25 to $7 a cwt. Rogers & Maybee bought a load of export steers at $7.50; heifers at $7.35, and one bull at $5.25 a cwt. The market will likely be sold out again today.

With the few buyers temporarily out of the market the calf trade is easier and prices are just about holding after the decline of a dollar to a dollar and a half cwt. Choice calves are 13 cents, good calves 12 cents, and good mediums up to 10 cents a pound. Common dairy calves are 6 to 7 cents a pound.

The bulk of today's yearling lambs are form the West and are being split up among the packers. The price had not been settled this morning. A couple of bunches of native lambs sold at 13½ cents a pound. Spring lambs were $10 to $13.50 each

Twenty-five cents a cwt. was added to the price on Monday's hogs, with a settlement of $12.75 a cwt. f.o.b. The packers are bidding this figure for today's supply.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, April 7.—(Canadian Press).—The expected egg market drop following Easter trading has materialized and both Montreal and Toronto markets are weak and lower today.

Toronto receipts are increasing fast. Most dealers have a surplus over demand. A sharp decline in prices has resulted and prices to retailers to-day are extras 35 to 37, firsts 33 to 34, seconds 30.

Montreal egg market dull and declining and weak, stocks accumulating. The tone is weak as result buyers are holding off. Dealers paying country shippers today extras 32 firsts 29, seconds 26 and making sales to the retail trade extras 37 to 38, firsts 36, seconds 31 to 33.

Winnipeg country shippers making sales extras 26, firsts 24, seconds 28. Prices to retailers extras 35, firsts 32, seconds 27.

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 6.—(Canadian Press).—Receipts 920 cattle and calves, 940 hogs and 21 sheep and lambs.

Cattle trading continued fairly active with prices holding steady at Monday's 25c advance. The bulk of the offerings consisted of butcher females which found a broad outlet.

Hogs unsettled; thick smooths, $13.25.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 6 (Canadian Press)—Late recessions in the wheat market today wiped out early gains. Easing of wheat values at the last resulted more or less from the fact that offerings of shipments from Minneapolis to Chicago were almost on a profitable delivery basis here as compared with May. Chicago closing quotations on wheat were nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-8c lower, May (new) $1.57 3-4 to $1.57 7-8 and July $1.35 5-8 to $1.35 7-8, with corn 1-8c off to 1-8c up; oats at 1-8 to 1-4 to 3-8c advance, and provisions unchanged to 17 to 29 cents down.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 6 (Canadian Press).—Lacking distinctive leadership, with trade light and mainly of a local character the wheat market here today slipped from its early levels and closed unchanged to 1-8c lower, May after touching an early high of $1.50 1-4, finished the day at $1.49 1-4; July $1.46 1-4 and Oct. at $1.30.

There appeared to be plenty of wheat for sale on the bulges and it was reported from the pit that the wheat pools were selling stocks. Generally, however, offerings were light, but at the opening there was a fair class of buying, attributed to export interests. Foreign news continued favorable with a steady demand developing.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 6 (Canadian Press). — The foreign demand for Canadian Western oats on the Montreal grain market today was exceptionally good and as the prices bid in some instances were 6d to 9d per quarter higher than last Thursday a moderate amount of business was transacted for April shipment and sales of a few loads of grain were also made for May shipment from here to the United Kingdom and a few loads of freight were also engaged. There was also some enquiry from New York sources for oats here, but as the prices bid were 1-2 cent per bushel below sellers' views, no business resulted.

The feature of the domestic grain market was the stronger feeling in Ontario and Quebec oats and prices were marked up 1-2 to 1 cent per bushel. Car lots of No. 2 white were quoted at 55c, No. 3 white at 53 1-2c, and No. 4 white at 52c per bushel, ex-store. Canadian Western grades were firm and unchanged.

The demand for all lines of millfeed continued steady and prices were unchanged. A firm feeling prevailed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats, but prices failed to show any change.

Eggs Are Weaker

There was no further change in local jobbing prices for eggs, but the undertone to the market was easy at the late decline noted on account of the steady increase in the offerings from both Western and Ontario shippers, and the prospects are that a lower level will be reached later in the week. The wholesale market was weaker and prices for Western eggs show a decline of 1c per dozen and sales of car lots were made at 29c per dozen for extras, at 27c for firsts, and at 23c for seconds, f.o.b. Saskatchewan. The receipts in Montreal today were 2,158 cases, as against 4,198 for the same day last week, and 3,625 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The demand for beans showed no

"Come in and feel at home"

THERE is nothing of doubtful diplomacy in the dealings of the Bank of Toronto with its customers. When we say, "Come in and feel at home," we mean just that, homely as the sentiment may be. Banking is a man-to-man proposition, as we see it, where the commodity handled is money, credit, service and counsel.

The Spirit of this Bank is the Spirit of Good Business. We are in a shop that deals in Tens, and Twenties, and Hundreds—a chain of stores, if you will, with a staff of men—men of understanding—to meet your every banking need.

Again we say, "Come in and feel at Home."

CINDERELLA TO BE TAKEN FROM HOME OF MOTHER

Guardian Proposed For 15 Year Old Girl To Marry Browning.

SIXTEEN IN JUNE.

Millionaire Real Estate Man Again in New York Trouble.

NEW YORK, April 7. — Frances Heenan, who recently said she would marry Edward W. Browning, a wealthy real estate operator, after her 16th birthday next June, may be taken from the custody of her mother, Mrs. Mary Heenan.

Vincent T. Pisarra, superintendent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, announced that he would begin legal action to have a guardian appointed for the girl in children's court.

He had said that an investigation by him has shown that the girl's mother is not a fit guardian for her. He said he would base this action on statements of Mrs. Mary Conlin, former landlady of the Heenans, that the mother and daughter had often held drinking parties.

The culmination of his investigation in revelations that were more important, acording to Mr. Pisarra, than all his previous inquories, caused him to decide to act immediately. He indicated that he would appear in the Children's court with affidavits which would support his request for a warrant or a summons to bring Frances and her mother, Mrs. Catherine Heenan, into court.

If the effort is successful to have the child adjudged "neglected," it will then be determined whether to commit her to an institution, put her on probation, or appoint a guardian "One thing is certain," Mr. Pisarra said, "we will not let her continue to live with her mother as she does now if we can help it.

The Children's Society director declared that he had from the beginning been suspicious of the relations between Browning, who 51 years old, and Frances, although the girl has said that she was going to marry the realtor in June, and Browning had not denied it.

"We have on principle been opposed to a man of his years carrying on an affair with a girl of 15," Mr. Pisarra said. "Furthermore, regardless of the disparity in their ages, Browning ought to be kept away from young girls."

Basis for Court Action.

The demand for court action will be based largely on evidence given by Mrs. Mary Conlin, who conducts a rooming house. Mrs. Conlin told Mr. Pisarra that Mrs. Heenan and her daughter were evicted from a first floor room, which she occupied for almost two years, in October, 1924, as "undesirable tenants." Mr. Pisarra said she told of a succession of parties in the Heenan room at which there was drinking, and of other incidents which brought complaints from the neighbors.

According to James Cody, stage manager at the Earl Carroll Theatre, Frances was a dancer there for one night, on March 18, but her performance did not qualify her to be retained. Mr. Browning's automobile was waiting for her that night, he told a Children's Society agent. Mr. Browning himself had occupied a first row seat at the theatre on the previous night, it was said there, and had bowed when introduced as the "Cinderella man."

Mr. Browning and the Heenans secluded themselves yesterday and would see no one. It was said at the Heenan apartment, 625 West 169th Street, that the police had advised against further discussion of the attack said to have been made upon Frances by some person who broke in during the night and threw acid upon her face and left arm. Lieutenant Edward England of the Wadsworth Avenue Station, who has been in charge of the case, said he had discovered nothing more in connection with it.

No Inquiry into Girl's Death.

That the death last week from a heart attack of Stella Lubin, 17 year old friend of Frances Heenan, would not be made a subject of investigation, was indicated yesterday when it was said at the office of District Attorney McGeehan of the Bronx, that nothing to arouse suspicion had been reported. Miss Lubin went with Browning and Frances to a party two weeks ago last Saturday, where she met former Congressman Martin Ansorge of 575 Riverside Drive, who remained with them for part of the evening and called on her the next day.

Mr. Ansorge issued a statement in which he said he knew nothing about Mr. Browning's affairs and did not 'crave any of his publicity." He met Mr. Browning at a reception two weeks ago, he said, and Miss Lubin was with him. The next day, Miss Lubin went riding with him in his automobile with another woman, he said, and then returned home for an appointment with another man.

"Altogether I knew Mr. Browning and Miss Lubin, just twenty four hours," he said. The report that Mr. Browning attended a reception at my residence is absolutely untrue. Mr. Browning has never been in my home and I have never been out with him. I know nothing about Mr. Browning except what I have read in the newspapers."

CHANGE TREATMENT FOR DRUG ADDICTS

Unfortunates Need Hospital Care, Says F. W. Cowan.

HULL, Que., April 7.— (Canadian Press.)—"Canada owes a duty to society for the provision in some way of hospitalization for the unfortunate drug addicts, who must not be treated as criminals, but rather sick persons," said F. W. Cowan, chief of the Narcotics Branch, Department of Health, in an address here Tuesday.

Mr. Cowan said that statistics revealed that 85 per cent. of the drug addicts on the American continent were persons in their teens, or early twenties.

"Lack of parental control, vicious environment, and bad company, are the salient reasons for the formation of drug addicts. "The habit is easy to acquire, and therein lies its menace to civilization. Canada has the most drastic and far-reaching laws for the suppression of the illicit drug traffic, of any civilized country in the world, and I am pleased to say that these laws are being very well applied. The profit on the sale of narcotic drugs, is about 10,000 per cent. and this is a potent reason for its being indulged in by the underworld."

Captain Of Spanish Air Squadron Is Left Behind

TRIPOLI, North Africa, April 7.—(Canadian Press.)—Two planes of the Spanish air squadron flying from Madrid to Manilla landed at the Tripoli airdrom Tuesday afternoon. They were piloted by Captain Gonzales-Gallarza and Captain Loriga.

With Captain Esteves, leader of the expedition, they reached Algiers Monday from Madrid, and started on their flight for Tripoli at an early hour yesterday morning. Captain Esteves was delayed along the way, and, in accordance with previous agreement, the others went on without him. They left for Bengasi at seven o'clock this morning, on the third stage of their journey, a distance of about 700 miles. They covered between 800 and 850 miles yesterday.

Word reached here that Captain Esteves landed at Tunis.

SMUGGLER FLED AFTER CAPTURE OF THREE CARS

Alleged "Notorious Character Escaped After Presenting Supposed Credentials.

LOST ONE CAR.

Silk, Tires and Other Articles Were Destined For Canada.

OTTAWA, April 7 (Canadian Press).—How customs and Mounted Police officers rounded u pthree smuggled autos loaded with smuggled silk and other articles, only to lose one of the cars, was told piecemeal at Tuesday's sitting of the custom's probe. Several officers connected with the seizure in November, 1923, in the neighborhood of the Caughnawaga Indian reserve, near the Quebec-New York boundary, testified during the day.

The three cars were intercepted as they were about to cross a ferry which would have given them access to the mainland of Quebec province. They took flight, were pursued by the officers and one by one were overtaken. One fugitive car was found abandoned on the roadside. It contained a number of smuggled auto tires and inner tubes. Another car was overtaken and seized and amongst other contraband it carried was a machine capable of stamping new numbers on engines and other auto parts.

A third car was later overtaken, and one of the officers in the search party took charge. This officer, Alfred Goyette, took the stand at the close of the day and explained how he had asked the driver of the third car for his credentials. The driver of the car was one Falcon, whom Hon. H. H. Stevens, of the committee, described as a "notorious character" in the smuggling of cars. He offered Officer Goyette some papers to explain his course. It was dark and Goyette could not see them. He invited Falcon to come to a ferry office near at hand, where there was light, and a customs officer on duty.

Mr. Stevens: "And Falcon ran true to form, and didn't follow?"

Mr. Goyette: "I don't know where he went to."

Mr. Stevens: "Do you expect to catch smugglers that way?"

Mr. Goyette: "No."

Cross-examining Henry McLaughlin, surveyor of customs, Committeemen Doucet and Stevens endeavored to find out if every barrel of an alcohol product was sampled before it was allowed to leave bond, or if a sample was taken at random here and there and the rest taken for granted. Mr. McLaughlin said that a sample should be taken from every barrel, but admitted that this was not always done. Officers might sometimes sample only a part of the consignment. The committee seemed to be generally of the opinion that more emphatic instructions should be given on the point.

SCHOOL TEACHERS IN LIFE OF NATION

D. A. Norris Lays Stress Upon the Upbringing of Children.

TORONTO, April 7.—(Canadian Press).—Important part in life of the nation is played by a public school teacher, was stressed by D. A. Norris, in his presidential address to the public school teachers section which held separate meetings yesterday in conjunction with the convention of Ontario Educational Association.

The work of the teacher was the preparation of future citizens, Mr. Norris pointed out, and if democracy was to run smoothly there must be high level of intelligence and a sound system of education. Above all, he said, teachers should be well qualified for the training of the youth of the land. Unqualified teachers should not be permitted to teach any more than unqualified men should be permitted to practice medicine, he declared.

SPOTTERS ENGAGED.

By Manitoba Temperance Enforcement Department.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 7. — Canadian Press. — The Manitoba Temperance Enforcement Department has a force of spotters to obtain evidence against violators of the Temperance Act.

This information was disclosed yesterday morning in the Provincial Legislature during an inquiry into the methods employed by the police in securing evidence.

It was disclosed that special investigators were paid $4 a day in addition to expense money, for the purchase of evidence.

Attorney-General R. P. Craig declined to answer certain queries, declaring that by so doing, the department was merely revealing its methods of operation and surrendering ammunition to the enemy.

Hexy-resorcinol, a new antiseptic, is fifty times as strong as carbolic acid in its power to kill disease germs.

Iodine exists in sea water only to the extent of about two parts to 1,000,000, yet the entire ocean contains 60,000,000 tons of iodine, valued at present prices at $540,000,000,000,000.

ORDER TO DROP RUM SMUGGLING ACTION OBEYED

R. R. Farrow, Deputy Minister of Customs, Refused To Answer Question.

REFLECT ON CHIEF.

Stevens Pressed Farrow For Own Opinion of the Case.

OTTAWA, April 7 (Canadian Press) — Declining to disclose his private opinion of the cancelling of proceedings against a customs officer accused of smuggling, R. R. Farrow, deputy minister of Customs, precipitated a clash with Conservative members of the customs probe committee yesterday.

Mr. Farrow was called to the stand to explain why charges of helping three officers of the S. S. Borden to smuggle rum had been dropped. He explained that under a rule of the Customs department, whereby all letters addressed to the deputy minister must be answered by him, he had signed a letter to prosecuting counsel in Montreal, ordering that charges against customs officer R. P. Landry be dropped. The letter was written by Noel Chasse, departmental solicitor. He did not know why the case against Landry was dropped.

Followed Instructions

Mr. Stevens asked if he would not have some knowledge of such matters, Mr. Farrow replied that he "followed instructions."

Mr. Stevens: Would you of your own volition have dropepd the prosecution?"

Mr. Farrow: "That is not a fair questions in view of my instructions."

There was considerable discussion as to whether or not Mr. Farrow ought to answer the question. Members of the committee differed on the point. Mr. Stevens assured Mr. Farrow that it was because he had every respect for Mr. Farrow's record in forty years' connection with the department that he wanted to get his opinion on the case in question. He asked the same question in a number of different ways. Chairman Paul Mercier suggested that Mr. Farrow had not had an opportunity to study the whole case, as the department solicitor had, otherwise he might have come to the same conclusion as Mr. Chasse.

Dugald Donaghy sided with Mr. Farrow's reluctance to reply to an "embarassing question."

"You are asking him to say that his chief was wrong," added Mr. Donaghy. Mr. Farrow nodded his head.

Mr. Stevens: "Is your hesitancy in answering this question due to the actf that you do not like to reflect upon your minister?"

Mr. Farrow: "That is the same question over again. I do not think I should be called upon to answer."

Answered by Silence

Committeeman C. W. Bell commented that Mr. Farrow had answered the question in declining to answer it.

Mr. Stevens then suggested that "we take it another way."

Mr. Farrow had instituted proceedings against Landy on information against the customs officer which he deemed sufficient to warrant such proceedings.. Had he since received any further information which would make him change his mind?"

Mr. Farrow still asked that he be allowed to remain silent. There was some talk of a vote in the committee on the pros and cons. Finally, on suggestion of Mr. Donaghy, if was agreed that Mr. Chasse should be called as a witness before the matter went any further and the incident came to an end.

"85 years of age, yet full of energy"—writes one of the hundreds of Wincarnis users who have told us of the wonderful benefits they have derived from Wincarnis. This sturdy old man attributes his present health to the regular daily use of Wincarnis for the last five years.

Before that time he found himself tiring quickly, having sleepless, restless nights, and frequent spells of mental depression—the results of a run-down condition.

Medical research has definitely proved that one of the causes of a run down condition of the body is a shortage of certain mineral elements, including iron, potassium, calcium, sodium and phosphorus, and until a sufficient supply of these minerals is restored to the body, good health is impossible. Wincarnis contains every one of these elements in addition to other health giving ingredients, and in a form in which they are most rapidly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital force.

Wincarnis has been recommended by over ten thousand physicians in cases of nervousness, anaemia, sleeplessness, and the general debility that accompanies a run down body. For fifty years this strength giver and nerve restorative has brought new life and happiness to weakened men and women.

PASSAIC MILLS LOSE BUSINESS

Few Strikers Will Be Taken Back—Orders Gone Elsewhere.

STRIKE CONTINUES.

PASSAIC, N. J., April 7.—Following a survey of conditions in the textile district at the end of the tenth week of the strike, the Committee on Information of the Passaic Chamber of Commerce announced that even after the strikers and employers come to terms, the mills probably will be operated on a very curtailed schedule for several months.

Only a portion of the workers who left their looms will be reinstated, because the mills have not sufficient orders to run on a full time basis, it is said.

There is no indication, however, that the strike is any nearer settlement than on the first day the mill workers went out.

Albert Weisbord, organizer of the United Front Committee directing the strike, said yesterday that the strikers were determined to hold out until their demands were granted, and that sufficient funds would be raised in this country and abroad to afford relief throughout the summer months.

Mills Lose Business.

According to the Chamber of Commerce survey, the mills are facing a serious situation.

"The principal cause is found in the fact that other mills have obtained the business which Passaic mills would have handled had there been no strike," the report says.

"In addition, the time is now so short for fall orders that only a portion of the usual deliveries can be made under the best circumstances. Again, trade experts report that prices for fall clothing are now lower and also that woollens and worsteds will face greater competition. Orders for woollen goods are reported considerably behind the same period of last year. All these facts indicate mill operations will be kept on a low basis for a considerable period.

"From these facts obtained by the Chamber of Commerce the committee feels a very unfortunate situation will face the workers at the end of the strike. Frankly, it means that the mills, at the end of the strike, can only take back a selected portion of their employees. Such an economic misfortune will, undoubtedly, in the view of the committee, have a depressing effect upon conditions of the workers in general, and business conditions in Passaic for a period extending possibly throughout the summer."

OBITUARY.

MRS. FRED. MORGAN.

WARSAW, April 7.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Fred. Morgan was held on Sunday afternoon. After a short service at the house, the remains were taken to St. Mark's Church, of which the deceased lady was a member. Rev. Walter Cox, assisted by Rev. H. B. Herrington, conducted the services. The pallbearers were her four brothers, Messrs. J. A., T. H., William and Jordan Crowe; her son-in-law, Mr. Howard Patterson, and a brother-in-law, Mr. Thomas Ganon.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful. They included wreaths from her family, her brothers and sisters, the U.F.O. Club and the Remington Typewriter Company of Toronto; a cross from the members of the Anglican Church; a sheaf from Miss Preston, Toronto; a sheaf from the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church; sprays from Mrs. and Miss Maud Morgan of Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morgan of Peterboro, Mrs. Wall and daughters of Peterboro, the U. F. W. O. and the Women's Institute and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foster.

JAMES GAMBLE.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 7. — James Gamble, one of the oldest residents in this town and district, died Tuesday at his home on Bridge street after a short illness of pneumonia.

The deceased was born near the town of Perth in Lanark County 78 years ago and at the age of 33 came to Seymour, where he engaged in farming, remaining in that business up to 14 years ago when he removed to Campbellford. During his residence here he was known as one of the town's most faithful employees.

The late Mr. Gamble was married in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church to Miss Catherine Truelove, who survives him, and who is almost prostrated by the shock of her husband's death. Besides the widow there are four children, William John of town, Mrs. Merritt Carr, of Frankford, Andrew of Trenton and Robert, who resides at home. Another son, James Henry, died in 1899. There are also surviving eight grandchildren.

The deceased was a faithful member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church since coming to this community. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon to Mount Pleasant cemetery, after religious services at the home at 1.30, conducted by Rev. James Grier.

FATHER OF MRS. STUART WEST WRITES TO REEVE T. M'CUBBIN FOR PARTICULARS OF TRAGEDY

Is Sent Copy of "The Examiner" Containing Inquest Story.

TRUNK IS SOUGHT.

Steel Box Mrs. West Brought To Canada Not Yet Found.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, April 7. — Reeve John McCubbin of Percy Township, has received a letter from Charles Godbold, father of Mrs. Stuart West, who with her young son, Floyd, is supposed to have perished in the fire which destroyed their home on the morning of March 9th last, asking for particulars of the tragedy. The father lives in Belgium, near Brussels. He is an Englishman by birth, but went to Belgium when a young man to work in a racing stable, and afterwards married a Belgian lady. He is a brother of Mrs. William Ingleby of Freeman, Ont., one of the witnesses at the West inquest.

It seems that Mr. Godbold has been carrying on a correspondence with different parties, including the authorities, ever since he heard of the death of his daughter, and that he was unable to get any satisfactory information, which, considering the mystery which has surrounded the affair from the beginning, is not to be wondered at. In some manner he learned the name and address of Reeve McCubbin, who is also Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, and applied to him as a public official.

To write an intelligent synopsis of the West case would involve a vast amount of labor, but Reeve McCubbin at once mailed to Mr. Godbold a copy of The Examiner containing the seven column report of the inquest. As the Reeve had sat on the platform at the investigation and heard the evidence, he was in a position to state that the account was both full and fair. He will also send a personal letter to the father.

Two Problems Unsolved

It is seldom that a case arises in police circles that presents so many problems as the West case. Neighbors of the Wests appear to agree that when Mrs. West came from Belgium to be married she brought with her a steel trunk similar to the kind that nearly all Europeans have when they arrive in this country, and that she always kept this trunk in her bedroom. No vestige of that trunk was found in the ruins of the house and that was an article that could not possibly have been entirely consumed, any more than the two stoves that were recovered from the ashes in the cellar.

No Teeth Found

It is well known that the police carefully sifted the ashes in the ruins in a search for the teeth of the missing woman and that this part of their search was unsuccessful. Then an argument arose as to whether teeth could resist the action of fire.

A dentist in Campbellford became professionally interested in this phase of the case and for his own satisfaction began making experiments, the result of which convinces him that no heat is powerful enough to destroy human teeth.

In the presence of The Examiner representative he took a tooth that had just been extracted and which was still blooddy and submitted it to an acetylene flame of 2000 degrees of heat. At the end of 10 minutes the tooth was, of course, discolored but was still solid

A Campbellford medical doctor who has had experience in such matters, says that when a human body is cremated the intense heat that is required to reduce the flesh and bones to ashes does not destroy the teeth and that in order to preserve the ashes only, it is necessary to sift out the teeth.

Legal Action Threatened

Some of the residents of the village who have been discussing this affair freely and dealing with only one side of it, have received letters from a Campbellford lawyer intimating that unless they desist they are likely to find themselves defendants in suits for alleged slander. A notice to the same effect has also been printed in a local paper.

The provincial police have not been here since the inquest and it is understood that further action depends upon the result of the expert analysis of the scissors found in the ruins and of the portion of the supposed remains of the missing woman.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, April 7.—Solemn High Mass was sung at 9 o'clock on Easter morning, Rev. J. J. Garvey officiating.

Celebrations of Holy Communion were held at 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. in St. John's Church, the latter service being fully choral. Rev. W. Cox and Rev. A. N. Mackenzie were in charge.

Chimney Fires.

At 6.30 p.m. on Thursday the siren called out the Fire Brigade for what proved to be a very lusty chimney fire at the residence of Mrs. Osborne on Water street, but prompt measures by the firemen saved what might have been a serious blaze and the damage was very slight.

At 11 o'clock the same evening a bad chimney blaze at Jackson's store called out the brigade for their second fire in one evening, and although the damage was also very slight, only prompt measures prevented a blaze which would have been serious in the congested area on Queen street.

On both occasions the brigade showed the promptness and efficiency which is a feature of the local organization, and renders it a valuable asset to the village.

News Briefs.

The weatherman had his April fool joke by sending one of the heaviest storms of the season just when everything was all set for spring. Those who were all set with spring finery are compelled to postpone their first appearance till Old Man Winter disappears. Sidewalks that were bare and spring-like are covered with snow and ice to a depth of two to two and a half inches. Spring is coming surely, but not very early.

Last week the Douro road to Peterboro was opened to cars, but the heavy storm of Saturday has rendered it impassable for another week or so. The roads are unusually late in opening this year, because of the enormous quantity of snow.

The cold of Friday morning tempted a couple of rinks of curlers to return again to their winter haunts and have a friendly game. The high water mark was reached three years ago when they curled on April 14th. This record is inscribed on the wall of the club room and has not since been broken, and, let us whisper, no one wants it to be.

The annual banquet and business meeting of the Lakefield Curling Club will be held in St. John's school room on Monday evening, when the trophies will be presented and officers elected.

The weekly card parties given in St. John's parish house will be resumed on Thursday next after being discontinued throughout Lent.

The Public and High Schools closed for the Easter vacation on Thursday, April 1.

GAS IN STOMACH HURTS THE HEART

Thousands of Cases of Heart Failure Are Caused by Acute Indigestion, Says Medical Writer

Gas pressure from sour acid, upset stomach is not only nauseating and highly unpleasant but some day it may prove fatal!

When your meals are followed by bloating, a feeling of fulness or pressure, shortness of breath and pain around the heart, you may be sure that the acid condition of your stomach is producing a GAS that is pressing upwards and crowding your heart. That's the reason for the shortness of breath and sharp, shooting pains.

Whether young or old, the presence of stomach gas is dangerous and should always be given prompt and careful attention.

To quickly banish gas, cleanse and sweeten the stomach, neutralize the acidity—nothing is better than the daily or "as needed" use of ordinary Bisurated Magnesia. It gives almost instant relief.

Any good druggist can supply Bisurated Magnesia, in powder or tablet form, at very small cost—but be sure you get BISURATED Magnesia—recommended by Doctors and Druggists throughout the civilized world for more than 15 years.

CHICAGO'S STEAL FROM VIEWPOINT OF ENGINEERS

J. L. Busfield To Address Local Branch of Engineers.

HAS STUDIED MATTER.

Mr. Busfield Has Visited Chicago For First Hand Information.

The local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada is to have presented on Thursday next at 8:15 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce, a paper on the "Chicago Water Steal," by J. L. Busfield.

Mr. Busfield is a partner of the firm of Busfield, Beaubien and Co., consulting engineers in Montreal, and is past-President of the Montreal Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

In connection with the subject of his paper, he has gone the length of visiting Chicago and studying the question on the spot, so his hearers can rely on getting first-hand information.

His viewpoint will be that of the engineers, in contrast to the commercial one given quite recently under the auspices of the Kiwanis by C. Alfred Maguire, ex-mayor of Toronto.

The question has far-reaching effects, and is reputed to have a direct bearing upon Canadian industry and it behooves all citizens to learn all viewpoints. In addition, across the line it has gone as far as legal action and at present being debated on the floor of Congress, between representatives of the State of Illinois and the Combined representatives of the remaining Lake States.

It has become an internal question in the States, and an international one between Canada and the States.

Representatives from local organizations have promised to be present and will be welcome, as also will be any others who care to come.

HOUSE OF REFUGE BARN CONSIDERED

Absence of Committteemen is Cause of Postponement of Action.

FLYERS SAFE

NEW YORK, April 7(Canadian Press).—The North American Newspaper Alliance today announced that Captain George H. Wilkins and Pilot Ben Eielson landed safely at Circle City about 150 miles north east of Fairbanks, Alaska, yesterday afternoon. The flyers were on the return journey from Point Barrow where they had flown with supplies last week.

Captain Wilkins and Lieutenant Eielson left Fairbanks in their plane, the Alaskan, on march 31st for Point Barrow, 500 miles away with 3,000 pounds of supplies. Point Barrow is the base for the Wilkins expedition which will explore the Arctic regions this summer.

The flyers reached their destination without mishap.

PEKIN ATTACK DELAYED

PEKING, April 7 (United Press).—The necessity of dispatching troops to Shantung to quell riots there is delaying the major onslaught of Chang Tso Lin on Peking. Desultory artillery activity with this city as its objective continues, however.

Another Ambrose Small

ALBION, Ind., April 7 (Canadian Press) — Mystery surrounds the identity of a man giving the name of Charles Edgar Morse, under arrest here on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, who claims he has a bank account in the Dominion Bank of Canada, at Toronto, Ont., under the name of Ambrose J. Small.

IN POLICE COURT.

A large docket confronted Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning in the Police Court. His Worship disposed of no fewer than 28 cases of non-payment of poll tax, making a total for yesterday and today of 57. In each case he assessed a fine of $1.00 and $3.25 costs, or in default, one week's imprisonment. In two cases His Worship consented to an adjournment for two weeks in order to enable the men to obtain employment.

Forged Document

A local man appeared on a charge of issuing a forged document. He was represented by J. A. O'Brien, who pleaded guilty on his behalf, and asked for suspended sentence on the grounds that there had been no attempt to attain financial benefit as a result of the document, and that no one had been damaged by it. His Worship stated that while not condoning the crime he hardly thought that the man realized he was committing forgery. He said that he would let him go on suspended sentence on condition that he would pay the costs and furnish a bond to keep the peace.

Euchres Break Law

The second case before His Worship arose out of two euchre parties and dances that were held in Victoria Hall as a result of which a local man was convicted and fined $10.00 and costs or one month's imprisonment on a charge of keeping a common gaming house. The accused was represented by J. A. O'Brien, who pleaded guilty on his behalf. Mr. O'Brien stated that the two euchres and dances, one on March 17 and the other on March 25, were conducted quite openly. He stated, that they were advertised and produced two copies of the paper in court, showing the advertisements which outlined the prizes that would be given and also contained a statement that part of the proceeds would be donated to the Childrens' Aid Society. The history of the first party was simply this, said Mr. O'Brien, that after paying for the prizes, orchestra, hall and printing the net proceeds without allowance for the time of the accused amounted to $30, and out of this he gave the Childrens' Aid Society the sum of $10. The second party ended up disastrously for the man, resulting in a loss of $8. Mr. O'Brien, on behalf of the accused, assured His Worship that the offence would not be repeated. Numerous parties of this kind, he said, are held in the City, but he had never seen a notice stating that the permission of the City Council had to be obtained in order to hold parties of this kind.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton said that apparently the case was not a flagrant one and perhaps the accused did not know he was breaking the law. He would be satisfied if a small nominal fine was imposed.

His Worship fined the accused $10.00 and costs or one month's imprisonment and told the accused that he had made the fine nominal through the assurance of his counsel that the offence would not be repeated. It was clearly an infraction of the law, he said, and for private gain, and he hoped that this case would be the last of its kind in Peterborough. His Worship stated that frequenters found at these parties were also liable to punishment.

Vagrancy

A local man pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy, and asked for another chance. He was addicted to the use of dope, but felt that he had conquered the habit, he said. He was sentenced to one month's imprisonment, to date from March 31.

Another local man appeared on a charge of vagrancy. It developed that he had accosted a girl on the street and had attempted to see her home. Through his counsel, J. A. O'Brien, the accused pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to ten days' imprisonment, to date from March 31, the day on which he was arrested.

BANFF HOTEL PREY TO FIRE

North Wing Destroyed and Remainder of Palatial Building Threatened.

CALGARY HELPS.

CALGARY, April 7.—(Canadian Press.)—The north wing of the palatial Banff Springs hotel at Banff, Alberta, has been destroyed by fire which broke out this morning, and the remainder of the structure is threatened.

By 11.30 o'clock the north wing was a wreck and it appeared that the centre section was doomed.

An appeal was sent to Calgary and fire apparatus was rushed to Banff on a special train.

Large White Bull Dog Is Visitor At Fire Hall

The early bird gets the early worm is an old saying and yesterday morning it proved true. The bird in this case was the members of the fire department and the worm being a large bull dog.

Early yesterday morning a large white bull dog with a few brown spots came to the fire hall. The dog appeared to be in a very sad condition, one of its front legs had a bad cut in it. The members took the dog in and washed and bandaged its leg and gave it something to eat.

To-day the dog has taken full possession of the hall and may be seen riding around the city occupying a seat in the Chief's car. Whether the bird will be allowed to keep the worm is another question.

DODGE BROTHERS RETAIL DELIVERIES CONTINUE TO CLIMB.

Retail deliveries of Dodge Brothers Motor Cars and Graham Brothers Trucks in the United States for the week ended March 6 again smashed all previous weekly records this year and all weekly records for January, February and March of previous years.

Official figures show that 6,228 passenger cars and trucks were delivered in the week ended March 6, 1926. This is a gain of 20 per cent over the previous week ended February 27, when the total was 5,191. Compared with the week ended March 7, last year, when 4,526 units were delivered, the gain is 38 per cent.

It will be remembered that during February, 1926, Dodge Brothers retail sales exceeded those of February, 1925, by 28 per cent. Between January 2 and March 6, this year, total retail deliveries were 39,687, compared with 27,936 for the same period of 1925, a gain of 42 per cent.

Factory shipments to United States dealers during the week ended March 6, totalled 6,888, a substantial increase over any previous week this year and a gain of 50 per cent over the corresponding week of 1925. 1d.

ANNUAL MEETING BOARD OF TRADE

C. A. Burton Will Address Members To-night—Dinner in Empress.

The thirty-seventh annual meeting of the Board of Trade and the seventh annual meeting of the reorganized Chamber of Commerce will be held in the Empress Hotel, Wednesday, April 7th, commencing with a banquet at 7.00 p.m.

The speaker of the evening will be C. L. Burton, vice-president of the Toronto Board of Trade and general manager of The Robert Simpson Co. Ltd. Mr. Burton is an enthusiastic Chamber of Commerce worker and a speaker of international repute. He will speak on a commercial subject of his own choosing.

SPECIAL SERVICES WELL ATTENDED

Large Congregation To Hear Captain Best at Murray Street.

The special service continued at Murray street Baptist church last evening under the leadership of Captain Tom Best and there was again a large gathering, including many visiting members from other churches in the city.

In the afternoon Captain Best spoke for a few minutes to the members of the Women's Mission Circle who had assembled at 3 o'clock, asking their co-operation with regard to this week's meetings.

Joseph Wearing was the song leader last night. Many of the hymns in the new books are new to the congregation but some of them are becoming quite popular. A large number came fifteen minutes earlier last night to join the sing-song.

Francis Sutton had a choir of thirty voices out last night and besides leading the singing of the hymns the choir sang, unaccompanied from the new song books, "I'm Coming Home."

Miss Trucie Pearson sang "O Jesus, Answer Prayer."

These services will continue each night during this week and everyone is invited to attend.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a special meeting for the younger boys and girls. This meeting will be led in singing by the Junior Choir which has been in training for the past few months under the drection of Mr. Sutton.

Outlook Good For Passing Laws To Stop Coal Strikes

WASHINGTON, April 7. Canadian Press. — President Coolidge was informed yesterday by Representative Parker (Republican, New York), chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Commission, that the outlook is good for the enactment ment by Congress of legislation designed to end strikes at coal mines.

EXTENSION OF SCHOOL SYSTEM IS BEING SOUGHT

Department Seeks To Bring Finest Facilities To Rural Youth, Says Premier.

ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Township Board Problem is Discussed in Mr. Ferguson's Address.

TORONTO, April 7 (Canadian Press).—Ontario's education system is big enough and far sighted enough to extend its facilities to the back concessions, to the modest "corners" and to the enterprising village. By means of the country high schools strategically situated in the township and through increased opportunities for first year university work in the Collegiate Institutes, the Provincial Department of Education will seek to bring the finest educational advantages within its power to the youth of rural Ontario, and with the establishment of Township School Boards it will endeavor to accompish its end effectively, economically and in the best interests of pupils, teachers, and community.

Such was the message of Premier Ferguson, Minister of Education, to an audience of educationists last evening, members of the Ontario Educational Association.

Last night's session touched many of the vital points of modern education.

S. J. Radcliffe, president of the association, in his annual address, outlined the benefits of summer schools, from the standpoint of teachers. The officers were elected as follows:

President Dr. E. H. Wickware, Smith's Falls, of the Trustees' section; Vice president, Charles E. Kelly, Hamilton, of the Elementary School section; Secretary, A. E. Bryson, Toronto (re-elected); Treasurer, R. M. Spiers, Toronto (re-elected); Commissioners, B. A. Gray, principal of Oakwood Collegiate, and Dr. J. H. Putnam, Ottawa.

In spite of the fact that the rural trustees' section had thrown out his Township Board Bill in the afternoon session, Premier Ferguson reiterated his belief in its ultimate efficiency for rural education.

"I want you to reach an intelligent conclusion," he said. "I don't want a prejudiced view of it, one way or the other."

Explain Township Board

Reasons why the vital problem of education in the rural sections could be dealt with by a township school board more efficiently than it is under the present system were outlined by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson. In townships of eight or ten sections, the Prime Minister believed that if they elected one trustee from each section and considered the whole, they would get better equipment and would get a uniform rate throughout the province. It would make secondary education possible at their own doors and provide country high schools if they liked, a thing everybody was clamoring for. Everybody wanted it, but nobody was wanting to pay for it.

Continuing, he said, that he was more deeply concerned about education conditions in rural parts than in any other section. They were going to see if some means could not be found whereby rural pupils would get an education with greater efficiency at a much reduced cost. He had made a suggestion and had asked the rural people and trustees to discuss it and make alternative suggestions if they would.

HAMILTON HONORED.

TORONTO, April 7. Canadian Press. — Miss Hazel Roberts, of Hamilton, was elected President of the Public School Teachers' Section of the Ontario Educational Association to-day.

That Stomach of Yours!

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the very best medicine any one can take for stomach trouble and to build up the blood when it becomes thin and impoverished," said Mrs. Peter Sargent of 39 Cornwall St., Toronto, Ont. (Picture above.) "I suffered all the time from stomach trouble. My food did not digest properly, would set heavy on my stomach, causing me to suffer great distress. Food did me no good. My blood was impoverished and I did not have enough. But, after taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery my digestion was good and my trouble was at an end so far as my stomach and blood were concerned. The food I ate nourished my body and soon my blood was in a good healthy state."

VIMY RIDGE L.O.B.A. REGULAR MEETING

New Carpet Bowls Tried Out By Lodge Members.

Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. held its regular meeting last evening with a record attendance. The business part of the meeting was conducted in a splendid manner by the W.M., Sister Wright. Plans for the summer were discussed and several candidates were accepted.

The meeting was brought to a close about 9:30 in order to try a new set of carpet bowls which had been purchased recently. Sister Millard was captain for the Comebacks and Sister DeLong, captain of the Come-again. The score was in favor of the Comebacks. The club will hold its next regular meeting on April 20, when the delegates' report from Grand Lodge will be read and the members are expected to attend.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH GIRLS ENTERTAIN

Interesting "Two in One" Evening Draws Good Attendance.

The Girls' Auxiliary of St. Luke's Anglican Church held a very interesting "Two in One" entertainment in the parish hall last evening, before a good-sized audience. The programme consisted of a one-act comedy, entitled "The Rev. Peter Bryce, Bachelor," which outlined in humorous fashion the adventures of an unattached gentleman and of the seven ladies who pursued him, leaving the triumph to the widow of the cast, and of a series of instrumental numbers, all of which were very favorably received.

In the cast of the play were the following: Miss Irene Whittaker, as Delia Dodge, Miss Winnie Pammet as Sarah Sickles, Miss Ruby Rumbelow as Susan, the housemaid, Miss Queenie Hope as May Marsh, Miss Rose Andrews as Clara Coombes, Miss Clemena Long as Flora Flynn, and Miss Madeline Wheeler as the widow, Mrs. Prince.

Instrumental numbers were given on the piano by Miss Frances McFadden, the guitar by the Misses Hamilton, the violin by Clifford Rusaw, the latter with accompaniment by Mr. W. Thompson, vocal solos by Miss Berenice Cain and Messrs. W. Hepburn, B. Lindley, and W. Thompson, and readings by Mrs. H. E. Connolly, Miss Eva Outram and Miss Winnie Fuller.

The evening was also featured by the presentation to the Auxiliary's president, Miss Muriel Curtis, who is leaving the city for Millbrook, where she has taken a position, of an ivory-backed brush and comb set.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the programme. A lucky number draw for a "Two in One" box of chocolates was made by Jean Black, and won by Miss Frances McFadden, with Ticket No. 144.

ANNIVERSARY OF ST. JAMES' CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Brown, of Kingston, Outstanding Pastor, Will Preach.

Rev. Dr. W. T. G. Brown of Kingston, who comes next Sunday to St. James United church in connection with anniversary services, is one of the most outstanding ministers of the Bay of Quinte conference. Dr. Brown has the unique experience of now serving his third pastoral term as minister of Sydenham street United church in Kingston. After completing his first term, he was called to Sherbourne street church in Toronto. At the conclusion of his successful pastorate there he was called back to Sydenham street in Kingston. Then at the close of his second term there, he was called to Dominion church, Ottawa. After a very successful pastorate in Ottawa, he was again called to Sydenham street church, Kingston, of which he is now the pastor.

Dr. Brown's visit to St. James next Sunday for anniversary services will be looked forward to with interest by a great many who will want to avail themselves of this opportunity to hear him.

Albert E. Greenlaw, famous basso-cantante, of Detroit, will sing at these anniversary services.

MARQUETRY DRAWS FAVORABLE NOTICE

Brother of Peterborough Man Is Artist In Natural Woods.

In the window of the Schneider jewelry store are on view just now several delicate pieces of marquetry or inlaid wood work, the handicraft of Henry Baumer, of Alsace, France, a brother of Emile Baumer of this city. The pictures, done in tiny pieces of wood, are ingenious and very cleverly executed. The following notice with regard to Mr. Baumer's work appeared recently in a French magazine, "L'Art Decoratif":

"Monsieur A. Bregor, the distinguished art critic and connoisseur at the Exposition des Arts Decoratifs at Paris, 1925, says about the pictures of Mr. Henri Baumer—'It is impossible to imagine, without having seen such interesting work, pictures in marquetry. It seems to be impossible to achieve pictures in marquetry and yet it has been done. These pictures give one the illusion of paintings, which is still more extraordinary. It was at the Exposition of this year, where I have seen the productions of Monsieur Henri Baumer. In 1922 he had an exhibit at the Art Exposition at Obernai, where he received the silver medal and diploma, the same year in the Art Salon at Troyes; following this he took part at the Exposition of Artcrafts at Thann, where he received two silver and one bronze medals, and he was also authorized at this Exposition to exhibit his pictures in the Salon des Arts at Paris. I understand this favor very well. The pictures are genuine works of art. At the First National Exposition of Artcrafts at Paris he received the Diploma of Honour and Gold Medal. I have faith in the artistic future of Mr. Henri Baumer, and I am assured, that he doesn't need the intimations of a critic to let him know what to do, for, enlivened with sincerity this artist will always give pictures worthy of him.'"

EQUAL PAY OPPOSED

LONDON, England, April 7 (Canadian Press).—Equal pay for men and women teachers which is being demanded by the National Union of Teachers is strongly opposed by the National Association of School Masters, now in conference.

The National Association of School Masters is opposed to assistant masters serving under head mistresses, and it has pledged itself to support member of the association who refuse to serve thereunder.

Women Find

Great comfort in this new hygienic pad that discards easily as tissue—no laundry

ON many important counts, women are deserting the old-time "sanitary pad."

There is a new way. A way that multiplies protection. A way, too, that solves the old problem and embarrassment of disposal.

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! And deodorizes—ends ALL fear of offending.

✓ As easily disposed of as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Costs only a few cents. Eight in 10 better-class women employ it. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

Motorists Already Benefit By NEW TIRE WARRANTY

Instituted January First, 1926

IT is now three months since the Tire Manufacturers of Canada put into effect the 90-day Warranty on tires.

It will be remembered that, starting Jan. 1st, 1926, all standard tires have been sold in Canada under a full guarantee against defects of workmanship or material for 90 days from the date of first road-wear (180 days in the case of solid tires).

The benefits of this policy to the motorist were pointed out at the time of its announcement.

You were told of the great improvements made in tire construction. You were told of the high average mileage being given by standard tires—mileage so good that the old basis of adjustment had ceased to mean anything. You were told why Tire Manufacturers now sell their tires under this Warranty, knowing that any defect will show up within 90 days.

The success of the 90-day Warranty's operation in the United States, during the past two years, was reasonable assurance that the Warranty would also benefit motorists in Canada. Already those benefits are apparent. The practically complete elimination of the professional adjustment-seeker is reducing tire costs to the motoring public. Using the old adjustment as a bait to sell poor tires is almost a thing of the past. Every honest motorist who wishes only to get good value for his tire money is protected as he never was before.

Now that the motoring season is really beginning, the benefit of the 90-day Warranty will become more and more apparent.

CUPID'S CONFIDENCES

By Juanita Hamel

"You mustn't tell!" And, of course, she promises, for one always wants to hear what Cupid has to confide. But she's so happy—for Dan has just whispered to her what she wants to know—that He—to whom her heart is given—loves her, and her alone.

Secrets, you say? Of course! For Love is composed of secrets—dear words, and looks, and thoughts and sighs—all these are Love's secrets—and in return, she confides her heart's desire—and Dan grins, a mischievous grin, and plays father confessor to the secrets of the lovers, and in return he whispers the magic words that make both of them happy.

Then it's a secret no longer—for Love, no matter how secret, shows itself to all who care to see. And who can deny Love?

HER OWN WAY

A GIRL of TODAY

THE REASON WHY

"Madame Serie pulled me still closer toward her as she said:

"'Don't you worry, Mamie. Lola Lawrence will not have so much money to spend in the future. In a very short time she will find that she has not open sesame to Mr. Tremaine's bank account or even pocket-book.'

"'Why not? Have they quarreled?' I asked in surprise.

"Madame looked at me very strangely.

"'Is it possible that you don't know, Mamie?' she questioned.

"'No, I don't know,' was my puzzled answer, 'and I'm sure there's no reason why I should know. I only have seen Miss Lawrence and Mr. Tremaine here and while she has always high-hatted me, you know, yet Mr. Tremaine seemed to think she was all right.'

"For a moment Madame seemed to say something. Then she turned my face toward hers.

"I wish my daughter had been like you,' she said.

"I had never known that Madame had had a daughter and even then I did not dare ask about her.

"That afternoon Madame was kind enough to let me off early and I went to Tortentio.

"He saw me immediately and he certainly put me through my paces. As I was singing, scales mostly, he would look toward a screen every once in a while that stood in a corner of the room, with a triumphant air. Once or twice I had a feeling that someone was behind it, but I asked no questions, for I was too taken up with the realization that at last my dream was going to come true. I was going to sing.

"I didn't know then, Julie, that dreams never come true. Never—never."

Again Mamie's black head went down upon her arms and she began sobbing anew.

"Oh, Mamie, dear, don't cry like that," I pleaded. "What has happened tonight since I left you? Surely you did not feel like this earlier in the evening!"

"I know it, Julie, I know it, but after you left, I saw him—saw him with his wife and oh, Julie, he looks unhappy. He seemed to have grown much older."

I put my hand on Mamie's shoulder.

"Whom are you talking about?" I asked.

THE BABY TEETH.

How many should there be? 'Ten little fingers and ten little toes'—making twenty in all—and there you have their number. Easy to remember isn't it?

And when should you begin to look for them? About the sixth or seventh month.

And which comes first? As a rule, the lower front tooth the central incisor.

So after all baby's fretfulness he has a brand new tooth or two—so white and so sound they look, that you never give a thought to future tooth troubles.

Then the other eighteen or nineteen white coated little "millers" will follow at somewhat regular intervals until Sonny is two years old, when he should have his full temporary set.

These are the temporary or deciduous teeth—being known also as the "milk teeth", from which you will be aware, of course, that they won't be retained right through adult age. They should all remain in place, however, until about the seventh year, when, through the natural process of shedding they commence to be lost.

Then, as the time approaches for the eruption of the second set, unless the first teeth are sufficiently separated in front to allow one or two thicknesses of blotting paper between them, the arches have not properly expanded and the second set is certain to be crowded and irregular. In such a case, the family dentist should always be consulted.

Since Sonny is going to lose these small teeth in good time and get a nice new set, why bother to care for them?

Well, little Sonny does not want a tooth-ache any more than do you—and for several other good reasons, of which more to follow.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

LINGERIE

By HEDDA HOYT

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, April 7 (United Press).—Some of the new costume slips are made with vestee fronts so that they can be worn under tailored suits or coat frocks.

Undergarments should be the exact shade of the pastel frock with which they are worn if one is to follow Fashion's decree. Thus, hosiery, bloomers and slip are the exact shade of the frock, in many cases.

French blue, nile green, yellow, peach and flesh are Spring lingerie shades. One Fifth Avenue shop has a window of French blue voile garments piped in peach shade. Green piped in yellow and yellow piped in orange are also shown by several shops.

There's never been so much lace as at present. Whole night gowns of lace posed over georgette chiffon or crepe de chene designed for the June bride. Flowered georgette under-things are trimmed in black lace ruffles and appliques. Girlish form brassieres made entirely of lace are worn with the dance frock.

In spite of the many sheer fabrics sponsored for lingerie, crepe de chene is still the leading material and one which wears well and launders well. Voile is perhaps the next most popular material for Spring and Summer wear.

Crepe de chene is frequently trimmed with georgette instead of lace, the georgette being used for yokes, and appliques.

Beige, gray and toast colored bloomers are those worn by the short-skirted flappers this season. Instead of rolled stockings the young Miss is wearing very long stockings and very short bloomers which are at least 4 or 5 inches shorter than the normal bloomer. Round garters are being discarded since the stocking is upheld by the girdle.

Pongee pajamas are favored by the young college girl this season. Both mannish pajamas and those with V-necks and short sleeves are worn. In some instances the trousers are of knee length.

SPASMODIC RIOTS STILL OCCURRING

Police Are Keeping Hindus and Moslems Well in Hand, However.

CALCUTTA, India, April 7 (Canadian Press). — Hindus and Moslems have not yet settled their enmities. Rioting continued yesterday, but the police and military are taking extraordinary precautions and are not slow in suppressing spasmodic outbreaks. Total casualties up to this evening, as announced by the authorities, are 35 killed and 400 injured.

SHE DESCRIBES A DAINTY NIGHTGOWN.

Madame has been doing a number of things for young brides of late, so, of course, that means that dainty undergarments have surrounded us on all sides.

As a rule, Madame doesn't design underthings but when she does a bride's wedding gown and the frocks for her bridesmaids she usually consents to make a few underthings for her too.

"I love to make dainty underclothes, but it's simply that I'm too busy on outside things to undertake them often," Madame explained to the latest client to-day.

"I don't see how you have time to think up all these lovely designs for gowns and combinations when you have to concentrate on frocks and coats so much of the time," the client responded.

"Then I'll let you into my secret," Madame said. She proceeded to explain:

"My dear, you know manikins make the prettiest underthings in the world, and many of them are their original designs. So I instituted a contest among the girls, offering prizes for the most acceptable designs handed in, in the form of drawings."

The client showed her interest at once, for she had been admitted into the manikins' room once and learned that we spend our spare time sitting about stitching on dainty clothes.

Then Madame walked over to a cabinet and drew forth a gown. I saw with great pleasure that it was one made from my design, which had won first prize.

Madame held up the silky, mint green crepe de Chine affair and said:

"This is a good sample of the lovely ideas turned in to me."

The client took the gown and examined it minutely.

"Perfectly stunning yoke arrangement," she announced.

The yoke was made of filet lace and inset with thin white batiste embroidered in green eyelets, to match the gown.

This Mint-Green Crepe de Chine Nightie Has an Elaborate Yoke.

There were mere suggestions of sleeves, made of wider filet.

"I love the combination of batiste with lace and crepe de chine," the client remarked.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Perhaps you can help me with my problem, as you have helpted others.

I went with a boy who I liked very well. When he was leaving he asked for a handkerchief to remember me by and promised to write. He kept his promise for a while, but the last time I wrote he didn't answer.

Now I'm going with another boy whom I'm very much in love with. I don't want the other boy to have my handkerchief. Would it be proper for me to ask him to either return it or burn it? BOBETTE.

BOBETTE: It would be quite proper to ask him to return your handkerchief or burn it, but if you write him to this effect and he still neglects to answer your letter, you will be somewhat embarrassed. Why not let him keep the handkerchief until such time as you hear from him or see him. If you make an important matter out of this, it may please him to tease you about it. Why give him the chance?

Here is a new version of the Charlot necklet. Three slightly curved gold bands, following the neckline, are held by three links at the sides.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, APRIL 8.

A day of conflicting conditions is presaged from many powerful configurations of the planets. It is likely to be a day of surprising developments with speculative enterprises and new projects under critical auspices. However, the financial prospects are not entirely under adverse rule and may be turned to account by good judgment and wise manipulation. Those in the employment of others are also under an encouraging sway.

Those whose birthday it is may wring success from adverse conditions by good judgment and conservatism in the matter of all manner of speculative projects. There is some danger of fraud and sudden loss, probably through misrepresentation or treachery. Advantageous change is denoted and those in employment are favored. A child born on this day is likely to have a varied career, with large ventures in early life. It should be trained to manage its affairs with conservatism and discretion. It should succeed in the employment of others.

HOLLYWOOD, April 7—Frances Marion, the writer-producer, and E. Mason Hopper, director, have skillfully transfused the spirit of Balzac into their latest shadowland composition, "Paris at Midnight," a Metropolitan production, based on the classic scrivener's "Pere Goriot."

Cinema engineers have in the past vainly tried to bring Honore Balzac to life on the screen. But the masterpieces of the Frenchman have been too subtle for the Hollywood mechanics.

To Frances Marion, Celluloidia's highest paid Underwood user, goes the signal honor of instilling into lifeless screendom the poignant breath of life that was Balzac's.

Father Goriot is made an entity of reality by one of Balzac's country men Emile Chautard. Chautard is a master pilot of emotions, lights and shades. Here is a performance that every young player in pictureland should be compelled to study, over and over.

Jetta Goudal, Jocelyn Lee, Edmund Burns and Mary Brian give polished exhibitions of cinema skill. Lionel Barrymore as the apache and killer, sometimes known as "The March of Death," provides an interesting Balzac characterization.

"Too many things are being invented. Improvements come so fast that perfectly good articles are thrown into the discard in the human passion to have the newest." Mrs. Rose Garvey, 113, died a day or so ago. Three bachelor sons, aged 82, 74, and 70, buried her. They had vowed that not one of them would marry as long as his mother lived. One wonders if a woman who accepts so much can rest easy in her grave!

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

The moral is, say some, that literary gentlemen should be more cautious than to marry literary wives. This, because of Marie Saltus' recently published life of her famous husband man of letters, called "Edgar Saltus: The Man." Critics say that "her book is truthful to the verge of cruelty." One way of "getting even!"

Speaking of wives who write husbands' lives, there is Jessie Conrad's "Joseph Conrad As I Knew Him," in gentle, loving vein.

The Saltus book, will, doubtless, be the better seller, albeit Conrad is the better known man than Saltus.

WORLD O' FASHION

You don't need to possess a cold this spring to flaunt a man's handkerchief, acre-lot size. Men's mouchoirs are the only kind that "us girls" will carry with our mannish tailored suits and lapeled topcoats this spring. Rather incongruous, though, to find them of wispy chiffon and georgette.

WORLD GASTRONOMIC

Only certain foods should be eaten for certain moods. Milk toast and baked apple when you are tired; fresh fruit, toast, and coffee when grief-stricken; grape fruit and spinach when worried; cold water and cream soup when angry. All this from Ida Bailey Allen's new book called "Your Foods and You."

Just Turn the Tap

AT the turn of the faucet an abundant supply of hot water always ready! Such a convenience would be worth infinitely more to you than the few cents daily required to operate the Hotpoint Water Heater. The famous Calrod (sheathed wire) heating element, used only in Hotpoint Water Heaters, is practically indestructible. The Immersion type Hotpoint Water Heater is bringing the comfort and luxury of hot water to thousands of homes and apartment houses.

There is also the Circulation type of Hotpoint Water Heater which will supply hot water almost instantly. This may be attached to any domestic tank, the switch located in the most convenient part of the house.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

One of the most dreadful of all dreadful deaths is the agonizing end of the victim of lockjaw. I can never foregt the last hours of a friend as well as a patient of mine. It was twenty years ago, but the circumstances are as vivid as if they had happened yesterday.

The medical name for lockjaw is tetanus. Any wound made in such manner that soil is carried into the tissues is one which may result in tetanus.

In the old days Fourth of July was an American holiday which was paid for in hundreds of deaths from tetanus. That is one reason why the ban on fireworks became so effective. Everybody came to realize that the joy of the fireworks was not sufficient reward for the harvest in deaths.

In the World War this disease was one of the greatest of the horrors. The explosion of shells tore the body and drive into the tissues the infected dirt of the soil.

I am always attentive when somebody suggests the hope of protection against tetanus. On this account I am interested in a dispatch from Paris. It was printed a few days ago. It states:

"A discovery which is claimed to provide perfect immunization against tetanus has been announced by the Pasteur Institute after six months' experiments with the vaccine of Dr. Gaston Ramon."

The dispatch says that "men and horses have been treated successfully against tetanus poison, in marked contrast to the effects of other serums, which seldom lasted more than ten days." This is encouraging, because it is a pity to have so brief a period of safety against an enemy so deadly.

In commenting on the new vaccine one of its advocates said: "Medical history of the World War simply illustrates the value of the discovery. If it were known then thousands of lives would have been saved and the danger from tetanus reduced to scratches which may develop into tetanus, and for workers everywhere, its possibility of immunization is of the utmost importance and may some day be made compulsory."

It takes from one to three weeks after the accident for the symptoms of tetanus to appear. The first sign is a peculiar feeling in the throat or neck. Then the jaws feel stiff. There may be fever.

But the terrible symptom is the dreadful spasm. The attacks become more frequent and more violent. The head is drawn back and the whole body may be arched, resting on head and heels.

The fever increases and death occurs unless treatment overcomes the ailment. This vaccine will prove a blessing and I pray it has actually been discovered.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

ALINE. Q.—What causes me to awaken in my sleep crying and sobbing bitterly? My health is good.

A.—This is probably due to dreaming, worry, or intestinal disturbance.

MRS. E. P. Q.—What do you advise for eczema on the face?

A.—First of all determine the source of infection by careful examination. For full particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and restate your question.

CONSTANT READER. Q.—What causes tiny white spots on eyelashes and what will remove them?

A.—This condition is probably due to chronic inflammation of eyelids. I would advise bathing the eyes with a mild solution of boracic acid several times during the day and at night apply 1 percent yellow oxide of mercury ointment.

* * *

E. B. Q.—What can I do for ringing in the ears?

A.—This condition is usually due to nasal catarrh which has extended to the middle ear. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and restate your question.

* * *

AMANDA C. Q.—Will you kindly tell me what causes yellowish blotches to appear on the face?

A.—These are probably liver spots. This condition is usually due to poor intestinal elimination. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and restate your question.

MRS. C. M. S. Q.—What is your advice on weight reduction?

A.—Weight reduction is chiefly a matter of self-control as regards diet. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and restate your question.

* * *

A READER. Q.—What can I do for falling hair?

A.—Wash the hair with castile soap. After drying rub into the scalp a good stimulating ointment. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and restate your question.

* * *

MRS. M. P. Q.—What is good for poor circulation?

A.—Build up the general health, and your circulation should improve. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medicinal, hygiene and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write your personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. HOME-MAKING HELPS

BIBS FOR LITTLE PEOPLE

Bibs today are quite an important part of the nursery linens and they are wonderfully attractive. Among the revivals there are oilcloth bibs that are a joy, of dainty double-faced materials white on one side and colored on the other with the white side painted or stenciled in new and attractive patterns.

Very smart bibs are those in wash silk with embroidered fish, tiny sheep, cats or dogs, roosters or hens, ducks or birds, flowers or butterflies, according to taste. The bibs have a linen lining and wash ribbon ties at the neck and waistline.

Then there are the new rubber bibs, made of double-faced material having a solid color on one side and white with a dainty pattern in color on the other side. The edges are pinked and the collar buttons with two buttons and the belt with one.

Bunny bibs are very popular. Children love the bibs and the idea of having bunny's ears around their necks.

Bibs for the teething baby are very lovely and instead of being pinned down in front they are cut with a narrow belt that runs around the waist and buttons in the back. These bibs are made in fine linen, interlined to make them thick enough for a teething baby.

BRIDES BEWARE! FOR MATRIMONIAL BARKS SOMETIMES ARE WRECKED ON CHOCOLATES

BY CYNTHIA GREY

Of course dear brides, you must keep hubby attentive.

Don't let him slip easily out of the habit of paying you compliments (deserved or not) and keep him acquainted with the flower shop and the confectioners.

After all, it took some time to train him to buy bon bons instead of peppermints, and glace fruit rather than apples.

But—

If you have an ambitious waistline, or if you take naturally to dangerous curves, use your chocolates for exterior rather than interior decoration. Have them alluringly and tastefully displayed on the table where the guest may add to her calories (that is her lookout) or bribe the janitor's wife with them.

But pin your faith to lettuce and spinach.

For verily, if your husband adores you because of your Irene Castle ankles and Colleen Moore figure, he will be vaguely disturbed if you take on the silhouette of little Four-Hundred-Pound Mary at the side show.

Keep your school girl waistline that your husband loves to span.

Be a little clinging vine, when hubby is around, but after he goes to work, turn on the music and do your stuff, bend and twist and turn.

Consider the vamps of history. Cleopatra, Helen of Troy and Peggy Joyce—not a two-hundred pounder ever made the grade.

THREE-MINUTE JOURNEYS

WHERE MOTHER WORKS AND FATHER WATCHES BABY.

We are accustomed to hearing the phrase, "Women's place is in the home." And we have heard it so often that we have come to believe it implicitly. It seems quite the most natural thing in the world that father should leave the house every morning while mother remains home to tend to the baby. Very often father scarcely sees his child except on week-ends until he is quite a big boy.

But things are different in other parts of the globe. In the South Sea zone of the great Pacific, among a group of islands known by the collective name of Micronesia, there is a small group called the Marshall Islands. Until very recently these islands were the property of Germany, but they have now passed into the hands of Japan.

Although the missionaries who first visited these islands some fifty years ago reported that the natives were complete savages, living under thatched roofs supported by four poles and wearing no clothes, one fact remains that these people had navigated over the Pacific for several centuries. In their great canoes, with sails of palmleaves and with charts made of twigs tied together, they visited all the islands of their vicinity. The twigs indicated to them the islands, the tides and the general directions.

Times have changed to a great degree in the past fifty years, but one curious custom of the Marshall Islanders remains undisturbed. The men of the islands do not work. They do not believe in work, they are not accustomed to it or trained to it, and they do not do it. They prefer to take care of the babies, while the women perform what work there is to be done, such as raising and preparing the food and weaving the rugs or making the tapestries and the baskets for which the island is known.

And this custom still exists, although the islands have adopted civilization to the extent of wearing clothes and

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BETTY LEARNS SOMETHING WORTH WHILE.

Betty sighed and twisted in her seat Some way, she just couldn't remember the things she had read in her geography and she expected every second to be called upon to recite.

"Oh, dear! What shall I do?" she asked herself.

"Si-si-si," whispered a tiny voice in her ear, and Betty turned her head to find her little elfin friend sitting on the corner of her desk. "Shoo, don't make a sound," he whispered, and catching hold of Betty's hand he sailed right out the school window across the mountains and seas to a strange land.

"Why, Gocomeback!" It had all happened so quickly Betty didn't have time to ask where they were going. "Where in the world are we anyway?"

"In the country you were studying about, of course," the elfin laughed merrily, "the only way to remember what you read is to pretend you have been over the ground. So here we are in Egypt and here comes my little friend Adra."

"Hello there, Adra," said Gocomeback, "this is Betty from North America. She wants to know something about your lovely land."

"I'm glad," smiled Adra, taking Betty's hand. "I love my Egypt. It's in the corner of Africa, you know, and this lovely river you see before you is none other than the river Nile, one of the longest rivers in the world, so they say."

"But I read you people have hardly any rains at all," mused Betty. "If that's so, how do you happen to have such lovely vegetation?"

"I Love My Egypt."

"That's true, we very seldom have rain," replied Adra, "yet this is a very fruitful country and is famous for wheat, rice and other things. You see the thing that saves our land is that lovely river. Every year, along in June, the Nile rises and overflows its banks. Then all this land around here is covered with water for months and months. In October the floods go down, leaving the ground wet and covered with rich soil that has settled from the water. Then comes the Egyptian's busy season. We don't have to plough our fields as you do in America, all we have to do is to plant the seeds. Our country is very warm, so the seeds sprout quickly. Why, Honey, if it were not for that dear old river Nile, Egypt would be a desert like the country on both sides of us."

"But I should think the ground would dry out and the plants die," suggested Betty.

"That's why you see so many canals running across the plains from the river," said Adra. "These canals water the land and keep it moist so the crops can grow. Egypt is a wonderful place. I could tell you many more things, but there's your bell."

Betty and Gocomeback just reached the school-house as the children were going in from recess and no one had missed Betty at all.

When it came her turn to recite, Betty did herself proud. Then when the teacher asked her how she remembered so much of her lesson, she told her what Gocomeback had said. Just pretend sometimes when you can't get a lesson and see if it doesn't help you, too.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Grape fruit, juice cereal, thin cream, breakfast codfish, corn bread, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Stuffed eggs, health bread and butter sandwiches, canned pears, oatmeal cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Casserole of smoked halibut, string beans, head lettuce with Russian dressing, cottage pudding with maple sauce, bran bread, milk, coffee.

Breakfast Codfish.

Three-fourths pound salt codfish, 3 slices fat salt pork, 2 tablespoons flour, 2cups milk, paprika.

Soak fish in cold water to cover over night. Drain from this water and cover with boiling water. Simmer until tender, about twenty minutes. Drain and dry. Try out salt pork, cooking until meat is crisp. Remove meat to a hot platter. Roll fish in flour and cook to an appetizing brown in the hot fat. The fish should brown quickly since it is cooked until tender and needs no further cooking. Place fish on platter with pork. Pour off all but 2 tablespoonfuls of fat in frying pan and stir flour into the remaining 2 tablespoonfulls When thoroughly blended and smooth, slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Cook until thick and smooth. Season with paprika and pour around fish and pork. Garnish with sprigs of parsley if convenient and serve.

"SON."

I just can't get her off my mind—and does that make me mad? Why, say the thought of her I find by far the best I've had. There isn't any fault to pick, with manner or with ways. In fact I'm always very quick to step right forth with praise.

They say no perfect person can be found beneath the sun, but if they ever change their minds—well, frankly, she's the one. As far as I'm concerned, right now, all things are as should be. There's nothing more to wish for since she suits me to a tee.

Whenever worries head my way and overflow my cup, it always seems she hurries forth and tries to clear them up. I didn't have to grow so old till smart enough to learn that she, in every trouble, was the one to whom to turn.

There ain't no use in talkin' 'cause you hit the same ol' spot whene'er ya start discussin' 'bout the finest friend you've got. She's called me down, an' called me up for goods and bads I've run, but best of all—the greatest call—is when she calls me son.

My Beauty Beliefs

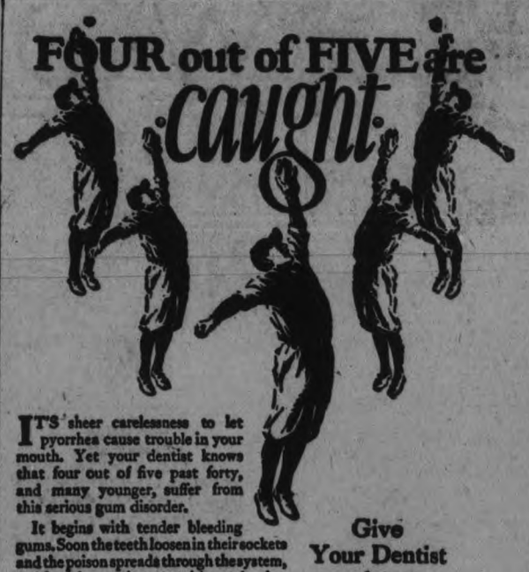
"MY BEAUTY BELIEFS."
By Thyra Samter Winslow.
Author of "Picture Frames" and "The Show Business."

Once upon a time a show man told me that a woman's secret of real beauty was to stress her one good feature and forget all the others.

My eyes, for instance, happen to be less homely than any other part of me. They are big, but awfully light. I wanted to bring out my best feature, so I consistently use mascaro on them; a light brush over the lids, and a medium beading on the lashes.

Hair can be kept glossy and silky by rubbing warm olive oil into the scalp about an hour before the shampoo. And I believe in frequent shampoos. I do mine twice a week. Rub dry with heavy towel until the scalp glows.

FOUR out of FIVE are caught



IT'S sheer carelessness to let pyorrhea cause trouble in your mouth. Yet your dentist knows that four out of five past forty, and many younger, suffer from this serious gum disorder.

It begins with tender bleeding gums. Soon the teeth loosen in their sockets and the poison spreads through the system, causing rheumatism, neuritis, and other similar diseases.

Forhan's for the Gums is the simple, easy way to keep you out of pyorrhea's clutches. It's a pleasant dentifrice that firms the gums and gives the teeth a thorough cleansing. It contains Forhan's Pyorrhea Liquid which has been used by dentists for the last 15 years in the treatment of pyorrhea.

If used regularly and in time, Forhan's prevents or checks pyorrhea and so is an important safeguard to health. Begin today to use Forhan's night and morning as a wise precaution. All druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

SOME POINTERS IN ECONOMICAL CARVING.

Carving in most households is a neglected art, yet it means much to those who must practice economy.

The knowledge of fish carving should be acquired by the carver, for there is no other food as uninviting as badly carved and served fish. A steel knife and fork should not be used for fish, as such contact often spoils the flavor. A silver fork and spatula knife, or slice, as it is generally called, are the best to use. Short-grained fish, such as salmon, should be cut lengthwise, the others across. In carving a whole cod, carve across the center to the bone and detach it there. After several slices have been cut, the backbone may be cut through and removed so that the meat on the under side is available.

In carving a rolled roast of beef, insert the fork firmly in the left side, then carve across the top—right to left—a thick slice to even the surface, then slice thinly. In carving a standing roast, insert the fork at the top of the heavy end, then slice from the heavy part to the end of the bones, first one side then the other, last the center.

In carving a leg of lamb, place it with the long bone at the left of the carver. Cut down through the center of the outside and cut to the bone. After cutting through several slices, run the knife along the edge of the bone and detach them. Short slices can be taken from the other side of the bone in the same way. If the butcher removes the bone to the first joint, the meat may be folded over and pinned with a steel skewer to make a better looking roast. The boiled leg of mutton is carved in the same way.

If the shoulder of veal or lamb is boned and stuffed, it can be carved right across. If it is not boned, it can be sliced down to the bone and the knife run under the slices to detach them. A loin of pork is simply cut with a sharp knife in neat, chop-like sections.

In carving fowl insert the fork in the breast of the bird. Then detach the legs, slice down either side of the second joint and lift it out, detach the wings, then slice the breast meat. If the wishbone has been drawn before cooking, it will help greatly in the slicing.

In slicing a boiled tongue, first remove the root entirely, then slice in thin slices towards the thin end. In carving a boiled ham, if a whole one, carve down through the center to the bone, then detach the slices with a short, sharp knife. If the round end is used, then slice thin down to the bone and detach each slice as cut. In cutting a porterhouse steak, slice down each side of the bone, then cut slices from either side so the tenderloin is equally distributed with each helping.

OPENING GAMES OFFER SEVERE TESTS FOR LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

Athletics Resume Old Feud With Senators—Cards Meet Pirates.

OPENING TUESDAY.

NEW YORK, April 7 (Canadian Press)—Opening major league baseball games next Tuesday take champions of both circuits under the withering fire of outstanding contenders, with Washington confronted by a Philadelphia invasion in the American, and Pittsburgh facing a confident Cardinal team of St. Louis in the National.

Successful training seasons by challenging coherts of Connie Mack and Rogers Hornsby have indicated to baseball observers that both pennant winners will be subjected to severe opening tests. Many critics in the east have picked the Athletics to displace the Senators as champions this season, while the Cardinals have impressed observers by a sensational string of exhibition victories.

The struggle at the capital, commanding focal interest by reason of the see-saw struggle between Washington and Philadelphia last year, develops a test of the psychological effect produced on the Athletics by their rout at the hands of the Senators last fall.

Returning from a disastrous road trip, the Mackmen were still within reaching distance of the champions as they entered the so-called crucial series. The challengers failed, however, to pull together their shattered ranks and the Senators clinched their grip on the flag by a clean-cut triumph.

Other opening games in the American will take St. Louis to Chicago, Cleveland to Detroit and New York to Boston.

In the National, New York will start at home against Brooklyn, the Phillies will receive the Braves, while Chicago will invade Cincinnati.

May Be Postponed.

CHICAGO, April 7—While the major league baseball teams cavort about the southland defeating lesser teams under sunny skies, their home parks, under six inches of snow, look more like the middle of winter instead of April, and the possibility of numerous opening day games being postponed is likely.

The teams are gathering up their paraphernalia or on their way home for the opening date, April 13, while winter is still raging in most of the north.

In Chicago, both parks are covered by more than six inches of snow, and throughout the midwest it is so unseasonably cold that the fans are beginning to wonder if it will be possible to open the season on time.

The officials are doubtful—but the parks already in pretty fair shape before the storm hit—are undergoing the annual rejuvenation while everybody hopes.

At least one bit of cheering news has come out of the south to give the fans something more than snow to think about.

It is the fact that major league hitters seem to have struck their stride at last, after going about during the spring doing little hitting.

Sunday seemed to have brought about the change, and the hitters seemed to have followed up their streak. Monday was a horrible day on the pitchers.

The Washington Senators clicked off 18 hits and 13 runs off Giant pitchers at Birmingham. The Browns, of St. Louis, went on a rampage to win from Chattanooga, of the Southern Association, 16 to 8. Ty Cobb's gang beat the Atlanta, Ga., team, 15 to 1.

At Hot Springs, the Pittsburg Pirates romped over the Indianapolis team of the American Association, 12 to 5.

Misfortune as to injuries and illness has already overtaken two of the teams. Piccinich, Cincinnati catcher, was called home by illness in his family. This leaves the Reds with only Ivy Wingo as the only veteran catchers. Johnny Hodapp, third baseman of the Cleveland Indians, sustained a sprained ankle, and may be out for several days.

SEPARATION FROM MANAGER SOUGHT

Greb Appeals To New York Athletic Commission.

NEW YORK, April 7 (Canadian Press)—Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, former world's middleweight champion appealed to the state athletic commission Tuesday, to sever his relationship with Red Mason, his manager, because of a disagreement between them.

Greb alleged Mason induced him under false pretences to sign a two year contract renewal with him, February 26, the day of the fight in which Greb lost his middleweight title to Tiger Flowers.

The former titleholder contended that in his rush to renew his own state license he signed three papers and did not learn until later that one of them was a contract tieing him up with Mason for two more years.

OFFERS SUZANNE $250,000 FOR TOUR

Red Grange's Manager Dangles Big Bait at Nice.

NICE, France, April 7 (Canadian Press)—William H. Pickens, representative of C. C. Pyle, manager of Harold (Red) Grange, arrived in Nice yesterday to attempt to sign up Suzanne Lenglen for a United States tour under Pyle's management. He is understood to be ready to offer the French tennis champion $250,000 if she will turn professional. If she refuses this, a second offer is to be made of $100,000 for a contract containing a guarantee that she would not forfeit her amateur status.

Mlle. Lenglen's father refused at first to meet Pyle's representative, declared that he had finished talking to United States promoters and newspapermen. However, when informed that nearly 3,000,000 francs was involved, he arranged for Pickens to meet Suzanne today. "Suzanne will not turn professional tennis player," M. Lenglen said.

Pyle's offer of $100,000 is understood to be for a contract under which the money would be paid for motion picture which it is contended Mlle. Lenglen could make without jeopardizing her amateur status.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

BRADENTOWN, Fla. April 7.—Pennant conjecture doesn't even get a slight rise out of Manager Art Fletcher of the Philadelphia Nationals.

At present his chief thought in life is developing a ball club that will make interesting competition for the rest of the National League.

Manager Fletcher makes no pretense at pennant aspirations but, take it from me, any club presided over by the former Giant star is certain to play interesting baseball. That's his style.

Fletcher, trained by John McGraw, a natural aggressive ball player, has no use for the drones. He wants only athletes who are always giving their best, regardless of how good or bad it may be.

Winning ball games is the watchword on the Phillies.

"No! we haven't got the pennant fever," remarked Fletcher as I discussed his ball club with him. "The big idea is to win every ball game we can on the theory that you can't worry about those you lose and bring them back.

Bentley's Batting Big Factor.

"I would say my ball club is at least 20 per cent stronger than last season, maybe 30 points better.

"Jack Bently will play first base better than it has been played for the Phillies in years, while his batting is certain to be a factor.

"Friberg, at second, is sure to help us. He is the best man at that position since I have had charge of the club. Incidentally, he's a dangerous batsman.

"The ability of Sand at shortstop is known and needs no comment. At third, Huber, not flashy, is very dependable.

"It should prove the best all-round infield that has ever played under my management. For that reason I look for improvement in our general play."

Better pitching is another reason why Fletcher believes his club should be more formidable.

The Philly manager feels that Wayland Dean will win for him. As a matter of fact, he is hopeful that the former Giant will turn in as many victories as does Jimmy Ring for New York.

Youngster Makes Regular Grade.

"There is no doubt about Dean's ability," said Fletcher, "and I believe that I understand his temperament perfectly. Dean doesn't thrive on criticism; few players do. I have told him that all he has to do for me is to win ball games; that the pitching of the game will be entirely up to him. He won't get any suggestions from me."

Fletcher is also strong for a youngster by the name of Willoughby, who has shown great form in the spring games. He is to start as a regular.

Maun, a former member of the Giants, sent to Indianapolis last season, is back with the Phillies via the draft route. Fletcher believes he is about ready.

Perhaps the personnel of the Phillies on paper doesn't impress you, but I am sure you would have a much better opinion of Fletcher's club if you saw it in action.

Fletcher, a smart ball player, is proving a smart manager and his club plays snappy, agressive baseball, just the type you would expect.

The Phillies are not pennant-winners, but are interesting.

By BILLY EVANS.

TAMPA, Fla., April 7. — Can Washington win its third successive American League pennant?

Manager Stanley Harris believes it can and will. And I might mention that Mr. Harris is not inclined to boasting.

There are many who believe the Senators have passed the peak of their game and are due to crumple, as did the New York Yankees of 1924 after winning three straight.

"I see where some of the boys insist you will need plenty of glue to keep your team from falling apart this summer," was my greeting to Manager Harris.

"You would think most of my players used crutches the way some of the experts are picking them to pieces," laughingly replied the boy boss.

Better Than Last Season.

"I read the other day where Walter Johnson had only one good leg; how Peckinpaugh's arm was bad; doubt as to whether my hand had recovered from last year's injury, and so on down the list of casualties.

"True, a few of my pitchers are a bit aged, but none the less valuable because of the experience thus gained.

"You can say for me that the club that beats Washington is going to come pretty close to winning the American League pennant. That isn't in the nature of a boast, but a frank expression of opinion as to our prospects.

"I feel that I have a better ball club than last season. Southpaw Tom Zachary could only win 12 ball games for us. In his place I have Joe Bush, who should win at least a half dozen more.

"I had to lose a promising youngster in Ballou, but had to so gamble in order to get Bush. Ballou is a good prospect, while Bush is a good pitcher. Realizing I must have better pitching to keep on top this year I so gambled.

"My club was good enough to win last season. It is practically the same club this year, except that it is better fortified in important spots.

Club Has Many Replacements.

"An injury to Catcher Ruel will not seriously handicap the team because Tate, who has been with us for several years, is now ready to deliver and in addition I have the veteran Hank Severeid.

"As a substitute for Peckinpaugh at short I have "Buddy" Myer. He is one of the best youngsters to break into the majors in years.

"I have Johnny Tobin for right field, a great lead-off man and a smart base-runner. I have reserves for practically every position.

"I feel that my club is stronger by at least 15 per cent. than last year, despite the general belief that most of my pitching staff reported on crutches.

"It looks like three in a row to me!"

THE WATER WIZARD KEEPS IN SHAPE

JOHNNY WEISSMULLER.

Johnny Weissmuller and swimming records are synonomous. Mention of one brings out the other. This youthful natator holds more water marks than any other individual.

Weissmuller, as you doubtless know, leaped to the front rapidly. He started swimming as a kid. One day Walter Bachrach saw the youngster in action, was impressed, and took Johnny in hand. From then on Weissmuller started breaking marks. And he's kept on doing it every year.

When he was commencing his record-smashing activities he found it a tough matter to stick to the strict training stuff. He liked his ice cream and pie too well. After every race he was ready for a nice dessert.

Weissmuller's greatest rival at present is Arne Borg, the sensational Swede. Borg has been stepping along fast and during the past year has crowded the great Weissmuller in several races.

Weissmuller is shown in the above photo during an exhibition stay at the famous Coral Gables resort, located just outside of Miami, Fla.

Weissmuller holds the same place in the swimming fraternity as do Cobb in baseball and Grange on the gridiron. That, by the way, is praise

BOWLING CONCLUDED.

731 High Score in Three Games.

TOLEDO, Ohio, April 7 (Canadian Press)—With the exception of the two-men event the American Bowling Congress tournament which started at the armory here March 6, came to an end late Tuesday.

The individual championship went to E. Votel, of Braddock, Pa., with his three game score of 731. A. Olson, of Des Moines, won second money with 727.

The all-event champion is Gertoski, of Detroit, who collected 1981 for his nine tournament games. Buonomo, of Rochester, stood second at the finish.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

JOCK HUTCHISON—KEEPING ELBOWS IN

There is no fault greater in golf than to let the elbows fly around aimlessly in making a golf swing.

Whenever I want to be absolutely certain to make a good drive I remember to keep both my elbows in close to the body to make sure of my pivot.

Getting into the habit of keeping the elbows in is a great help in more ways than one. It prevents one's using the arms too much without the body. It helps the action of the left knee and the raising of the right heel, because it would be extremely awkward to take the club to the correct position over the shoulder without bending the knee naturally.

When the knee bends outward toward the ball, as it should, and not in toward the other knee, the left heel comes in easily and the leg rests on the ball of the foot slightly favoring the right side.

This bit of advice has put more good golfers back on their game and helped others to acquire a good golf swing than any other thing I know of.

This advice has even won a championship for one player, who was not supposed to have much of a chance a month before.

UNIFORMITY OF RULES DESIRED

Western Hockey Moguls To Confer on Common Code.

MONTREAL, Que., April 7. — Frank Patrick of the Vancouver Hockey Club in the Western League is in Montreal.

There now is assembled in the east Newsy Lalonde of the Saskatoon Sheiks, Kenny MacKenzie of the Edmonton Eskimos and the two Patrick brothers. Uniformity in the pro hockey rules is one matter that Frank Patrick will likely take up with President Calder of the National Hockey League while here. There has also been some question of the territorial rights raised during the past season, the New York club having drawn the wrath of the western hockey leader for dickering with players in the western field. It is quite likely that the Vancouver manager will have the territorial clause overhauled and clearly defined before he leaves.

Conversing with eastern hockey leaders on his arrival Frank Patrick asked which had been the best of the three Stanley Cup games. When informed that Thursday night's tussle had been the most spectacular, he immediately pointed out that it had been played under the western code, which is Frank Patrick's own brain child. Eastern magnates were loath to admit that it was the rules that had been the cause of the speedy play.

The local magnates were prone to believe that the game was fast because both teams were at their best, whereas in the first game Victoria was off color and in the third tilt the Maroons were below form.

"Strange coincidence that the best game was under the western rules," was Patrick's comment.

The presence of the western magnates here has led to much conjecture and many rumors. Kenny MacKenzie of the Edmonton team is admittedly ready to place his club on the market in the east, and it is thought that he may negotiate with some of the eastern United States cities, planning to enter either the National Hockey League or the new minor circuit that is being fostered by Leo Dandurand of the Canadiens, and Boston interests.

Saskatoon Sheiks are similarly now ready to change their home of operations, it is said. There is apparently two roads open for the Saskatoon club, either to join the proposed new league as a unit, or to unite with the Canadiens in the National Hockey League, both of which plans have been mooted.

Other western players are likely to be seen in the east next year. It is understood that both Frederickson and Halderson would like to play in the National Hockey League and it would occasion little surprise if Lester Patrick sold the pair before leaving for the west after the Stanley Cup series has been concluded.

MAROONS WIN STANLEY CUP

Emblem of World's Hockey Championship Taken From Victoria.

FINAL SCORE 2-0.

MONTREAL, April 7 (Canadian Press)—The Stanley Cup, emblematic of the world's hockey championship, will remain in Montreal for at least one year as the result of Montreal Maroons, National Hockey League champions, defeating Victoria Cougars, Western Canada title holders, by the score of 2 to 0 here last night in the fourth game of the series. The locals had won the first two games, but the Victorias took the third on Saturday which made a fourth necessary. Last night's game was played under western rules.

A superior defensive system, coupled with an unceasing attack, gave the locals their third victory and the title. The Victorias went down fighting to the end but they were unable to make any headway against the Montreal machine.

Both teams were slow to start but as time wore on play speeded up with end to end rushes featuring. Stewart and Phillips alternated in a rush on the Victoria net, but were unable to beat the veteran Holmes. The latter was called upon to stop six shots in quick succession from the sticks of the Maroon forward line before the visitors had tested Benedict.

STUCK WITH LOAD.

Farmer Caught While Trying To Get In Narrow Passageway.

The same tendency in human nature that caused Aesop to write one of his famous fables long ago about the jackdaw that tried to get too much out of the pitcher and couldn't withdraw his claw with its entangling load, led a gentleman with an outsize load of hay to essay a narrow passage through a laneway on Simcoe street this morning. The melting condition of the streets also contributed to the driver's discomfiture, because his load of hay was sled-drawn. At any rate, the team got half-way through the lane and there they stuck. Anyone turning from George street onto Simcoe today was confronted with the spectacle of the rear end of a load of hay, carefully adorned with a red rag probably meant as a danger signal, projecting from the laneway adjacent to the King Hotel.

SINCLAIR RAPS GOVERNMENT ON ITS RURAL WORK

Report of Committee on Agriculture Left To Last Day of Session.

NO DISCUSSION.

Dr. Jamieson Recounts Benefits To Ontario Farmers By Government.

TORONTO, April 7 (Canadian Press)—Dr. Jamieson in presenting his report of the work of the special House committee on agriculture in the Legislature Tuesday, defended his committee against charges of extravagant cost stating that the total expenditure on it would not exceed $30,000. In contrast he pointed out that the cost of special commissions during the Drury regime was $1,200,000. He claimed that the committee by trips to Montreal and interviews there with leading cheese exporters and butters had reduced the differential between the price of No. 1 cheese and No. 2 cheese from two to one cent per pound, thereby putting $100,000 into the pockets of the Ontario farmers. His committee, he further claimed, had also allayed the feeling against the Dairy Standards Act in Eastern Ontario until the dairymen were now practically unanimous in their support of it.

The committee had also recommended the grading of cream for creameries and the government had adopted the suggestion in legislation which had recently passed. The western provinces had had an advantage over Ontario because they could grade easily in their larger creameries. Many Ontario creameries were so small that they could not afford a grader. However, this was being remedied. Dr. Jamieson also said that the committee had been successful in increasing the demand for Ontario apples in the old country by advertising and sample shipments.

Cattle Experts

Dr. Jamieson dealt at some length with the export cattle business, stating that there should be a greater demand in England for Canadian cattle which were reckoned as good as any in the world by the British feeders. The trouble was that the British feeder was not assured of a steady stream of cattle from Canada. He was critical of the efforts of W. T. R. Preston, appointed by the Federal government to investigate Canadian cattle shipments stating that the mission had cost Canada $35,456 and then little or nothing had been accomplished. He mentioned that Mr. H. P. Kennedy and a company of which he was a member had recently fitted up four ships to take Canadian cattle overseas. The committee had inspected these ships. Thre were now open rates on Canadian cattle overseas, he said.

Dr. Jamieson urged that farmers should increase their flocks which in Ontario now average 25 birds to 100 birds. He claimed the committee by direct action had reduced the cost of limestone fertilizer to the farmers getting a large reduction in the freight rates on long hauls.

Dr. Jamieson recommended a chilled beef trade for Canada, stating that Canadian beef could reach the London market in two weeks by that method. He thought the best of the beef should be slaughtered here and sent over in a chilled condition while the second rate cattle should be shiped alive for finished feeding in Britain. The Federal Minister of Agriculture was opposed to the chilled beef trade following experiments made.

Sinclair Skeptical

Mr. Sinclair said the department of agriculture of Ontario on paper was one of the best organized departments of the government and yet the work of the committee made one wonder if it were functioning.

"If it were functioning surely the information sought by this committee would have been secured by the nine branches of the department. If the department is functioning why the necessity of sending out this committee? If it isn't functioning why does the government not see that it does? It would seem that by the appointment of this committee the government admits that its department of agriculture is not doing its work. However, we can't criticise much if it brings some light to this government."

The government, he declared, was just giving to the farmer what was left over after it continously patted him on the back. "The report is brought down on the last day even after the session is finished; the report is printed this morning. Nobody can give any reasonable attention to it and then this government boasts how good it is to the farmers," he continued.

CUSTOMS "SPY'S" NAME WITHHELD

The Informer's Accusation Against Customs Employee Was Not Proved.

STIGMA REMAINED.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 7.—(Canadian Press.)— Names of informers who give tips to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police cannot be disclosed, even to a Parliamentary committee. This was tacitly recognized at the Customs probe Tuesday when the request of Dugald Donaghy, M.P., for North Vancouver, and a member of the committee, that a certain informer be named before the commission was changed to a request that the name be given privately to the chief customs preventive officer.

Staff Sergeant Salt, head of the Montreal district of Mounted Police Detectives, was on the stand. In connection with the disappearance from bond of some goods, charges made by a "spy" as Mr. Donaghy called him, against a customs locker man named Biriault, were referred to. Biriault was found not guilty, but Mr. Donaghy thought a certain stigma remained, and that the "spy" who placed it there should be willing to face the same publicity that the locker man had suffered. Sergeant Salt refused to give the informer's name.

There was much discussion back and forth between the members of the committee. Hon. H. H. Stevens reminded Mr. Donaghy that similar requests from committeeman had been ruled out. A. J. Doucet and C. W. Bell, other Conservative members of the committee, supported Sergeant Salt. Chairman Paul Mercier agreed that in previous similar cases the ruling had gone against revelation of the informer's name. Finally Mr. Donaghy asked that the name be given to the chief customs officer. To this Sergeant Salt agreed, but thought that he should be allowed to ask permission of the informer first.

Mr. Donaghy: "Don't worry about his consent. A man's character is at stake."

The incident then closed and Sergeant Salt left the stand.

improvement and the market was quiet with a steady undertone, car lots of choice white hand-picked being quoted at $2.40 to $2.45 per bushel, and broken lots at $2.60 to $2.65 per bushel.

Butter Imports

The receipts of butter were 5,807 packages, as against 60 for the same day last week, and 2,946 for the corresponding day a year ago. Of the total for today there were 3,446 packages from New Zealand and 1,280 packages from Argentine. Owing to the absence of any important demand for supplies the undertone to the market continues weak and prices have a lower tendency. The volume of business transacted was very small, in fact, no sales of round lots were reported. The trade in a jobbing way was also rather quiet and prices were unchanged with finest creamery butter selling at 42c per lb. in solid packages, and at 43c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 205 boxes, as compared with 149 for the same day last week, and 572 for the corresponding day a year ago. The trade in this department continues very slow and the market was dull with an easier undertone, fodder-made good, being quoted 1c per lb. lower at 16c to 17c per lb. There was limited demand from local buyers for small lots of Western fancy white and colored cheese and the price was unchanged at 25c per lb.

SETTLERS' RELIEF BILL "NO GOOD" SAYS HON. MR. MEIGHEN, LEADING GENERAL CONSERVATIVE ATTACK

Measure Only Designed For Prairie Provinces, Was Manion's Criticism.

SECOND READING.

Was Planned For All Provinces Replied Hon. Mr. Stewart.

OTTAWA, April 7 (Canadian Press).—Second reading was given in the House Tuesday afternoon to a bill authorizing advances to settlers on crown lands.

A. W. Neill (Independent, Labelle) pointed out that in the province of Quebec, all crown lands were situated more than 15 miles from the railways. Under the act, therefore, Quebec province would not benefit. He suggested that the bill be amended in this respect so that Quebec would be able to profit under the bill.

In committee on the bill Hon. Chas. Setwart stated that of course any application for a loan under the legislation could be rejected. Improvements must be made to the land by the settler before he could obtain a loan.

Col. Jas. Arthurs (Conservative, Parry Sound) asked if the minister had received any statement from the Governments of Ontario or Quebec in regard to their attitude toward this legislation.

Mr. Stewart replied that he had not. Col. Arthurs suggested that it would have been advisable to approach these provinces.

Mr. Stewart answered that it was found to be more satisfactory to approach provincial governments when you had some definite proposal to make to them. The bill was an attempt to treat all provinces equally. Of course the provincial governments must be prepared to give the dominion priority of claim again their crown lands. When the bills was through, he would be enabled to go to the provinces with a definite proposal.

W. A. Boys (Conservative, North Simcoe) asked if there was any particular demand for the legislation. He could not conceive of any such demand from Ontario. He also asked if the bill was to enable settlers to obtain loans when they had security or when they had no security. If they had security, they could obtain loans now.

Wanted in the West.

The minister said that the bill was the result of a persistent demand throughout Canada, and in eesencs its purpose was to promote homesteading. It would probably be taken advantage of chiefly in the Prairie Provinces.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie (Conservative, South Wellington) said that provinces other than the three Prairie ones would scarcely be affected except in the expenditure. If the making of the loans resulted in the settlement of crown lands, then there was much merit in the measure.

Robert Forke, Progressive leader, believed that, when land was settled by an industrious homesteader, the country as a whole benefitted more than the homesteader himself. Mr. Forke was in favor of the bill. He believed that those who took advantage of it would be mostly foreign born or the children of foreign parents. In the Middle Western states today, these were proving to be the most successful farmers, and it was apparent in Canada that the native Canadians were as a whole, inclining more toward business and professions than toward agriculture.

W. K. Esling (Conservative, Kootenay West) thought that the first duty of the country was to look after settlers already here on the land. As this was not being done, he could see no sense to a measure designed to bring in settlers.

H. A. Mullins (Conservative, Marquette) stated he was "absolutely opposed to this measure." He could not see any justification for a bill to assist "spoon fed babies." The course that should be pursued was to assist the man on the land to get his products to the markets more cheaply.

"No Good," Says Meighen

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, objected to the bill for the reason that it was "No good." He could not see why this measure was before the House. So far as the West was concerned, every quarter section of good land within 15 miles of a railway had been applied for. He could not see any good object that could be served by endeavoring to have a man locate on inferior lands "and get him into debt on a poor farm." Such a policy could not assist these contemplated settlers; and this being so, certainly the country would not be benefitted. What the Dominion required was a policy which would create a home market for our farm goods.

Mr. Meighen further observed that the provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, were not asking for this measure.

He suggested to the minister that he should kill the bill and add it to the "Long list of misfits" which the Government had proposed since coming to office.

Mr. Stewart replied that the statement of Mr. Meighen that there were not any good crown lands within 15 miles of the railways was "very wide of the mark."

Offer Low Interest

He believed in a colonizaiton policy to create "intensive settlement," and the measure would serve a very useful purpose in Western Canada. In his experience as Minister of the Interior, he had found that many settlers were desirous of securing their patents as speedily as possible in order that they might obtain a loan on their lands. Invariably the interest in such cases was at the rate of 8 per cent. It was proposed, however, in this measure, to make advances at the rate of 5 per cent.

In the older provinces, the provincial administrations were endeavoring to settle their crown lands. Nova Scotia was active in its demand for settlers "to go upon abandoned lands."

Thomas Hay (Conservative, Springfield) thought there was no demand for the scheme from Manitoba. It was a liability which would be added to the load that the Dominion was already carrying without any adequate return.

W. J. Ward (Progressive, Dauphin) stated that it was extremely difficult, if not physically impossible, for a settler to homestead on the lands available today without money. Even men who had done this 25 years ago admitted that they could not do it today. He was only sorry that the scheme was not to be more extensive. He would have preferred the total amount to be fixed at five, intead of one, million dollars.

Manion's Criticism

Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William) expressed the view that most of the legislation brought down by the Government this year was sectional in its nature. He mentioned a number of items on the legislation programme which, he said, were for the benefit of the Prairie Provinces. "I thought this was the Government of the Dominion of Canada and not merely that of the Prairie Provinces," he remarked. The legislation was badly prepared, he said. This was indicated by the fact that the minister was willing to cut the amount required from five to one million dollars.

Dr. Manion made a plea for some scheme which would colonize the great section of Northern Ontario, from Sudbury to the Manitoba boundary. There was hundreds of thousands of acres available for settlement purposes in this section. He said that the time to consult the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, as well as all the others, was before and not after the bill became law. It was not fair to the rest of the country that a bill should be passed which would benefit merely one section.

G. B. Nicholson (Conservative, East Algoma) asked how many schemes involving the expenditure of large sums of money, the Government proposed to bring down. He mentioned a number of the proposals which the Government has placed before Parliament involving the expediture of money. There were too many schemes which cost the country large sums.

For Whole Dominion

Mr. Stewart said that Canada had passed the point where an immigration or colonization scheme could apply to one section alone. Any policy must be applicable to the whole country.

Mr. Meighen declared that it was impossible to get the type of scrub land which would come under the bill, under cultivation by means of Government subvention. "Don't try to help the settler by heloing him into debt," said Mr. Meighen. If people were in the district and settled, the cultivation of the land was assured.

Mr. Meighen had seen in Prince Edward Island farm lands which were very desirable, yet they had been abandoned. "How can you justify taxing people there in order to cultivate scrub land in Western Canada," he asked. Instead of trying to force virgin land under the plow by means of legislation it would be better to concentrate on the lands already cleared. "The people will go on the land if they can make it pay," he said.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, pointed out that most of the discussion was irrelevant, as the House had already approved the principle of the bill. The House should allow the bill to be proceeded with in order that it could be taken up clause by clause. Judicious assistance as proposed, would be productive of excellent results, said Mr. Motherwell.

Progressive Approves

John Evans' (Progressive, Saskatoon) approved the measure. "Here is a scheme to put real Canadians on the land," he stated.

Peter McGibbon (Conservative, Muskoka-Ontario) declared that the bill "Does not appeal to this House or to the country." The proposed measure should be withdrawn.

J. E. Letellier (Liberal, Compton) believed that if the legislation were enacted, commendable result, would be achieved.

H. A. Stewart (Conservative, Leeds) referred to the scheme as one which looked well on paper, but was defective when applied practically.

R. K. Anderson (Conservative, Halton) was of the opinion that Canadians would not be induced to go on the land by the offer of a loan of $1,000. On the other hand, he did not think that Canada was anxious for immigrants who required loans in order to start their farming operations. As a colonizing measure, he believed that the proposal of the Government would be utterly futile.

C. E. Fish (Conservative, Northumberland) said that the Western provinces might obtain some settlers under the scheme. He failed, however, to see how it could obtain any settlers for the older provinces.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

Of all the comedies on the English stage, "Charley's Aunt" is by far the most popular. This is attested by irrefutable proof in the fact that with the single exception of the musical extravaganza, "Chu Chin Chow," Mr. Thomas's famous play has enjoyed a longer continuous run than any other theatrical production known to the English or American theatre.

The explanation undoubtedly lies in the fact that the fun is clean, is constant, and makes a direct appeal. The story told is one of genuine humour, and the whole play breathes a wholesome atmosphere. W. S. Penley, who created the leading role, and who played it times innumerable, used to say that he always felt better after having appeared in it because he felt he was being instrumental in contributing to the public stock of harmless pleasure.

"Charley's Aunt" will be presented here at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, April 10th. The company playing it has been specially selected for the present road tour, and contains a number of Broadway players of established reputation. Among them will be found Jay Holly, in the leading role. Mr. Holly has played leading parts in comedy from coast to coast, was juvenile with David Warfield, and recently closed a Broadway run in "Clouds."

Miss Leah May, who will appear in the leading feminine role, is well known and popular, both in New York and on the road. Last year she was featured with Eleanor Painter in "The Chiffon Girl." She appeared also for three years with her own act in vaudeville, in the Keith-Albee circuit. She is noted for her fine wardrobe, among other things.

Walter Dickinson, who plays the English butler, is also the company producer and director. He was for five years with Frank Bacon in "Lightnin'," and is well known to Montreal theatregoers.

Frank Camp, who was formerly with Margaret Illington in "Kindling," later played in stock in Winnipeg, and stayed there for five years. Last season he was on tour with Francis Bushman and Beverly Bayne.

Edith Spencer needs no introduction to Canadians, as she has appeared both in stock companies and with numerous road organziations. She is a very popular and resourceful comedienne.

Edward and Guy Seabrook are two young people with enviable reputations. The former was with the Greenwich Village Follies, and the latter played the little lame girl in "The Fool." Jerry Kennedy, featured with Wilton Lackaye in "The Bomb," is another member of the company, which it will be seen is one of exceptional all-round strength.

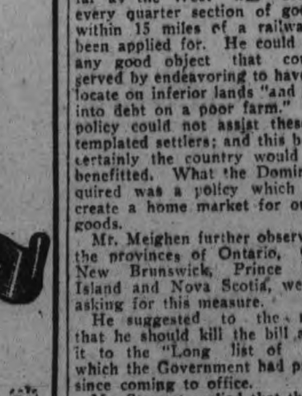
"NO, NO, NANETTE" IS COMING.

It is welcome news that "No, No, Nanette," now the reigning sensation of New York, London and Australia, and which played to solid capacity for more than a year in Chicago, and completely stole the hearts of Boston theatre goers for seven months, as it did for twenty seven weeks in Philadelphia, is booked for two performances (matinee and night) at the Grand, on April 14th.

"No, No, Nanette," with its famous song hits, "I want to be Happy" and "Tea for Two," is the outstanding musical sensation of this generation, its irresistible toe-tickling melodies being literally sung nightly in all the great amusement capitals of the world.

When H. H. Frazee opened "No, No, Nanette," originally in Chicago, he looked for possibly eight good weeks at the Harris Theatre. So he felt safe in promising his new musical comedy for a fairly early engagement in New York. However, "No, No, Nanette," soon began to make history in the Windy City. The town went wild over "I Want to be Happy," and all the other song hits. And it laughed itself into hysteria over the brilliant humor of the book. The girls of the ensemble were declared to be the pick of the revues in smartness and beauty." The theatre reached a solid and sustained "sell-out" record, and the booking was extended indefinitely, rounding over 500 performances.

A cast of stellar excellence, headed by John Hyams and Zeila McIntyre, is promised by Mr. Frazee, presenting such sterling musical comedy favoritess as Dorothy Newell, Eulalie Young, Roland Woodruff, Floyd English, Helen Case, Mary Vaughn, Mildred Joy, Myrtle Miller and a dozen or more other principals of equal renown. The chorus is an exceptionally interesting one. The same picturesque scenic production and start ling costumes will be in evidence as well as the "Gorgeous Garden of Girls," which has been a conspicuous feature in "No, No, Nanette's" conquest of two hemispheres.



ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

GALING GETS TRICKED AGAIN

"Tum, tum, te, um!" hummed Mister Tingaling thoughtfully. "Where do we go from here?"

The Twins looked in the big rent-book. "There are a lot of people in Out-Of-Door Land who haven't paid their rents yet," said Nancy. "Mister Coon hasn't paid his."

"Highty tighty! Then off we go, before he spends all his money on new spring suits and neckties," said the fairyman. "My oh, but it's hot! And all those stairs to climb in the old hickory tree! I mean in the Hickory Apartments. But come along. I guess I gotta reduce anyway. I wish I could change places with my pocketbook. I wish it was as fat as I am and that I was as thin as it is. Come along!"

Nancy and Nick laughed merrily. They knew that nice kind little Tingaling didn't mean a word of it. He could have had his pocketbook filled by this time with fairy money, if he hadn't been so kindhearted.

"Tum, tum, te, um, hi, tum, a diddy oh! Come along!" said he, starting to climb the stairs as fast as his little fat legs would go.

When at last they all reached the top, the fairyman had to sit down on the last step. He was puffing like a locomotive going up a hill.

Suddenly a door opened and Mister Ringtail Coon poked out his curious nose.

"What's all this rumpus about?" he demanded sharply. "It sounds like someone cooling soup."

"Cooling soup!" shouted Mister Tingaling. "Ho! That's a good one! If you'd set a kettle of soup on my head, Mister Coon, it would boil in five seconds."

"We're collecting rents," said Nick, getting down to business. "Is your rent all ready, Mister Coon?"

"Rent!" cried Ringtail. "Rent! Why I paid my rent once. How often must I pay it?"

"Every fairy month," spoke up Nancy, for Mister Tingaling was still puffing too hard to talk much.

Ringtail twirled his mustache and whacked his tail on the floor as though he was thinking very hard.

And indeed he was. He was thinking, "If I pay my rent, I can't buy that lovely necktie with the sky-blue mosquitoes all over it." And if I pay the rent, I can't buy that beautiful handkerchief to tuck in my breast pocket—the one with lavender grass-hoppers and pink snails in the corners. Oh, dear, if I pay my rent I can't buy ever and ever so many nice spring things I want, and they won't call me the Dude of Our-Of-Door Land any more!"

But suddenly he began to smile. He smiled and smiled and smiled so hard that even the hot little fairyman stopped mopping and puffing to stare at him.

For Ringtail was no dummy and he hadn't been racking his brains for nothing. He had hit on a plan, and if he worked it properly he would yet be the owner of the mosquito necktie and the grass-hopper-snail handkerchief.

"What on earth are you grinning so for, Ringtail Coon?" demanded Mister Tingaling.

"I—I—why, I just wanted to do something kind for you," said the rascally fellow. I thought you'd like to hear my radio. It's working finely today. If you'll step inside I'll get W.I.N.K. and we'll have a concert. Will you come?"

"Certainly," said Mister Tingaling scrambling up off his step. "Come on, Twins."

So in they all walked.

AT THE REGENT

JOHNNY HINES SCINTILLATES IN "THE EARLY BIRD."

The Early Bird at the Regent Theatre is a masterpiece of its kind. It is without question one of the most amusing pieces of cinema art, it has been our good fortune to see. Johnny Hines is its star, aided and abetted by a cast of prominent screen players who know their business and accomplish it in convincing style. Particularly heartening is the fact that Johnny Hines scores again in the feature class, and definitely proves once and for all that he deserves to be considered among the greatest comics of the screen. While the public has become familiar with the comic qualities of Hines through his successful efforts in the Torchy Comedies, there has ever lurked the suspicion that Johnny also possesses dramatic qualities as well, all of which is proven in "The Early Bird," just as it was previously noticeable in "Sure Fire Flint," "Conductor 1492," and "The Speed Spook."

In "The Early Bird" Hines gives a really scintillating performance, running with a skill that is well-nigh equivalent to genius. It seems as if this young man can do most everything. His histrionic capabilities are apparently unlimited, since he is able to carry off a heavy dramatic portion just as easily as he does his comedy bits.

MAROON TEAM IS MUCH RICHER

Each Member Will Get About $2,000 From Victories.

FROM TWO SERIES.

MONTREAL, April 7.— (Canadian Press.)— Each player on the Maroons, National Hockey League team, stands richer by about $2,000 as the result of the Stanley Cup victory. Figures on the Stanley Cup play-offs and National Hockey League play-offs have not been announced. It is estimated that the league eliminations netted the Maroons close to $500 each. The Stanley Cup victory brought in at least another $750 for the winners, and the losing Victoria players should receive over $600 at least as their share of the Stanley Cup gates, based on the first three games only, the players not sharing in any receipts after the third contest.

CHARLES FAUX.

A much respected resident of Hastings passed away at his home here on March 31st in the person of Chas. Faux. Deceased had been sick for only a couple of weeks but kept gradually sinking till the end came.

Mr. Faux, who was most widely and favorably known throughout this section of the country, came to Hastings from Asphodel about twelve years ago, and had won for himself golden opinions as a citizen and a gentleman. He was a man of excellent habits and fine moral and Christian character. His cheerful spirit remained with him to the last, contributing in no small measure to the courage and faith of his beloved wife and family. His best monument will be the good report that he has left behind in the communities in which he has lived.

Besides his widow he leaves one son, Frederick, of Birdsalls, and one brother, Richard Faux, Westwood.

The funeral took place on Friday morning to the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, and interment was made in the Roman Catholic Cemetery, Hastings.

MRS. ALBERT CRONK.

OMEMEE, April 6.—News of the death of Mrs. Albert Cronk, of Oshawa, was received with regret by the citizens of Omemee.

Mrs. Cronk was the second daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson, of Omemee. For the past twenty-two years, she has been a resident of Oshawa, where she was an active member of the King street United church, and also a member of the Independent Order of Foresters. Mrs. Cronk's death was the result of an operation on the throat. For six weeks she was a patient at the Toronto Hospital and had been removed to her home two weeks previous to her death.

Left to mourn the passing of a loving wife, mother and sister is the bereaved husband and two daughters, Eva Viola of Lindsay, and Wilma, aged eight, at home, also two sons, Robert and Wesley at home. Three sisters, Mrs. S. Bloxom of Toronto, Mrs. J. Bradburn of Janetville, and Miss Susan at home, also two brothers, Wesley of Omemee and John of Port Hope.

The funeral service was held from her late residence, 109 Alice street, Oshawa, on Friday afternoon, and was in charge of the I.O.F. Interment was made in Union cemetery.

MRS. ALEX GORDON.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Alex Gordon, who passed away recently at her home, Gananoque, took place at the Sacred Heart church this morning. Interment being in St. Peter's cemetery.

Mrs. Gordon was formerly a resident of this city. Her husband was a butcher, carrying on business in J. G. Jopling and Son's north store, on George street. Mrs. Gordon leaves to mourn her loss her husband and a large family.

KNIGHTS HEAR FINE ADDRESS

Rev. Mons. McColl Speaks on "Canada" To Local K. of C. Members.

DEALS WITH STATUS.

An interesting address on "Canada, and our Relationship to our Country," was given to the Knights of Columbus in their rooms last evening by Right Rev. Monsignor McColl, who dealt very entertainingly and in characteristic style with the status of present day Canadians, outlining the main element of their type, different in essence from that of other nations, and also giving a bird's-eye view of the character of the early settlers of the Dominion.

Grand Knight, J. J. Duffus occupied the chair.

U. S. RESERVATION NOT ACCEPTABLE

Clause Requiring Reference To Senate Will Not Pass League.

GENEVA, April 7 (Canadian Press).—Neither the council of the League of Nations nor the Hague Court will accept the last part of the fifth United States reservation to the World Court without specific interpretation of what constitutes a question in which the United States "claims interest," and an agreement that the power of decision shall be vested in some other agency than the United States Senate. This was learned from an authoritative source yesterday.

It is pointed out that if the United States reservation is accepted the council, even though acting unanimously, could not refer a question to the court for an advisory opinion without consulting the Washington administration, which in turn would have to consult the Senate. It is pointed out that the United States could claim an "interest" in almost any question that arises.

INDEPENDENT LABOR PARTY'S PROGRAMME

LONDON, April 7.—(Canadian Press).— Policy which in effect means that the Independent Labor Party must again embark upon a campaign to convert the present parliamentary labor group to clear-cut socialism, if possible, was adopted by the Independent Labor Party at its annual conference in Northumberland. The clear-cut socialism aimed at includes the nationalization of those industries, which are unable to pay a "living wage."

This policy has already been repudiated by Ramsay MacDonald, and Philip Snowden, as being impracticable.

H. W. Brail Ford, editor of "New Leader" submitted a programme the main objects of which are the creation of a commissions to define the living wage standards, inquire into direct taxation, provide allowances of five shillings for each child and nationalization of banks. By such stages, he said, control of all industry would be won by socialism within the lifetime of the present generation. Among the critics of this programme was Emanuel Shinwell, former M.P., organizer of the Amalgamated Marine Workers union who claimed that putting the subject of a living wage in front of the programme was just where the trades union movement for years had come to grief, because capitalism refused to grant workers "even half living wage."

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

(Contributed.)

Unique in a number of respects was the induction service held recently in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, under the auspices of the Peterboro Presbytery, at which Rev. William Allan was formally inducted as pastor of the congregation. Although St. Paul's congregation was formed nearly one hundred years ago this was only the fourth occasion on which such a service was held by the congregation. This is due to the fact that the pastorates of the first two pastors, Rev. Mr. Roger and Rev. Dr. Torrance, averaged nearly forty years each, while the pastorate of Rev. Robert Pogue extended over some seventeen years. Added interest was taken in the induction proceedings on account of the popularity of the new pastor, Rev. William Allan, and also on account of its peculiarly Presbyterian features.

One of the principal features of Presbyterian Church government is that ministers are required to certify to their religious beliefs openly before the congregation and before representatives of the Presbytery before they can be installed in new pastorates. At the recent induction services the moderator of the Presbytery, Rev. M. Walker, asked the candidate a number of questions including the following:

"Do you believe the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments to be the Word of God, and the only infallible rule of faith and manners?" In these days when Modernism is so prevalent this question is believed by many to be one of profound importance. It is becoming increasingly difficult, therefore, for ministers to reply to it in the affirmative with "mental reservations," as some of the Presbyterian ministers who last year left the church, admitted that they had done. Another interesting feature of this question is that it emphasizes the Scriptures as "being" the Word of God, not merely "containing" it.

A second question asked by the Moderator was, "Do you believe the Westminster Confession of Faith to be founded on and agreeable to the Word of God, and in your teaching do you promise faithfully to adhere thereto?" The Westminster Confession of Faith is very definite in its declarations on many of the doctrines now attacked by Modernism. It endorses unequivocally the virgin birth, the Deity of Christ, the resurrection and the miracles. Ministers who do not believe these teachings cannot honorably accept the Westminster Confession of Faith. In Rev. William Allan, the members of St. Paul's congregation believe they have a minister who stands true to the best traditions of the Presbyterian Church as well as to its doctrines.

The Sunday Services.

The Easter services last Sunday drew large congregations, both morning and evening. The church was suitably decorated and the musical features were in harmony with the main theme of the day, which centred around the death and resurrection of Christ. The presence in the choir of Mr. Martin Chenhall, Jr., who accompanied the organ on his 'cello in a couple of the numbers, was greatly appreciated.

The subject of the sermon at the evening service was "A Song of Hope Mingling with the Night Winds of Despair." The text was from Job 19: 25, in the words: "I know that my Redeemer Liveth."

Rev. Mr. Allan showed that in ancient days people had to face the same essential problems as the people of to-day. First, there was the problem of sin, and how a guilty man man be made just in the presence of a holy God whose law he had transgressed. There was also the problem of death. Before the coming of Christ no answer to these problems had been found. The life of Jesus was unique. His trial before Pilate resulted in his being pronounced innocent of sin even by a Roman judge and after his enemies had done their utmost to convict him of guilt. The words of Jesus were unique. No man ever spake as this man. His works prove His deity. He alone was able to raise the dead and had power over death, as proved by His own resurrection. His resurrection is one of the best authenticated facts of history. Christians to-day do not sorrow for their dead as those who have no hope. Christ has given them a new song of hope.

Stock Prices Sag Slightly On New York Exchange

NEW YORK, April 7 (Canadian Press)—Stock prices, which have been moving steadily upward in quiet trading for the past week, began to turn soft this afternoon when weakness developed in some of the popular industrials. Hudson Motors, General Electric and American Can bore the brunt of the selling, cancelling their early gains and sagging a point or more below yesterday's closing quotations.

Several of the independent steels, notably Otis steel preferred, Midland steel products preferred, and Vanadium, recorded extreme gains of two to nearly four points in early trading.

Stock Exchange Firmer Nickel More Active

TORONTO, April 7 (Canadian Press)—Firmness in stock prices was the feature of the Toronto Stock Exchange with Smelters, Brazilian and International nickel the active leaders during the morning session. Smelters touched 214, closing the morning at 213, a gain of two and three-quarter points, Brazilian firmed a half point at 92 and Nickel advanced three-eighths at 36 1-2. Atlantic Sugar, finding some demand, strengthened a point and a half at 24 1-2, and Twin City was a quarter firmer at 71 1-2. McIntyre, leader of a quieter mines section, firmed 15 cents at 24.40.

Mining Exchange Light, Teck Hughes Advances

TORONTO, April 7.—(Canadian Press.) — Trading was light and there were few features in this morning's session of the Standard Mining Exchange. Golds on the whole were steady, while silver stocks had a tendency to ease slightly. Teck Hughes, one of the most active stocks, advanced ten at 328, Hollinger 10 at 18.10 and Kirkland Lake three at 102. Larose sold up one at 17, while Nipissing eased 15 at 605 and Keeley two at 161.

Wheat Prices Higher Unfavourable Conditions

CHICAGO, April 7.— (Canadian Press.)—Helped by the firmness of the Liverpool quotations and by the unfavorable weather conditions for the seeding of spring wheat, the north-west wheat prices averaged a little higher to-day in the early dealings. Trading here in future deliveries, however, lacked volume and the market was easily influenced. Chicago opening prices, unchanged to 3-8c. higher, May 157 7-8 to 158 1-8 and July 135 7-8 to 136, were followed by something of a sag, then by a moderate upturn. Corn and oats kept within narrow limits. After opening unchanged to 1-4c. off May 71 to 71 1-8, the corn market remained near to the initial figures. Oats started at same as yesterday's finish to 1-8c. higher, May 41 3-8c. to 41 1-2c, and later showed but little change. In line with hogs and grain the provision market was steady.

GEORGE BALL DROPPED DEAD

Well Known Peterborough Tailor Collapsed Suddenly at 4 o'clock.

FORMER ALDERMAN.

Geo Ball, well known Peterborough tailor and former member of the City Council on the Labor ticket, fell dead on Hunter street at 4 o'clock this evening. He walked out of Lynch's drug store, entered a taxi cab, and collapsed.

Mr. Ball had carried on business as a tailor in this city for the past thirty years. He is survived by his second wife.

He was known as a staunch supporter of the single tax system, and his advocacy of this plan brought him into prominence about twelve years ago.

Mr. Ball was nominated for the Utilities Commission last year but did not contest the seat.

THE SPIRIT OF SERVICE, BASED ON INTEGRITY AND KNOWLEDGE, MUST BE FOREMOST IN EDUCATION FOR BUSINESS, CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEMBERS TOLD

C. L. Burton, of the Robert Simpson Company, Toronto, Addressed Annual Meeting— Record Attendance— Leon Fraser's Accomplishments Extolled.

TANGIBLE RESULTS FROM TOURIST INFLUX.

Service to the Community in Which They Live Should Be Taught Children, Mr. Burton Advised — Business Clearly Defined.

A record number of members and guests were at the annual meeting and banquet of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce held in the Empress Hotel last night. The gathering was one of the most enthusiastic in the history of the local organization and the entire speeches bespoke of optimism and were full of hope for the future welfare of the Dominion.

Several selections were rendered by the Adanac Male quartette and were encored heartily by those present.

C. L. Burton, Toronto, the main speaker, paid tribute to the work of the Tourist Association of Ontario and to Leon Frazer, the secretary of that organization, and who formerly was secretary of the local Chamber. He stated that last year that his store, the Robert Simpson Company, Toronto, during the tourist season, had as much as five and ten thousand dollars a day in American currency in their tills as a result of the influx of tourists to Toronto. In commencing to speak on his subject, "Education for Business," Mr. Burton said:

What equipment should our young people be possessed of upon leaving school for business?

My personal knowledge of present educational practice might easily preclude my making a useful contribution to this problem.

Out of a business experience of more than a third of a century, however, I hope I may be able to record something helpful from the business man's standpoint.

What is Business?

Can we say it is society's instrument of service to provide it with commodities which a highly developed civilization affords for itself.

It involves production of natural wealth, conversion of raw products into the finished article and the distribution as needed or desired to the consumer.

Subsidiary Activities.

It involves all sorts of subsidiary activities having to do with machinery, plant, buildings and fittings and their maintenance and renewal. It involves a wide range of service such as banking, accounting, insurance, etc., requiring the services of the financier, the engineer, the scientific expert, the trained executive, the experienced merchant as well as various classes of labor and incidental help.

Principles Involved.

Over so wide a range one can only hope to suggest some of the principles which should always lie at base of our school training.

In a broad sense one can say that there is no useful or cultural teaching that can be left out of the consideration of the educational training for business life.

Business, A Series of Services.

Business is nothing other than a series of services in which the spirit of service must be uppermost.

To exemplify a spirit of service requires individual desire to serve from one end of a business to the other.

Like the link of a chain a business is only as strong as its weakest individual servant.

From Dollar Only.

"The present is the time of all times for the individual man: the individual will; the individual mind; the individual energy. It is preeminently the day of the individual character of the independent citizen. It always comes back to the individual, to the single man, the single woman."

Emerson said truly: "A great institution is but the lengthened shadow of a single man."

Businesses to-day giving the best service are the most profitable, the most successful and offer the best and happiest outlet for life's activities.

Moral Standard.

The first requirement is a good moral standard.

The late President Roosevelt aptly said, "Personal character and initiative are prime requisites.

It is for educators to say how best our young people can be equipped with a desire to serve.

Given a moral standard we must next accomplish the fine task of creating a desire for hard work—a desire to serve—to spend and be spent.

Create Desire For Knowledge.

We must create not knowledge but a desire for knowledge.

We must teach patience to wait for rewards — and to serve so as even to forget reward.

Henry Ford.

Henry Ford recently announced: "Learning, laboring and waiting are the ingredients of achievement. It is strange how reluctant men are to learn in connection with work. Yet it is only thus that work is made to yield its best and imperishable wage. Physical support is the immediate wage of work; mental and moral increase is the preferred profit; while that we call success is the increased capital by which life gains wider opportunity for usefulness. Waiting may better be named the period during which the causes which men set in motion are carried to completion by invisible forces. It is a period to be filled by more labor that continuous completions may fill the future years."

Education.

Old forms and systems of education were based on the principle of dominance of the individual—of possessive power—the new idea in education is a training for service.

Service of the Individual.

England has produced a great schoolmaster, only lately deceased, the late headmaster Sanderson of Oundle, an old English public or high school for boys.

May I quote from a paper of a sixteen-year-old student at this famous school.

Of Schools.

"Schools should be copies in miniature of the world as we would love it to be."

We must not cast out our weak ones—we must find out what kind of work will appeal to each of them. It is our duty so to organize schools that every boy, weak or strong, shall be able to make full use of his faculties.

Strictly speaking, the dull boy does not exist.

It is not sufficient to promote talent; the real and serious business of a school is the raising of the lowest, and also of the general average.

The school should be a place where a boy comes not to learn but to create. Mathematics, languages and the elements of science are not ends but tools, and these tools the boy must accustom himself to use.

Education must prevent the terrible waste of life and talent which at present takes place. By a truer, sounder education the output of man could be multiplied enormously."

Of Industrial Life.

"The natural instinct of the worker is to grow, to progress, and to create; it is this instinct which causes him to rebel against the dullness of monotonous work. Shorter hours and higher wages provide no real cure to the discontent of the worker; nothing but a sense of service will do that.

"We must have a full belief in the beauty of industrial life. We must not get our wages in the shops and our love and life outside.

"The re-organization of industry must be based as a first condition upon the development of the worker and not upon the output."

Of Certain General Matters.

"Our real duty to our neighbors

NOW, HONESTLY—

As soon as people grow out of that age themselves, they delight in arguing that a young man caller should go home earlier.

Matter of fact, the gay lotharios are staying a heap later these days than they did when girls really did go on buggy rides. Or, I should say, these nights.

Maybe it's because parents aren't home to send the young man home.

Anyway, if I had to take sides in the argument, I believe I'd have to be in favor of young men bidding the fond goodby earlier—

MUSSOLINI HAS NEW PRESTIGE SINCE ATTACK

Opponents Impressed By Calm Demeanor—Friends See Increased Power.

LONDON INDIGNANT.

Insane Act of Miss Gibbons Is Universally Condemned By Press.

LONDON, April 8 (United Press).—Opponents or friends of Premier Mussolini alike today deplore the attack on the Fascist leader.

The Liberals believe that Mussolini's power will be reinforced by the dramatic incident and his theatrically calm demeanor through it. The Socialist press tempers its past hostility today in emphasizing the stupidity of political violence. Meanwhile those who suspect Mussolini are nervously watching for the possible effect of the incident in bolstering his leadership of Italy toward possession of the Empire he has promised her.

Lira opened on the local bourse today stead at 120.85 to the pound sterling, the same as Wednesday's close and slightly above Tuesday's close of 120.90. There is no indication here that the British nationality of the Honorable Violet Gibson, who shot Mussolini, will provoke friction between the two governments.

London papers almost unanimously condemned Miss Gibson's insane act, which is held so definitely to have been established as the act of a demented person on her own initiative, that the question of political repercussions virtually is not broached at all. It is held to be significant that Fascist youths in Rome turned to the offices of anti-Fascist Italian newspapers there when they sought to obtain vengeance for Miss Gibson's act and not, so far as is known, to the British Embassy or individual Englishmen or women.

Not Surprised

PARIS, April 8 (Canadian Press) "I am not surprised at my sister-in-law's act, since her life has been the subject of intermitten mental crisis," said Lady Ashborne, sister-in-law of the Honorable Violet Gibson, who yesterday attempted to assassinate Premier Mussolini of Italy.

"Violet has attempted suicide several times and frequently has announced an intention to assassinate the Pope."

ALL RESERVOIRS ARE THREATENED

Fire at San Luis Tank Field Crosses Earthen Embankment.

DAMAGE HEAVY.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif, April 8 (Canadian Press)—The entire tank farm of the Union Oil Company, two and a half miles south of here, faced destruction early today as the fire, burning in four huge underground reservoirs since early yesterday, boiled over, jumped an earthen embankment and spread to two other reservoirs and ten surface tanks.

A force of 400 men, a steam shovel and a corps of trucks and other equipment battled in the fierce heat against the flames which fed on several huge oil reservoirs of Union Oil tank farm near here.

The fire is described as the worst in the history of the petroleum industry. About 4,000,000 barrels of refining oil were ignited. The loss was estimated in excess of $10,000,000.

No place in the British Isles is more than eighty miles from the sea.

Leg Broken When Struck Feinberg Grins—It's Cork

JERSEY CITY, N.J., April 8 (United Press)—Patrolman Stephen Frank came upon the prostrate form of Charles Feinberg who had been knocked to the sidewalk by an automobile.

"My left leg's broken," Feinberg explained, grinning expansively.

"It doesn't seem to be hurting you any" the policeman observed.

"No, it's cork."

The leg was mended and Feinberg waved a cordial goodbye.

KIWANIS LOSES HUGH M. NIVEN AS SECRETARY

Tributes Paid By Members of Executive—Leader In International.

BUSINESS CHANGE.

Suggestions To Boost Peterborough Made at Meeting of Club Directors.

At a meeting of the executive committee of Kiwanis Club last night, the resignation of Hugh M. Niven, as secretary, was regretfully received. Business that will take him from the city necessitate the change, but he will remain a member of the Peterborough club.

President John J. Craig expressed the regrets of the executive in losing the services of Hugh, declaring him to be one of the outstanding secretaries in Kiwanis. His efficiency had brought favorable comment from International, and the only bright spot the president could see is the fact that the club is not to lose Hugh as a member.

John I. Allan, district trustee, said in his experience on the executive of Kiwanis Club there had never been anyone who could give better service than Hugh Niven. His efficient service made him an outstanding Kiwanian, and it is with deepest regrets and sincere good wishes for his success that his resignation is accepted.

W. George Henderson, the first secretary of the club, spoke from a knowledge of the task the secretary has, and declared that Hugh Niven has set a high mark for others to aim at. His loss will be a very definite loss to the club.

Harry Huffman recalled that Hugh was noted as the most efficient secretary in the district through his winning the $100 cheque last year. That was sufficient to show his value to the club, and the great loss the club is sustaining in being deprived of his services.

The executive committee elected John R. Heron to succeed Hugh Niven on May 1.

To Better City

Suggestions made by the Business Standards Committee with a view to boosting Peterborough were passed on to the Chamber of Commerce. They are:

(1) Advertise Peterborough as a picnic and convention city to surrounding communities, inviting various bodies to visit and arrange picnics and conventions here. Suggest to secretaries of church, lodges and clubs that invitations of this nature be issued to kindred institutions in the county.

(2) Stabilize retail trade by suggesting to the Retail Merchants' Association the purchase of bankrupt stocks of any merchants who get into difficulties, and divide the stocks betwen members of the association in the same line of business—first, to stabilize trade; second, to banish unfair competition.

DIASTROUS FIRE IN BANFF HOTEL

Wing of Structure Destroyed With Loss Estimated at Two Millions.

BANFF, Alta., April 8. Canadian Press. — A disastrous fire, which apparently broke out in the rotunda of the north wing of the famous Banff Springs hotel, owned by the C.P.R., yesterday morning, destroyed the wing, a four storey structure, but the combined efforts of the town's people of Banff, a large force of railway workmen, and the fire apparatus rushed from Calgary, saved the south wing, and much of the valuable furniture in the section destroyed.

No estimate of the damage has been made but it is believed to mount toward the $2,000,000 mark.

DOPE SMUGGLER OF MANY NAMES ELUDED POLICE

Activities of Biggest Narcotic Smuggler on Continent Told to Committee.

CUSTOMS ENQUIRY.

Opium Camouflaged as Cocoa Powder Discovered By Officials.

OTTAWA, April 8 (Canadian Press).—Everything from birds of paradise disguised as talcum powder to opium camouflaged as cocoa powder was discussed at the customs probe Wednesday. Officers of the customs department and of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police testified to the discovery of expensive chemicals and feather head ornaments in boxes entered as talcum, and the activities of "the biggest narcotic smuggler on the North American Continent" also came up for review. This title was bestowed by Staff Sergeant Salt of the Mounted Police in Montreal upon a mysterious and unapprehended individual who received shipments of drugs under the names of Keith Vaughan Harrison, or Perkins, or Keith, or Munro or Herron.

The feature of the day was the drug smuggling which has been unearthed in the Montreal district within the last few years. The shipment of, by a firm in Switzerland, of cocoa phenacitin and similar commodities to a variety of firms which always had the same address on St. Peter Street, Montreal, aroused the suspicions of the customs people. With the assistance of the Mounted Police, a total of about 50,000 ounces of morphine, heroin, and cocaine was seized en route to the Harrison-Vaughan-Keith consignees. Valued at $200,000, Sergeant Salt said that when it had been diluted "with milk and sugar" the consignment probably would have sold to users at many times that sum.

Seized in New York

Early in the drug investigation, Corporal Kyle of the Mounted Police was preparing to shadow a consignment of drugs from Antwerp to Montreal, in an effort to arrest its receiver. But the shipment was seized in New York, en route, and the plan of the Canadian authorities failed. Later they got wind of the four big consignments referred to. Each was seized and the parties on this side who intended to distribute them had not been found.

The address to which the drugs were consigned was a building on St. Peter Street, Montreal. Boxes which bore the same shippers' marks as those which contained opium deriviatives, had been found on the premises of Edward Thorne and Company, in the same building. But these boxes contained cocoa powder and not drugs, and no case had been made out against Thorne and Company, said several witnesses.

The case was still under rigid investigation, the officers said. Committee Counsel R. L. Calder commented that he thought the case was "hibernating."

Corporal Kyle told of seizing drugs in New York while aiding an officer of the United States in March, 1923. The shipment was traced to the Edward Thorne Company from Switzerland via Antwerp and New York. It had been arranged for the corporal to go to New York and follow the shipment through in endeavoring to make an arrest. But the American customs, in error, seized the drugs in New York, and the plan failed.

Customs Officer Absent

Corporal Kyle had been sent to Clarenceville to examine the customs office there following certain reports, in December, 1922. There were three roads leading to the United States from the town. The customs officer was named Metevier, who

Queen Marie Of Roumania Has Joined Greek Church

LONDON, April 8 (Canadian Press)—A despatch to the Daily Express from Bucharest says Queen Marie of Rumania has joined the Greek Orthodox Church, feeling that there was need for her to be closer to the spiritual relations of her children who were reared in the Greek Orthodox faith.

The Daily Express adds that King Ferdinand is now the only member of the royal family who remains a Roman Catholic.

POWER PROJECT NOT DELAYED BY FEDERAL HOUSE

Government Assures Ontario Members St. Lawrence Scheme Not Held Up.

AWAITING REPORT.

Prompt Action Essential, Declares T. L. Church on His Motion.

OTTAWA, April 8 (Canadian Press).—"There will be no holdup so far as the Federal Government is concerned," was the definite declaration in the House yesterday of Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, in regard to power development by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission at the Morrisburg dam on the St. Lawrence. Mr. Stewart added that he would like to see power developed on the Otawa, but "They have set their hearts on development on the St. Lawrence, and it is the business of this government to facilitate that development."

T. L. Church (Conservative, Northwest Toronto) raised the question on a motion, urging that Ontario should be given leave to develop power at Morrisburg on the St. Lawrence. Mr. Church pressed that the application for leave had been under consideration by the Federal authorities since 1922, although the power was needed.

Mr. Stewart replied that development along this international reach of the St. Lawrence was being considered by a joint engineering board representative of both Canada and the United States. When the board's report was received, the Government would deal with the application of the Ontario Government on the Morrisburg development. Mr. Church returned that prompt action was essential.

The resolution was adopted with only one change. In its original form, the resolution read that the Ontario Government and the Hydro-Electric Commission should be given leave forthwith to develop at Morrisburg. In the amended form, the word "forthwith" is dropped.

Mr. Church's resolution proposed that leave should be given the Government of Ontario and the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario forthwith to develop and generate power at Morrisburg on the St. Lawrence, and also to use an increased flow of water from the Niagara district so as to relieve the acute power shortage in Ontario.

Supporting his resolution, Mr. Church said that the application regarding the Morrisburg dam had been pending for years and had been attended by nothing but delays. There were 278 municipali-

PROGRESSIVES OF VICTORIA TO DISCUSS CONVENTION MEETING

Election Rumors Stirring in Lindsay—Conservatives Have Aspiring Standard Bearers.

MEETING SATURDAY.

LINDSAY, April 8.—While no definite announcement has been made relative to the date of the provincial election, there is a strong feeling in local political circles that Premier Ferguson will make an appeal to the electors during the summer. There has been considerable activity in the different political camps of late, and, according to statements made by leading Conservatives as well as Progressives, conventions will probably be called at an early date.

What gives color to the rumors is the fact that the Progressives of South Victoria have called a special meeting for next Saturday in Lindsay, when, it is believed, that the question of calling a convention and nominating a candidate will come up for consideration. It is believed in Progressive circles that F. G. Sandy, ex-M.P.P., will again be the choice of the Progressive party. Mr. Sandy was nominated at the convention held in the Progressive interests in the last Federal election, and in declining stated that he was more interested in first redeeming the riding for the Progressives in a Provincial election before he would consider entering a Federal fight.

There is an element in the Conservative party in South Victoria which is booming ex-Mayor Graham as the next candidate for the Provincial Legislature. Mr. Cecil Frost, the well-known local lawyer is also mentioned as a probable candidate, but it is believed that he will not oppose Mr. Graham. Mr. R. J. Patterson, the present representative for South Victoria, will again be a candidate, his friends declare. There promises to be a lively time when the convention is held, as Mr. Paterson's friends in the Township are expected to put up a fight.

BUTTER AND CHEESE MAKERS OF DISTRICT HOLD CONVENTION AND HEAR EXPERT DAIRYMEN

Address Given By Dr. E. G. Hood About Mould in Butter.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Cream Grading Law is Discussed With Much Favorable Comment.

The annual convention of the Butter and Cheese Makers of this district, started in the G.W.V.A. Hall this morning. William Newman, the president, presided.

Dr. E. G. Hood.

Dr. E. G. Hood of the Department of Agriculture, in Ottawa, was the first speaker. His address was on the subject of Mould in Butter and Rennets in Cheese.

During the past few years, he said, considerable quantities of butter arriving in the United Kingdom from Canada were found to be contaminated by moulds. As a result of this condition, it was decided by the Dairy Commissioner that a full investigation of the trouble should be made. The work has now extended over a considerable period and numerous creameries and consignments of butter have been examined to determine the cause of mouldiness in butter, so that suitable recommendation for its prevention could be made.

Investigations show that there are two possible methods by which mould may be prevented from developing in butter.

By exclusion during the manufacturing process.

By prevention of their development after they have gained entrance.

The phase of work here reported deals with the former method, their exclusion during the manufacturing process, or, in other words, the prevention of factory contamination or reinfection of the cream and butter during the manufacturing process. The old adage, "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" might well be applied here

Investigation shows that mouldiness in butter lies entirely in the hands of the creamery operator. Mould in butter can be attributed largely to the recontamination of the pasteurized cream through coming in contact with insanitary equipment as holding vats, conductor pipes, pumps, outlet valves, churns, impure water and untreated liners.

(The term insanitary as applied to equipment is used in a bacteriological sense. Factory equipment may look bright and clean to the general observer, but on making a bacteriological examination much of this clean looking equipment has been found to be heavily laden with molds, yeasts and bacteria, and as a result resious recontamination of the cream has resulted.)

At the present time a feeling exists among the creamery men, that some of the parchment supplied is directly responsible for mouldy butter. To determine the relation of parchment to mouldy butter, samples were secured and tested from all possible sources, including Canada, United States, United Kingdom and European countries. On investigation it was found that all the samples submitted were true parchment, and that mould was found on all, and no one parchment was superior from the standpoint of mould development. Tests show that properly treated parchments are not a factor in mouldy butter.

Mouldiness in Butter

Causes—Investigations show that mouldiness in butter rests entirely in the hands of the creamery operator. It may be attributed to one or all of the following causes:

By recontamination of the pasteurized cream through contact with dirty holding vats, conductor pipes, pumps, outlet valves and churns; by inefficient pasteurization; by the use of improperly treated liners; by the use of improperly parraffined and dirty boxes; by the use of impure water; from dirty walls, ceilings and surroundings.

Prevention—By preventing recontamination of the pasteurized cream through contact with dirty holding vats, conductor pipes, pumps, outlet valves and churns; by efficient pasteurization; by the use of properly treated liners; by the use of properly paraffined and clean boxes; by the use of pure water; by keeping the factory walls, ceilings and surroundings scrupuously clean; by keeping the air in the creamery well ventilatd and the sewers and floors well scrubbed.

The completeness of this control can only be determined by a systematic laboratory examination of the butter, to determine the number of yeasts and moulds present. If counts continue high after the above preventive methods have been carried out, the sources of recontamination may only be determined by a bacteriological survey of the plant.

In Canada, commercial rennet extract is now almost exclusively used in the making of cheddar cheese.

Rennet makers use the cured vells of commerce, which originate in Germany, Russia, Siberia, Bavaria and Czechoslovakia. The dried vells are very convenient to handle and keep well in cold storage, but they vary greatly in yield, and frequently contain bacteria of the most undesirable type. We have found that B. subtilis, representatives of the B.

Alcohol Is Being Smuggled Into Canada From Dry U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 8 (Canadian Press) — Canadian government officials have complained "bitterly but informally" over the smuggling of liquor from this country into Canada, officials here said today in commenting upon the testimony of district attorney Buckner of New York before the Senate committee investigating prohibition.

The District Attorney told the committee that "the dry United States is exporting bootleg industrial alcohol into Canada to help the Canadian bootleggers beat the Canadian Government out of taxes."

No official protest has been made by Canadians, however, and none is expected by officers of the administration who have reported the situation to prohibition authorities.

FIGHTS IN ITALY AFTER ATTEMPT TO KILL PREMIER

Pitched Battle Around Sicilian Village—Many Captured.

FASCISTS MOBILIZE.

Students at Padua Attack Foreigners—Gibson Family Sends Regrets.

LONDON, April 8 (Canadian Press).—A despatch to The Herald, Labor organ, from Chiasho, Switzerland, says guerilla warfare is raging between Fascisti and anti-Fascisti in the province of Palermo, Sicily.

The newspaper says there was a pitched battle on Tuesday around the village of Capaoi, which eventually the Fascisti captured with 20 prisoners, including the mayor and priest.

The casualties are not known. The anti-Fascists retired into the mountains.

Fascisti Mobilizing.

PARIS, April 8 (United Press).—A despatch to The Quotidien from the Italian frontier says Fascisti militia and troops are mobilized throughout Italy today in preparation for any eventualities resulting from yesterday's attack on Premier Mussolini. Strict telegraph and telephone censorship has been imposed, the message says.

Students Cause Riot

VIENNA, Austria, April 8 (Canadian Press).—A despatch from Padua, Italy, says that Fascist students in Padua University this morning attacked and badly mauled their foreign fellow students, demanding their immediate expulsion from the University and from Italy.

Family Sends Regret

DUBLIN, April 8 (Canadian Press)—Lord Ashbourne, brother of Violet Albina Gibson, who yesterday attempted the life of Premier Mussolini, today sent a message to the Fascist chief:

"Miss Gibson's family regret the incident and express profound sympathy."

POLE EXPLORERS LOOK FOR LANDINGS

Captain Wilkins and Aviator Return From Flight Over Arctic.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, April 8 (Canadian Press).—Captain George H. Wilkins and Lieut. Carl B. Eielson returned to Fairbanks yesterday after an airplane flight 150 miles beyond Point Barrow on the Arctic Coast. They found no land but sighted many unbroken stretches of ice, which were noted as possible places for alighting.

On their return trip yesterday the pair were lost in the air eight hours before reaching Circle City, 150 miles northeast of here.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK.

Marvelous beyond conception inaptly describes the glories of Canada's Rockies. To be fully appreciated they must be seen. To start out on a trip by one's self into this unfamiliar but far-famed paradise-on-earth, to many appears quite a task. Realizing this, Dean Sinclair Laird of Macdonald College, an experienced Rocky Mountains Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious wonderland.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation compartment cars has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th via the Canadian Pacific Railway. Stops will be made at Port Arthur and Fort William, which together form Canada's greatest grain port; Winnipeg Beach, the popular summer resort for Winnipegers; Winnipeg, Canada's third largest city; Indian Head, the chief tree distributing centre of the Federal Forestry Branch; Regina, the capital of Saskatchewan; Calgary, Alberta's largest city; Banff, the world-famous mountain resort; by automobile for 104 miles over the Banff-Windermere Highway, the most spectacular drive in Canada; through Kootenay Lake to Nelson, the commercial centre of Southern British Columbia; then through the Doukhobor country to Penticton; along lovely Okanagan Lake, and to Vancouver, thence by steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be by the main line of the Canadian Pacific, through the great canyons of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, and through the Selkirks, and Rockies, affording scenery such as can be found nowhere else on earth; Lake Louise, the Pearl of the Rockies, the most perfect gem of scenery on the world; another day at Banff, Edmonton, the Capital of Alberta; Saskatoon, the city of optimism; Devils Camp, on the Lake of the Woods, near Kenora, thence to Fort William, where one of the fine Canadian Pacific steamers will be used across Lake Superior and Huron to Port McNicoll, then rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate.

Everything is included in the price of $330.00, from Toronto; transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in hotels, and bungalow camps, meals in diners, hotels and on steamers, and sight-seeing tours at points visited.

The trip is open to all, and applications for accommodation, are being received.

Fares from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrate booklet sent on application to Dean Sinclair Laird, Macdonald College Post Office, Que. t.t.-107.

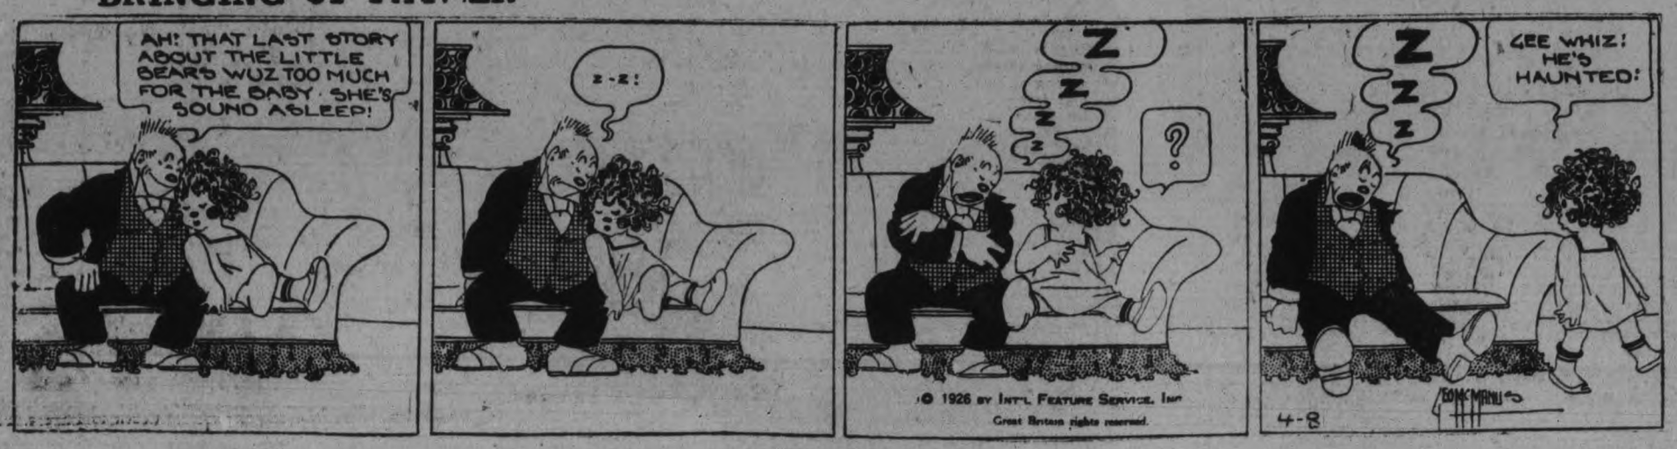
"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus



The Spirit Of Service, Based On Integrity and Knowledge Must Be Foremost in Education for Business

is to believe that others are of the same blood with ourselbes and habe the same feelings and loves and desires and needs and natural elementary rights.

The progress of life is the increase of vision.

Man's duty is to estimate continually the good and the evil. He has to perform Psyche's task — to sift out the two boxes, the good and the evil, and re-sort them, and to interchange, if necessary, the contents of the two boxes.

Punishment is bad. Bernard Shaw was right when he bade us 'Never punish except in anger'."

"I agree with Nietzsche that 'The secret of a joyful life is to live dangerously.' A joyful life is an active life—it is not a dull static state of so-called happiness. Full of the burning fire of enthusiasm, anarchic, revolutionary, energetic, daemonic, Dionysian, filled to overflowing with the terrific urge to create—such is the life of the man who risks safety and happiness for the sake of growth and happiness."

Shakespeare.

In this school Shakespeare was learned by playing it—mathematics by practical weighing, measuring, etc., and supply missing parts of machinery, etc.

The school produced during the war large munition supplies—they have built engines, motors, raised agricultural products on new scientific basis—they have sought to understand.

Edward Bok.

Edward Bok in his recent book "Dollars Only":

"The American's lack of thoroughness is not because he does not want to be thorough, but because thoroughness is not taught him as a child. On the contrary, the gospel of quantity and not quality is brought home to him the moment he reaches a point of understanding. He must learn so many words; he must do so many examples; he must be able to read so many lines. It is always quantity; quantity from the start. He may learn these words and sums and lines as a parrot learns, so long as he learns them, and the boy who learns the largest number in the shortest given space of time is considered and told that he is the bright boy."

Premier Ferguson's Move.

Should we not all study Premier Ferguson's bill for the changing of country school methods?

Our boys of eleven and over should have men teachers over them and this can only be accomplished by some form of centralized school work.

How difficult it is to get public opinion behind needed reforms.

We blame governments for failing to act, but they are unable to take a single move in advance of public opinion, however uniformed.

Oundle's Principle.

Our friends at Oundle adopted the principle that, pursuit of knowledge, gradually unfolding, was to be preferred to the acquisition of hard facts.

Appetite for knowledge must be created, thought inspired a purpose established.

Subjects Should Hold Pupil's Interest.

All subjects dealt with in school should arouse the interest of the scholar or be revised.

Teach the boys so as to create a spirit of enterprise, enquiry, adventure and discovery and you'll create good business material.

If Taught in Connection With Work

Boys of eleven and up can operate machinery, build things, apply scientific principles, understand wonderful details of mechanical equipment, can learn languages and do higher mathematics.

Service to the Community.

Teach your children the things which will enable them to do service to the community in which they live and they will be well equipped for business.

Ways and Means and Personal Quality

Our position in industry to-day, so far as ways and means and engineering devices are concerned, is that we are much advanced over any past condition. What is our position in respect to personal qualities of those who perform industry's varied duties? Perhaps, not entirely so favorable.

Great properity produces a spirit of grab instead of a spirit of service.

Rich men are usually unhappy; educated men often selfish, sometimes dull; cultured men, not always morally right side up; busy people with interest in their jobs are the happy, unselfish, brilliant and usually morally sound people.

Ontario and Quebec.

In speaking to Ontario school trustees may I indulge in a few thoughts—a few stray remarks having to do with our duty of instilling into our Ontario boys and girls a proper respect and appreciation of our fellow-citizens and neighbors in the Province of Quebec.

We in Ontario have inherited a gravely mistaken and most unfortunate view of our Canadian citizens of French speech and race.

Quebec is probably better governed than any other province. Their people have much to be proud of. May I quote from Prof. Bracq's interesting review of our French cousins.

He says, "Sir Lomer Gouin did not yield to the temptation of most democratic governments in the matter of extravagant expenses. From the beginning of his administration in 1905 there was an improvement in the provincial finances, and from 1906 on there were steady annual surpluses, showing a careful management. This was the only province in a recent year that had such a balance, viz., $5,000,000 on the right side, and the only one which, during the war, had no moratorium. According to Premier Taschereau, in 1921 provincial. debts per capita were $18 for Quebec, $42 for Ontario, $61 for British Columbia, $69 for Alberta and $82 for Manitoba. During that year Quebec borrowed money at 5½ per cent., while Ontario paid 7½ per cent. This government has also been interested in the culture of the people. Under the last two premiers every organization had to move forward, and to aim at an even larger and larger usefulness. The improvements were not merely those of education, of roads, of colonization, of industry, of mining, of agriculture, and of finances, but the use of these to make the country instinct with life and vigour."

Teaching French.

Why do we shy at the teaching of French in Ontario schools?

"French ,as Bracq points out, with the number and gender of its nouns, its articles, adjectives and pronouns, the magnificent keyboard of its verbs, and, above all, the magic effect of its subjunctive, is the most accurate linguistic tool of modern times; the clearest and the most logical."

We, in Ontario, shut ourselves off with a smug complacency which does not add to our reputation for intelligence and patriotism.

Ontario Trustees.

Ontario trustees should study Quebec educational system and its results. Say, for example, its teaching of English.

Quebec is most enlightened and liberal in its attitude to the Protestant minorities, while in matters requiring co-operation of the French Catholic and the English Protestant, the two parallel organizations, according to Bracq, have harmonious and courteous relations. While the French have an overwhelming majority in the province, they have, in a most remarkable way, respected the rights of Protestants, and treated them with utmost consideration.

The French-Canadian is not the man with the inferior education. On the floor of Parliament, where, in an exceptional debate, keen analysis and quick wit are required, and a knowledge of history and philosophy is useful, the French-Canadian, educated in the church school, can hold his own with or against the English-Canadian instructed in the state school."

Religious Instruction.

We need religious instruction in our schools.

Personally, I would give the job of specifying religious teaching for our public schools to a man of the type of Rabbi Isserman. He would likely do a good piece of work even with regard to the teaching of Jesus, Whom we revere as Lord and Christ.

Quebec has an advantage over us in the matter of religious instruction in the schools reflected in good citizen conduct and respect for law.

Quoting from Bracq's work:

"The judicial machinery has its task simplified by the high moral tone of the population, due, in a large measure, to religious influence. The power of the Church, though not stimulating for the intellect, is a great force for conduct. No people live in a greater independence of formal laws and coercive action than they. The Duke of Connaught is reported to have said that what impressed him most in the province was the fact that 384 municipalities had no policemen. The Hon. L. A. Taschereau has stated that the number of communities without policemen is 1,200. In three jails, visited in five days by the writer, none of the prisoners was a French-Canadian. From May 31, 1916, to June 1, 1918, there was no prisoner at all in the jail. Never as yet in that county has any one been condemned to death. In the large district of Montreal eighty-five per cent. of the population are French, and in the city itself there are two French-Canadians for one man of any other nationality; but in the Bordeaux prison of the same city, for the whole district, there are two men of other nationalities for one native. In sixty years there were twenty-three cases of capital punishment, but only three were French-Canadians."

World's Foreign Trade.

In the world's total foreign trade, as shown by imports and exports, the leading nations in volume of trading stand in the following order: 1st Great Britain, 2nd United States of America, 3rd Germany and Canada is in fourth place in the entire world, while on the basis per capita, we hold the very first place in the world.

Business is nevertheless a hazardous game—only five per cent. succeed, while the winner is he who serves best. The rewards come to those who depend upon discipline, training, experience and hard work rather than to those who depend upon bright wit and ready adaptability.

Prosperity and reputation are simply by-products of good enterprise.

Simplicity of mind, singleness of purpose, willingness to service,teach these things and business will be well done in the next generation, such as in no past business experience.

Let our boys and girls produce something during their school education. Why do we take pride in the hand production of the mentally subnormal and not use similar methods for the mentally bright?

The mainspring of business is pride in the service. Those who feel no pride in the day's work, experience no joy in its accomplishment—lose mental stimulus, which work ought to afford and in depression lose their happiness and lose their health.

Women's Institutes.

May I pay tribute in closing to the wonderful work of the women's institutes.

Trustees should do well surely to encourage the numerous fine activities of these good-spirited women.

"The schools especially in the rural districts have been made more attractive and healthful because of the touch of the homemaker and they will become a greater and greater value in so far as efficiency in practical every-day affairs are concerned in proportion as women exert their influence. If it is not thought well to have one or two women on the rural school board, then why not have an advisory committee composed of women?"

Education for business involves not only the equipment of creative hard working distributors, eager and willing to serve the needs of our people, but also involves as a complement to such men, good servants in all walks of life, high-minded public men, intelligent and industrious administrators of the law, honest lawyers, unselfish professional men, efficient farmers and exploiters of our great natural wealth.

Leon Frazer.

Leon Frazer, former secretary of the local chamber, and now secretary of the Tourist Association of Ontario, in a brief speech, stated that he was present to account for his stewardship in the past. He stated that constructive criticism was necessary in order that the younger men would reap the benefits of the experience of the older men. He stated that the business men of to-day were not giving the time to civic matters that they should. Unless they give the time, he said, to such organizations as the Chamber of Commerce, they are failing in their duties as citizens. The Chamber of Commerce, in his opinion, was a watch dog for the citizens as a whole in any community. It was his hope that some day that Peterborough would have the best and most efficient Chamber of Commerce in the Dominion and incidentally representing the livest city. The Chamber in Peterborough, he said, was responsible for starting an organized movement for the furtherance of tourist traffic. Peterborough itself is fortunately situated in this respect, and due to the efforts of this association the Tourist Association of Ontario would in a few years make the Province of Ontario as widely known as Florida and California are to-day. We must sell the Province to our neighbors to the south, and it has already started, he said. The Association had an exhibit at the National Automobile Show in New York last year, and it had wonderful results, large crowds viewing the exhibit daily. The Provincial Government are behind the scheme ,he said, and for every $5 publicly subscribed they contribute $1. The Government also supplies office quarters in the Highway Traffic Association building. Mr. Frazer said that it was intended to commence a broadcasting programme from Toronto on April 27, telling of the attractions of Ontario. It is our belief, he said, that we can make Ontario the mecca for tourists. As a result of tourist traffic last year, the Province netted 40 million dollars. The traffic is a requisite, it is needed and it is a case of the public saying it is necessary. In conclusion, Mr. Frazer said that in Ontario we had the best province in the Dominion, and its advantages must be sold to Americans.

Mr. J. J. Duffus.

J. J. Duffus stated that the Chamber of Commerce being a public organization, had been neglected during the past few years as a result of business men sticking to their work during the period of depression. Its officers and staff were to be congratulated on the splendid reports they had presented. No organization, he said, can do the work like the Chamber of Commerce if it is properly organized, and it can only be as strong as its members. He stated that the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, likewise the Tourist Association of Ontario, were the two most important associations in the province to-day. The fact that Peterbrough's secretary had been selected to guide the destinies of the Tourist Association of Ontario was a decided tribute to the Peterborough Chamber and to the citizens generally. Mr. Frazer, he said, gave you an idea of the importance of tourist traffic. It is the second largest industry in the province, and the Chamber is to be congratulated on the part it has taken in this respect. In concluding, Mr. Duffus said that the Peterborough Chamber had every reason to be proud of the record it had made during the past five or six years.

J. Wells Fraser.

J. W. Fraser, the retiring president, thanked all those who had stood by him during his term of office. Peterborough needs a Chamber of Commerce, he said, and so long as you can keep the type of men interested whose names you will hear read out, there is no doubt as to the welfare of this city.

At this juncture Mayor W. T. Holloway installed the new officers for the incoming year: President, G. A. Gillespie: Vice-President, C. G. Graham; Treasurer, W. R. Morris; Secretary, F. G. Stinson. The members of the Executive Committee are: C. H. Ackerman, Thomas Barrie, A. Brown, James Dutton, Senior, R. J. Kidd, Fred L. Roy, F. J. H. Wallace, J. Wells Fraser, J. J. Turner, Dr. A. Moir, F. D. Kerr, K.C., A. J. Reynolds and J. E. Adams.

His Worship expressed the thanks of himself and the Council for the invitation of the Chamber. He was of the opinion that advisory committees composed of the different organizations should act in an advisory capacity with the City Council. The transportation problem is with us, he said, and the people think that we are asleep. We are trying to act in a sane manner, he said, and we cannot be both buyers and sellers—and we are slow buyers. At this time, he said, we figure that the waiting game is the best. This is one place that the Chamber of Commerce can assist us in an advisory capacity. The Chamber of Commerce is the oldest organization in the city, and its members are to be congratulated on the work that they have accomplished.

President J. Wells Fraser asked the Chamber go on record as expressing appreciation and admiration of the Hockey Club for the splendid manner in which they had brought fame to the city.

Votes of thanks were proposed by J. J. Turner to the staff, and by Thomas Barrie to the retiring president, and by F. D. Kerr, K.C., to the speaker of the evening.

DEGREE CONFERRED ON ALLENBY

Convocation Hall of the University of Toronto was filled to capacity when the degree of LL.D. was conferred upon Viscount Allenby. A photographer shows the academic procession prior to the ceremony, headed by Sir William Mulock, chancellor of the university; Sir Robert Falconer and Lord Allenby, and Principal Maurice Hutton and Rev. Canon Cody.

OBITUARY.

DEATH OF INFANT

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8—The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ayrhart died Wednesday aged 11 days. The remains were taken to Stirling in the afternoon for interment.

BENJAMIN STOVER

CAMPBELLFORD, Apr. 8—Benjamin Stover, aged 63, died here Wednesday after a short illness which was not regarded as serious so that his sudden passing was a shock to his family and friends. The deceased was well known as he had been in the bakery business for a number of years. He is survived by his wife, three sons and two daughters. The sons are Leslie, the baker, Floyd and Norman, and the daughters are Mrs. J. Shaw and Mrs. Fred Rowe.

The deceased was a member of St. John's United church and in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Wesley Elliott, Rev. C. D. Daniel of the Seymour circuit will conduct religious services at the family residence on Thursday evening. Friday morning the remains will be taken to Markham, where the deceased formerly resided, for interment.

ALEXANDER ODDIE.

BURNBRAE, April 8. — Word was received here on Tuesday afternoon of the sudden death of Alexander Oddie, at St. Catharnies, Ont.

The deceased had been in poor health for some months but the end was quite unexpected and came as a distinct shock to his relatives and friends here. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Oddie, the oldest couple in this district, who celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary almost three years ago. Of the large family of eleven children which blessed their union, ten still survive, Alex. being the first to pass away.

Some years before moving to St. Catharines he married Anne Watson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watson, and most of her family still live in the immediate vicinity of Burnbrae.

Although well over military age when the Great War broke out, Mr. Oddie enlisted for active service and served with distinction on the battlefields of Flanders. Undoubtedly the terrible experiences through which he passed were instrumental in shortening his span of years, as he has been in poor health a good deal since his return.

Besides his sorrowing wife and three daughters at St. Catharines, there are left to mourn his loss his aged father and mother, his sisters, Mrs. John Rannie, Mrs. A. T. Donald Mrs. John Thompson; his brothers John and Percy, all at Burnbrae and Menie, also three brothers and two sisters residing at distant points.

The funeral services and interment will take place in St. Catharines.

TEST MACHINES IN POWER HOUSE

Many Engineers Visit Campbellford To See Apparatus Started.

FOR PAPER MILL.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8. — There are a number of expert electric engineers staying at the St. Lawrence Hotel, the occasion for the gathering being the starting of the machinery in the new power house of the paper company. The engineers who are here to witness the opening of the new plant are A. R. Whitlaw, constructing engineer for the Trent and Quinte company that is building the power house for the paper mill, and whose headquarters are in Frankford for the present; H. S. Poole of Montreal, Saul Sundstrum of the Swedish Electrical Company, Mr. Sundstrum being well-known here as he installed the machinery in the civic plant and in the Hydro power house at Dam 8; H. Hepworth of the Dominion Engineers of Montreal, and Engineer Shaw of the Westinghouse Company. Charles MacFarlane of Peterborough, who supervised the putting in of the water-wheel for which the William Hamilton Company had the contract, is also here, an interested watcher of the starting up of the machinery.

The Water Turned On.

The water was turned on for the first time on Wednesday and the machinery was set in motion. Everything appeared to work satisfactorily, and it is expected that the plant will be in full operation some time next week. P. C. Denyes, who had the contract for putting in the electric fixtures, has a gang of men at work on the boiler that forms so important a part of the plant.

The new power house has already been described in detail in The Examiner. The flow of water that furnishes the power is obtained from the same flume that carries the water from the Trent Canal to No. 10 power house of the Hydro. The paper mill company, which is practically the same corporation as the Trent and Quinte company that put up the new building, will use electricity instead of coal in the drying department as soon as the new boiler is finished and the plant is in complete running order. Another test of the machinery will be made on Friday, and in the meantime it is to be kept running day and night.

POWER PROJECT NOT DELAYED

ties in Ontario interested in the power situation and the delays were not only vexatious but injurious to industry.

Ready to Go Ahead

The Hydro-Electric Commission was ready to go ahead but was being held up. Mr. Church gave figures to show that Ontario municipalities have 241 million dollars invested in Hydro, and declared its operation had been crowned with success. Every dollar invested was earning both interest and sinking fund.

No Interference

Mr. Church proceeded to say that the proposed dam at Morrisburg would involve no interference whatever with navigation. The province was entitled to the permission sought not only because of this fact but because constitutionally, as a matter of property and civil rights, the power in question belonged to it. He protested against the question being treated as a political football when the municipalities were in vital need of the extra power and had so much at stake.

All the water diverted for power at Niagara, Mr. Church declared, is returned, thus preventing any interference with navigation. The present Government had seven or eight different boards which were called on to deal with this question. "Why," Mr. Church exclaimed, "many of these gentlemen with high sounding names or offices, know no more about power developments than betting on horse races."

General Ross suggested that if Ontario was to be held up indefinitely in the development of power on the St. Lawrence, and if Quebec was given permission to proceed with development lower down the river, Ontario should be considered a "favored customer" of Quebec. Every development of Eastern Ontario was "grist to the mill of Montreal." Therefore, the Province of Quebec should be willing to assist Eastern Ontario in the matter of electric power.

Engineers' Report First

Hon. Chas. Stewart said that the Government was perfectly willing to issue permits for the development of power on the St. Lawrence after the report of the Joint Engineering Board was received. He did not think that Mr. Ross needed to do any worrying on account of delay because of the proposed canal development.

Urged by Euler

W. D. Euler (Liberal, Waterloo North) took the ground that the Government should do everything to hasten the development of power on the St. Lawrence. He thought that it would be wrong to allow the waterway scheme to delay the power development. For himself, he was not satisfied that the scheme of a deep waterway to the head of the Lakes was a wise one. He hoped that the minister was right and that there would be no delay in the development of power after the report had been received in June.

Hon. Edmund Bristol (Conservative, Toronto East Centre) said that he was sure members were much pleased with the statement of the minister, that there would be no further delay in power development after June. He mentioned that the diversion of water by the Chicago drainage canal would add enormously to the cost of the St. Lawrence waterway project. Chicago now admitted that the diversion there was lowering the level of the Lakes six inches, with a consequent lowering of the river levels. The attitude of the United States as indicated by the fact that a project was in view to run a canal through the State of New York abandoning the St. Lawrence project was "Not of that friendly character which we as Canadians like to see," Mr. Bristol said.

"No Government Policy"

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Opposition leader, referred to the Government as "The prize investigators of all time." He predicted that there would be no Government policy on the St. Lawrence waterways this session or next session. The Government's methods were characterized by "drift and indecision."

G. R. Geary (Conservative, Toronto South) asked when the National Advisory Committee would report to the Government.

The minister specified no date, but said that he could not conceive that this report would clash in any way with that of the Joint Engineering Board.

Mr. Stewart suggested that the resolution should be amended for the reason that negotiations were really still under way with the United States.

Mr. Church agreed to delete the word "forthwith" with respect to the time for granting leave to proceed with the development.

The resolution as amended then carried without division.

YOUNG MAN GIVEN GIFT ON DEPARTURE

George Elsom Presented With Fountain Pen—Millbrook News.

MILLBROOK, April 8.—A gathering representative of young people of the community met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Armstrong on Friday evening to enjoy a social occasion with one of their number, Mr. George Elson, before his departure for Detroit, where he expects to make an extended stay.

Games, music and dancing made the time pass pleasantly, and when suitable opportunity occurred the guest of honor was given a position in the centre of the company and presented with a Waterman fountain pen, Jim Larmer making an informal address, while Miss Elizabeth Russell offered the gift.

The whole occasion coming as a complete surprise made reply difficult for the recipient of the gift, but his thanks for the kindly words and the tangible token of remembrance were expressed briefly though with genuine feeling. "He's a Jolly, Good fellow" was heartily sung, and shortly afterward, Mrs. Armstrong, assisted by her daughter, Miss Alice, and other members of the committee in charge, served a dainty supper.

Refreshments, however, were not the signal to break up the gathering, the guests lingering for some time before the happy occasion was finally brought to a close.

The special Easter music prepared by the choir of St. Thomas' church, under the leadership of Mrs. (Canon) Allen, was unavoidably postponed on Sunday owing to the latter's illness which prevented her from attending any of the services.

Miss Ethel Richardson presided at the organ in the morning, and Miss Mamie Collins in the evening. If Mrs. Allen's health permits the Easter carols will be sung next Sunday evening.

Some beautiful Easter lillies decorated the altar, and the hymns chosen, with the Easter message in the rector's sermon, were appropriate to the day. There was a good attendance at the morning service when the sacrament of the Holy Communion was administered by the rector. Services were held at three of the churches of the parish, St. John's, Ida, Christ church, Bailieboro, and St. Thomas' church, Millbrook, on Good Friday, with a fair attendance in each case.

Rev. J. Riddle, of Toronto, who will shortly be inducted as pastor of the joint circuit of Centreville and Millbrook, preached appropriate Easter sermons at each charge on Sunday, large congregations being in attendance at both services.

Special music was rendered by the choirs at each church, the selections at Grace church includinug three anthems, "Christ Arose", "Awake Up, My Glory," and "The Roseate Hues of Early Dawn", Miss Anna Hawthorne and Mr. Chas. Thorndyke taking the duet in the latter, and Miss Kathleen Lancashire the solo part. A solo, "Crossing the Bar," by Miss Lancashire, was particularly enjoyed. Miss Ethel Richardson presided at the organ.

Special Easter services were held morning and evening in the United church, large congregations being present on both occasions.

The anthem, "Christ is Risen," was sung in the morning, the solo being taken by Mr. W. H. Coombe, and the duet part by Mrs. G. W. Sayles and her daughter, Miss Marjorie.

The pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard chose John 20:20: "Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord, for his first message tracing the transition from sight to faith of four typical characters—John, Mary Magdelene, the disciples as a group, and Thomas, and leaving the final thought, "the stone was not rolled away to let Jesus out, but to let you and me in, and the revelation is given us that we may tell others the story."

A reception service followed the sermon when sixteen members were received either on profession of faith, or by letter from the pastor at a former place of residence. Others who were to have been enrolled were prevented by illness, or some other cause, from attending, and a second reception service will be arranged for when the pastor finds it most suitable.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered at the conclusion of the service, Rev. Joseph Wilks and the members of the session, assisting Mr. Howard in this, as they had also done in the reception service. There were a large number of communicants, and the entire service was of a most impressive character.

THE JAMIESON REPORT.

The criticism offered for the submission of the report of the Agricultural Inquiry Committee at the end of the session is justified.

This committee, headed by Hon. Dr. Jamieson, has been at work for several years investigating the whole agricultural field in Ontario at a cost of some $25,000, and its last report dealing with co-operation and the national marketing of various products is a matter of much importance, surely of too great importance to be dumped into the House at the moment when the members have their suit-cases packed ready to go home.

The Jamieson report to be of real value should have been brought down in time for a worth-while discussion of its findings and recommendations, and there does not seem to be any sound reason why its submission was deferred so long.

THE PARK QUESTION.

The old argument as to the handling of the James Stevenson Park during the summer months is again to the fore with the Council about evenly divided in sentiment as to whether the park should be leased by tender or rented on a percentage basis.

When this question is under consideration there in baseball who be are very many citizens intereested lieve that the city fathers might well be a little more generous in their treatment of the Senior Baseball Club, which necessarily must operate at the Stevenson Park if it is to have a chance to succeed.

The expense of maintaining a senior baseball team is always necessarily heavy, and this year in particular the cost promises to be materially increased by the substitution of the Ottawa team in place of Oshawa in the Central Ontario League roster.

To budget for a season that may call for four trips each to Belleville, Kingston and Ottawa will be a difficult task for the citizens who undertake to supply Peterboro with senior baseball, and there is a feeling abroad that under the circumstances the club should not be called upon to pay a comparatively high rental for a municipally-owned ball ground particularly as better terms are arranged by other clubs in the same league as Peterboro.

Some consideration might be given to this aspect of the question by the City Council before it is finally settled.

THE PEACE RIVER CASE.

In connection with the Peace River situation the statement is made by D. M. Kennedy, the Progressive member, that he could not resign the seat if he would and that he would not if he could.

In the first part of this declaration Mr. Kennedy is correct.

He is technically forbidden to resign his seat by reason of the Controverted Elections Act, which enacts as follows:

> "No member shall tender his resignation while his election is lawfully contested, or until after the expiration of the time, during which it may by law be contested on other grounds than corruption or bribery."

There is, however, an honourable course open to Mr. Kennedy.

Although he cannot tender his resignation, he can refrain from exercising the functions of a member until this whole matter is cleared up.

The evidence shows that he was not really returned as the choice of the majority of those who voted at the election, and that fact has been so clearly demonstrated that Mr. Kennedy cannot very well evade the charge that he is at Ottawa merely because of fraud and manipulation—not on his part, of course, or in his behalf, but by which he has benefitted.

The tenacity with which he clings to office affords a problem which Progressive admirers will find difficult to explain away.

SPEEDING THE ESTIMATES.

The Examiner had something to say a few days ago about the scandalous speed at which estimates amounting to $45,000,000 were put through by the Legislature last week.

This huge expenditure was authorized in two hours, and the case seems even more objectionable in view of the statement that while the mad rush was on the two opposition parties were represented by only six members.

The blame for this situation, therefore, must be distributed over the whole Legislature.

The duty of the opposition surely is to keep a check upon the expenditure of the administration, and on this occasion both opposition parties leave themselves open to the charge of almost criminal neglect of their responsibility to those they represent at Queen's Park and to the Province at large.

The trouble with the Legislature seems to be that the liquor question is given a position in the proceedings of far greater prominence than its importance justifies.

Any minor squabble over the Ontario Temperance Act quickly fills the seats of the House, but when important business is under consideration, when many million dollars of the people's money are being voted, the Provincial law-makers finish private business elsewhere that keeps them from their official duties.

The names of the six opposition members who did find it worth while to be present when the estimates were being considered should be made public.

THE TARIFF BOARD.

The sense of public opinion as expressed in the press of Canada seems to be that the new Tariff Board will be a much needed stabilizer for business. Certainly it is to be hoped that this will not prove to be a groundless expectation. If there is one thing that business in Canada needs at the present time it is confidence in the stability of the tariff. Canadian business firms have for some time back deferred long contemplated extensions because of a feeling of insecurity and a fear that further tariff changes might affect them adversely. The result has been a serious curtailment of that programme of expansion which characterized the manufacturing industry of the Dominion for so many years. The actual changes in the tariff have not been very numerous, but the exigency of the political situation has been such that business men have had reason to anticipate further alteratons. Elections have been fought on tariff questions, thus exaggerating the fears of tariff fluctuation.

The erection of American branch factories which proved to be such a boon to Canada for many years has ceased. Even in Brantford certain vacant plants would have been occupied by manufacturers from across the line had the management not announced after investigation their apprehension over the unsettled tariff situation.

Canada wants neither a high nor a low tariff, but one of moderate protection. "Adequate" is the word generally used in this connection, and if a tariff board of business capacity determines by investigation what is "adequate" and its recommendations are allowed to prevail a long step forward will be taken to stabilize business conditions in this country.

The Tariff Board seems to be representative of the high and low tariff advocates, with Hon. G. P. Graham exercising the balance power. If these gentlemen will just be oblivious of their former predilections and will view every case entirely on its merits, the Tariff Board will prove to be one of the most valued of the assets of the Dominion.—Brantford Expositor.

COMMUNISTS IN CANADA.

Writing in the Manitoba Free Press on the growth of Communism in Canada, Mr. Grant Dexter of the Parliamentary Press Gallery makes some arresting disclosures. Ordinarily, it is wise not to accept as evidence much of what is written about the spread of Communism. On this Continent, particularly, there is a tendency in some quarters to regard any foreigner, particularly if he wears a beard, as a potential Trotzky; and this, allied to a curious incapacity to distinguish between Socialism and Communism, plus a fondness among partisans for challenging epithets, has haunted the day reflections and night dreams of some of our most eminent citizens.

* * * *

In the United States, indeed, terror of Communism grew almost into a national obsession. Fanned by an unscrupulous and "careerist" Attorney General, this obsession grew into such volume that for a time the rights of free speech and of a free press were threatened; the rights of free assembly denied; and the world witnessed the remarkable spectacle of Red deportations, and of the anti-syndicalist laws of California, not to mention such strange manifestations as the refusal to allow 14 elected Socialists to sit in the Legislature of New York, the writings of Madison Frants and Lothrop Stoddarts, the growth of the Nordic myth, and the development of the Ku Klux Klan.

* * * *

Canada does not want such panic and hysteria. But Mr. Grant Dexter is a competent and discriminating investigator, not given to sensationalism, and capable of weighing testimony, and what he says about Communism in the West is worthy of reflection. Thus:

> "Communism is being spread sedulously throughout Western Canada, particularly among Ukrainians. Three thousand Ukrainian children are daily attending 'workers' schools' in Western Canada, where they undergo 'courses of enlightenment.'
>
> "The Communist party of Canada provides every facility for 'education,' and there are organizations known as the Ukrainian Labor-Farmer Temple Association, and the Workers' and Farmers' Co-operative Societies.
>
> "Constant appeals for funds are made to carry on the 'war against the master class,' and there are active Communist associations in a large number of cities, towns and villages, and in hundreds of rural communities in the Dominion. There are 96,000 Ukrainians living in the Prairie Provinces, and a considerable percentage are active Communist workers."

* * * *

The Journal has frequently deplored charges of Communism against a section of the workers of this country. It did not believe, for example, and does not now believe, that the striking miners of Nova Scotia, many of them returned men, and nearly all of them of British birth, were of the Communist fold. But while it still holds to that view, and would regret to see Canada indulge in the Red-mongering which almost made a laughing stock of the United States, it nevertheless believes that such facts as Mr. Dexter brings to light cannot be lightly ignored. If it be true—and Mr. Dexter buttresses his case with a wealth of evidence and data—that there are thousands of foreigners in the West who are Communists, preaching Communism and spreading Communism, using schools to teach Communism, developing Communist Boy Scout organizations, circulating Communist literature and newspapers, and taking their political ideals and tenets from Moscow, then it is time that Ottawa took cognizance of the facts.

* * * *

No one in this country wants to shackle opinion. No one wants to put a ban on the right of free speech. But the right of free speech does not embrace the right to preach revolution, any more than it embraces the right of a man to go into a crowded theatre and shout "fire," and when in any democracy the adherents of any creed whatsoever seek to promote their beliefs not by the ballot box but by force, then that democracy, for the sake of its own salvation, must meet such people with force. This or no other country can afford to trifle with violence.

* * * *

There is something more. Communism, in this country, is an exotic weed. It is something that flourishes in the dark recesses of despotism and human degradation and discontent, something that cannot spring from political and economic liberty, from the conditions which obtain, and which ought to obtain in larger measure, within the boundaries of this country. That being so, and it being reasonably clear that Communism has been brought and is being brought to this country by immigration from Continental Europe, a solemn duty devolves upon Canada to scan the character of her immigration.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is said that when the Legislature galloped through $45,000,000 in estimates only six opposition members were in the House. And yet the members voted themselves bigger indemnities on the ground that they are overworked.

Farming being the basic industry, members of the Legislature naturally can afford to take one day off from O. T. A. discussions to consider agricultural problems.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL AND CHILDREN

Editor, The Examiner:—

Advocates of Government Control of the liquor traffic proclaim that prohibition as we have it in Ontario is demoralizing the young people and leading them to drink. It is intimated that this would not be the case if we had Government Control in Ontario.

In view of the fact that Government Control has been in force in Manitoba for some three years it is interesting to find that the police of St. Boniface, a suburb of Winnipeg, recently made four raids early in the morning and arrested forty-five persons charged with violating the Government Control Act. In the assize court of Justice McDonald he declared that, "In pest holes in Winnipeg and St. Boniface, slimy rats of the under-world, and others who call themselves respectable, lie in wait for thoughtless children."

St. Boniface is only a small suburb of Winnipeg but it had 305 persons in its police court last year charged with drunkenness. Does Government Control, control?

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

TO THE PARROTS AND MONKEYS.

I have often unfolded to your view the wonderful benefits of a good imagination, and it is a valuable asset; valuable until you begin to direct it toward imaginary ills. When you drift from day to day with all sorts if imaginary tummy-aches, you resemble the fool who walked along the street with one foot on the curb and the other in the gutter and thought he was lame.

When you continually imagine yourself pitted against the world you might just as well change your name to Napoleon Wilhelm Crusoe, and set sail for some desert isle where you can shout your woes to the parrot and monkeys.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 7.—There was a fair supply of good to choice handyweight butchers on offer and these sold steadily from $7 to $7.50 a cwt. Tops in the good medium class brought $6.75 to $6.90 a cwt. and poor medium butchers were $6 to $6.50 a cwt. Butchers' cows sold steady and one bought for export cost $6.35 a cwt. Good cows were $5.50 and better. There are few stockers moving and the speculators are carrying a large part of this week's receipts. Bulls are selling higher.

Calves seem to have found a level and except on the dairy calves the supply is not too heavy. Any choice calves have a good market up to 13 cents a pound. The Buffalo buyer was in the market and this gave prices more strength and trading was quite active.

Native yearling lambs are about marketed and most of the supply is coming from the west. These are mostly acceptable weights and are selling well from 14 to 14 3-4 cents a pound. Native lambs, heavy, sold this morning at 14 cents a pound and this was regarded as 50 cents a cwt. higher. One choice sheep sold at $9.50 a cwt.

A short supply of hogs has forced the price up 50 cents a cwt. this week and the quotation stands $13 a cwt. f.o.b. bid for the thick smooth. Sellers are endeavoring to get another advance again today.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 7 (Canadian Press)— Speculative sellers overreached themselves in the wheat market today and found prices showing a brisk rally at the last. Uneasiness over alternate freezing and thawing was apparent in the wheat trade, with corn and oats responsive also to unfavorable weather.

Final quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish, to 1-2c higher, May (new) $1.57 7-8 to $1.58 and July $1.36 to $1.36 1-8. Corn closed at 1 to 1 3-8c advance; oats 3-8 to 1-2c up, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a rise of 5 cents.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND

MONTREAL, April 7 (Canadian Press).—The feature of the Montreal grain trade today was the sale of 80,000 bushels of tough No. 3 Northern wheat to New York exporters at 5 cents per bushel under the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Bay Ports. The balance of the export trade was very quiet.

A high light of the ocean grain freight trade was the announcement of another tramp vessel to load a full cargo of grain from the port of Montreal in May at 12 1-2 cents for 100 pounds for heavy grain for shipment to Antwerp - Hamburg, which makes a total of five to date.

Owing to the quality of eggs in April being considered the best of any other month in the year there is a steady demand from packers and further sales of car lots of Western grades were made on the basis of 29 1-2c per dozen for extras and 27 1-2c per dozen for firsts, f.o.b. Winnipeg, and 1-2c per dozen less f.o.b. Saskatchewan. The receipts in Montreal were 1,574 cases as compared with 3,153 for the same day last week, and 3,373 for the corresponding day a year ago.

For the first time in the history of the local potato trade the celebrated Netted Gem potatoes have been brought here from British Columbia and they have sold in car lots on track here at $4.10 per 90 pounds.

The receipts of butter today were 1,575 packages, as compared with 111 for the same day last week, and 1,255 for the coresponding day a year ago. The feature of the trade was the pronounced weakness that developed in the market and prices scored a further decline of 2c to 2 1-2c per lb, but even at this reduction there was no disposition on the part of buyers to operate and business in all quarters of the trade was reported very quiet.

In sympathy with the above, the jobbing price of butter was reduced today 2c per lb., with Canadian No. 1 pasteurized creamery selling at 39c per lb. in solid packages, and at 40c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks, while Australian and New Zealand No. 1 pasteurized sold at 38c per lb. in solid packages, and at 39c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 62 boxes, as against 76 for the same day last wek, and 516 for the corresponding day a year ago. Owing to the continued downward tendency of prices for butter of late, a much easier feeling prevails in the market for cheese, but in the absence of any business passing it is somewhat difficult to quote prices for fodder-made goods at present.

Sterling demand $4.85 7-8.
Sterling cables $4.86 1-2.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, April 7 (Canadian Press).—Eastern markets continue weak under heavy receipts. Bad weather conditions continue to prevail in the West and receipts are light as a result.

Toronto—Receipts are increasing fast and the market is easy. It is thought that the American importations for the year are practically ended. Prices to retailers, extras 35 to 36, firsts 33 to 34, seconds 30.

Montreal—Receipts show a further slight increase. Prices to retailers extras 37 to 38, firsts 36, seconds 31 to 33.

Winnipeg—Prices to retailers extras 35, firsts 32, seconds 27.

DUCHESS GIVES WOMEN COUNSEL

Political Motive Should Be Desire to Serve, Says Duchess of Atholl.

OTTAWA ADDRESS.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 8 (Canadian Press)—"If we women go into public life, claiming no special privileges, and showing that we are not there for our own interests or any excitement of life, but to work, to learn and to serve others, then we shall find I am sure a very kindly welcome from the men," so declared her grace, the Duchess fo Atholl, M.P., in addressing members of the Ottawa Women's Canadian and Ottawa University Women's Clubs at a luncheon given in her honor yesterday.

"As women, we have all been very busy in our home life and we must never forget that the home life is the chief sphere for women. Of course it is not the only sphere," she told the gathering.

"I find the women of England and Scotland keenly interested in politics. Among most is an evident desire to be better informed on public questions and to understand more of politics. It is hard often for women to find time to become sufficiently informed on questions of the day.

Home Problems First

In this connection one of the most essential things we have to learn is a sense of proportion and balance. As women, we must consider home problems first, those things pertaining to the life of the individual, such as health and education."

The Duchess felt certain that in the main, women in public life were contributing most to such subjects. She urged her audience of women to bring into their politics, practical common sense and thrift. She thought it wise to study national finance as one would home finance; to find out how much was in the purse, before spending any money. They should know when the national defence was adequate.

Her excellency, Lady Byng of Vimy, Premier W. L. Mackenzie King, members of the Cabinet, the supreme court, the clergy and prominent men and women in the city attended the luncheon.

Premier's Felicitation

In moving the vote of thanks to Lady Atholl, Premier King said:

"We of the Dominion are glad to have her grace as a guest at the present time. Few women in history have quite so illuustrated in their lives, the extent to which it is possible for home life to be combined with that of the state. In that regard, her grace has been an inspiration, not only to women, but to men."

AGED WOMAN DIES FROM BAD BURNS

Miss Watts Terribly Injured When Gas Stove Explodes.

KINGSTON, April 8.—(Special). Burns received in a gas explosion at the home of Mrs. F. Welch, Clergy street, on Saturday afternoon caused the death of Miss Anne Elizabeth Watts, aged 72 years, on Sunday. Deceased was engaged in preparing dinner and was lighting the gas oven when the fumes exploded, the flames igniting the dress of the deceased. Her screams brought Mrs. Welch and the latter wrapped a coat around Miss Watts and extinguished the flames but not before the woman had suffered terrible burns. Miss Watts had been acting as a companion for Mrs. Welch for some time. One brother, John Watts, of this city, survives. The late Miss Watts was born in Barriefield, but had lived in New York the greater part of her life.

Strained Nerves are Starved Nerves

SOMETIMES we feel utterly incapable of further mental or physical effort; sometimes we feel irritable or depressed. In either case our nerves are strained and starved. This condition is due to an insufficient supply of those food elements which renew and restore the nerve tissues.

"Ovaltine" is used the world over to restore starved nerves. It provides a healthful, natural way of restoration. This delicious food beverage is an unique concentration of the vitalizing and energizing elements of ripe barley malt, creamy milk, fresh eggs and cocoa. It is assimilated without digestive effort and immediately imparts vitality and energy to the nervous system.

FIRE DETROYS PHOTO STUDIO

Routs Occupants of Other Premises in Winnipeg Building.

DAMAGE $40,000.

WINNIPEG, April 8.—(Canadian Press).—Fire which broke out in a photo supply studio on Notre Dame avenue, in the heart of the business district, early yesterday gutted two floors of the Lindsay building, routed the occupants of the building and two adjoining hotels from their quarters, and caused damage estimated at $40,000.

The Charles E. Meyers Photo Supply Company suffered a loss of $30,000 when the premises were burned out.

The fire ate through the block to a news stand on Garry street and destroyed stock and fixtures valued at $3,000.

The premises of the Guards' Association situated on the second floor were destroyed while additional damage was done to apartments in the building by smoke and water.

Guests at the Trocadero and Lindsay hotels, situated on the other side of the block containing the studio, were forced to flee, many of them making hurried exits in their night clothes.

DIVER SEARCHING FOR BOY'S BODY

Kingston Man Sent To Madoc To Seek Drowned Lad.

IN BLACK RIVER.

KINGSTON, April 8.—(Special to the Examiner)—Mr. Joseph Compeau, diver employed by the Donnelly Wrecking and Salvage Company, of this city, has left for Madoc, to assist in the search being made for Raymond Manchester, the lad who was drowned in the Black River on Tuesday of last week. On Sunday night a telephone message was received in the city, with the request that a diver be sent to the scene and so Mr. Compeau was dispatched on Monday afternoon by Capt. John Donnelly.

WARKWORTH GETS CALL FOR ELECTION

Summer Campaign Is Regarded as Certainty.

(By a Staff Reporter)

WARKWORTH, Apr. 8—Among the Conservative party leaders here it seems to be taken for granted that there is to be a Provincial election sometime during the summer and that the paramount issue is to be government control of the sale of liquor. Word has been received from a high authority in Toronto to get busy without delay, so as to have the local organization in good working order. It is especially desirable that all local differences be smoothed over so that the party can go into the nominating convention with a united front and unanimously agree upon a candidate.

With the liquor question to the fore again, more prominently so than it has ever been in any previous campaign, it is realized that in a dry constituency with so active and aggressive minority of the wets, it will be no easy matter to settle upon a candidate who will be even moderately acceptable to all factions.

A rumor that is giving the regular party leaders no little concern, has it that the Progressives will come to life again and that they will put up a man about whose friendly attitude to the cause of prohibition there is no doubt.

BASE ESTABLISHED BY ARCTIC AVIATOR

Captain Wilkins Makes Safe Return To Fairbanks.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, April 8—(Canadian Press)—Captain George Hubert Wilkins, leader, and Lieut. Carl Benjamin Eielson, aviator of an expedition seeking land by flight over the Arctic Ocean, landed perfectly here yesterday on return from Point Barrow, Alaska.

The Wilkins-Eielson machine, known as the Alaskan, circled Fairbanks before landing on the field of the Fairbanks Airplane Corporation, where it hopped off one week ago. It took 3,000 pounds of supplies to Barrow and executed from there a flight over the Arctic that penetrated further north than any human being is recorded to have gone previously in that region.

The plane on its return reached Circle City, 150 miles northwest of here, Tuesday and left Circle City yesterday.

He only fears men who does not know them, and he who avoids them will soon misjudge them.

MUSSOLINI CALMED ROMAN CROWD BY SELF CONTROL AFTER WOMAN FIRED REVOLVER INTO HIS FACE

Nostrils Pierced By Bullet—Habitual Gesture Probably Saved His Life.

WOMAN PROTECTED.

Assailant an Eccentric Irish Woman of Titled Family.

ROME, April 8. — (Canadian Press.)— Benito Mussolini, strong man of Italy, was near to death yesterday. He had just emerged from the Congress of Surgeons, and had raised his arm in salute to the plaudits of the multitude when a woman pressed a revolver into his face and fired.

At that very moment, Mussolini, as is his habit, threw back his head; the bullet passed through his nostrils, and, with a quick step backward the Fascist leader put his hand to his face and drew it away covered with blood.

Snatched From Mob.

His assailant, believed to be an Irish woman, the Hon. Violet Albina Gibson, the 50 year old sister of Baron Ashbourne, a resident of Compiegne, France, was seized by a carabinier and dragged to a place of safety, for in an instant the thousands who had gathered to acclaim the premier were in a frenzy of excitement and rage.

With Mussolini at the time were Prof. Roberto Alessandri, and the noted surgeon, Raffaele Bastianelli, and they rushed to his aid. It was Bastianelli who dressed the wound and later he issued a statement saying: "The premier was wounded by a firearm, the bullet perforating both nostrils, but without grave results."

Notwithstanding his injury, Mussolini desired to enter his automobile, but he was induced to return to the capitol. He was perfectly tranquil, seemingly not thinking of himself, and was only anxious that no grave consequences among the people should arise from the attempt.

"I desire that the country be not alarmed," he exclaimed. "I do not want reprisals. It is my will."

Mussolini Reappears.

Shortly afterwards he re-appeared before the crowds who cheered him and would have carried him shoulder-high. Mussolini smiled and again gave the Roman salute ,and then drove away with Alessandri and Bastianelli.

The Hon. Violet Gibson was in a state of prostration after her arrest; she almost collapsed on realizing that she had been saved from the infuriated mob.

Acknowledging the name of Violet Albina Gibson, she declined to make any statement. The revolver which she used is of French make. Only one shot was fired. The weapon was fastened to her wrist with a handkerchief. She had in her possession a bottle containing iodin mixed with some other liquid. The authorities are of the opinion that she intended to drink the mixture after her attempt against Mussolini, but either changed her mind or was unable to carry out her intention owing to her overwrought condition.

It is only a few days ago that Mussolini, in the course of a speech exclaimed: "It is beautiful to live, but it is still more beautiful if it is necessary to die."

Woman An Eccentric.

LONDON, April 8.— (Canadian Press.)— Late reports from Rome last night left hardly a doubt that Mussolini's assailant was the Honorable Violet Albina Gibson, Baron Ashbourne's middle-aged sister, who is described as "of eccentric habits."

Neither the present baron, who married a French woman and lives habitually in France, nor any other member of the family resides in Ireland, the ancestral home of the family.

Violet Albina Gibson was born in 1876 at Dalkey, County Dublin, and a little over a year ago was the central figure of a dramatic incident in Rome. Some time previously her friends say, her life had been spent in mystic contemplation. She remarked that illness had filled her with one great desire—to leave a mundane world, inspired possibly by the motto on the family coat of arms—"Coelestes Pandite Portae" (Open, Oh Heavenly Gates). She was devoutly religious and went to Rome in December 1924 for the papal jubilee ceremonies and stayed at a convent.

One day the mother superior, alarmed at hearing a shot-like sound, knocked at Violet's door. Apparently the woman had shot herself, but was able to open the door. She asked for a priest, to whom she stoically told of her action, explaining that she had "tried to die for the glory of God." She was sent to a hospital and recovered.

Her friends say that she never took a prominent part in Irish politics. Her mother died in England about a month ago.

Her Face Was Covered With Large, Red Pimples

Miss Greta Carlisle, 23 Leonard St., Brantford, Ont., writes:—"A short while ago, my face was completely covered with large red pimples, and it seemed that it was almost impossible for me to get rid of them, as nothing I took seemed to do me any good.

One day I noticed an advertisement of

and I will never regret the day I bought it, as, now, my face is entirely cleared up of blotches and pimples of every kind."

PRINCE OF WALES TO REST AT SANDWICH

Continue Recuperation From Recent Operation.

LONDON, April 8 (Canadian Press).—The Prince of Wales left London yesterday by automobile for Sandwich, where he will rest and continue his recuperation from the effects of his recent aural operation. He expects to return to London next Monday or Tuesday, and plans then to go to Biarritz about April 17, making a journey which was postponed on account of his ear trouble.

The Prince looked fairly well as he drove away although he still wore a black pad over the ear which troubled him. It is learned on good authority that it was his physicians' advice that he spend the first stage of his convalesence at Sandwich. He will stay at a small house on Sandwich Bay and plans to play several rounds of golf on the nearby links.

Oldest Queen's Graduate Is In University Movies

KINGSTON, April 8.—(Special).—Prof. George D. Ferguson, of this city, the oldest living graduate of Queen's University, who received the degree of B.A. in the year 1851, will have an important place in the forthcoming motion picture which will depict the development of the university and its student activities.

Dr. Ferguson, at the age of 96 years, is still very active, and his appearance in the movies will be most interesting.

That "Kruschen" Feeling!

It Puts the Spring in Spring-cleaning!

Who says Spring-cleaning isn't jolly?

It's one of the biggest "larks" in the whole year to those who know how to make it so. Out come buckets and brooms, sleeves are rolled up, and everyone sets to work cheerily to set the house to rights. No one grumbles, no one gets worried or irritable.

That's how you ought to tackle Spring-cleaning, and you can, if you go about it in the right way.

When you have that feeling of not being quite up to the mark, and housework is a long dreary drudge that never seems to be finished — there is something wrong with your health.

That "something is almost entirely a matter of your internal system. Your liver and kidneys are not working as they should, with the result that poisonous waste matter is collecting in the blood and lowering the tone of the body. You must take steps to put that right—in the Kruschen way.

Every morning, in your breakfast cup of coffee or tea, take as much Kruschen Salts as will lie on a 10 cent piece. You can't taste the tiny dose, but it effectually cleanses your blood and clears your system of the waste material that is depriving you of vigour. Soon you will begin to feel better, more full of life and vitality, fresh and smiling, strong and well from first thing in the morning till late at night.

You owe it to yourself to start the Kruschen habit at once. The sooner you do so, the sooner you will get back that glorious feeling of radiant health — the much-talked-of "Kruschen feeling."

Tasteless in Coffee or Tea

Put as much in your breakfast cup as will lie on a 10 cent piece. It's the little daily dineful that does it.

Kruschen Salts

Good Health for Half a Cent a Day

A 75c bottle of Kruschen Salts contains 180 doses — nearly enough for six months — which means good health for less than half a cent a day. The dose prescribed for daily use is "as much as will lie on a 10 cent piece," taken in the breakfast cup of coffee or tea. Every druggist sells Kruschen. Get a 75c bottle to-morrow.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin
—Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute.
—Milton.

J. E. D.—You have a strong, highly developed nature, eminently fitted to cope with the circumstances of daily life, and endowed with much love of your fellow man. You will find your greatest happiness and success in bringing joy and happiness to the lives of others and in doing this, you must strive to cultivate the faculty of not seeing those little things that annoy. If other people do not do things just as you would wish, try and remember that everyone isn't like you. It is partly your own fault for not trying to comprehend their opposite viewpoint. You have an individual way in all things and should always try to be individual, while trying not to compel others to follow in your steps. Strive for tolerance, for control of worry habits and of a tendency to overdo yourself in any task, and for a broad outlook on life. You are high-minded and self-confident, and possessed of a large degree of keen mentality. You were born on Saturday. Your colors are red and brown.

E. M. G.—You have a great deal of vitality and a generally healthy temperament, capable of much mental and physical endurance. You make friends readily when you wish, but have the knack also of freezing up hard whens you want to. When your sympathies are aroused, you are kindly disposedf but as a rule you feel that your own interests require most of your time and attention. You have a good deal of control over the minds of others but very little over your own impulses. You are inclined to be impulsive and headstrong and are impatient of results, once you make up your mind to do a certain thing. You are capable of great things if you can be induced to stick to any one thing long enough. Your great difficulty in life is an inborn tendency towards change. You are not always dependable, and this is a pity, because you have a nice type of character. Much of the trouble that comes to you is due to this source your unreliability and habit of fickleness. It may seem a small thing to you, but disastrous consequences often follow a career in which a straight line of conduct is not followed out. You should always associate yourself with others in any enterprise and never strive to stand alone. You were born on Friday. Your color is pink. The day you ask about, a Thursday, is one for taking advantage of every opportunity.

J. H. A.—You have a good deal of heavy muscular, creative power and tenacity, that is naturally. Other conflicting elements in your nature are those of change and uncertainty, so that you are often hampered by an inability to come to a prompt decision in matters affecting yourself and your family. This quality of fickleness and a restless, nervous quality make for trouble often for you, and you should strive to control this inborn restlessness and anxiety. Try to spend a few minutes alone every day and learn the value of silence. Having a mind that is keenly alert to educational matters, you often ask too many questions, irritating those about you with this habit. When you invest money, you should buy solid things like real estate or growing crops and let speculation in stocks absolutely alone. You will have a long life, if you control a desire to over do yourself at times.

You were born on Thursday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are blue and green.

S. J. W.—You were born with a natural tendency to leadership, but you have never been successful in trying to stand alone and have achieved most when you have associated yourself carefully with others when undertaking any enterprise. This will always be so. You are independent and aspiring, possessed of high ideals, and are apt to undertake more than you can successfully carry out, having a tendency to overlook and disregard the small but important details that take up so much time. You are much more disposed to have things done for you than to do them yourself, although you will readily put your shoulder to the wheel when necessary. You put most of your dependence on your mental powers and these are quite alert. You have luxurious tastes and find it hard to be economical in small matters, but these can do away with a great deal of money. You have a manner that establishes friendships for you in short order and like to meet people. Although you are a pleasant conversationalist, you believe in letting the other fellow have a chance to talk once in a while. You have considerable foresight in business matters. You were born on Friday. Your colors are red and brown.

W. J. E.—You have always been a likeable man, with plenty of friends. These have often been chosen by you for their outward appearance and show. You have not always demanded that they be really worth while. You have a kind nature which often causes you to assume the burdens of others to too great an extent, and you have usually followed the line of least resistance. You have ability, both of head and hands, and have always been interested in mathematics and literature, with a remarkably retentive memory. You are at times quite determined and stubborn. Commercial and financial matters have always had an appeal for you. You make a very loyal friend, and quite a bitter enemy. You belong to the type of person that is very intuitive and are receptive to the mental influence of other minds. You should never decide any important matter in the midst of exciting circumstances, but should lay your plans carefully when alone. You are very zealous in any cause that you espouse. Be especially careful of your neck and throat, as you are subject to boils and general troubles of the throat. Also be careful of your stomach and of your choice of food. You should never touch strong drink. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are gold and white.

A. B. S.—You are a reasoner and thinker and take much interest in anything pertaining to science or mental achievement. At least, this is your natural trend, as you are still too young to have your character perfectly formed. You would make a good music teacher, or an equally good nurse. Service to others is outlined quite clearly in your reading. To become what you should be, you will have to work hard to control several faults that make for unhappiness. At this age in your life is a splendid time to begin. You will never be easy to get along with, as you do not care for interference, and later in life, you will have much trouble caused by your own extreme jealousy and sensitiveness. You will be keen at reading the thoughts and intentions of those about you, but you will be impatient and tantalizing and jealous to your best friends and alienate many of them through these disagreeable faults. Caprice and fickleness will have a very sad effect on your destiny, if you do not determine now to control yourself and to take one course of action in life, the straight one, and strive every day to follow it out. You have a large and true nature which may easily be twisted to an unlikeable personality by jealousy, temper and over-indulgence of the senses. Never touch drugs or strong drink. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are tans and buffs. The day you ask about, a Sunday, is one for the exercise of logic and good judgment.

M. R. D. S.—You have an interesting type of character, earnest and sincere, and with a very active brain. Naturally, you are peace-loving and gentle, but you are also quite stubborn at times and very determined on certain courses of action. You are quite individual and very fond of music and dancing. Your intellect is bright and alert and you can make yourself a very entertaining and instructive conversationalist by following out your natural inclination to take an interest in things pertaining to art and literature. You would make an excellent teacher. Your manifest destiny in life, and one that will bring you much peace and happiness, is one in which you strive at all times to make happy the lives of those with whom you are associated. This does not mean that you are to be too self-sacrificing or spoil others by too much attention. It is just the making of yourself as attractive and happy and carefree as possible, and passing on your own interest in life and happy outlook to others. It is a fortunate destiny and one that will give you a very broad scope. You should learn to overcome your natural restlessness and anxiety and not to ask unnecessary, irritating questions. Dress in pale, delicate shades. Marry a man born in September, October or July. You will make a good wife. You were born on Monday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are orange and grey.

D. S. B.—You have not given me the proper birth date. You say simply, "Sunday, July, 1908," which is not very illuminating. There were probably several Sundays in the July of 1908.

A. W. B.—You have a pleasant nature, magnetic and peace-loving, and are what is known as a "good mixer." If you had happened to turn your attention to politics rather than chosen your present avocation, you would have made a success, as you can quite easily be "all things to all men." You are a good student of human nature, and as your manifest destiny in life points to success through bringing joy and happiness to the lives of those about you, you can have quite a worthwhile existence, if you try. You are of the type, however, that seldom uses all its innate gifts and splendid force for good, so you may go through life neglecting your opportunities. If you started in business for yourself, you would be quite successful, not through aggressive tactics, but through the exercise of your inborn gifts for getting along and making friends. Always try to follow out your own original ideas and copy no man. Be careful of falls and accidents to legs, hips and feet, also pay more attention to your personal appearance, and the arrangement of your hair. March and November are your good months. Tuesdays and Saturdays your good days. Marry a girl born in May, July, February or November. You were born on Wednesday. Your colors are gray and scarlet. The day you enquire about is one for taking advantage of every opportunity.

E. B. C.—We have already given you a reading. There are too many other applications to give more than one to each person.

H. D.—If you are not married, you should be, as marriage is indicated very strongly in your reading. You would make a very fine husband, if you remembered always to try and control your habit of criticism of others. You are of the type that has so many good points that you are just a little bit critical of the shortcomings of those about you, which in itself is a very disagreeable trait. You should succeed in any enterprise connected with business, commerce and finance. You are extremely exacting in money matters and are fond of accumulating against a "rainy day," being wise enough, however, to enjoy life as you go along. You have the fortunate ability to appear to grow younger, rather than older, with advancing years and you will live to a ripe old age, in which you will spend some time in travelling, expending in this way some of the money you are saving up now. Try always to look for good, instead of bad, qualities in others, and to make pleasant comments instead of finding fault. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are gray and heliotrope.

G. L. D.—This little girl was born with a nature that is strong, active and creative, logical and daring, but inclined to be domineering and to disregard the rights of others. She will want her own way and should be taught while young to see the other person's viewpoint. This is quite necessary for her, as her happiness and success in life will only come through making others happy and successful. She is, in effect, a little miniature of her daddy and he should reflect on any mistakes he may have made in life so that he may help this little girl. She has a sensitive nature and will need careful, gentle treatment. Teach her to sympathize with sorrow and suffering, while keeping her away from it, to complete tasks once started, as a wavering, fickle tendency will work much havoc to her if not controlled, to speak quietly and not too often, to dress simply and in good taste, as she will feel uneasy in ill-fitting garments, and she should never sleep with older people, something which will make her nervous and ill. Teach her that steadfastness of purpose, truthfulness, even in very small things, and loving service to others are the best things that life can offer her. She will be a bright, brilliant, useful woman if she can learn these things and the mastery of her own restlessness. She was born on Tuesday. Her colors are all the variations of flame, from yellow to misty gas blue.

THE FLOWERS THAT BLOOM IN THE SPRING, TRA-LA

A FEW TYPICAL ITALIAN DISHES.

Italians are good cooks and have many dishes that deserve more fame than the well-known "spaghetti" if the world would stop long enough in passing to taste them. Try some of the following recipes and be convinced that the dishes rank well with those favored of other nations.

Turkey "A la Milanese."

Select a small tender turkey and clean and truss it as usual. Take three large sausages, parboil and drain them, remove the skins and slice the meat. Scald, after soaking, eight French prunes, remove the stones and halve the fruit. Pare, quarter and core four pears, and peel, blanch and boil a half pint of chestnuts. Put two ounces of butter into a stew-pan, add chestnuts, fruit, and the liver of the turkey that has been blanched and coarsely chopped. Fry gently for a few minutes, then drain off the butter and pour in a small glass of homemade wine, pepper and salt. Stuff the turkey breast with the mixture, including the sausage. Cover the breast with slices of bacon and roast in the usual way. Baste frequently.

Cauliflower Siciliana.

Remove outer stalks, trim and parboil a large fresh cauliflower in salted water. When tender, drain well. Bone and clean two salted anchovies, and mash them up with three tablespoonfuls of olive oil. Break the cauliflower up into small flowerets, put into a saucepan with the fish and oil. Stir well and when cooked add five tablespoonfuls of stock, a few capers, and some minced parsley. Serve hot.

Italian Sherbet.

Make a syrup of two cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of water. Cool and add to it a half cupful of lemon juice, a cupful of orange juice, and a quart of fruit pulp in season. Pass through a fine sieve, then pour into a tight mould and pack in ice and salt for three hours. Serve in sherbet glasses.

PLAN BRANCH FROM HUDSON RAILWAY

To Flinflon Mining Area in Manitoba.

WINNIPEG, April 7 (Canadian Press). — Application for the construction of a railway line, branching from the Hudson Bay Railway into the heart of the Flinflon mining area, was filed with the clerk of the provincial legislature Tuesday. The Mining Corporation of Canada with headquarters in Toronto, is behind the venture.

The estimated cost of the proposed line, according to papers filed, is $3,500,000.

The applicants undertake to commence construction work within 16 months from the date the charter rights are granted. It is proposed to complete the line in three years. The route to be followed by the proposed line would cover a distance of approximately 89 miles.

The Mining Corporation of Canada is closely connected with British interests and the company already has large holdings in the Cobalt and Porcupine districts. A number of claims were recently acquired in the Red Lake mining area.

Rival Claims

Rival claims for rights to build a railway into the northern Manitoba mineral fields were again aired before the select standing committee on private bills.

Bruce W. Thompson, representing the J. D. McArthur interests, disclosed to the committee that if the company constructed the road, its operation would be undertaken by the Canadian National Railways.

Mr. Thompson suggested that the committee decline to grant a charter to either applicants, but permit both bills to pass, and provide each become effective on proclamation. The company that first showed to the government its ability to construct the railway line, in accordance with plans, would be entitled to the necessary proclamation to have its charter legislation made effective. No action was taken by the committee.

EXPEDITIONS WILL SURVEY NORTHLAND

Government Sending Geologists Into Red Lake District.

TORONTO, April 8 (Canadian Press)—A comprehensive survey of the work of the Mines Department of Ontario was given by the Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, in the Ontario Legislature. Mr. McCrea also reviewed in detail the present activity in the mining areas.

Speaking of the Red Lake field, Hon. Mr. McCrea said the mining engineers of the world were interested in the development and surface indications "appear to reveal a real gold strike." The government would send three geological survey parties into the Red Lake region, the Minister declared. One party would operate between Red Lake and the Manitoba boundary, another at Red Lake, and the third east of the new field. Survey parties would also operate north of Sault Ste. Marie and would investigate the china clay deposits north of Cochrane. Reports on the results of these surveys would be published, he said.

Mr. McCrea enunciated the principle that mining profits only should be taxed.

Prorogration of the legislature is set for tomorrow.

At one time in England beaver hats were compulsory, and makers were prohibited from using any other material.

"Proper Food and Exercise," by ARTHUR A. McGOVERN
Former physical director, Cornell Medical College

A FEW WORTHWHILE SPRING PRECAUTIONS

DURING this season of the year we usually feel much better physically than at other times. This is largely due to air, which is fresher, giving us more oxygen and a keener sense of well-being. With this added natural pep, we are inclined to take some outdoor exercise. The exercise most frequently indulged in by the average person is walking. I believe that a warning to my readers at this time to take the necessary precautions when engaging in this form of exercise is most essential.

Many forms of rheumatic pains, such as lumbago, sciatica, anthritis, neuritis and similar sicknesses, are very common cold weather ailments. People very often refer to stiff necks, lame backs and that sort of thing as being caused by sitting or sleeping in a draft. If the draft alone were responsible for this, then we would all be suffering from similar maladies.

The only time when these so-called drafts have their deadly effect is when the pores of our bodies are open allowing the cold air to penetrate and strike the sensitive tissues covered by the skin.

Therefore, when we are engaged in physical activity that heats the body and sometimes induces perspiration, we must be extremely careful that we do not expose ourselves to cold air until we have cooled off and the pores have closed, thereby protecting the inner body.

As I mentioned in one of my previous articles, when walking for exercise, especially at this time of the year, we should always have a bath and a fresh change of clothes immediately after. Those who have been following my menus will notice a change as we are allowed more calories and fuel during the cold weather since we require more building foods than are necessary in the hot weather.

NEW SOCIETY EVOLUTION WAR

"Supreme Kingdom" Founded by Ex-Klan Leader To Fight Teaching.

SOUTH DIVIDED.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 7.—In the South today there are two opposing forces working to the end of banishing the teaching of evolution from the schools of America.

One view is advanced by those who believe that legislation is the proper cure for all evils, and that through the medium of State and national laws this purpose may be best accomplished. The other is held by those who are of the opinion that only through education of the people will it be possible to bring about the downfall of the proponents of the Darwinian theory.

The first view has found expression in the passage of laws barring evolution in the schools by the Legislatures of Tennessee and Mississippi, and by similar action by the Board of Education in Texas. This has been accomplished largely through barring books in which the evolution theory is stressed.

The second panacea for this alleged evil is advanced by several societies in a group, leadership of which is now rapidly gravitating into the hands of the "Supreme Kingdom", an organization founded by E. Y. Clarke of Atlanta.

Mr. Clarke has been in the limelight in the South for many years through his talent for organization and through connections with large enterprises. These have included publicity campaigns for such bodies as the Salvation Army, the Mystic Kingdom, the Twentieth Century Clubs and various Chambers of Commerce, but he is best known to the public through his former leadership of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Clarke Fighting Evolution.

The Klan idea was the child of the brain of Colonel W. J. Simmons but responsibility for making it a national organization is admittedly due to Mr. Clarke who now has entered heartily the fight against Evolution, which he repeatedly has declared is the biggest project with which he ever has been associated, and in which he declares his personal interest is far greater than it has been in any other undertaken.

The fight, Mr. Clarke points out, is triple in its nature—against Evolution, against Atheism, and against the peril of Reddism. These three, he declares, are the greatest evils facing the United States today, evils that must be corrected if America is to keep its rightful place in the leadership of nations.

The Supreme Kingdom, Mr. Clarke says, is not for personal gain, but for the materialization of a principle, and its objects and methods of procedure are entirely different from those of the Klan.

While the Klan demanded of each initiate a gift of $10, which was split between the field workers and the national offices, the Supreme Kingdom membership in what is known as the Pioneer Division is free. Later there may be another division in which a charge of membership will be made.

Catholics and Jews Admitted.

The Klan barred Roman Catholics and Jews. The Supreme Kingdom operates with them if they choose to fight the battle on evolution on their own behalf. All that is necessary for membership is for one to assert his faith in the Bible, his acceptance of God as the creator and his stand that man is the highest creation of the Master.

The order was founded in Atlanta and since that time several organizations in other States have affiliated with it, particularly in Indiana and in surrounding States, where the movement has been strong.

The Supreme Kingdom first established what is known as the Georgia Castle. Since then it has started castles in more than a score of cities. It is the intention of the founders to introduce the order into every important city in the United States.

New York is one the list for divisional headquarters which will be opened soon. Mr. Clarke expects to visit Chicago, New York and Washington this month. The Chicago office is to be opened within ten days, with E. L. Atwood, formerly of Chicago and now of St. Paul, as manager.

In Jacksonville will be established what will be known as the musical division. This will be in charge of the Lydian Singers, who have joined forces with the Supreme Kingdom. Many of the activities of the order are to established in Florida.

ALCOHOL SMUGGLED AS LOADS OF COKE

Police Court Shows Semblance of Smuggling Probe in Ottawa.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., April 8 (Canadian Press) — An all day session of police court here on Tuesday had all the semblance of the smuggling probe in progress at Ottawa when F. W. Griffiths, Niagara Falls, counsel for the Minister of Justice, offered to show the court that as a result of the operations of a few weeks, the government had been defrauded of $150,000 by the reason of alcohol being brought over the Niagara river, under a truck load of coke and later stored at the farm of Frank Secord of Homer, a bailiff of Lincoln county. James Sacco and Frank Parisi who claimed they were employed by Time Klin, Niagara Falls, N.Y., faced twenty-four charges under the excise act, and will face many charges of smuggling, also charges of having spirits in their possession and having liquor for sale.

NEW BRIDGE RULES FOR 1926 IN FORCE

Former Unwritten Laws Clearly Set Forth By Whist Club.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Ethics and etiquette of bridge, which in previous years have in many instances, been unwritten laws, are clearly defined in the new laws of auction bridge issued by the Whist Club and which go into effect today. Committees of the American Whist League and the Knickerbocker Whist Club, both of which approved the 1926 rules, co-operated in the drawing of the new code. Offenses are divided into ten sections, provisions being made to cover a major abuse of the game.

Offenses against the ethics and etiquette of the game are unpardonable, as they are not subject to prescribed penalties. The only redress is to cease playing with those who habitually disregard them, asserts the Whist Club in summing up a list of privileges that are many times infringed upon.

Other minor changes in the new rules include changing declaration. A player who inadvertently says "no bid" when meaning to say "no trump," or vice versa, or who names one suit when meaning to name another, may correct his mistake before the next player declares.

Regulations regarding cards exposed during auction were also changed. If, during the auction, a player lead or expose a card it must be left face up on the table; if it be a ten or higher card the partner of the offender is barred from further participation in the auction. If the offender becomes declarer or dummy the card is no longer exposed, but if the offender becomes an adversary the card, regardless of its rank, remains exposed until played. If the player at the left of the offender becomes declarer he may, before the dummy is exposed, prohibit the partner of the offender from leading the suit of the exposed card. When two or more cards are exposed by the same player all are subject to the provisions of this law, but the declarer may not forbid the lead of more than three suits.

Regarding the rank of cards, the cards of a suit rate ace, king, queen, jack and down in order, with two as low. In the draw, as between cards of equal rank, the suits rank: Spades, hearts, diamonds, clubs, and high is winner. If any player except dealer touch a card during the deal and thereby cause a card to be faced, making a new deal compulsory, the side opposed to the offender may add fifty points to its honor score.

A bid of a greater number of odd tricks ranks higher than a bid of a less number. When two bids are of the same number they rank: No trump, spades, hearts, diamonds and clubs. A bid, unless it be the first bid of the hand, is insufficient if it be not higher than the last previous bid. A player may correct it if he do so before another player has called attention to it, but it must be made in the same suit. If the player on the left of the insufficient bidder declare before attention has been called to the insufficiency the insufficient bid stands and is treated as if sufficient.

If any player other than the insufficient bidder calls attention to the insufficiency before the insufficient bidder has corrected his bid and before the next player has declared the bidder must make his bid sufficient and his partner is barred from further participation in the auction. In such case the bid may be made sufficient by substituting any higher bid in any suit or no trump.

ENTERTAINMENT BY PRIMARY CHILDREN

Interesting Programme Presented By the Pupils of Public School.

LAKEFIELD, April. 8—On Thursday afternoon Miss Kidd and the pupils of the kindergarten primary department of the Public School gave an entertainment which was attended by a number of the mothers of the pupils and friends of the school. The primary object of the entertainment was to start a fund for the purchase of a gramophone for this department, which is much needed and strongly recommended by the inspector. Several donations were made during the afternoon and the work of the children was commended on every hand and very justly so.

Miss Kidd welcomed the visitors in a graceful little speech bespeaking consideration for any mistakes made as the pupils were all so young. The following is the programme:—

Chorus, The Children.
Recitation, Jack Bell.
Recitation, Frances Scott.
Solo, Lilian Wannamaker.
Recitation, Beverley Graham.
Eskimo Song, Four Boys—Edward Morin, Jack Mose, Ellsworth Kinnie and Harry Hunter.
Recitation, Claire Connell.
Recitation, Harry Hunter.
Chorus, "Thumb Pins," the school.
Recitation, Loretta Coughlin.
Recitation, Cameron Moore.
Solo, Cora Charlton.
Recitation, Lilian Wannamaker.
Song, "Sleep, Baby Sleep," Cora Charlton, Claire Connell, Madeline Charlton and Marjorie Roseborough.
Recitation, Martin Coughlin.
Recitation, Dorothy Pearson.
Solo, Mayme Roseborough.
Recitation, Eric Jackman.
Recitation, Mary Allen.
Giraffe Song, Eric Jackman, Harry Hunter and Jack Bell.
Recitation, Edward Morin.
Chorus, The School.

The second part of the programme was taken up with a play entitled "The Land of Play,"—a little boy (Ellsworth Kinnie) wanders into the woods with his playthings and story books and wishes to find the land of play, although realizing that that is only a figment of imagination after all. He grows tired and lies down and falls asleep and in his dreams the well-known and well-beloved characters of his story books visit him in turn—Red Riding Hood and the Wolf (Cora Charlton and Edward Morin), the old woman with the pig (Claire Connell and Francis Scott), the Gingerbread Boy (Harry Hunter, the Three Billy Goats (Cameron Moore, Jack Bell and Martin Coughlin), the Little Red Hen (Marjorie Dunford), Goldilocks (Loretta Coughlin), Black Sambo (Jack Mose) and the Rabbit (Marjorie Roseborough). They meet each other and exchange experiences and finally discover the sleeping boy and his picture books and, on opening them, exclaim in chorus—"Why, there's our pictures." They leave him asleep but all leave him presents and when he wakes he finds them and feels he has pleasant souvenirs of his dream of the land of play.

Miss Kidd presented the prizes won by the boy and girl who has earned the greatest number of stars for good conduct, Claire Connell and Eric Jackman being the winners. Honorable mention was given to Ruby Marsden, Marjorie Dunford, Cora Charlton and Pat. McFadden.

Miss Duff, the principal of the Public School said a few words, expressing pleasure at seeing so many of the mothers out, and also her pride in the work of the kindergarten primary department which was organized two years ago, chiefly through the efforts of Mrs. Graham, and which has been of inestimable benefit to the children. She paid a tribute to the splendid work done by Miss Kidd as teacher.

The afternoon was very pleasant and much enjoyed by all who were priviledged to be present.

The annual meeting of the Lakefield District Hockey Association was held on Tuesday last in the Council Chamber, and the past, present and future of the hockey situation in the village and district was reviewed and plans made for next season. The O.H.A. uniforms are being called in unless the members pay the cost of the same.

The following officers were elected, Honary President, W. H. Casement; President, J. R. Hull; Secretary-Treas., A. M. FitzGerald.

GRANT FOR FAIR IS INCREASED BY PERCY COUNCIL

Will Be $200 This Year, an Advance of $50 Over Last Year.

BILL FOR STEPS.

Council Asks $20 From the County For Damage at Inquest.

(By a Staff Reporter).

WARKWORTH, April 8.—C. H. Curtis and J. L. Phillips, the latter the recently elected secretary of the Percy Agricultural Society, appeared before the Percy Council at the April meeting, Tuesday, to ask for the usual annual grant. The amount which they named was $200, $50 more that which was received last year, and this was voted with a readiness that appeared to surprise the delegates and may have occasioned a natural regret that they had not asked for even more. The grant was voted on motion of Councillors Laver and Sykes.

Mr. Curtis Orates.

Mr. Curtis was the spokesman for the delegation and he had a ready answer to every question asked him by the members of the Council. Reeve McCubbin suggested that the Board of Directors was perhaps top heavy with urban members and that the village appeared to be running the fair. He added that more farmers should be made directors so as to increase the general interest in the annual exhibition.

Mr. Curtis, who is a farmer himself, vigorously combatted this idea. The town directors had, he said, more time to devote to the fair and were in a better position to attend the meetings of the Board. The best directors are those who have no exhibits at the fair. The town every year puts on a sport day that brings in revenue to the fair and the town directors realize for the Board from $150 to $200 every winter from the renting of the main building as a rink, something the farmers would be unable to do.

Councillor Laver said that while he knew that no fair could carry on without outside assistance he was opposed to grants, believing that private donations should be made. For the Council to make a grant looked too much like compelling every taxpayer to support the fair whether he was willing or not. However, the councillor said, that he was going to vote for a grant this year as the directors had been the victims of ill luck in 1925, their fair last fall having been held in a snow storm.

When some one stated that the Campbellford fair was running Warkworth a close race for the leadership, Mr. Curtis flouted the idea.

"We are not," he declared, "afraid of losing the lead to Campbellford or to any other town in Central Ontario if this Council will only give us the support that we deserve. We have the best fair in this part of the province and we intend to keep it up to that standard. The best directors on the Campbellford Board, like those in Warkworth are not farmers but residents of the town and T. J. Horkins is the best man in the bunch."

After the vote had been taken, Councillor Poole, who is president of the Warkworth fair, on behalf of himself and the directors, thanked his colleagues for their generosity. Reeve McCubbin spoke of the good work that had been done by the directors, especially in providing not only an excellent exhibition every year, but a summer and winter playground for the public.

Grant to Library.

Misses M. Haisley and Minnie Gallagher asked for and were allowed the usual annual grant of $35 for the upkeep of the Public Library.

Those Broken Steps.

A bill of $30 has been sent to Dr. W. F. Loucks of Campbellford, the coroner who presided at the West inquest last week, $10 of this being for the rent of the town hall in which the investigation was held and the balance to pay for the repairing of the outside steps that gave way under the weight of the large crowd that waited for the doors to open. It is estimated that it will cost at least $50 to make good the damage but the Council moderated its demand upon the county, realizing that in any case the money will come out of the public treasury.

The Warkworth Town Hall was built in 1884 and for 40 years the steps and the shingles on the roof have been in commission. Now, steps on one side are wrecked and the roof requires new covering. An estimate of the cost of the latter work will be called for.

Take Out Policy.

The Council took out a policy from the Globe Indemnity company relieving the township from all liability for accidents on township roads, the premium amounting to $104 a year. One of the two $3,000 policies on the community hall, which had expired, was renewed.

HISTORIAN DEAD.

Miss Janet Cornochan, the veteran historian of the Niagara peninsula, whose death occurred last week.

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, April 8.—In his address Mr. Cox spoke very strongly and very feelingly on the resurrection and the after life. He knows we shall rise again, that this mortal shall put on immortality. Life would not be worth living but for that sure and certain knowledge. As Christ rose so shall we all rise, but life comes only through death. The seed must be put into the ground and die, but it grows. He said fifty per cent of people did not believe that, else the churches would be filled every time the church bell rings.

Two of the hymns were, "My God, my Father," and "I Know That My Redeemer Lives."

Rev. H. B. Herrington was able to take his services at Bethel and at Warsaw on Sunday. During the fore part of the service the new pulpit Bible was presented to the church by the Sunday school. Mr. Robert Somers made the presentation and Mr. Gordon Payne read the following address—

"Warsaw, April 4th, 1926.

"To the congregation of the United Church of Canada, Warsaw:—

"After the gentle hint given by Dr. Barber, we, the members of the Sunday-School, thought it advisable to purchase a new Bible, which we, with great pleasure, present to this congregation.

The present pulpit Bible, which is so nearly worn out, was presented to the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Warsaw, by the late Mr. Thomas Choate, on March 14th, 1869.

"This being Easter Sunday, and also the first Sunday of our New Church Year, we desired to make this presentation tonight.

"Signed on behalf of the Sunday School,
ROBERT SOMERS,
Superintendent.
GORDON PAYNE,
Secretary."

Mr. Herrington on behalf of the congregation, thanked the Sunday-school for the Bible and was glad to have a pulpit Bible, which had all the pages intact.

On the fly-leaf of the new Bible is written—

"Presented to the Warsaw Congregation of the United Church of Canada by the Sunday School.
Warsaw, April 4th, 1926."

Five members of the primary class sang "Jesus Loves Me," and when they came to "The Bible tells me so," they each held up a Bible.

Mr. Herrington publicly extended thanks to Mr. Currie for so kindly and ably taking the services for him, during the time he was unable to do his work himself.

Next Sunday evening, Mr. Herrington will give his closing talk on the book of Amos.

Rev. Walter Cox will conduct an Easter service in the Anglican Church on Sunday, April 11th at eleven o'clock in the forenoon. It is a rare thing to have a service in that church in the forenoon. The Baptists had their Easter service on Easter Day.

CREAMERY SOLD BY OMEMEE MAN

L. A. Southworth To Vacate Premises About May 1st.

EASTER SERVICES.

OMEMEE, April 8.—Mr. L. A. Southworth has disposed of his creamery business and residence in Omemee and expects to vacate about the first of May. Mr. Southworth has been a resident of Omemee and a member of the town council for many years and also took an active part in the athletic association and church activities and his removal will be heard with regret.

Easter Sunday dawned bright and cold and although spring finery was not greatly in evidence, still the congregations attending the three churches were deeply appreciative of the significance of the day and entered into the spirit of the Easter services of song and rejoicing.

At Christ church service was held in the morning. Rev. A. T. Weir took as his subject "The Resurrection." The choir rendered a beautiful Easter anthem entitled "Christ is Risen," with solos by Messrs. W. G. Stephenson and L. A. Southworth. A beautiful tribute of Easter lilies and white carnations graced the altar in memory of those who have passed to the Great Beyond during the year, namely, Mrs. T. H. McQuade, Mrs. Wm. Gardiner, Mrs. Otto Bannon, Miss Sarah Beatty, and Mr. W. Curry.

At the continuing Presbyterian church one service was held in the evening. The pulpit was occupied by Mr. S. M. Scott of Lindsay, who delivered an inspiring Easter message to the large congregation. The choir rendered an appropriate carol entitled, "Awake! Thou That Sleepest."

At Trinity United church the altar was brightened by a profusion of daffodils, lilies and carnations the annual gift of Lady Eaton to her old home church. The pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland, preached from the text, "He is not here for He is risen," Matthew 28-6. The congregation entered heartily into the singing of the beautiful Easter hymns. A number of little girls dressed in white sang sweetly a pretty carol entitled, "Easter Bells." Mrs. Morcombe and Mrs. Mahood rendered a pretty duet entitled, "Hail! Dawn Immortal," the choir assisting in the chorus.

The evening service was marked by the presentation of the sacred drama, "The Challenge of the Cross," an account of which follows. The choir rendered a pleasing anthem entitled, "Easter Gladness," with obligato by Mrs. Harold Laidley. Miss Mary Lowe contributed a splendid solo entitled, "The First Easter Morn," which was much enjoyed by all.

"The Challenge of the Cross."

In connection with the special Easter service, the young ladies of the Mission Band again presented the sacred drama, "The Challenge of the Cross," which, with a background of Easter lilies, daffodils and carnations, made a deep impression on the large congregation. "Evangel," in a long flowing robe of white and carrying a golden staff, made an appeal for disciples for Jesus Christ, inviting old and young, rich and poor, men, women and children, to enroll themselves under the banner of the King. The character of Evangel was beautifully and cleverly portrayed by Miss Elda Overholt.

The six disciples were cleverly depicted by six young girls wearing flowing robes of white and walking in turn with stately tread up the aisle represented the present-day follower of Christ. The first one addressing Evangel wished for ease of service and great reward and refused to take up the cross offered her. The second disciple wished to select her own cross, refusing the cross offered to her on account of its clumsiness. The third disciple thought of her cross as a thing of adornment, when told by Evangel that she must bear the cross and not worship it. She leaves in deep humility.

The fourth disciple, though a willing cross bearer, wishes to hide it, when addressed thus by Evangel: "Hiding the Master's Cross: Knowest thou not, He will have no secret disciples? He who confesseth Him before men will He confess before the angels and His Father. Art thou ashamed of His cross? He bore it for thee openly and publicly. Watch Him climbing Calvary's brow! See Him fastened on the accursed tree, suffering and dying for thee. Ashamed of His doctrines! Ashamed of His people! Wouldst thou be a soldier and reject the flag and the uniform? Wouldst thou be saved and not recognize the Saviour? I call thee not to bear the cross to-day but get thee into thy closet and repent, for the Master rejects thee."

The fifth disciple wished to use her cross, a ladder on which to climb to self-glory before men.

The sixth disciple came eagerly forward, offering herself whole-heartedly to the Master; when given the largest and heaviest cross to bear, she accepted her cross cheerfully.

The rejected disciples, with deep repentance, returned and cheerfully took up the crosses first given them, singing in unison that old familiar hymn, "Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken."

The disciples were represented by Christina Connell, Mildred Williamson, Jane Earle, Madeline Grey, Lenore Jamieson, and Mary Weir. The cantata, which was beautifully given, was interspersed by many beautiful old-time hymns, rendered by a group of choristers, which made the Easter service one long to be remembered by those in attendance.

Missionary Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United church was held on Thursday afternoon, April 1, at the home of Mrs. Robert Williamson. The attendance was not as large as usual owing to the storm and depth of freshly-fallen snow. Twenty-four members and visitors were present. The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Rowland. The scripture lesson, found in Matthew 17, verses 1-8, was read by Mrs. L. A. Mahood, followed by prayer.

The resignation of Mrs. J. Shields as superintendent of the Little Light Bearers, was received and, on motion, accepted.

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. Widdis, read a letter of appreciation from Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Wilson for the beautiful bouquet of flowers sent by the society on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

The president then read an announcement of the W. M. S. Presbytery to be held on April 21 and 22. Mrs. Bushnell and Miss Marjorie Connell were the delegates appointed to attend.

The treasurer, Mrs. T. C. Ivory, gave a full report of the work for the last eleven months. There were forty-two members and ten life members. The total amount sent to the branch treasurer was $368.76, an increase of $113.56 over last year. The supply fund amounted to $38.46 and the cent-a-day band, $21.26; the Wide-Awake Mission Band, $78.70.

The following officers were then elected: Superintendent of Little Light Bearers, Mrs. William Henderson; treasurer, Supply Fund, Mrs. C. L. Morcombe; superintendent of Cent-a-Day Band, Miss Eva Race; pianist, Miss E. Race.

Miss Lillian Race was appointed to take charge of the missionary topic in the Sunday school the first Sunday in May.

The heralds of the "Watch-Tower" were listened to with rapt attention and proved quite interesting.

A leaflet entitled "The First Easter Sunday," was read by Miss Lillian Race, after which Miss N. Rutherford gave a paper on "The Transforming Power of Prayer," followed by prayer by Mrs. J. Bushnell.

It was decided to hold the May meeting in the Sunday school room and Mrs. Bradburn and Mrs. Bushnell were a committee appointed to arrange the list of hostesses for the ensuing year.

At the close of the meeting, a social hour was spent with Mrs. William Connell, Mrs. J. Widdis and Mrs. R. Williamson as hostesses.

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL REPORT TO THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

It is undoubtedly true that the multiplicity of meetings and luncheons held by various organizations detracts in considerable measure from the interest and attendance at the Chamber of Commerce meetings.

This apathy on the part of citizens may be attributed to their inability to visualize the Chamber of Commerce as a force for good, (or for anything), in the community.

The absence of enthusiasm in the activities of the Chamber is largely due, no doubt, to the fact that the members found it expedient to give the closest possible attention to their own business affairs during the past two or three years.

At present there are indications of improved business conditions. With a brighter outlook, appreciation of the Chamber will not be lacking, as it has been clearly and conclusively demonstrated that the Chamber possesses the ability to render definite and tangible service to member and community at one and the same time.

In the period just closed the Chamber held twelve Executive and four general meetings.

Proceedings of the meetings included resolutions passed and action taken dealing with such matters of benefit to the community, Province and Dominion as Proposed Peterborough-Lindsay highway, daylight saving, street paving, Roxy and Gang, broadcasting; Transcontinental boatmen, publicity; continuance of Peterborough-Port McNicholl train service; reduction of gas rates; Boy Scouts' Association; Attracting new industries; Peterborough Hockey Club; Customs Department; Income tax returns; Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association, proposed improvement of local market; Alberta coal for Ontario; development of tourist traffic; completion of the Trent Waterway; Co-operation with the Tourist Association of Ontario; regulation of traffic entering or crossing arterial highways; extension of tourist permit; lights on all vehicles; conservation of fish and game; Canadian tax conference; and the Dominion wide conference of Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade.

On reviewing the foregoing it will be apparent that the year's activities have been extremely fruitful of results as we are now reaping benefits from the proposals successfully launched and engineered by the Chamber.

In 1925 the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce was represented at such important conferences as the fourteenth annual meeting of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce; the annual meeting of the Tourist Association of Ontario; the Dominion-wide conference of Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade held in Winnipeg, November 16-17-18. At this latter gathering, the Chamber, (and Peterborough) was represented by B. F. Ackerman and E. B. Fowler, who gave generously of their time and money in a free-will offering towards the solution of Canada's pressing economic and social problems.

Perhaps the most spectacular achievement of the Chamber, in collaboration with the Ontario Motor League, Peterborough Branch, and the Trent Waterway Development Association, has been the development of the Tourist Traffic to this area. The judicious advertising carried on has brought results far beyond our most sanguine hopes. Last season's harvest in tourist revenue was close to a half a million dollars and it is not unreasonable to suppose that by increasing our advertising appropriation and sending a continuous flow of literature across the border, the amount will be doubled in the future. Money invested in the development of the Kawarthas as a summer playground will return steady dividends as our stock in trade, the tonic qualities of air, the far reaching vistas of beauty, the lakes, streams, falls, etc., can never be depleted.

Our affiliations, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Peterborough Branch, the Ontario Motor League, Peterborough Branch, the Trent Waterway Development Association, the Retail Merchants' Association, Peterborough Branch, and the Peterborough Horticultural Society have progressed steadily and carried out very necessary work in the community. To these organizations and to several others we are indebted for both moral and financial support in our activities. The utmost harmony has prevailed throughout the amalgamated organizations, indicating a co-operative spirit and a genuine desire to be of benefit and to give service.

Associations with outside affiliations such as the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, The Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries, the Tourist Association of Ontario, and the sister Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade have also been cordial and of inestimable value in the promulgation and carrying out of our policies.

In the period of business depression and commercial inertia, which, we trust is now at an end, necessitating the most careful administration and supervision of the affairs of the Chamber, it was found advisable to retrench and this was done without a resultant curtailment of community effort, to any great extent.

With a sure foundation laid, the membership strengthened by the addition of many, who though not members, benefit by the community efforts of this Chamber, I honestly believe that the next fiscal year will be the most successful in the history of the Chamber.

Obviously the members are anxious to help place the City of Peterborough in the most advantageous position. The needs of the City and the problems before its governing body demanding almost immediate solution are many. As a body, the Chamber has striven to maintain a beneficial contact with the City Fathers seeking always to be of genuine service—to help and never hinder wise enactments.

To ex-Mayor J. J. Turner, Mayor W. T. Holloway, the City and County Councils, and though last, but by no means least the Press, I express sincere appreciation of their interest in an endorsation of our activities and bespeak continuance for the future.

To our former Secretary, Leon Frazer, now promoted to the important position of Secretary of the Tourist Association of Ontario, located in Toronto, and his worthy successor, Frank G. Stinson, the thanks of the community are due. To them, to the officers and members of the Executive Council and loyal staff are clearly traceable any success the Chamber may have attained in the past year, and I have no hesitation in predicting with President Gillespie at the helm, a successful and prosperous voyage during his term of office.

BUTTER AND CHEESE

coli group, staphylococci and yeasts occur almost universally in the extracts of commercial vells, and it would indicate that some of our common cheese faults might be traced to the bacterial flora of the rennet.

As the process of rennet making on a factory scale has not, for obvious reasons, been communicated to scientific journals, and little appears to be known of the methods of extraction and clarification which are employed on a large scale, our investigation has been confined to a comparative study of the marketed rennet extracts as supplied by manufacturers and agents to the trade, with a view of checking up the quality of commercial rennets now in use as well as scientifically determining their relationship to cheddar cheese manufacture.

The coagulating strength of the various brands of rennet, when tested fresh, were found to be practically the same.

As much variation was found in different sample of rennet from the same manufacturer as there was between the samples of different makers.

Rennets that were comparatively free from sediment and low in bacteria did not depreciate in coagulating strength during storage as readily as rennets with a high initial bacterial content and heavy sediment.

Ageing of rennet, high storage temperature and the growth of micro-organisms were found to accelerate the loss of strength. Light and oxidation were, as well, contributory factors.

Rennets were found to contain undesirable types of bacteria and yeasts in large numbers. A wide variation in numbers were found in the same brand and in different manufacturers' brands.

Other investigators have found a definite relationship between rennet micro-organisms and certain off flavors in cheese. Owing to the incompleteness of the investigations, this point has not yet been thoroughly proven.

Practical Conclusions

Rennets should be purchased only in the original marked container from dependable manufacturers or agents, as this is the only guarantee of strength and quality.

Cheese makers should not purchase rennet supplies in too large quantities, as they depreciate in storage as much as 1 to 3 per cent depending on the brand.

All stock rennet and that in daily use should be stored in as cool a place as possible. (below 60 degrees F.)

Avoid carrying rennets over the winter.

JOHN A. SCOTT.

John A. Scott, of the Department of Agriculture in Toronto, began by stressing the cleaning of equipment in the making of butter. In the Belleville district, he said, there are twenty-nine creameries, and the number of patrons is 7,466. He asked the butter makers to hold their standard up in the new cream grading law. A grading station is open in Toronto, where the butter makers may send samples of butter so as to see if their butter grades with their cream. The butter maker will have trouble with his patrons, but in the end the patron will be the gainer, for he will strive to have a good grade of cream.

Mr. Publow.

Mr. Publow, one of the oldest cheese makers in the district, showed how this district was at the top of the list for years, but lately they have fallen down badly and ninety per cent. of the cause of this poor showing has been traced to the cheese makers, not the farmers, as is usually thought. This means that everything around the plants should be absolutely clean, the pipes and other lines should be taken down daily.

G. H. Barr.

G. H. Barr, dairy commissioner, spoke also about the new cream grading law for the butter makers. He expects to see things improve and hopes to see this law in force by the first of May. Each butter maker has to send in a report of the grading twice a month. The department expects to make it necessary for the cheese makers to get certificates for next year and those makers unable to make better than fifty per cent. of first grade in 1926 have little hope of being allowed to make cheese in 1927. The results of the cheese factories in this country for 1925 shows a considerable increase of first grade cheese over 1924. Killarney factory heads the list with 97.8 p.c. first grade cheese and Peterborough Milk Products and the Farmers' Dairy tie for second place with 57.5 p.c. first grade cheese.

WORK ON NEW C.N. FREIGHT SHED BOOKED TO START NEXT MONTH

J. D. MacMillan Tells Plans To Mayor Holloway To-day.

ON AYLMER STREET.

All Present Buildings To Be Replaced Measure 400 Feet.

Work will be started next month on the new Canadian National Railway freight shed. This assurance was given Mayor W. T. Holloway by J. D. MacMillan, Superintendent of the Belleville Division.

The new sheds will extend 400 feet along Aylmer Street, replacing all the present buildings, which will be torn down.

The City Council has been active for some years in urging the necessity for more commodious and up-to-date freight sheds.

"Dan" is Well Known

J. D. MacMillan is well known in Peterborough, having formerly lived here. He was recently honored at Belleville, on completition of fifty years' service on the road, when he was feted by the officials and employees of the territory from Toronto to Brockville and north to Midland. There were present the President of the road, Sir Henry Thornton; and two vice presidents, S. J. Hungerford and J. E. Dalrymple, and General Superintendent F. L. C. Bond of the Montreal district. They gave Mr. MacMillan a magificent testimonial to the esteem and afection in which he is everywhere held in the shape of a gold watch and chain and fraternal insignia and an illuminated address and thousands of complimentary words and cheers upon cheers and absolutely unlimited good wishes.

In fact there has been nothing just like it here or indeed upon the Canadian National Railways.

Major Bond, who is Mr. MacMillan's next senior was chairman. Sir Henry made one of the breezy extempore addresses for which he is famous across the Dominion and internationally, and Mr. MacMillan's reply was capital in every way, his words showing the great gratitude and pride that he must have felt at this demonstration from his chief and senior officers and his fellow officials and his employees on the Canadian National Railways.

Banner Division.

Major Bond in his opening remarks said Belleville division had the honor to be the banner division of the road, which drew cheers. Its motto was: "We lead, let those who can, follow." Belleville had been closely related to the road, the old Grand Trunk, for years. Long may it continue to lead the way under the capable guidance of our good friend who is the guest of honor to-night — Dan MacMillan." More cheers. He has completed 50 years of honest and honorable achievement in the public service. What a wealth of reminiscences he must be able to relate! He is one of those pioneers who helped to build this Dominion and which helped to give it its wealth and happiness—a condition that might well be envied by any other nation. Belleville division has set an example for the whole empire. One fact I must emphasize and that is that the operating ratio for the Belleville division is the best of the system, and Dan MacMillan is the man who did it. But the men who worked with him are also deserving of the highest praise and one of the reasons of that remarkable cooperation is that Mr. MacMillan was able to inspire his employees with the spirit of service so that they smiled over their work, and did it all the better for that. They also know how to play and he plays with them. On the whole system there is no better spirit, and it is not found in dry statistics. "Whether the statistics be dry or wet," Major Bond went on, "it is here, and there is nothing finer." He knows the men who work under him and he trusts them. In all great accomplishments we must look to the top to find the reason and here we have good fellow ship personified in the shape of Dan MacMillan himself." Cheers.

Sir Henry Thornton.

The President of the Canadian National Railways, Sir Henry Thornton, K.B.E., was the next speaker. He declared it to be a real pleasure to him to be present to do honor "to our good friend Dan MacMillan and to represent the company in official capacity at this gathering.

"As the youngest employee of the company it gives me great pleasure to join in this presentation to one of the oldest, to join in this testimonial of esteem.

"The Belleville division has been a fine example to the other fine divisions of this great railway stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, declared Sir Henry. There is a healthy rivalry among the divisions in the achieving of good work and the accomplishment of fine records. It will be a very good division that will challenge the supremacy of Belleville under our good friend.

"Dan MacMillan must take great pride in his division and in the splendid support he is receiving from his fellow workers. He has reached the remarkable record of 50 years with the company," and turning smiling to Mr. MacMillan, "and I would say that from present appearances he is still going strong and may last out another 50 years.

"He started at the bottom as a brakesman and history does not state just what kind of a brakesman he as, but he must have been a good one, for he was soon promoted to be conductor, and then to instructor and he has been instructing in one capacity or another ever since. We are all happy here in recognizing this half century of fine service to the company."

EARL OF CAVAN NEXT GOVERNOR

London Paper Says He Will Be Lord Byng's Successor.

HERE WITH STANLEY.

LONDON, April 8. — Canadian Press. — The Daily Graphic, Independent, says it has excellent reasons for believing that the Earl of Cavan, former chief of the Imperial General Staff, will succeed Lord Byng, as Governor General of Canada, upon the expiration of Lord Byng's term of office at Ottawa, in August.

The Earl of Cavan recently resigned his position of Chief of the Imperial General's Staff, which he has occupied since 1922. He was A.D.C. to Lord Stanley, of Preston, when the latter was Governor-General of Canada, in 1888-93. He is in his 62nd year.

TRINITY LADIES' AID HAS SOCIAL MEETING

Many Members Gather For Tea and Brief Business Session.

A very pleasant open social meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of Trinity Church was held in the Reid Street Hall on Tuesday afternoon, when about sixty of the members of the organization gathered for a brief business session, in charge of the president, Mrs. C. C. Cragg, followed by a social hour and the service of afternoon tea, with a pleasant musical programme, in charge of Mrs. G. E. Porter.

Annual reports were given by the treasurer, Mrs. R. A. Watterworth, and by Mrs. F. C. Neal, for the basket secretary, Mrs. W. R. Covain.

The items on the musical programme included instrumental numbers by Miss Margaret Widdess, songs by Mrs. Vaughn Walker and Miss Bertha Hill, and a splendid talk on Easter, by Mrs Howard Fallis.

The tea table, prettily centered with Easter lilies, was presided over by Mrs. R. F. Downey and Mrs. J. Walsh, asissted by Mrs. J. Wolstenholm, Mrs. R. A. Watterworth, Mrs. W. Lytle, Mrs. H. Huffman, Mrs. F. Tougas and Mrs. W. A. Davern.

OTONABEE CHAPTER I.O.D.E. HAS MEETING

To Co-operate in Invitation To Provincial Chapter.

A meeting of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday afternoon, the Regent, Miss S. A. Tomkins, in the chair.

It was decided to co-operate with the other I.O.D.E. Chapters in the city in extending an invitation to the Provincial Chapter to hold its Fall meeting in Peterborough, and plans were also furthered for the holding of a bridge tea next week at the residence of Mrs. R. W. Cormack, Park Street.

Miss Tomkins was appointed as delegate from the Chapter to the annual meeting in Hamilton on April 25th, 26th, and 27th, and Miss A. Lancaster was appointed to attend the meetings of the Local Council of Women.

The first of a series of talks planned by the Chapter, dealing with different portions of the Empire, was given by Miss M. English, in an interesting address on India and the beneficial effects arising out of British rule there. A talk on Australia will feature the next meeting.

At the conclusion of the business session, Mrs. H. Doig gave a very pleasing vocal solo, with accompaniment by Miss Alma Blanchard.

PROTEST AGAINST WATER STEAL BY CHICAGO ENDS BUSINESS OF ONTARIO LEGISLATURE'S SESSION

Motion By Premier Ferguson Seconded By W. E. N. Sinclair, States Case.

PROROGUE TO-DAY.

Lyons and McCrea Review Work of Their Departments at Closing.

TORONTO, April 8.—(Canadian Press.)— The business of the third session of the sixteenth legislature of Ontario was concluded at 5.30 Wednesday afternoon. The formal closing will be this afternoon.

Before the adjournment the legislature unanimously passed a resolution protesting against the diverting of water in the Chicago Drainage Canal from the great lakes. The motion was moved by the Premier and seconded by W. E. N. Sinclair, leader of the Opposition. F. H. Keefer, secretary for Northern Ontario, spoke briefly in support of the motion. The House heard several members speak on agricultural affairs in the province and Hon. Chas. McCrea, Minister of Mines, and Hon. James Lyons, former Minister of Lands and Forests, took occasion to review the work of their departments.

Drury's Pulp Leases.

Mr. Lyons claimed that during the regime of the Drury government 16,170 square miles of pulp lands had been leased and that this was the largest acreage ever given out in lease by one government.

"All we have got to show for that huge amount of pulp land is two pulp mills, and their agreements look as if they had been made by the lawyers for the companies instead of the department of lands," said Mr. Lyons.

Mr. Lyons also defended his air patrols in Northern Ontario, and admitted that he had put the force into existence against the wishes and desires of those in the department. He claimed it had saved a great loss by fire last year, and had therefore justified itself.

Hon. Mr. McCrea announced that the government was sending three geological survey parties into Northern Ontario, and predicted that this year would be the greatest in the mining history of Ontario.

J. W. Widdifield (Prog. North Ontario), speaking of agriculture, declared that no goods were being dumped into Canada from other countries. "The goods are brought here because there is a demand for them," he said.

Raney At Atlantic City.

J. E. Jamieson (Con. West Simcoe), said Ontario should try to direct her young men to Northern Ontario. He said Mr. Raney, the Progressive leader, had very little interest in the farmers as he was parading the board walk at Atlantic City when other members of the House were discussing the farmers' affairs. Mr. Jamieson urged the government to greater activity in getting hydro power to the farms.

In speaking to his motion of protest over the Chicago water diversion the Premier said that the attempt to increase the water flow in the canal was a flagrant violation of an understanding between two countries. The amount of water being diverted was equivalent to half a million horse power.

Mr. Ferguson said that Lake Huron was two feet lower last year than the average for the last ten years and the St. Lawrence was down 3.66 feet at Montreal. Mr. Sinclair seconded the motion stating that he agreed that the legislature should make its protests.

Premier's Motion.

The motion was as follows:

"That in view of the application of the United States' Congress for legislation to authorize a further diversion of water by the Chicago Drainage Canal from the Great Lakes system, this House desires to place on record the following facts and considerations:

"The sanitary district of Chicago has for some years been abstracting large quantities of water which is part of the waterabed of the Great Lakes and diverting it to the gulf of Mexico. The province of Ontario as joint riparian owner with the neighboring states of the American Union, has a direct and vital interest in this matter.

"There is in existence a treaty between Great Britain and the United States, dated Jan. 11, 1909, which governs international boundary waters.

"It has been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States that this treaty expressly provides against uses affecting the natural level and flow of the boundary waters without the authority of the United States or the Dominion of Canada within their respective jurisdictions and the approval of the international commission.

"That the application to the United States Congress' for legislation to sanction a further diversion at Chicago is in effect a proposal to violate this treaty.

"That legal actions have been brought by several of the states of the union to have it declared that the United States' Congress cannot pass any act depriving those states of the advantage of the flow of said water and that such actions are still pending.

Unfriendly Act.

"In view of these facts this legislature is of the opinion that attempts to deal with this matter by way of legislation without reference to Canada or its interests are not in accord with the long established friendly relations that have existed between these two countries and ought to continue.

"That this legislature therefore requests that proper steps be taken to represent to the government of United States, through diplomatic channels the unneighbourly character of the proposed legislation, and the desirability of reaching an early adjustment of the matter by a mutual arrangement in accordance with the terms of the treaty."

DOPE SMUGGLER

received $500 a year. His hours were from nine o'clock to four. He was in the insurance business as well and went away for two or three days at a time, when persons using the road could report to his wife.

"If they insisted," interjected Mr. Bell.

The corporal continued to say the Mr. Metevier had collected $9,000 in duties betwen April, when he was appointed, and December when the investigation was made. The previous customs officer had collected only $1,000 a year.

Corporal Kyle said he was just back from Rock Island, where 30 roads crossed the border though there was only one customs house where the staff worked 12 hours a day, and had no time to go out to hunt smugglers. Mr. Calder did not ask further questions about Rock Island.

Tracing Narcotics

George Fowler of the preventive service described the finding of packages of chemicals and cocoa powder in a building partly occupied by Thorne and Company. He was concerned with tracing narcotics and did not stop to ascertain if they were smuggled. From a careful study of the shipper's trade marks he had proceeded to the customs department and found that the same company, Goth and Co., Switzerland, had shipped many consignments of goods purporting to be all sorts of things from phenactine to milk and sugar compounds. The consignees were different in each case, but the consignees' address always was the same number on St. Peter Street.

Clearance of the goods was effected by one Richard Dalton, C.P.R. agent at Mile End station. Mr. Dalton told Mr. Fowler that the money necessary to clear entries on all the shipments was given him by Mr. Thorne, of Edward Thorne and Company.

The names of appraisers and computing clerks in a number of examinations were elicited from Mr. Fowler.

Mr. Calder said he was trying to find out if "The element of luck or design" covered the choice of the particular package from which a sample would be taken on which the customs department would base its rating.

Mr. Fowler said that he was told by customs officials on another occasion that certain packages had not been opened for sample because the customs officers were too busy.

Found Drugs

Mr. Fowler became suspicious of any they described as "cocoa powder," and by examining any shipment thus described, he had found drugs.

In the case of a number of shipments from this firm, the customs men on duty had been the same in nearly every instance. He had reported this to the department.

Mr. Calder asked if Mr. Fowler had any theory as to the system which permitted a man to bring in shipments representing an investment of $100,000 and be reasonably sure of getting it through.

Mr. Fowler told of the small cross which he eventualy found marked on cases containing narcotics.

Mr. Calder asked if the rule regarding inspection of shipments was followed, any illicit importer would risk the loss of $100,000 or $500,000.

The witness thought not. The committee then adjourned.

SPECIAL SERVICES ON EASTER SUNDAY

Appropriate Music and Sermons Given in Cavan Churches.

CAVAN, April 8.—The service in Cavan Centre church on Sunday evening was appropriate for the Easter season. The choir sang "Easter Bells" and Miss Tinney sang a solo.

After the usual service there were eleven new members received into the fellowship of the church.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed, very many of the congregation remaining to take part. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. Totten.

On Friday evening there was service conducted by the pastor.

In St. John's church, Ida, Rev. Mr. Dewdney conducted service on Friday evening and also had charge of the morning service on Easter Sunday.

On Thursay afternoon the Ladies Aid of Cavan United church held its annual meeting in the basement of the church. Owing to the stormy day and bad roads there were only fourteen ladies present.

The following were elected as officers for the ensuing year:

President—Mrs. R. S. Staples.
Vice-President — Mrs. Richard Matchett.
Secretary—Mrs. Ray Syer.
Treasurer—Mrs. Jas. Douglas.
Organist—Miss Tinney.

Lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

The snow is quite deep, has fallen continuously for several days, so that in the yards and around the farm buildings the same appearance is presented as would be expected in mid-winter.

Weslemkoon Frolics Prove of Great Interest to Fellow Citizens.

MADOC, April 8.—A picture of peculiar interest to Madoc citizens was shown at the Empire theatre on Wednesday night, under the auspices o St. John's Anglican choir. It was the picture entitled "Weslemkoon Frolics" and as many Madoc residents had spent happy days fishing and boating on this beautiful northern lake the picture drew a good crowd, in spite of the fact that it was the day of the great storm which passed over Ontario and Quebec in such a destructive manner. In watching the scenes depicted on the screen of last summer's sport, one forgot that the "March Lion" was having his last roar for this year.

In the party of campers and fishermen of the "Weslemkoon Frolics" were two old Madoc boys, Dr. Theo Seymour, now of Mishawauka, Ind., and Monte Seymour, now of New York, sons of Mrs. F. E. Seymour of Madoc. Another Madoc man, Mr. G. Foote had left the party shortly before the pictures were taken. The exhibition of casting by the expert caster, Cal Johnson, known to the magazine world as "Wisconsin Cal" was one of the most enjoyable features of the picture, and no doubt many an ardent follower of Isaac Walton will be trying his luck next summer in as good an imitation of Mr. Johnson as he can muster.

Several of the scenes shown were of the Walker camp where a group of Belleville men was enjoying the holiday season. The pictures were taken by a well known Ontario man, Col. Peck.

SEYMOUR FARMER RETIRING TO BECOME GROCER IN PETERBORO

Neighbours Present Tokens of Friendship To Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Grills.

HAS LEASED FARM.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8—The Grills homestead on the fourth concession of Seymour was the scene of a pleasant function on Tuesday evening when about 150 friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Grills gathered there to bid farewell to a family with whom they had been associated for years, and who are now on the point of removing from the neighborhood to make their home in Peterborough.

Mr. Grills was born on the farm which he is now leaving and his home has been there ever since. He is a son of the late Richard Grills, one of the township's earliest settlers. He has leased the farm for a term of years to Wilson Thain and has purchased a grocery business at 588 Roger street, Peterborough, and will reside at the same number.

After the guests, among whom were a number of friends from Toronto and Peterborough, had assembled, John Sanders Jr., who acted as master of ceremonies, having taken a leading part in arranging the affair, called Mr. and Mrs. Grills to the front. Mrs. Ross Stephens then read and address and her husband presented Mr. Grills with a gold watch and Mrs. Grills with a set of dishes. The address was as follows:

The Address

To Mr. and Mrs. William H. Grills:

Dear friends,—We, a few of your friends and neighbors, have gathered here this evening to say farewell to you and to express our sincere regret that you are leaving our community. For many years we have been associated together as neighbors and we can assure you that we appreciate very much the spirit of kindness and cooperation that has characterized your life among us. You have given assistance whenever necessary and you have always shown a willingness to help with your sympathy and substance when occasion demanded it. We feel that in losing you we are parting with true friends and that the community is the poorer on account of your removal from us.

We would ask you, as a slight token of our regard for you to accept these gifts. Trusting that you will long remember your friends in this community and expressing the hope that you may all have a bright and prosperous future in the community in which you are about to reside, we wish you God speed in your new home. May the Giver of all good shower upon you His richest blessing.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors: Ross Stephens, Arthur Stevens, John Sanders.

Campbellford, April 6, 1926.

Mr. Grills Replies

On behalf of himself and his wife Mr. Grills made reply, thanking his friends for their kindness which had been so sincere that he regretted more than ever that he was severing the associations that had bound them together so long. Of one thing they could rest assured—wherever his future lot might be cast he and his family would never forget the true friends they were leaving behind and the many happy years they had spent in the community.

To all his friends he extended a cordial invitation to call upon himself and family in their new home in Peterborough any time they were in the city, assuring them that they would always find the latch string hanging on the outside and promising them a hearty welcome. When a man has spent all his life so far in the same community among such neighbors as those by whom he had been surrounded, when he had married and raised a family in the same place the associations that had existed for so many happy years were not lightly broken and it was impossible to entertain the idea of a permanent separation. They may be leaving the old home but are not going so far away as to prevent their meeting again with their old friends.

The evening was spent in dancing to the music of Blakely's orchestra and in card playing, the gathering breaking up at an early hour in the morning.

HER OWN WAY
by A GIRL of TODAY

THE STORY IN HER HEART

When I asked Mamie of whom she was talking she looked at me as though I were asking a question to which I must already have known the answer.

"I'm talking of Buddy Tremaine," she said in a surprised tone.

I did not tell her that she had introduced Mr. Tremaine's name for the first time in connection with herself at that moment.

"What has he to do with it all, Mamie?" I asked.

"Everything," she answered with a sobbing breath, and then there came a fresh parozysm of weeping.

"Dear Mamie, don't you think you had better tell me about all this in the morning? I hate to see you so unhappy."

"Julie, I have never told anyone about Buddy Tremaine. I have never told about how he came into my life and how he went out of it. I have never whispered to myself what he has been to me. I've kept it all in my heart. Why I did not go on with my music, why I left Madame Seria's, why I took that place as hat-checker in this western restaurant, all of it only God and I know. But now I must tell someone. I cannot keep it any longer.

"I never expected to see Buddy again and I have to have someone near me to bolster up my resolutions not to speak to him. I want someone to tell me that I am right and if I don't tell it to you tonight I shall probably not have courage to do it tomorrow morning.

"I know, Judy dear, that you too have had an exciting day, but you can sleep tomorrow morning—all day if you want to—so Julie, please stay up with me tonight and let me talk."

For answer I drew up a chair near Mamie and put my arms about her.

"I'll stay up with you as long as you want me," I whispered. "Talk to me as much as you wish and know that always you have my sympathy and that if I can do anything to help you in any way, I stand ready. Then if you wish me to remember what you have said to me, I will do so, but if you wish it forgotten you must also know that I will never remember it for one moment after I have left you."

For a little while Mamie sat still, then she began:

"It may seem strange to you, Julie, that I didn't suspect that Buddy Tremaine with the connivance of Madame Seria and Tortentio was paying for my music lessons.

"I did not. You see, I had so much confidence in my voice that it seemed perfectly natural to me that Tortentio, who seemed to be a judge of such things, was willing to take the chance."

New Fashions in Little Bonnets and a Hat

Daintiness and comfort are combined in these bonnets and a hat for the youngest set. View A, is an infant's bonnet having a turn back revere finished with narrow scallops and gathered into a round crown which makes it fit nicely. The revere may be omitted and rows of fine tucks and lace insertion used to make a dressier bonnet. View B, makes a particularly attractive bonnet for a little girl. It has a wide frill trimmed with lace on both edges and gathered through the center. Colored ribbon covers the gathers where the frill is joined to the bonnet, and fashions the long ties. View C, is really a little girl's hat with a shaped brim and round gathered crown. The entire brim may be covered with rows of lace or ruchings of ribbon, or just one ruching of ribbon as illustrated. Each style is very simple to make, consisting of only three pieces, and all are included in Pattern No. 1324, which is in sizes for 1, 2 and 4 years. Price 20 cents.

Our Fashion Book, illustrating the newest and most practical styles, will be of interest to every home dressmaker. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Delphinium Blue Evening Gown for the Young Girl.

The softer pastel tints being shown just now for Spring evening wear are so alluring that one fairly covets all of them.

However, if we must settle to one, there could be no happier choice than such a gown as the one shown above. The material is georgette, and the shade a lovely delphinium blue.

Blue and silver lace adds its appropriate trimming touches, and there is a cluster of shaded sweet peas at the waist.

THE STORY OF THE WAVES
By Juanita Hamel

The symphony of the sea! How profound, how soul-reaching is this music when Love's devotee sits watching the waves and listening for their song. Does she hear the sweet aria of Psyche and will she answer her call?

When on a calm evening Spring's fair damsel strolls down to the waves, to muse as they rock and billow on the horizon of hope, what is her outlook? Each wave seems to whisper a different story. Each holds out shining hope and encouragement. But will she be able to still the false voices and hold out her round young arms to the guileless one? Will she wait until her Ship of Dreams, which looms so far in the distance now, comes sailing in to claim her as a passenger?

If she listens to the story of the waves with a discerning ear, if she weighs well each lifting song, she will not be swept away. The day will come when, radiant and clear-eyed, she will brave the waves and glide softly to the shore of safety —and blissful happiness!

A Fashion Model's Diary

Beige Wool Crepe is Banded in Deep Rose Crepe.

Whenever any particularly exciting client comes into Madame's salon we all hang over the banisters or over anything we happen to be near to have a look.

We do this because so many very interesting people come in, particularly people connected with the theatre and moving pictures.

Today a particularly lovely young movie actress, known to us all, came in. Somebody passed the word and we all found excuses to go into the salon so we could see her.

I suddenly remembered I had left a bolt of flame crepe on one of the divans and decided I must rescue it immediately.

I think Madame realized we were all finding silly pretexts for sauntering about, for I saw a little smile at one corner of her mouth.

Presently, one of the little errand girls had her big chance as Madame called her and told her to go upstairs and bring down the two precious bolts of wool crepe Madame had brought back from Paris on her last trip.

This particular actress is one for whom Madame does very special designs as, of course, it would never do for her to order from the regular line and ever meet anybody dressed in a similar outfit.

I happened to have seen the special drawing, as Madame offered me a look. It consists of a simple straight-line frock and a lovely curved coat that is worn loosely over it.

Well, the materials the girl brought down were beige and rose and Madame planned that the rose should be used for narrow trimmind bands on the beige.

The little hat to go with it is a ducky beige felt affair that turns up in a dashing manner at one side near the back.

All hats, by the way, are dashing in the extreme. I think there is nothing so inducive to chic as the way the new hats turn up, some part of the hat being folded flat against the crown in a most alluring manner.

Breakfast—Baked rhubarb, cereal, thin cream, bread crumb pancackes, maple syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Bean stew, toasted crackers, shredded fresh pineapple, vanilla cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Breast of lamb, boiled rice, buttered parsnips, jellied vegetable salad, cream pudding, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

Baked Rhubarb.

Twelve prunes, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup sugar, 3 cups rhubarb cut in inch lengths

Wash prunes and let stand 3 hours in cold water to cover. Remove stones and cut fruit in small pieces. Wash and cut rhubarb. Put rhubarb, prunes and water into a covered baking dish and cook in a moderate oven about thirty minutes. Add sugar and cook about thirty minutes longer or until rhubarb is tender. Remove cover about ten minutes before taking from the oven to allow surplus water to evaporate.

Serve warm or cold. Preferably cold for breakfast.

RECIPES FOR ASPARAGUS TIME

Asparagus is a general vegetable favorite. Fresh and properly cooked, it is easily digested. The plant contains the usual mineral salts, vitamines, and adds variety, flavor and needed roughage to the diet.

There is a wire basket that comes especially for asparagus, and when the stalks are well trimmed, bunched and tied, they may be placed in the basket and be lowered into the boiling slightly salted water. After boiling twenty minutes the asparagus can be lifted, drained and the basket unlocked so the halves separate and drop the bundles in to a platter. The vegetable is then ready for any kind of dressing desired.

Baked Asparagus.

Parboil a bunch of asparagus after washing and trimming. When it begins to be tender, drain and lay on a well-buttered baking dish. Dust with pepper and salt, dot thickly with butter, and sprinkle with grated cheese. Place in the oven and cook until the cheese is melted and slightly brown.

Asparagus Puree.

Trim the heads from a bunch of asparagus and set aside in cold water. Trim the stalks and cut them in small pieces putting them in a saucepan with a minced onion, a half cupful of finely chopped celery, a bay leaf, a bunch of sweet herbs, a half pint of milk and a pint of water. Boil gently until tender then rub through a puree sieve. Melt two and a half tablespoonfuls of butter and stir in two tablespoonfuls of flour, cook gently, stirring until it thickens. Stir in gradually the puree, then add two beaten egg yolks. Meantime, drop the tips into boiling water and boil for ten minutes then drain and drop on to the puree. Season to taste.

Asparagus in Ramekins.

Wash, trim, bundle and boil a bunch of asparagus until tender. Drain, cool slightly then cut up in small pieces. Add butter, pepper, salt a few dry crumbs, and a beaten egg. Fill lightly buttered ramekins with the mixture, dusting with grated cheese and adding a tablespoonful of cream to each ramekin. Bake fifteen minutes in a medium oven.

Asparagus and Oysters.

Prepare and boil a bundle of asparagus in the usual way, only do not cook until soft. When done, arrange on a buttered platter, dust with pepper and salt, dot with butter. Have a dozen oysters ready, drain, dip in beaten egg and very fine crumbs, arrange on the asparagus, dust with grated cheese and sprinkle with a tablespoonful of cream. Place in the oven until the oysters are done and the cheese lightly browned, eight to ten minutes.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

WHY CARE FOR THE BABY TEETH

Of course, as we said, they will be lost eventually: then why bother to care for them?

First, there is the inevitable decay, as a result of neglect, with it's attendant tooth-ache: and it may be that because of this destruction and pain, the tooth is lost prematurely through extraction, and as a sequence, the little jaw does not develop at this point as it would have done with the tooth left in place.

Second, there is this other danger, that with the too early and meddlesome extraction of the temporary molars there is the grave possibility of bringing away, or otherwise destroying the developing bicuspid, which frequently lies within the spreading roots of the former tooth.

Third, there is the reverse condition where the temporary tooth is retained too long because of interference, through pulp disease, with the natural process of shedding, thus causing the succeeding tooth to erupt out of place or not at all either of which is bad.

From any or all of these causes, little Sonny is going to have some crooked teeth in his second set, and a mal-formed jaw, which means a facial deformity of greater or less degree.

Fourth, it is further true that neglect of these 'baby teeth' may bring about more serious results than equal neglect of their successors, since decay will make much more rapid progress in them than in the larger and better developed teeth of the second set.

Above all, remember that these little teeth are to serve Sonny throughout the formative period, which includes the years of his greatest growth and development, and that his growth will depend largely on his ability to properly masticate his food, which ability is exactly proportional to the soundness of his teeth.

SEASONS TO TASTE!

Princess Chavy, female offspring of the chief of a tribe of head hunters, arrived in San Francisco a day or so back, and much disturbed the natives with her phiz tatooed in futuristic design. Not much removed from the savages, are we, when it comes to reactions about things we don't understand?

Ancient peoples evolved their myths about angry gods and goddesses to explain thunder and lightning. We just laugh at the unusual, quite cocky about ourselves, and in turn laugh at the amazement of the "savages" over our "funny clothes and manners," which, as anyone knows, are quite normal and all right!

A wedding collar is proposed by continental jewelers instead of the wedding ring. It would be a tight neckband of gold. More gold than in rings, you see! And again does grasping commercialism holler 'Buy!' even to the tune of discarding time honored wedding rings.

Woman is the creator of human beings, man the creator of ideas. So says one Willa Muir in her book called "Woman—An Enquiry," thus disposing of all this modern woman discussion as to her true place in the sun.

Rural homes for city children if we would have good citizens, is the slogan of a certain child adoption league. And in the same breath, city social workers deplore the vice engendered out in the great open spaces where Satan finds work for idle hands to do, and where lack of supervision fosters mischief. An old question this—which is best environment, city or country?

BEAUTY!

"The barbaric bob" comes from Paris to give a solar-plexus whack to the shingle. The owner of a barbaric-bobbed pate looks like the famous Fuzzy-Wuzzy. Hair parted on right side, raised from the ears by two combs, draped back of ears with long fuzzy locks hanging below.

THE BOOK.

Why do women marry the men they do? An oft-heard question.

Mary Glenn in Sarah Millin's book by that name, married her man because she had always been an unimportant person in her little community, whereas "he had met people she never met and had a way of speaking and behaving so different." Perhaps as good a reason as most folks have for their marital choices!

THE PALATE.

Roquefort cheese salad dressing is what one thinks of at a restaurant table only, mostly. Silly, when it's as easily made at home as plain kind! Like this, thusly! Mash 7 tablespoons roquefort cheese. Add 1 teaspoon mustard, 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon, salt, pepper and paprika to taste; add 1-4 cup of olive oil, stirring in slowly. When thick, add 1-4 cup chili sauce.

YOUR HOUSE.

White curtains are almost a remnant of the dark ages, and the old-fashioned use of white undercurtains and colored over-drapes has also been discarded as unnecessary.

For the average home where costs of furnishing must be kept down, nothing is so lovely as curains made in side drape and valance style of theatrical gauze which comes in harmonizing shades of jade, copper, dull blues, orange, and rose.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

STOCKINGS

(Written for the United Press by Hedda Hoyt.)

NEW YORK, April 8 (United Press).—No certain shade can be said to rule supreme in the hosiery line this Spring. Pastel frocks demand so many various shades that almost every conceivable tone is being chosen by well-dressed women. Of course when one matches a stocking to a pastel frock one doesn't match exactly but one chooses a stocking of light color which has a shading of the desired color.

Thus, for a lavender frock one purchases a gray stocking which has a lavender cast. When the stocking is on the leg it doesn't look lavender but has sufficient lavender to blend with the frock. Women are not wearing pink, rose, nile green and lavender stockings but they are wearing light tan or gray stockings with these various casts in them. Legs must blend but must not be startling.

Of course, all light shades of gray and tan are popular at present. Each shade has its own name and shades change monthly it would seem. Among the less familiar shades are several new ones worth mentioning. For instance, "dust" is a medium dark tone of gray which looks like a shadow on the leg. "Rose-nude" is the shade which is being used for both gloves and hosiery. "Lilac-nude" is gray tinged with lavender and looks well with most gray frocks. A deep sun-burnt shade which makes the leg look as though the sun had tanned it, is chosen by the majority of well-dressed women. Nude stockings of pinkish cast are not favored by smart women this year.

For wear with the chartreuse green frock are grayish stockings tinged with chartreuse. Mauve is considered the smart shade for wear with gold or silver evening slippers.

One New York hosiery firm insists that women should match their hosiery to their complexions. Thus, the blond wears paler nude tones than does the brunette or the Titian. In all new flesh shades there is very little pink used, since more of a sun-burnt effect is desired.

The stout person will find mouse gray or gun metal becoming colors since they have the shaded effect and do not attract attention to the size of the ankle. Getting stockings to match frocks these days is like buying face powder to harmonize with one's true coloring. It's no small task.

Microscopic and chemical tests are being conducted at the laboratory of the American Institute of Laundering to determine what share of the blame the textile manufacturer must assume for garment failures in washing processes.

Easy to Gain With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast with Vegetable Iron Quick Way to Build Up Weight

This new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food but not until we perfected "ironized yeast"—which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized, becomes twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast Tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore, they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. If you are under weight, do not enjoy good health, lacking in energy and force, "ironized yeast" tablets will pick you right up, and if they fail, you get your money back.

Sold by druggists, at $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package. Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Canada.

SEZ THE DOC

I guess we're all open to good, sane advice. Let's hear what the doc has to say. This totin' a cold and a headache's not nice. Say, how can we drive 'em away?

"I'll tell ya," says doc, in his serious voice," you're all a bit careless, I guess. You're gonna be well—or be sick. Take your choice. The fault is your own, in distress.

"Use good common sense in the clothes that you wear. Don't switch from the heavies, to thins, as soon as you feel there's some warmth in the air, 'cause that's where the trouble begins.

"If pepper and vigor and health you would keep, don't run your old system to pieces. When work hours are over, get much needed sleep. Your chance to fight sickness increases.

"When fever attacks you, through cold in the head, and makes you feel groggy and nervous, play safe with yourself, and hop right in your bed. Then call me—'cause I'm at your service."

NO MORE PILES

Pastime Club Holds First After Lent Entertainment—A Presentation.

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

The Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, McDermid & Jury and all drugists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.

There was not one Turkish woman among the industrial workers of Constantinople four years ago, but now there are 20,000.

Governmental investigations in Japan have developed that the number of women workers is steadily increasing.

There are approximately 725,000 women workers in the employ of various large manufacturing plants in Japan.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

"Toxin-antitoxin is, in little children, a harmless preventive against diphtheria."

These are the comforting words of an ultra-conservative man, Dr. William H. Park.

As Director of Laboratories of the Department of Health of New York City, Dr. Park has established a great reputation for accurate, scientific discrimination. He has never been stampeded into the announcement of a hasty conclusion. My long association with him has given me substantial reason for respecting Dr. Park's views.

No one else in the world has had greater opportunity to know what this remedial method can do for the protection of little children against one of the most fatal of their ailments. Largely because of Dr. Park's enthusiasm for it, this treatment has been established as one of the reliable things in medicine.

If you have reached middle life your memory will run back to the time when babies died in every neighborhood from what they called "black diphtheria." This disease was the terror of every mother. The young mothers of the present day cannot realize what their predecessors suffered in this way.

For a time a test was made to determine whether or not the child was susceptible to diphtheria. Under the present practice the preventive the toxin-antitoxin—is used at once. The reaction is slight, and, as Dr. Park says, it is a "harmless preventive."

It is unwise for the parents to take the chance of infection when the simple procedure will guard against it. If you have a child under school age in your household I strongly advise that you talk to your doctor or to the local health officer about the treatment.

Death from diphtheria is a dreadful death, because in many instances the child actually chokes to death. If you had ever seen the effects of the dread disease you wouldn't hesitate a moment.

We are to be congratulated that the research workers are engaged in continuous study of means to prevent disease. Toxin-antitoxin is one of their splendid gifts to humanity.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

THAT only the business concerns who have become big successes are the ones who have used the aid of continuous advertising.

THAT every day in every way added evidence can be seen that advertised merchandise is enjoying wider preference among careful buyers.

THAT continuous advertising has developed, is developing and will develop more business than any and all other sales methods ever used or thought of.

THAT advertisements are of deep interest to everyone that wants the best at the price. They tell you what is on the market and where to get t.

THAT advertising creates demand and has a wonderful drawing power. People will go out of the way to buy well-advertised lines because they want the best and they know the best is the only kind that can stand the light of advertising.

Advertising brings the business to live business concerns.

Continuous advertising of quality brings continuous business.

Continuous business brings satisfying profits.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER EIGHT—THE SOFT DAVENPORT AND THE RADIO

Mister Tingaling and the Twins walked into Ringtail Coon's apartmenttment in the hickory tree, as Ringtail held the door open.

When Ringtail gently closed the door behind them, he had a look in his eye that the spider must have had when he invited the fly into his parlor.

It was a very funny look indeed, and I do wish that smart little Nancy or wise little Nick had noticed it. For if they had they might have saved the little fairy landlord about three bushels and a half of trouble.

But although magic shoes will make you little and take you places, they can't do everything in the world.

So nobody noticed the sly look in Ringtail Coon's eye as he closed the door and led them into his sun-parlor where the radio was.

There sat the radio set, on a little brown table, but before Ringtail turned it on, he invited them to sit down on his willow davenport all covered with cushions.

That willow davenport with its soft cushions! Really, I wish you could have seen it! It was as comfortable as a big feather-bed and a Cadipack automobile and a hammock and a swing all rolled into one.

The windows were all open and the breeze blew in and smelled as delicious as a bottle of broken perfume, I mean a broken bottle of perfume, and besides it was as cool as though it had been kept on ice for hours.

The poor little fairy landlord was so hot and tired, and the Twins were so tired and hot, that when they sat down on that lovely davenport with the breeze blowing over them, all three of them felt that they never wanted to move again—rent day or not.

Ringtail Coon sat down on the little stool in front of his radio and turned some knobs.

"Whoo! Wheee! Squeee!" it went at first.

Then he turned some more things and suddenly somebody began to sing, "Thanks for the Buggy Ride."

It sounded simply fine and the visitors listened to the very end.

"That was beautiful," said Mister Tingaling. "But really we must get the rent and be going now, Mister Coon."

"Just one more tune!" insisted Ringtail. So he turned some more knobs and all at once someone began to sing "Sunny."

"We really must go now," yawned the fairyman when it was finished. "It's getting late and —"

"Listen," said Ringtail Coon. "Don't miss this."

"They were singing "Who" now. Then they sang "Always." Then they sang "Remember."

Each time the tired little fairyman said they simply had to go, but before he could move Ringtail would put on another tune.

At last there was a snore, and turning quickly, Ringtail beheld all three of his visitors with their eyes closed, sound asleep.

Mister Coon turned off his radio and went downstairs. Then he took a long walk up along the creek.

"My goodness! I never gave them my rent!" he cried suddenly. "I must go back." But he never moved a step toward home.

And I'm sorry to say he still had that spidery look in his eye, and that inside he was shaking with laughter.

TACT IS NEEDED TO OUTWIT THE MORNING RUSH

(By Cynthia Grey.)

There are more ways than one to skin a tabby cat—

As our material ancestors were wont to observe!

And since the hide of a tabby cat is not nearly so desirable as seal or sable to a modern bride, we waste no words in telling her how to skin the cat, according to two choice recipes—

But we will tell her of the more than one way to tame a husband!

F'r instance—that morning grand free-for-all rush to the office!

You know that distant, brooding look in his eye—like unto the wood dove listing to the woodland call of his cooing mate—far away, wistful, distraught!

He fixeth it upon you as you pour his morning ambrosia, smile at him bewitchingly, and wait for his eye to sparkle at sight of you in your new pink smock.

But nary a gleam lights his manly brow!

He gulps his coffee, scowls at the eggs, grabs his coat and hat, runs as if pursued by all the demons of the earth and sky. And if you would osculate him in farewell, he gives you the w.k. soiled look!

We repeat—more than one way to skin a cat, and train a husband!

Give him the bum's rush of your own free will one fine day! Have the hurry-hurry gleam in your own orbs!

Ogle the clock! Warn him that tempus is fugiting! Scurry for his saratorial adornment for the great open spaces!

And laugh—inside—at the baffled look in his eye.

WHE RE THE SOUND OF THE COFFEE MILL IS A WELCOME

Every nation has some particular food with which its name is associated. The French have morning "chocolat," the English their roast beef, the Americans their ham and eggs. But the East is known by its beverages—China by its tea, Turkey and Egypt by their coffee.

Coffee and its serving is intimately connected with every ceremony of importance that goes on. It is served at every function, however important or unimportant. There are various intricate customs in the serving of coffee which indicate subtle nuances of courtesy.

But in the deserts of Egypt coffee seems much more than a mere beverage. It is a symbol of relief from the terrifying loneliness of the unending sands. For in these waste stretches, the traveler can be seen from a great distance. And when the native within his hut sees a traveler approaching, his first reaction is to start the coffee mill going.

Thus it is that the first sign of habitation one gets in the desert is the sound of the coffee mill and you can understand very easily, how welcome that sound is.

By the time one reaches the hut, the coffee is ready, deliciously hot and fragrant. It takes the place of the conventional handshake we are accustomed to in greeting. But the greeting, nevertheless, is quite as genuine and, in the stark emptiness of the desert, far more welcome.

No matter how poor or how affluent may be the house to which one comes, the coffee pot is always the sign of greeting. And quite as invariably, when one enters the home, one finds the wives and mother of the host sitting about on silken cushions. The homes may be sordid and squalid or elaborately beautiful, but the silken cushions are always present as are the women.

And there is one thing that is universally true of the women. They are fat. Great slovenly bodies and many chins grace them all. For this is the goal of every Eastern woman. She may be as slim and graceful as you please before she is married. But after she is married she must, and she does, become fat. It is expected her, and she is not slow to fulfill the expectation of her husband and her friends.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

House-cleaning days are upon us. Long, dusty sunbeams shows up the shabbiness of wallpaper and draperies before the eyes are attracted to other needs. After the usual elimination process of the old and useless and work of cleaning and polishing the furniture is done, then it is ready for the slip covers. The covers match the draperies, or should, if the room is to be done as a harmonious whole.

Where gay papers with striking colors are used the draperies are in solid colors, matching the most prominent color in the paper design. Of course, the plain shades won't do for slip covers so here we must adopt the same shade for the ground work of the patterns of cretonne or linen and a simple over-pattern in soft coloring that will blend with the paper.

One must make up her mind to sacrifice pictures if the scenic or landscape papers are used. A reproduction of the landscape papers in tan and white has the quaint pagodas surrounded with foliage in an early American design. Black backgrounds with gay flowers or brilliant birds in the cretonnes may be used for draperies with these neutral-shaded papers, as the designs on them are self-toned.

If the chosen paper is gay, it is well to tone down the colors with the simpler cream or ecru hangings and holland slips or those of striped linen. The simpler toned walls allow daring effects in draperies and slips.

The stipple tones are also liked by many who want moderate priced papers. There is quite a variety in the shadings, and the idea of taking one of the shades and building up the decorative color for other decorations works out beautifully.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, APRIL 9.

A fairly lively day is the augury based on the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects. Business should be brisk under the Mars semisextile to Luna sustained by the place of Mercury. The mind will be alert with a leaning toward inventions and research into such fine forces as radio, aeronautics, etc. In the realm of domestic, social and affectional matters the presage is for pleasant and prosperous occurrences. It is a favorable time for social correspondence.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a pleasant and profitable year in business as well as personal affairs. Those in the employment of others are under a slightly adverse rule and should not merit criticism. A child born on this day should be popular, respected, accomplished and may have a happy and prosperous life.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

THE STORY THE WEE PEBBLE TOLD DOTTY

Dotty stooped and picked up the wee white pebble lying in the road.

"My, but you're pretty and white," she laughed, "and so smooth!"

"Hum," replied the Wee Little White Pebble, "I guess if you had been rolled over the ground as much as I have been you'd be smooth, too."

"Rolled over the ground?" asked the astonished Dotty. "Why, what do you mean by that?"

"Just what I said," announced the Wee White Pebble. "You see, a long, long time ago I lived on the very top of a great big mountain."

"Goodness me!" exclaimed Dotty, holding the Wee Pebble up in her hand so she could see it better, "how in the world did you come to be down here in the valley?"

"It's rather a long story," sighed the Wee White Pebble. "Hundreds of years ago I was a part of a great rock on top of the mountains. It was a lovely home. I could see all over this beautiful valley and watch the children go to and from school. Every time the school bell rang I used to wish I lived down in the valley.

"The blossoms were always in bloom down here, while up in my home every time a bit of moss or the seeds from flowers would start to grow in the bits of sands on the rocks the winds and rains would come along and wash them away. The water from the storms would fill the cracks in the great rock of which I was a part, the heat from the sun would almost burn. Then the frost came, the water froze, the rock expanded and split into bits. I slipped from the great rock and was carried down the mountain side.

"I never will forget the day I rolled down that steep mountain side. I was mighty glad when I slipped into a little mountain stream. I was pushed and hurried down the stream into a great big, rushing river. Then one day I landed on the bottom of what they called the ocean. Great flocks of beautiful creatures floated over me. Every one on the bottom of the ocean crowded around me to find out where I came from.

"I'm sorry to say I didn't take to the water home, and one day when the waves were washing high on the shore I clung to a wave and was washed upon the shore. When I left the rock on the mountainside I was just as rough and ugly as could be, but by the time I had been rolled and tossed around over the rough ground and jostled over the sands on the bottom of the sea my sides were worn smooth as you see them now.

"Yesterday a little Blue Bird picked me up and dropped me on this road. Now you may take me home with you if you think me pretty."

"Indeed you are pretty," declared Dotty. "I'll put you in my pocket and maybe you'll bring me good luck." She put the Wee Little White Pebble in her pocket and hurried home.

"The little stone has told the truth," said her mama when she heard the story. "That's the way new land is made. Perhaps her brothers and sisters drifted out to sea and some day we'll see a new island which they have helped to build. Keep the Wee White Pebble. It's a lucky one."

Dotty never tired telling her friends about the wee white pebble, and wherever she goes you will find the Wee White Pebble tucked down in the corner of her pocket.

BAILEY LED PETES' MARKSMEN WITH 20 GOALS AND 9 ASSISTS

Collins Second With 20 Points, One More Than Ranger and Bogardis.

SEASON'S SUMMARY.

Irvin Bailey, captain and right wing of the Petes proved the most effective attacker for the Senior O.H.A. champs during the season, a review of the 25 games played by the team during the year showing Bailey well out in front in the list of successful marksmen. He not only led in goals scored but was tied with Bogardis in assists, the record showing that 20 times shots from Bailey's stick sagged the net while on nine other occasions a pass from the Pete's captain put a team mate in position to score. Thus the right winger piled up a total of 29, nine in advance of the next most successful attacker.

Frankie Collins, the Petes' centre, scored 14 goals and had six assists for a total of 20. Ranger, third of the musketeers found the nets twice more than Collins but fell behind in assists in had to be satisfied with 19 points which record was equal by Babe Bogardis. The effectiveness of Bogardis as a scoring factor is shown by his record of ten goals and nine assists, a remarkable showing in view of the fact that he was out of a number of games and was used as a substitute throughout the campaign.

Here are the figures:

	Goals	Assists	Total
Bailey	20	9	29
Collins	14	6	20
Ranger	16	3	19
Bogardis	10	9	19
McLeod	8	7	15
Parker	9	4	13

The NUT Cracker

By JOE WILLIAMS

Another sure sign of spring is an announcement by the committee that the football rules have been changed.

That's why the dozen sages who make up the rules committee get together every year and twist them all around, like untamed spaghetti on a fork.

This time the official vivisectionists have taken the forward pass and bitten their ornate initials in its hind legs and otherwise messed it around.

The idea now in regard to the pass is that is must be sparingly, if at all, somewhat after the manner of electric chairs and reptile bites.

If at first you do not succeed with it you are not to try again without suffering a five yards penalty, a tweak of the horn, a kick in the pants and indictment on the ground of moral turpitude.

The remodeled legislation has four purposes, all of which are designed to keep the public acquainted with the fact there is such a thing as a football rules committee.

"Football was getting too much like basketball," complained the big birds who authorized the change. They probably got this idea from watching Harvard play.

When Knute Rockne of Notre Dame was asked what he thought of curbing the pass is reported to have said: "I don't care what they do as long as they still count six points for a touchdown."

Or, to quote the Smith and Wesson boys: "What's all the shooting for?"

SOFT BALL LEAGUE.

Organized at Warkworth — Meet Next Tuesday.

WARKWORTH, April 8—Warkworth has organized a district soft ball league which comprises three teams in the village, the school team, and a team from the Masonic lodge besides teams from the White School, from Norham and from Dartford. A meeting will be held next Tuesday night for the purpose of electing officers and drawing up a schedule for the season. The delegates to this meeting will be made up of two members of each team.

The White School, which is already picked as a favorite in the coming race, is already famous as the pupils last summer won the township and the county shields in the drill competition. An expert from Red Lake has been secured to coach the team in the strategic points of soft ball playing.

C. S. TANNER ELECTED PRESIDENT BY CURLERS OF LAKEFIELD CLUB

Succeeds Ed. Galvin—Prizes Presented at Annual Banquet—54 Present.

JUNIORS SPEAK.

LAKEFIELD, April 8. — The annual banquet of the Lak field Curling Club was held on Monday evening in St. John's school room, and was attended by 44 curlers. The A.Y.P.A. catered for the banquet and, judging from the flattering comments made, the affair was a genuine success. The room was decorated in yellow and white and the two long tables looked very inviting to the curlers who assembled at half past six. Six of the young men of the A.Y.P.A. acted as waiters and attended carefully to the wants of the curlers.

After the appetizing meal was finished Mr. J. E. Galvin, the president of the club, took the chair for the business part of the meeting. On request of Mr. Galvin, Mr. D. H. Webster read the constitution, which was drawn up by the executive in the autumn and adopted at the November meeting of the Club.

The secretary-treasurer, Percy Spence, read the financial statement for the year, which was gratifying indeed, and showed a good balance on the right side of the books.

Before proceeding to the election of officers, Mr. Galvin spoke a few words of appreciation to the members of the club for the support they had given him during his term of office and more especially to the members of the executive and the committees appointed by them. "If the past season has been a success," said Mr. Galvin, "it is due to the good spirit which prevailed." At the meeting held in the autumn for the adoption of the constitution, Messrs. Morrison and Crawford were appointed to make a canvas for members and when Mr. Galvin arrived in the village early the next morning they were at work. The bonspiel committee were right on the job and had all ship shape when the date arrived. The committees on each and every occasion went right to work for a successful effort, and this is one of the reasons the season was so good.

The executive worked splendidly; they were always easy to get together, and ready to do their duty. The past presidents had all been good active men, and Mr. Galvin felt that he had a difficult task to follow them. The new constitution had been a great asset to the club and smoothed over many difficulties.

Mr. J. C. Strickland was asked to take the chair for the election of officers and congratulated the officers on the past season, which was one of the most successful in the history of the club, and urged that they all bear in mind in electing a new executive the importance of selecting men who will be at the rink and will give their time to the duties of the office.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres.: Mr. J. E. Galvin.
Pres.: Mr. C. S. Tanner.
Vice-Pres.: Mr. D. H. Charlton.
Executive Committee: Messrs. D. H. Webster, J. A. Porter, H. G. Armstrong and G. H. Spence.

Rev. P. L. Jull moved a vote of thanks to the retiring officers and executive saying that he would rather curl than make a speech, but felt he should pay a tribute to Mr. Galvin, who was one of the oldest curlers and youngest men in the club; his genial presence combined with firmness made him an admirable president. He was always on the job, always efficient, and all the men had confidence in his justice. He rendered a great service to the club in giving them all a good time.

Mr. Strickland seconded the vote of thanks which he considered well merited.

Mr. Galvin briefly replied stating that he did not feel that he deserved so much credit he had only done his best. It was a pleasure to be president when the constitution was adopted, and felt he could claim the credit for suggesting the method of electing the skips and of retiring to the ranks the one third who were lowest in the local competition. It affords a method for promoting promising men and will add a greater inducement to membership. It also keeps the interest up in the schedule games for the FitzGerald Cup till the very last, as it is something to play for. Another good feature was the idea of young members of nineteen years and under at half price, which encourages the younger boys and men to curl. The question of who shall be advanced to take the places of the retiring skips is the business of the new executive.

Thanks to A.Y.P.A.

Mr. Tanner the new president, felt that Mr. Galvin had covered the ground, but moved a hearty vote of thanks to Rev. W. Cox and the members of the A.Y.P.A. who stepped into the gap and provided such an excellent meal.

Rev. S. A. Kemp, who announced himself as the baby member of the club, seconded the motion, voicing his personal appreciation of the banquet.

Mr. D. H. Webster thanked those present for his election for another year on the executive and assured all present of the effort made by last year's executive to give all a square deal.

Rev. W. Cox in thanking the curlers for their appreciation of the work of the A.Y.P.A., reminded them that the building in which the banquet was held was for years the only place for meetings or for worship for years, in Lakefield's early days. The A.Y.P.A. came in at the crisis and though the notice was late they responded readily to the call and he as assured that they would willingly do it again.

Prizes Presented.

The giving of the prizes was the next order of business, and Mr. Strickland, who retained the chair at the request of Mr. Tanner, presented the FitzGerald Cup for the local competition to Mr. D. H. Charlton. The individual prizes were brushes, and were given to J. R. Northep, E. W. Bailey, R. J. Jory and D. H. Charlton. The runners up, R. G. Charlton, Dr. G. E. Renwick, W. G. Morrison and C. S. Tanner (skip) received knives.

Mr. Galvin presented the Casement Cup won by Mr. Charles Lake in the skips' bonspiel, the prizes were fountain pens and were won by R. G. Charlton, H. Wannamaker, W. G. Morrison and C. Lake. The runners up were Rev. J. J. Garvey, E. H. Northey, W. R. Wagar and G. H. Spence (skip), and they were awarded safety razors.

Rev. P. L. Jull presented the Tanner cup for the vice-skips' bonspiel, which was won by Mr. R. D. Murduff, who was unavoidably absent. The winning rink was Dr. S. J. Gibson, H. Kidd, H. Armstrong and R. D. Murduff; the prizes were knives. The runners up received brushes, which were won by C. Lake, R. G. Charlton, H. Wannamaker and W. G. Morrison.

The prizes donated by Dr. S. J. Gibson and E. H. Northey, for the second stone bonspiel were large boxes of chocolates (two and a half pounds and two pounds respectively). These were won by H. J. Sutton's rink, viz., J. W. Ridpath, R. H. Little, J. M. Simpson and N. J. Sutton; and for the second prizes C. Lake, Rev. S. A. Kemp, S. J. Charlton and Nathan Payne.

The last cup to be presented was the Douro cup, presented by C. S. Tanner in the absence of the donor, to the rink beaten by the greatest number of points in any game. The rink which this year won this triumph of the tinsmith's art was R. H. Little, N. Wannamaker, N. G. FitzGerald and T. Crawford (skip). In the absence of the skip and viceskip, Mr. Wannamaker received the trophy and the accompanying package of "Pep." The individual prizes were boxes of marbles.

Good Sportsmanship.

After the prizes had been awarded the various winners and some of the "also rans" made short speeches. Messrs D. H. Charlton, C. S. Tanner, C. Lake, G. H. Spence, Dr. Gibson, H. Kidd, W. G. Morrison, J. W. Ridpath, N. Payne, R. H. Little and B. Q. Dench, all spoke very briefly, the key note of all the speeches being good fellowship and good sportmanship.

Mr. H. R. Wagar, although he assured his hearers that he positively had nothing to say, paid a very nice tribute to the work of the ladies in connection with the banquet. "What," said the speaker, feelingly, "would we do without the ladies? I'll guarantee every married man here was asked before he left home if he had a handkerchief." Mr. Wagar related several amusing anecdotes and closed by referring to the "laurels lavished on the executive"—different from last year when he was a member of that august body.

Rev. S. A. Kemp, who is a recent recruit to the club, paid a tribute to the sportsmanship displayed and assured the members that if he is 'above the snow' next winter he hopes to continue the association which has been so pleasant. Mr. Kemp won his spurs this year, also half a case of oranges and a box of chocolates.

Rev. J. J. Garvey expressed his pleasure in the club's activities and hopes to be a member again next year. Although he was not on a winning rink he was among the runners-up and enjoyed the association with the curlers.

Rev. W. Cox is afraid he is the only backslider in the club as he too often failed to turn up for the games, probably due to lack of pep. The citizens should give the curling club a vote of thanks for the value that the organization is to the community. Next year he hopes to supplant Mr. Kemp as the baby curler.

Three of the junior members, Messrs. Roy Charlton, Ivan Crowe and Gerald Shevlin made their maiden speeches at a curlers' banquet, assuring their elders of their appreciation of the opportunity afforded by the club.

Mr. Dench enquired of Mr. Jory why his name is three times engraved on the FitzGerald Cup when it has only been up four years.

Rev. P. L. Jull made the closing speech, echoing the sentiments expressed by the previous speakers of his personal enjoyment of the sport and the club associations. Curling is a slippery game, sometimes you win, and sometimes you don't and the man sitting inside behind the glass can always play the game better than the man on the ice. We have come to the end of a perfect day, and the presence of the ladies had added to the enjoyment, providing as it did the domestic touch. We have had a pleasant evening in this old historic place. May it have many a merry company in the days to come. The singing of the National Anthem brought the fifth annual banquet of the Lakefield club to a close.

Among those present were: Messrs H G Armstrong, T Braden, F S Brown, F J Burgess, P Condon, I Crowe, Roy Charlton, S J Charlton, G A Charlton, Rev W Cox, R G Charlton, D H Charlton, B Q Dench, A M FitzGerald, Rev J J Garvey, J E Galvin, Dr S J Gibson, Rev P L Jull, R J Jory, Rev S A Kemp, N Kidd, C Lake, R H Little, J J McFadden, James Millar, Dr H E Moore J S Montgomery, F Moon, W G Morrison, E H Northey, J R Northey J H Payne, U Payne, J W Ridpath, Dr G E Renwick, G H Spence, P Spence, G Sherin, J C Strickland, C S Tanner, D N Webster, H R Wagar, H Wannamaker, A Welbourne.

By JOE WILLIAMS.

Luther "Cowboy" McCarty, best white heavyweight of his day, and Arthur Pelky, a cotton mills worker of Chicopee Falls, Mass., met in a prizefight at Calgary, Alberta, Can., on May 24, 1913.

This prizefight produced something more than a history-making haymaker. It produced a ring tragedy.

In the first round Pelky, never a fighter of genuine class, shot a right-hand punch to McCarty's head and eight minutes later the 21-year-old Irishman—a second Jeffries they were calling him—was dead.

Billy McCarney was telling me about this fight a year ago. Billy discovered and managed McCarty.

"As I look back on the circumstances," related Billy, "I can see McCarty was ordained to die that afternoon at Calgary. To begin with, the match had been called off once. There was no great interest in Pelky and the promoter didn't care to pay us our guarantee of $7,500.

"But McCarty wanted to fight at Calgary. He used to work out there and he wanted to go back to mingle with old friends. So to please him I waived the guarantee and we went out, more for a lark than anything else.

"One of McCarty's friends was a minister. As a tribute to McCarty this minister delivered a short sermon before the fight, while the two fighters sat in their corner. That sermon was prognostic of McCarty's death. The substance was that one should always be prepared to meet death.

"With a wave of his hand toward McCarty, the minister said:

"'Look! Here is a perfect specimen of physical manhood, yet in a week, a day, aye, in a minute he might be taken. None of us knows when his turn will come.'

"Leaving the ring he crossed to McCarty's corner and shook his hand!

"'God be good to you Luther,' he said. The gong rang and McCarty went out to meet Pelky and his death."

There were one or two mixes of inconsequential nature at the opening of the fight. Referee Ed Smith of Chicago separated the men. Both squared off, neither sceming any worse off so far.

There was another mix-up, a flurry of fists and Pelky's right hand was seen to reach McCarty's jaw and snap his head back. McCarty backed up several steps, then took a crouching attitude. It looked as if he were in fighting poise. But he began to drop lower and lower, his eyes rolling. He finally collapsed and fell at full length on the floor.

With McCarty's breath coming in quick gasps, Smith counted him out. His seconds rushed in and Billy McCarney, sensing tragedy, began to shout, "Get a doctor, he's cold and stiff. For God's sake get a doctor." Three doctors climbed into the ring and worked feverishly over him, but in vain. Eight minutes later he was pronounced dead. The next day an autopsy showed the right-hand punch to the jaw, which snapped McCarty's head back, had dislocated his neck and caused his death.

The men were using eight-ounce gloves; the five-ounce gloves, supposed to have been used, having been left behind, either by mistake or design.

McCarty's death was the first recorded in the ring since the adoption of the Queensberry rules.

TORONTO "MINNOWS" HAVE AMBITIONS

All of championship calibre, these little minnows hope to be big 'fish' some day, and if there is anything in good teaching there is little doubt but that they will make a great splash in the water. They are pupils of Miss Alice T. Jones, instructress in swimming at Willard Hall pool, Toronto. Left to right: Helen Carthy, aged 4 years, who is the youngest diver in the city; centre, Miss Alice T. Jones; right, Jean Carmichael, aged 8 years. At bottom Audrey Jones, aged 9 years, who won the medal for diving.

We ought never to scoff at the wretched, for who can be sure of continued happiness?—La Fontaine.

DANCE AT HASTINGS.

HASTINGS, April 8.—The Pastime Club held a dance in Lynch's Hall on Easter Monday evening. Splendid music was provided with Mr. A. N. Bailey, piano; Messrs. Alex Shand and James Knight, violins; Wilfred Knight, saxophone and trumpet; Clifford Scriver, drums. New and old dances, including waltzes, fox trots and quadrilles were indulged in. Lunch was served at midnight.

On Tuesday morning the members of the Reform Association of Hastings met in the manager's office of the Royal Bank and presented Mr. W. R. Learmonth with a pipe encased, as a small token of remembrance in honor of his approaching marriage.

Special Easter services were held in all the local churchs on Sunday.

BILLY EVANS SAYS.

INFIELD BIG PROBLEM OF DODGERS.

Unless Inner Defense is Bolstered, Club Looks Hopeless.

By Billy Evans.

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 1.—An unsettled infield condition was troubling Manager Wilbert Robinson when I gave his Brooklyn club the once over. He was hopeful that it would be straightened out before the opening of the season.

As a matter of fact, a conference with Jack Dunn was on the fire relative to the purchase of Shortstop Boley of the Baltimore Orioles.

Boley, according to the scouts, has been big league timber for six years but Dunn, realizing his value, always made the salary big enough to satisfy Boley and make him content with his minor league berth.

If able to land Boley, it is planned to use him at short, shifting Rabbit Maranville to second. Maranville prefers second. That would make a good combination around the keystone sack.

Milton Stock, who was doing his annual holdout stuff, will, of course, be seen at third if salary matters are cleared up before the season opens.

Manager Robinson believes an infield made up of Stock, Boley, Maranville and Fournier would make his club a first division possibility.

"My pitching is more than satisfactory," says Robbie, in discussing his club. "It compares favorably with any other staff in the National League.

"The outfield, made up of Wheat, Witt and Cox, will hold its own and the catching is competent.

"The status of the club, therefore, goes right back to the infield situaiton. If it is a mere makeshift affair then we are due for a stormy session. If able to bring it up to the major league standard, the Dodgers will make trouble.

"Fine pitching should carry the club over a lot of handicaps, provided our defense is at all adequate."

It was apparent that Manager Robinson is decidedly worried over the infield situation and well he need be. No club can hope to get anywhere without a tight infield.

The veteran Maranville is playing a bang-up game at short. He would rather play second, however, and Robinson would prefer having him cover the keystone sack.

A youngster by the name of Standart was being used at second. He comes from Springfield in the Eastern League. Playing out of position and lacking experience, it is far too much to ask him to hold up his end of the infield problem.

The Dodgers look like a real ball club everywhere except in the infield. However, much good pitching and plenty of batting punch can be thrown to the winds if the infield fails to properly function.

Plugging up holes at short and third is Robinson's problem. The acquisition of Boley from Baltimore and the signing of Stock would relieve the situation.

Unless these things happen there is hardly a chance for the Dodgers to land in the first division, despite the fact that the club is otherwise very capable.

M'GRAW THINKS TEAM WILL WIN

Predicts 1926 World Series Between Giants and Senators.

ERA OF PROSPERITY.

NEW YORK, April 8 (Canadian Press).—John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, celebrated his 53rd birthday anniversary by predicting the 1926 world series would be played by his team and the Washington Senators, who defeated the Giants in the 1924 classic. He did not, however, overlook the Philadelphia Athletics, whom he classed as not quite as "smart" as the Washington club.

The New York boss forecasts an era of baseball prosperity which will soon bring a stadium seating at least 100,000 fans in every major league city.

The Giants and the Senators, rained out yesterday at Augusta, Georgia, will resume their series today at Atlanta.

Detroit Tigers, who again defeated Birmingham, invaded Nashville today after a game.

Harry Heilmann, outfielder, who has been ill, will join the squad on Saturday.

Beaver Meadow Golfers Look Forward To Another Good Season.

A meeting of the members of the Beaver Meadow Golf Club took place on Tuesday night in the rooms of the Confederation Life Association. There was a good turn out and every one was well satisfied with the success of the club last year.

A number of improvements will be made this year and additional land has been procured adjoining the present site. This year promises to be even more successful than last. There are already a large number of applications for membership.

The following officers were elected for season 1926:

President—F. Bowness.

Vice-President—Bert Watts.

Greens Committee—E. Gordon Evans, M. C. Metherel, J. H. French.

R. MacMorran, 590 Cherbrooke Street, was again elected secretary-treasurer.

EXCLUDE O.B.U. MEMBERS.

Wage Agreement Only With International Men.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 8.—(Canadian Press.)—The Winnipeg Electric Company yesterday definitely declined to negotiate a new working agreement with members of its traction department who are affiliated with the One Big Union. Employes holding International cards closed an agreement providing for a nominal increase in wages and improvement in working conditions.

"The spreading of exceedingly disloyal and damaging propaganda against the company, by members of the O.B.U." is given by the company as the reason for its stand.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, April 8. — Sights and thoughts along the Boulevard: John Bowers pleading with motor cop not to tag him . . . these Hollywood policemen know whom to tag in order to get mentioned in the newspaper stories . . . Leatrice Joy, bareheaded to reveal the latest in boy bobs for girls . . . moving a house down the famed and failing way . . . it causes more excitement than a murder . . . yeh, too many killings in these parts to get terribly curious. . . . Edward Everett Horton, little man with big name, who graduated from Columbia with honors and now finds himself a movie star . . . where are all the people going? . . . Oh, into that funny little shop there, Papa, where they buy hops, bottles and corks . . . there are more cork and bottle palaces here than there are beauty shops, and moviedom where youth is at a zenith, leads the world in "houses of rejuvenation" . . . one can get a face lifted here while changing trolleys, almost . . . Stan Laurel getting his shoes shined . . . he used to be a star and now he is taking a fling at directing . . . how quickly they cease to shine, not the shoes, but the stars, when they slip from their lofty niches and dismiss their press-agents. . . . Fred Esmelton, the actor, who has high blood pressure, taking it easy down the street. . . . Eddie Kaufman jaywalking across the corner . . . he used to be a silk salesman and now he writes calico yarns for the screen . . . taxi-driver cranking his hack . . . he'll be a movie director tomorrow so don't talk back to him . . . another crematory is being built over there . . . even "extras" become star dust after death . . . I smell ivory burning . . . some star fell in the burning pits, I guess . . . wonder what's become of Doris Mitchell, film star of yesteryear? . . . once she was brightest who had ever flared on the old Essanay lot . . . and now? . . . evidence of the stuff from which movie fame is made . . . no glory is more unstable than the fates that follow in the uncertain wake of a movie title or crown . . . and the Valentinos, Negris, Swansons and the rest take themselves so seriously . . . amen.

Mabel Normand, remembered more or less because her last chauffeur shot a sweetie belonging to Edna Purviance, is getting ready to hire another.

"Before I engage another one, however, I'm going to have a psychopathic examination made of him," Mabel says.

Different stars have peculiar aversions. Pola Negri doesn't like to be quoted in the vernacular. In other words, she doesn't enjoy having a writer spell her words the way she pronounces them. One writer, Alma Whittaker, quoted correctly of Pola in this manner: "Luff ces a great thing."

Now Pola won't have a thing to do with Alma. Now isn't that just too horrid for anything. Alma has hung a yellow ribbon of mourning on her Underwood.

Eric von Stroheim remains "artistic" in all things. Lasky studio asked him to film a "trailer"—a few hundred feet of film which introduces the highlights of a coming picture. He consented and drew up his plans. Studio heads thought it was a "knockout" until—they estimated the cost and learned it would run about $25,000. No trailer in Hollywood has ever cost more than $1500. But, of course, Eric von Stroheim hasn't ever made any and probably never will now.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

CLUBS

One great mistake is in getting two wooden clubs that do not match. Many so-called good golfers have a brassie of one type and a driver of another. This is a handicap in a way, and the beginner might save a lot of time and trouble if he were to get wooden clubs that were mates.

For accurate driving, a whippy shaft is a hopeless proposition. When I got to England last year I decided to get a new driver made exactly like the old one. The club turned out very well and it was so close an imitation that I could not feel any difference, but never theless there was always that temptation to go back to the old club. The new club was in every way as good as the old one, but I really felt like I was deserting an old friend in casting it aside.

In my wooden clubs I always put a little kink in the shaft just at the point where the grip starts. I make my grip, or the handle of the club, point in a straight line to the centre of the club-head where I hit the ball.

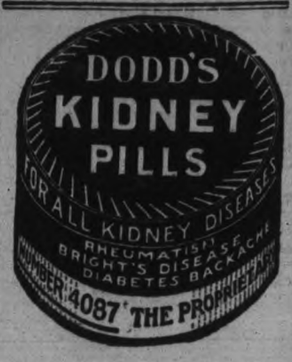
TY COBB

By NEA Service

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 7.—Here's our old friend Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tygers, as scores of major league pitchers wish he might have always been — wearing dimmers. He was snapped just after joining his team from Baltimore, where he underwent an operation for the removal of a growth from his left optic. Despite the lamp shades, Ty showed he could hit 'em in his first practice of the season. He'll sport the "blinds" for the next week or two.



AT THE CAPITOL.

"SWEEPSTAKES" STARRING HOOT.

Popular Western Favorite in Exciting Picture.

Hoot Gibson, regarded by many as the most popular rough-riding sceen star in the profession to-day, has been provided with a new play that is certain, according to advance reports, to add many friends to those old ones who already number legions. It is called "The Arizona Sweepstakes" and is a Universal-Jewel. It will be screened at the Capitol Theatre to-day.

"The Arizona Sweepstakes" is a clean, strong drama of the kind that makes a hit with every type of audience. Through it runs a sentimental little love story bound around with bright comedy and thrilling episodes. The company supporting the star is particularly noteworthy.

For example, there is Philo McCullough who seems destined to always play the villain. In fact it is doubtful if movie fans would have him in any other role. In "The Arizona Sweepstakes" he is Jonathan Carey, smooth millionaire, city man, turned rancher, who matches wits with "Coot" Cadigan (Hoot Gibson), Arizona cowpuncher, in a battle for the girl. The girl is Helen Lynch in real life, but in the play she is Nell Savery, daughter of Col. Tom Savery, the latter role being played by Emmet King.

The list of old favorites to be found in the cast does not stop with those already mentioned. For example there is Kate Price, beloved portrayer of character parts whose comedy and big heartedness shine forth throughout the picture. She is a product of old Ireland and has had many years' experience on the stage before entering screen plays. Also is to be found George Ovey, whose name was long a drawing card in musical comedy. Ovey has not forgotten the art of making people laugh, for as "Stuffy" McGee, the city tough, he gets the most out of a highly amusing role. In this he finds worthy assistants in Miss Price and three very clever children, Billy Schaeffer, Jackie Morgan and Turner Savage. The name of Tod Brown, who is cast in the part of a city detective, completes the list of the principal members of the supporting company. The production was directed by Clifford Smith, whose practical experience as a rancher before he entered pictures has resulted in "The Arizona Sweepstakes' being surrounded with the proper atmosphere of western life.

AT THE REGENT

FORD'S BOATS IN SERIAL.

"Green Archer" Thrills Staged on Merchant Fleet Purchased By Millionaire.

The fleet of wartime vessels of the merchant marine, recently bought by Henry Ford, which event caused Will Rogers to remark that hereafter, when your flivver showed a desire to turn off the road into the water, let it go!—it was merely temporarily returning to its native haunts, is the scene of some exciting action in the sixth chapter of "The Green Archer" showing to-day at the Regent Theatre, with Allene Ray and Walter Miller featured.

These ships have for many years lain anchored along an especially picturesque stretch of banks of the Hudson River, with the Storm King peaks rising in majesty to the clouds. When the action of Edgar Wallace's mystery novel, from which the Patheserial adaptation of "The Green Archer" was made, called for the kidnapping of its heroine, Valerie Howett, and her imprisonment on a ship, permission was secured to make the scenes on board one of these boats, that have been a bone of contention since the war ended. These ships are perfectly placed to permit logical use in the story, for the locale of "The Green Archer" is laid in the Storm King country along the banks of the Hudson, where Abel Bellamy, one of the most fascinating tyrants who ever terrified a heroine, has created an exact replica of an English castle—and has, it would seem, also inherited a ghost who wreaks vengeance with arrows feathered in green and tipped with death! Who this Green Archer is still a mystery! Whom do you accuse?

COMING MONDAY NEXT

N. Y. DAILY MIRROR

"The most notable event of the current cinema year occurred last night at the new Embassy Theatre, when social and celluloid lights turned out en masse to view the premiere of Erich von Stroheim's 'The Merry Widow.' 'The Merry Widow' is a gem. This production unfolds with beautiful precision, artful subtlety and magnificent sets. Mae Murray and Jack Gilbert cover themselves with glory as hero and heroine of this rich romance. Mae Murray looks young and luscious and vivacious. The fame that came to Valentino as the result of 'The Four Horsemen' will come two-fold to Jack Gilbert as the result of 'The Merry Widow.' That's our prophecy. Jack makes a fiery lover, a thrilly, devil-may-care prince, an appealing real he-man. You'll go wild over him in his ravishing uniforms, girls. Here's one picture you don't want to miss seeing. It is von Stroheim at his best. It is throbbing love, enchanting action and superb suspense."

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

"NO, NO, NANETTE" COMING.

"No, No, Nanette" the most pronounced musical comedy success ever recorded, comes to Peterboro next Wednesday, when it will play an engagement at the Grand Opera House for two performances only.

This sparkling Frazee musical play has risen to such triumphant records in all the leading amusement capitals of the world, from Chicago to London; from London to Australia; and from Australia home again to New York—literally engirdling the globe—that it now ranks as the outstanding musical comedy success of all time. In these and many other large cities it is still the reigning sensation, with audiences clamoring for seats month after month, until it seems impossible to satisfy the demand.

In the meantime, the fame of "No, No, Nanette" having swept the country, other cities have been demanding it. Accordingly, Mr. Frazee sometime ago recruited another organization, with many a "big name" to fortify the cast. Including such well-established favorites as John Hyams, Lejla McIntyre, who are the featured players—Roland Woodruff, Dorothy Newell, Floyd English, Helen Case, Mildred Joy, Eulalie Young, Mary Vaughn, Myrtle Miller and a dozen or more other principals of like celebrity. The chorus an exceptionally interesting one, contains a "Gorgeous Garden of Girls". "No, No, Nanette" comes to us in the full bloom of that perfection which develops from repeated performances.

There are many sure-fire numbers in the score; but among them all the two outstanding hits, which have set everyone to dancing and singing them, are "I Want to be Happy" and "Tea for Two". Even the ensemble is made up of specialists, for there is a male octette and several very amazing dance numbers.

There was a committee meeting of the County Council held in the Court House this morning to deal with the addition to the Court House in connection with the Registry and Surogate Court offices.

J. D. McMillan, Superintendent of the Belleville Division of the Canadian National Railways is in the city today in connection with the proposed new C.N.R. freight shed.

A young woman and two men had a narrow escape from death or serious injury when a large quantity of ice and snow slid from the roof of the market building, bringing down a piece of scantling with it, and lit on the sidewalk in front of the Regent Tailors store on George street. The scantling had several nails in it and missed the three passers-by by a few inches. They, however, passed on, apparently unconcerned, and spectators notified the city officials who had the debris removed.

TRY MOTHER FOR KILLING CHILDREN

Note Read Expresses Determination To Slay Herself and Sons.

SAULT STE. MARIE, April 8 (Canadian Press).—The trial of Mrs. William Kossack, charged with murdering her two small children, Michael and John, at Argolis on July 11 last, opened here yesterday.

William Kossack, the woman's husband, testified regarding the illness suffered by his wife and her long period in the hospital. Questioned, he also told of his trip to Toronto with another woman.

Peter Nahulak was put in the box to interpret a note said to have been written by the accused woman.

According to his translation, the note read: "I'm going to kill myself and John and Mike. I don't want them. You don't want me. You have another. Good-bye."

The case is still proceeding.

CAPTAIN BEST URGES PRAYER

Murray Street Church Special Services Continue With Good Attendance.

NOT ONLY IN TROUBLE.

"Don't stop praying. God hears. God answers prayer."

This was the message which Captain Tom Best brought to the people who gathered at Murray street Baptist church again last night.

Captain Best said that the great people that we have known were all people who believed in prayer and practised it. The lives which lifted us Heavenward were the lives of those who prayed.

Surely if our dear Lord found the advantage of a prayer life how much more reason that we should. If He needed it how much more we needed it.

The speaker urged people to take time for prayer. Private prayer the people must have. Every home should have a family altar.

We all pray when conditions arrive. When calamity arrived everybody prayed. When the trouble was over we promptly forgot Jesus again. We cry out to Him in our trouble and when He delivers us from our trouble we slide away from Him again.

The mission will continue tonight and to-morrow night, and Captain Best will speak at both services on Sunday.

The song service, as usual, starts at 7.45 o'clock.

WEDDING BELLS.

JONES—GRIFFIN

The wedding took place yesterday morning, at St. Peter's Cathedral, of Lousie Mary, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Griffin, to Mr. Wilbert David Jones, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Jones. Miss Grace Griffin, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Miss Jessie Scholey acted as flower girl. The groom was supported by Mr. Leo Jones, his brother.

The bride loked charming in a rosewood satin crepe and cut velvet dress with fur trimmings and hat to match. She wore a grey coat with squirrel fur. The bridesmaid wore a navy blue coat and a fawn hat. The flower girl was dressed in pink and carried a basket of sweet peas. The bride's bouquet was of roses while the bridesmaid carried roses and carnations.

About fifty guests sat down at the wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents. The toast to the happy couple was proposed by Rev. Father Butler. They left on the 3.35 train, amid showers of confetti, for Toronto, and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

The groom's gift to the bride was an ebony set; to the bridesmaid, a gold ring set with onyx; to the flower girl, a string of pearls, and to the best man a tie pin set with a pearl. Many handsome gifts from their friends testified to the popularity of the young couple.

Mrs. Dwyer sang several solos during the ceremony at the church.

LAROCK—BEAUREGARD.

A quiet wedding was solemnized by Rev. P. Costello in St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning when Miss Alphonsine Beauregard became the bride of Mr. B. Larock, of Montreal.

After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. Conlin, 587 Sherbrooke street, the happy couple left for Montreal, where they will reside.

FENWICK—EDGAR

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday in the Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church when Beatrice, elder daughter of the Rev. W. S. and Mrs. Edgar, was united in marriage to Mr. George Fenwick of Detroit. To the strains of the Bridal March from Lohengrin, played by Miss Mabel Paul, the church organist, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. C. W. Rose, B.A., B.D., of Murray street Baptist church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Betty Edgar. The groomsman was Mr. Stroyan Leith of Peterborough. Miss Jean McLeod, daughter of the Rev. N. R. and Mrs. McLeod was an exceedingly dainty little flower girl, while Master Neil McLeod was an efficient trainbearer. The bride was attired in a gown of white flat crepe and white shoes and stockings, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. The wedding veil was sent from Malta by Mr. Alfred Edgar, a younger brother of the bride. The bridesmaid wore a French dress of green georgette trimmed with gold lace, a green hat, blonde shoes and stockings to match and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses. The flower girl had a pink silk dress and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas. During the signing of the register, Mr. William Edgar, brother of the bride, sang "All Joy Be Thine."

A wedding dinner was served in the parsonage. Mr. and Mrs. Fenwick left later for a honeymoon trip to the United States. Mrs. Fenwick wore a going-away suit of navy tricotine, small green hat, blond shoes and stockings and a red fox fur, the gift of the groom. On their return they will reside at Windsor, Ontario.

OBITUARY.

MRS. AGNES RAE.

Mrs. Isabell Keenan received the sad news of the death of her sister-in-law, Agnes Rae, widow of the late James Rae, of Highgate, Ontario, and sister of the late John Keenan, of Peterborough.

She leaves to mourn her loss one sister, Mrs. George Langton, of Seattle, Washington and one daughter, Mrs. Frank Hosnell, of Highgate, Ont.

GEORGE BALL

The funeral of the late George Ball will take place on Saturday morning at nine o'clock from his late residence, 391 Smith Street, proceeding to St. Peter's Cathedral.

The Late Mr. Ball was one of Peterborough's most prominent citizens. He came here in his early childhood, having been born in Sunderland, Durham Count, England. He followed the tailoring profession, and took an active part in municipal politics, having been for some time an alderman.

Two brothers, Abraham Ball of Peterborough and William Ball of Rochester, and one sister, Mrs. Charles Murty, survive, as does Mrs. Ball.

MRS. WILBERT BROWN

The remains of the late Mrs. Wilbert Brown arrived today on the 11:57 a.m. C.P.R. train. The funeral will take place on Friday from the residence of her father, George Curtis, 117 Robinson Street, to St. Luke's church at 2:30 p.m. and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. G. J. Bousfield officiating.

By Giving the Eyes Needed Attention!
Many a person has increased the volume and value of his work. When this result is so easy to secure, and when the rewards are so sure, isn't it surprising that so many neglect their eyes? But thousands of folks are below par in efficiency just because their eyes do not function as they should. We can help such people.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

CALIFORNIA OIL FIELD FLAMING TWO MILES; GREATEST DISASTER IN AMERICAN PETROLEUM ANNALS

Ultimate Loss May Reach $15,000,000 — Conflagration Beyond Control and May Continue Four or Five Days Until Burned Out.

EXPLOSION KILLS FATHER AND SON

Two-Mile Creek, Ten Feet From Highway, a Blazing Ribbon—Six Million Barrels of Oil Feeding the Flames.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif., April 9 (Canadian Press)—As the second twilight of fire and smoke settled down last night over the Union Oil Company tank farm near here, six great reservoirs and at least seven smaller surface tanks were burning in the center of a flaming field of oil that extended for two miles in one direction and from 25 feet to three-quarters of a mile in the other.

More than 6,000,000 barrels of oil, incapable of being salvaged, were feeding the flames, with an ultimate probable loss in oil and equipment of upwards of $15,000,000.

Explosion Kills Two

Two lives were sacrificed in the fire early Thursday when A. H. Seeber, a civil war veteran, and his son William F. Seeber, were killed in an explosion which is believed to have attended the boiling over of one of the tremenodus flaming reservoirs. Doris Seeber, daughter of the elder man, was slightly injured in the blast, which demolished their home situated about 300 yards from the burning tank.

Oil fire experts, helpless in the face of the disaster, which is rated as the greatest petroleum conflagration in the history of the American oil industry, believed that the flames, which broke out when lightening struck one of the reservoirs Wednesday, will continue on their destructive way for another four or five days. The fire cannot be subdued, they assert. It must burn itself out.

Vast Cloud of Smoke

A tremendous column of dense, blue-black smoke was rising hundreds of feet in the air and was fully three-qurters of a mile in diameter. Bursts of flame occasionally flashed across its sable sides and dull, muffled explosions that rocked the earth sounded intermittently as the boiling, burning fluid spilled over the edges of the reservoirs onto the rain-soaked soil.

San Luis Creek, meandering over two miles of ground and at one place running within ten feet of the coast highway, last night was a flaming ribbon.

THREE KILLED IN ITALIAN VILLAGE

Clash Between Fascist Police and Villagers—Trouble in Milan.

HOUSES WRECKED.

LONDON, April 9 (United Press)—A despatch from Chiasso, Italy, to the Daily Herald to-day, reports three persons killed and many wounded in Marcedusa, Calabria, during a clash between Fascist police and the population. Twenty homes of anti-Fascists in Milan have been wrecked and burned and their occupants beaten, the despatch says, in reprisal for Wednesday's attempt of a demented British woman to assassinate the Premier.

SUES FOR DIVORCE.

Former Windsor Woman Charges Her Husband With Cruelty.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 9 (Canadian Press). — A suit for divorce, charging extreme cruelty, has been filed by Mrs. Mabel Kanady in the Detroit Circuit Court against Malcolm B. F. Kanady, of Detroit, and formerly of Windsor. Mrs. Kanady stated her intention of suing for divorce over a year ago, at the conclusion of an action which her husband lost in the Supreme Court here. Kanady at that time charged Hiram Walker with alienation of his wife's affections and asked $25,000 damages. A Windsor woman is said to be named as co-respondent in Mrs. Kanady's suit.

DARING RESCUE ATTEMPT FAILS

Man Drops From Window To Death Before Rescuers Reach Him.

ROOM IN FLAMES.

CHICAGO, April 9. Canadian Press. — Two men aided by a woman risked their lives here early today in a daring but unsuccessful attempt to rescue Leo J. Ainsworth of Cincinnati, while he clung from a window ledge of his fireswept hotel room 300 feet above the sidewalk.

The men formed a human ladder from the window below the hanging man but before the rescue could be effected, Ainsworth dropped from the nineteenth floor, his burned fingers no longer able to hold his weight. He was instantly killed.

Scores of loop pedestrians gazed in horror on the scene, powerless to aid.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Melville, of Chicago, and F. A. Guilleaume, of New York, guests at the Morrison Hotel, were the three who sought to save Ainsworth, a pioneer in radio manufacturing and broadcasting in Cincinnati.

Others who broke down the door to Ainsworth's room had to battle the flames, and when they reached the ledge they were too late.

"Tell my wife——" began Ainsworth just before he dropped, but the remainder was not heard by the two men on the ledge below him. It is supposed Ainsworth fell asleep on his bed while smoking, and awakened to find his room in flames.

Train Quarantined Until All Passengers Vaccinated

WINNIPEG, Man., April 9 (Canadian Press) — A train conveying a patient afflicted with smallpox, was sidetracked Thursday before it reached the city limits while every passenger and member of the train crew was compelled to submit to vaccination. The train operated over a branch line in Manitoba.

Dr. A. J. Douglas, city medical health officer, with a staff of medical men, met the train several miles from the city. Every coach was ordered locked and a virtual quarantine declared. All the passengers returned to their homes.

The small pox case was removed to a hospital in Winnipeg, where he died yesterday.

OIL POLLUTION OF WATERS DISCUSSED

United States Calls Conference of Many Maritime Nations.

WASHINGTON, April 9 (Canadian Press).—The United States Government has issued invitations to a preliminary conference of experts of maritime nations to consider problems of oil pollution of navigable waters.

The purpose of the conference is to facilitate an exchange of views on technical matters and to consider the formulating of proposals for dealing with this problem through international agreement.

June 8th has been suggested as the date for the proposed preliminary conference. Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Norway, Spain, and Sweden have been invited.

Home Of Count Plunket Raided By Irish Police

DUBLIN, April 9 (Canadian Press) — The home of Count Plunkett, noted Republican deputy, was raided early this morning. His sons, George and Owen, were aroused from their beds and taken to the police station.

A large military force guarded the house while detectives removed the sons and searched the premises from top to bottom. The reasons for the raid are unknown.

George Noble Plunkett has been identified with the Irish republican movement.

TWO CHILDREN BURNED IN HOME

Father Attempted To Light Fire With Coal Oil.

OTHERS ESCAPED.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 9. Canadian Press. — Trapped in their home when fire followed an explosion of coal oil used in lighting a kitchen range, two young children of Magloire St. Vincent were burned to death early on Thursday. The victims were a five year old and a nine months old baby. The St. Vincent home is near Letellier, Man., south of Winnipeg.

St. Vincent, who was attempting to light the fire with coal oil, was severely injured when the flaming oil covered his clothing, but he made a valiant attempt to rescue his children. His wife and six other children and three guests escaped without injury though two of them were forced to jump from an upstairs window.

After warming his family, and helping them to safety he attempted to mount the stairs in search of the youngsters but was forced back by the flames and smoke.

With great rapidity the fire spread throughout the house, and within a short time it was destroyed.

SPANISH TERMS BASIS OF PEACE FOR MOROCCANS

French Premier and Spanish Ambassador Are Agreed on Conditions.

RECOGNIZE SULTAN

Supervision of Spain Must be Recognized Before Peace Conference.

PARIS, April 9 (Canadian Press) —That peace in the Riff depends upon acceptance of the Spanish terms by Abd-El-Krim, the Moroccan leader, was the general opinion after the conference between Premier Briand and the Spanish ambassador, Count Quinones De Leon, Thursday.

The two governments are in accord, it was said. The talk covered not only eventual peace terms, but conditions under which negotiations may be undertaken. The procedure as outlined in official circles is this: The Spanish and French will agree as to how the dscussion may be engaged; then the Caids, who thus afr have served as intermediaries, will be informed of the basis of the negotiations.

Abd-El-Krm will b given to understand that the authority of the the Sultan of Morocco and the supervision of Spain must be recognized before there is talk of peace. If the Riffian chief wants to continue the conversations on these terms, his representatives will be invited to Rabat, where delegates of Sultan, Spain and France will be ready to talk with them.

MUSSOLINI FANS IMPERIAL SPIRIT; VISITS TRIPOLI

Sailed Thursday With Naval Unit, Accompanied by Inland Secretaries.

HOMAGE TO NAVY

Emphasizes Value of Italy's Colonial Possessions in Nation's Future.

FIUMICINO, Italy, April 9 (Canadian Press). — The Italian dreadnought Conte Di Cavour, accompanied by a large number of other warships, is on its way to Tripoli with Premier Mussolini. The warships sailed from this port on Thursday afternoon, after Mussolini had brought together the members of the new directorate and the provincial secretaries of the Fascist party. Mussolini's narrow escape from death in Rome Wednesday has had no apparent effect either on his spirit or his physical condition. His wound is giving him little trouble, and yesterday he was just as forcible in greeting the officials of his government, as he was in making further pronouncements for the glory of the country.

Naval Demonstration.

The voyage to Tripoli, with a show of naval force, is for the purpose, as set forth in the newspapers, of demonstrating that Italy faces the future as a united nation conscious of its needs, and furthermore to emphasize the value of Italy's colonial possessions for the future development of the nation.

In introducing the provincial secretaries to the members of the directorate, Mussolini said: "This ceremony is held on a warship for four reasons:

"First, I wish you to render homage to our glorious navy, in which are based our hopes for the future; second, I want you to become familiar with these instruments of war; third, I wish that upon this warship your inspirations and spirits may be enlarged; fourth, because, coming from territories more or less inland, your naval consciences should be completely awakened.

"We are of the Mediterranean, and our destiny, without patterning after anyone, has been and always will be on the sea."

Sister-in-Law Regrets

ROME, April 9 (Canadian Press) —Lady Ashbourne, sister-in-law of Violet Albina Gibson, sent the following telegram to Premier Mussolini from Compiegne, France:

"I am deeply stricken with sorrow over the attack on you, a person so precious to the entire world. Permit me to express my embarrassment, my indignation and my disgrace. I offer all my wishes for the preservation of your life. With my highest sentiments of respect."

NOW, HONESTLY—

He looked even worse than shabby. His clothes hung like burlap sacks, off size, and unpressed.

No one seemed to know him, as he trudged along the street—except the little kids, on their way to school, and the few pigeons that flew around the neighborhood.

The kiddies rushed up and took hold of his hand. He walked to school with them. The pigeons circled down and flew around him—picking up the little crumbs that were tossed from a torn coat pocket.

That was his life—mingling with the young folks, and the birds. Spreading happiness.

Derelict? Perhaps. But what was missing on the outside was more than made up for by what was on the inside.

ELEVATOR SALE TO WHEAT POOL DECIDED TODAY

Millions of Dollars Involved in Deal Before Convention in Regina.

451 DELEGATES

Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company's Founder Opposed to Sale.

REGINA, Sask., April 9 (Canadian Press)—Holding the fate of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company in their hands the first contingent of the 451 delegates representing 30,000 shareholders assembled in Regina Thursday for the all-important meeting today.

Approximately 250 of the accredited delegates had registered at the company's head office before noon yesterday.

They will vote on the question of selling the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company to the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool or the Pool Elevators, Limited, a subsidiary, for a price to be fixed by arbitration. The deal, should it go through, will involve millions of dollars.

Last night, George Langley, one of the "fathers" of the co-operative movement in Saskatchewan and a one-time director of co-operative addressed a meeting of the delegates on the proposed sale.

Opposes Sale

"I suggested opposition to the sale," he said, in a brief interview, "on the ground that all the benefits that might be expected from a sale may be secured by operating the company on its present basis."

In the terms of the proposed agreement between the Saskatchewan Pool Elevators and the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator company is a provisioin that a doposit of $500,000 be paid by the pool previous to the holding of the special meeting of the co-operative called to consider the pool offer. Donald MacRae, general manager of the Pool announces the advance payment has been made. The deposit, he said, was made yesterday.

MILLIONS TO SPEND ON MANITOBA MINE

Town Site Included In Development Plans.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 9.—(Canadian Press).—A development scheme involving expenditure between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000, will be launched in the flin flon mining area of Northern Manitoba, as soon as a railway line is built into the area and tests or treatment of ore completed, according to J. P. Watson, head of the mining corporation of Canada.

The plans of the company, Mr. Watson announced, provide for the establishment of a town site, erection of a smelter with a capacity output of 2,000 tons of ore a day. It is also proposed to develop 30,000 horsepower on the Churchill river.

Mr. Watson asserted that exploration work had shown the holdings of the company in the flin flon district, contained approximately 16,000,000 tons of ore, which had a gross value in the ground of about $200,000,000 in gold, silver, copper and zinc.

The company has already applied for a charter to build a railway line into the northern mineral fields.

BULGAR POLICE CLAIM FINDING OF SOVIET PLOT

Plan To Start Revolutions in Balkan States is Exposed.

WIDESPREAD SCHEME.

Revolutionary Leaders of Several Countries Said To Be Concerned.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 9 (Canadian Press).—Police assert that in the arrest and examination of Cristo Kabackchikoff on the Serbian frontier, while he was trying to escape to Russia, they received information of the existence of a widespread plot of the Soviet Government.

The plot, they declare, embraces the starting of a revolution in the Balkans and the murder of bourgeoise leaders and promotion of disorders in Bulgaria, Serbia and Greece. Large sums of money are alleged to have been appropriated for the movement, and Soviet leaders are declared to have been appointed to organize the movement in the Balkan States and in Paris. Police allege that among these leaders are the Greek revolutionary General Plaetiras, who is in exile from Greece, and the Bugarian revolutionist Costa Todoroff. Both are said to be working to pave the way for the revolution in their respective countries.

GERMANS FORM LAND SYNDICATE

To Procure Canadian Farm Lands For German Settlers.

FOUNDED IN BERLIN.

WASHINGTON, April 9 (Canadian Press) — The United States Commerce Department has been advised that the Canadian Land Company, capitalized at 50,000 reichmarks, has been founded in Berlin for the purchase, sale and leasing of land in Canada. Its founders, it was reported, will be given an option of 25,000 acres of land in Saskatchewan acquired from the Canadian Pacific Railway which will be divided into farms, to be sold chiefly to German immigrants.

ALLIES AGREE ON PEACE TERMS

French and Spanish Reach Basis For Negotiations With Riffs.

DELEGATES NAMED.

PARIS, April 9 (United Press).—France and Spain to-day agreed to discuss peace terms with Abd-El-Krim in formal conference.

Negotiations between the European allies have been in progress for some time in an effort to find terms which would be mutually acceptable.

Franco-Spanish agreement on the terms of peace to end the war which has raged in Morocco for 20 years was announced to-day by Paul Painleve, Minister of War, following a Cabinet meeting.

The French and Spanish plenipotentiaries will meet in Paris and thence will proceed to Oudja, Morocco, where they will begin negotiations with representatives of the Riffian leaders.

France's delegates already have been selected, and it is understood that General Primo De Rivera, the Spanish dictator, has named the men to represent Spain.

WORKMEN DRINK ARSENIC IN TEA

Plot To Poison Entire Factory Staff is Suspected.

SEVEN DYING.

MOSCOW, April 9 (Canadian Press) — Twenty-seven workmen have been poisoned by drinking tea from a galvanized tank which investigation showed contained arsenic. Seven are dying and the rest are in a critical condition.

A special commission is investigating the circumstances. A plot to poison the entire staff of the factory where the men are employed is suspected.

Great Diamond Rush To New Transvaal Field

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, April 9 (Canadian Press) The Transvaal region near Ventersdorp, south of the Witwatersand mountain, was the scene today of a final rush to the newly discovered diamond fields.

The stampede included not only adventurers and unemployed, but professional men and farmers.

FOUR CANADIANS HURT IN WRECK

Among Twenty Injured When Train Leaves Track.

THREE KILLED.

NEW YORK, April 9 (Canadian Press).—The Herald-Tribune this morning states that four Canadians were among the two score injured when the Atlantic City express, which left here yesterday afternoon, was derailed near Delair, N.J., with a loss of three lives. The Canadians injured were: Mrs. E. K. Rose, and her daughters, Beatrice and Martha of Hamilton, Ontario, and Percival Stevenson, Ottawa.

Preliminary investigation by Pennsylvania Railroad officials failed to reveal the cause of derailment. Eleven of the injured passengers were still in hospitals today. It was while rounding a curve near Delair that the engine and four cars left the rails. The train, known as the "Nellie Bly," consisted of eight parlor cars and a club car.

Engiher John O'Connor and Fireman Anthony Rankin, both of Jersey City, were so badly scalded that they died soon after. The third man killed was William Mintz of New York, a passenger.

Charles D. Richardson, 37, a Pullman porter, is said to be dying.

BIG RECEPTION FOR MUSSOLINI

Demonstration Planned at Tripoli as Welcome to Italian Premier.

(By Thomas B. Morgan, United Press Staff Corespondent).

TRIPOLI, North Africa, April 9 —Premier Mussolini of Italy will be welcomed on his arrival here on Sunday in a manner befitting the tradition of the ancient Roman emperors, whom he has taken as a model.

The city is decorated with strands of evergreen hung from poles which bear the Fascisti emblem and the gilded arms of Rome. In the square before the Governor's palace has been erected a stand from which Mussolini will view the massed troops of the colony. The illuminations for Sunday night will be the most spectacular ever seen in Africa with the principal piece of fireworks a great Fascisti emblem designed to signify the past power of Rome and the present power of Italy.

Tripoli would have given Mussolini a tremendous welcome under any circumstances, but Wednesday's attempt on his life has added greatly to the fervor with which the colony will greet its chief.

Hotel rooms are at a premium when they can be obtained at all. Newspapermen today were guests of Governor DeBono at a banquet.

ALLIES ATTACK NATIONAL ARMY

Defenders of Peking Are Attacked 20 Miles From City.

ACTION EXPECTED.

PEKING, April 9 (Canadian Press). — The forces allied against the Kuominchun (National armies) attacked the Kuominchun troops defending Peking in the region of Hwangtsun, 20 miles south of Peking on Wednesday night and early yesterday morning. Reports do not indicate whether this action marks a general offensive which the allies have been expected to launch, with the capture of Peking as the objective.

SEARCHING RIVER FOR 35 SAILORS OF BURNED SHIP

Crew of Oil Tanker, Destroyed at New Orleans, is Missing.

VESSELS COLLIDE.

Men on Another Ship Missing Following Explosion.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 9 (Canadian Press).—Searchers today continued their task of searching for the bodies of more than 35 sailors who are believed to have lost their lives in two Mississippi River disasters in the New Orleans district yesterday and last night.

Several boats today centered their activities near Pointe la Hache, La., about 40 miles below New Orleans, where the Dutch steamer, Silvanus, last night collided with the Standard Oil Company's tanker, Thomas H. Wheeler. Early today 30 members of the crew of the Silvanus were unaccounted for. None of the Thomas H. Wheeler's seamen were badly hurt.

Five men were officially reported as missing; another unaccounted for by relatives, and two critically hurt, as the result of five oil explosions aboard the Standard Oil tank steamer O. T. Warring in dry dock here yesterday.

Forty-four other members of the crew were hurt.

Shortly after the Dutch and American ships collided, a severe explosion occurred aboard the foreign-owned tanker, which was bound for London with a cargo of benzine. A few minutes later, the vessel ran against a bank and a minor explosion followed. The impact with the earth plunged the tanker back into the stream. It was caught in the current and carried down the river eleven miles before burning to the water's edge and sinking.

HOLDING MAN IN ROBBERY CASE

Police Refuse To Divulge the Name of Man in Jail.

UNDER REMAND.

LONDON, Ont., April 9 (Canadian Press).—Pending further developments in the case which are expected to culminate within a short time, a man whose name the authorities at present are withholding, is being detained at Middlesex County Jail in connection with the attempted hold-up of the Royal Bank of Strathroy on March 24. The suspect was arrested in a western Ontario town, and was brought to London under a veil of secrecy. He has been remanded to jail on a tentative charge, the exact nature of which is also being withheld.

TWO SHOT DEAD.

Were Proprietors of Freeport Road House.

FREEPORT, N. Y., April 8. — Mrs. William Watson, said to have been the wife of "Sliding Billy" Watson, once well-known burlesque actor, and Henry Kothe, were shot to death here Tuesday.

The murder occurred at the Three Hundred Club, a road house, on which the two were the proprietors.

First knowledge of the crime reached police when Karl Kieferle, a waiter, surrendered and said he had shot the two to death. He had been employed at the road house until Monday night, when he was discharged.

HOUSE TAKES UP SUPPLY VOTES

Estimates For Agriculture Department Considered in Committee.

THREE ITEMS PASS.

OTTAWA, April 9 (Canadian Press).—In supply for the afternoon and evening, the House of Commons spent the day on estimates for the Department of Agriculture. Discussion ranged widely, from cold storage plants to apple production and artificial fertilizers. In the last connection, the Conservatives claimed that the removal by the present Government of the ten per cent. duty on artificial fertilizers had put Canadian fertilizer plants out of business. This view was contested and there were some sharp exchanges.

Only three votes were carried: $30,000 for cold storage, $200,000 for fruit and $305,000 for seed, feed and fertilizer control.

SILK IN CABBAGES TO BEAT CUSTOMS

Shipped From U. S. A. To Fictitious Firm in Montreal.

OTTAWA, April 9.—(Canadian Press).—Cabbages from New York, consigned to a fictitious produce firm in Montreal, turned out to be silk, it was stated at the customs probe yesterday. C. W. Harvison, formerly of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, related how he conducted an investigation for the Merchants Association in Montreal. Shipments of cabbages were made from time to time to the "Sun Fruit Exchange" in Montreal. There was no organization there known by that name. Investigation proved that the shippers name as given was equally false. There had apparently been a regular system of getting silk in as perishable goods to take advantage of any special regulations permitting prompt delivery to be taken.

Ten shipments of this kind had been cleared and delivered, not to any particular address. They were deposited on the sidewalk.

Mr. Harvison spoke of the "moonshine trail" between Montreal and Moore's Forks in the United States. He saw truck loads of whisky going down that trail and had seized three loads of silk coming back as return traffic. Runners operated on the border to signal when the coast was clear.

BURNBRAE NEWS.

The Ladies' Aid of Burnbrae Presbyterian Church met in the basement of the church on Thursday, April 1. Thirty ladies were present. A very pleasant day was spent in quilting, six quilts being quilted. Lunch was served at noon. The ladies decided to dispense with their May meeting and arrangements are being made to hold a social evening on the Manse grounds some time in June. The collection amounted to $16.65.

Young Girls' Mission Band

The "Willing Workers" met at the home of Mrs. (Rev.) McKenzie on Monday afternoon, April 5. Thirty-six were present. The meeting opened by the singing of Hymn 749. A good misisonary programme was then given. At the close of the meeting, Mrs. McKenzie served lunch, and a very pleasant afternoon was brought to a close. The collection amounted to $4.60.

WESTERN FARMERS WORKING ON LAND

May Be Seeding on Lighter Soil in Week.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 9.—(Canadian Press)—Agricultural conditions in Western Canada according to a survey just completed by the Canadian Pacific Railway, presage a favorable outlook. Following the mildest winter on the prairies in many years, farmers are rapidly getting their lands in shape and according to the report, seeding may be started in the lighter soils within a week.

The general rainfalls of last autumn and reasonable snowfall since, have assured practically all sections in the western provinces of sufficient moisture to meet spring requirements.

Acreage under cultivation closely approximates last year's figures, the report states. By provinces the acreage is shown as follows:

Manitoba, this year 3,399,700, last year 2,643,000; Saskatchewan, this year, 7,448,435, last year 8,555,183; Alberta, this year, 3,015,486, last year 2,721,689. The aggregate is 13,863,671 acres, compared with 13,919,872 acres a year ago. The report adds that the ultimate cultivated acreage will be determined by the amount of spring plowing farmers are able.. to do.

Adequate supplies of good seed are available. The Saskatchewan and Alberta departments of Agriculture, however, have issued warnings to farmers to have their seed tested. It is feared that some of the seed grain may be of low germinating quality.

Winter wheat and rye are reported to have come through in fair shape, with approximately the same acreage as seeded under these crops last year.

RAILWAY SOLD.

Hull Electric Line Disposed Of By C.P.R. to Paper Company.

OTTAWA, April 9. — (Canadian Press.)—One of the biggest deals in the history of Hull has been consummated, according to a reliable local report, whereby the Hull Electric Railway, which is owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway, has been sold in its entirety to the International Pulp and Paper Company for the sum of $4,750,000.

QUALITIES NEEDED BY SCHOOL TEACHER

Dr. S. J. Keyes Discusses Good Appearance and Character.

TORONTO, April 9.—(Canadian Press)—Discussing the selection and training of teachers, Dr. S. J. Keyes, Ottawa, raised the question of whether grace in carriage and good appearance generally were not vital qualifications which were given too little attention on the part of young teachers. He was addressing the supervising and training section of the Ontario Educational Association. Dr. Keyes also asked whether tact and unselfishness were not also essential remarking that there was a surplus of teachers in Ottawa at present and that when there was a surplus it was the time to raise the standard.

Dr. J. H. Putnam, also of Ottawa, urged that the standard of admission to normal schools should be raised and that a standard intelligence test, where the elements could be changed each year, could be devised to eliminate the dull teacher.

Dr. Putnam thought that nasal defective eyesight, personal appeardefective eyesight, personal appearance and voice of teachers as well as native intelligence, should all be taken into consideration in the selection of teachers.

INDUSTRIAL WEEK AT OTTAWA PROBE

Business Men Will Give Evidence April 12.

OTTAWA, April 9.—Next week will be businessmen's week in the customs probe. Commencing April 12, the committee, which is investigating the conduct of the Department of Customs and Excise, will hear a number of businessmen from different parts of Canada on the question of smuggling and sale of contraband goods.

The Montreal Board of Trade will send a delegation; in addition, individuals representing the jewelers, the textile business, the tobacco trade and the departmental stores, will be heard. Of these representatives there will be seven from Montreal, four from Toronto, one from St. Catharines, Ont., one from Drummondville, Que., and one from Winnipeg. There may be additions to the list. The Canadian Manufacturers' Association also will send a representative.

Quick Relief for Rheumatics

Local Druggists Sell Rheuma on Money-Back Plan

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, swollen, twisted joints, and suffer intensely because your system is full of that dangerous poison that makes thousands helpless and kills thousands years before their time, then you need Rheuma, and need it now.

Start taking it today. Rheuma acts at once on kidneys, liver stomach and blood, and you can sincerely exclaim: "Good riddance to bad rubbish."

Many people, the most skeptical of skeptics right in this city and in the country hereabouts, bless the day when McDermid & Jury and other druggists offered Rheuma to the afflicted at a small price and guaranteed money refunded if not satisfied. If you have rheumatism get a bottle of Rheuma today.

OIL TANK FARM IS ABANDONED

Flames Burst Out, Igniting Many Tanks in Great Blaze.

DAMAGE $15,000,000.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif., April 9.—(Canadian Press).—The 300-acre tank farm of the Union Oil Company, at which was stored some 6,000,000 barrels of oil, was abandoned yesterday to the fire which had threatened its destruction since Wednesday morning when two underground tanks were struck by lightning.

The four huge underground reservoirs to which the blaze had been confined, all day yesterday and last night boiled over early this morning and the flaming oil, sweeping over the dyke that had been thrown up, carried the fire to two other reservoirs and ten surface tanks. Other surface tanks were rapidly ignited.

As the fire spread from tank to tank it created a flame a mile long and the flames shot a thousand feet into the sky. The loss is estimated at more than fifteen million dollars.

Medieval monks who transcribed manuscripts were exempt from labor in the field.

Chinese were printing from movable type 300 years before the invention of printing in Europe.

FRIDAY, APRIL 9, 1926.

THE NEW FREIGHT SHED.

Work upon the new Canadian National Railways freight shed on Aylmer street is to commence next month, and the announcement will be received with general satisfaction.

The building, which is to be 400 feet long, will replace the present out-of-date structures, and will add to the appearance of that section of the city, which is in itself a decided benefit.

In addition, the building operations will be of value to Peterboro, meaning a considerable sum spent locally.

Last but not least, the new building will assist the Canadian National in providing a better service, and on all three counts the launching out of this work will be welcome.

THAT WADING POOL.

The cold shoulder extended by the City Council toward the offer of the local Kiwanis Club to establish a wading pool for youngsters at King Edward Park is rather poor encouragement, not only to the Kiwanians, but to every other citizen anxious to make Peterboro a better city in which to live.

The difficulties in connection with the wading pool plan are surely not insurmountable, and if tackled with any show of enthusiasm by the city fathers could be overcome.

The Kiwanis Club offered to undertake a financial responsibility of $2,000 in order to provide something that would have meant many happy hours for hundreds of Peterboro children, and in view of the readiness with which they accepted this responsibility, their generous proposal was surely entitled to a more enthusiastic reception from the members of the Council.

But a very small portion of the civic revenue is spent on recreation for the citizens, and most of our parks would not be available had it not been for the generosity of public-spirited residents.

In short, the civic administration at no time has been in any danger of being accused of extravagance in regard to recreational facilities, and the expense involved in the Kiwanis' wading pool was not large enough, so far as the city's end was concerned, to have justified the somewhat sharp turning down of a splendid offer.

STAR CHAMBER METHODS.

County ratepayers who look to the Examiner for a report of the proceedings of the County Cuncil are perhaps not aware of the fact that the county legislators in their wisdom have seen fit to exclude the press from all county committee meetings.

The Examiner believes that such an attitude is decidedly not in the public interest.

The people who pay the taxes of the county are entitled to a prompt and accurate report of the actions and debates of their representatives in Council, and this is only possible when reporters are permitted to attend.

It is true, of course, that regular Council meetings are open to the press, but much of the important business is done in committee, and from these sessions the newspapermen are barred.

This closed-down policy is in striking contrast to the treatment accorded to the reporters by the Peterboro City Council, which permits press representatives to attend committee meetings, and by other County Councils which extend similar privileges.

There is no logical reason why, when such important matters as a proposed addition to the Court House are under discussion, that the people who pay the taxes should not have an opportunity of reading in the newspapers next day just what the members of the Council said or did in regard to the business before them.

Star chamber methods should be considered as obsolete.

BASEBALL AND THE PARK.

In regarding the James Stevenson Park as a revenue-producing piece of property instead of as the public park and athletic grounds, which was in the minds of ratepayers when they sanctioned the purchase of this property, the city fathers are displaying a business keenness, but, at the same time, a lack of appreciation of the value of sport to the community.

There are many citizens who do not believe that the city should attempt to make revenue at the expense of senior baseball, who feel that a good baseball team is an advertisement for Peterboro and a source of entertainment for a large number of people who find in baseball their chief summer recreation.

The city fathers showed that they realized that a winning hockey team was a community asset by making a grant of $200 at the beginning of last season to the Peterboro Hockey Club, and nobody—least of all the baseball enthusiasts—objects to that measure of assistance.

The baseball club is not asking for a grant, but, as the Examiner senses their views, they do feel that they are entitled to more generous treatment in connection with the rental of the James Stevenson Park than they have been hitherto accorded.

With heavier travelling expenses than ever before to face, they think that the city fathers might well extend a helping hand by according easier terms for the municipally-owned ball park.

THE FUTURE OF CANADA.

A member of the Canadian Parliament says Canada is a vassal of the United States.

"We are paying tribute," he said, "to the extent of $350,000,000 every year, $200,000,000 of which we pay in imports and $150,000,000 on money borrowed from the United States."

If that constitutes vassalage, then the United States was the vassal of the rest of the world, chiefly Europe, for almost 100 years; for it was not until about 1880 that our exports began regularly to exceed our imports in value, and it was considerably after that date that we ceased to pay Europe huge dividends on borrowed capital.

If Canada is spending $200,000,000 a year for American goods, it is a sign that somehow or other she is making the money to pay for them. She is farming, manufacturing, exporting, creating wealth; and part of this wealth she exchanges for American products. Why does she buy these goods? Because she is not self-sufficient. Would she gain by making these goods for herself? Not unless she could make them more cheaply than she can buy them.

If Canada is spending $150,000,000 a year for money borrowed from the United States, she is pursuing the same course we followed while we had immense undeveloped resources and small accumulations of capital. We borrowed money where we could get it, and paid high interest on it; but we put that money to very good use. If Canada is doing the same with the capital she has borrowed from the United States, she is following a successful example. She should be thankful, for by putting that money to productive work she will one day emerge from the state of "vassalage" that seems to worry the worthy member of Parliament.

One has but to cast an eye over the map of Canada—a vast territory with extraordinary possibilities—and think of what the people of the United States did to the "Great American Desert," to see that any Canadian who is pessimistic about his country is—well, to say the least, he is short of vision.—Detroit News.

THE TARIFF BOARD.

Now that the Canadian Tariff Board is an actuality, business breathes more freely with the realization that its appointment involves no radical departure. Tariff matters have been a disturbing influence in business, particularly since the beginning of the present parliamentary session. Rumors that a wholesale adjustment of duties, including automobile duties, was contemplated, had an unsettling effect. Now that the smoke has largely cleared away, it is more apparent than ever that the central feature of the whole problem is stability.

Unlike the Railway Board and the Civil Service Commission, the new Tariff Board is not endowed with the right of ultimate decision in tariff matters. Nor is it the desire of business that it should be so. Business leaders of all political leanings urge that a tariff board should, under present conditions, be advisory, and final decisions should remain in the Government's hands. Tariff problems are among the most intricate that have to be faced by governing bodies. They require thorough analysis and careful study. They require a more or less specialized knowledge. Slight adjustments may lead to altogether unexpected results. Were all those to whom the privilege of tariff protection is extended, fair in the use of this privilege, the situation would be an easy one to handle. Unfortunately, experience shows that the tariff protection privilege is often abused. Were this not the case, the opposing viewpoints on tariff matters would be infinitely closer together. These are the reasons why a tariff board is needed, and why we still insist on considering as political a problem that is purely economic. Not only from the standpoint of general effect of changes upon business, but their importance from the revenue standpoint, must be considered, since the tariff is normally our largest source of revenue.

There is a conviction on the part of business that the problem facing the country is not so much one of what the board does, or fails to do, as how well it succeeds in maintaining equilibrium in tariff matters. Canada and the United States have learned from experience that business stability is seriously interfered with when tariff matters are decided suddenly by ill-informed or possibly decidedly interested politicians. With the appointment of a presumably impartial board, it is evident that all tariff matters will be carefully studied before a decision is reached. There will be no sudden changes. This will enable the business firm to make its budget for the coming year with an assurance that conditions will not be suddenly altered. This does not mean that there will be no changes. When a vexed question needs attention, it will be carefully considered and weighed before action is taken. It is highly probable, for example, that the automobile tariff matter now under discussion will be placed before the Tariff Board.

From the standpoint of general business, the first quarter of the year is sufficient to show that gradually increased trade turnover is well under way. Sales of goods to other countries have increased 22 per cent. in the year ending with February, the total being $1,310,459,000. Shipments of merchandise within the country have been continuously heavier during the three-month period than for the same period last year. Total car loadings for the quarter are 5 per cent. larger than for last year. Retail sales are heavier in nearly all lines. There is no fundamental rise in the volume of business, but there is a gradual upward trend.—Financial Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Rural school trustees are about as enthusiastic over Premier Ferguson's township school board plan as is Mr. Raney over the Premier's attitude toward the O. T. A.

The enthusiasm shown at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce is most encouraging. It indicates an active year on behalf of a better Peterboro.

The girl who was the centre figure in New York's notorious bath-tub case, speaking of her action against Earl Carroll, says, "My suit will go on." About time it did.

Premier Pangalos of Greece is said to have secured 90 per cent. of the vote polled in the recent election. And Baldy Robb couldn't have been operating there either.

Judging by the samples of spring garb that have appeared, they have taken something off everything except the price.

Mr. Kennedy, M.P., says in effect if not just in those words, "Try and get it," when anybody suggests he should not continue to hold his seat in Parliament.

CAVAN PERSONALS.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

POOR WORM

I never used to feel very sorry for the lowly worm. I've riddled him mercilessly with many a fish-hook, and fed his writhing carcass to the fishes. But after thinking how bitterly mean some people can be, my sympathy is aroused.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

THE VIEW OF MANY WHO RECONCILE EVOLUTION WITH RELIGION

Since The Examiner published Mr. J. H. Burnham's review of the present attitude of an increasing number of people in high places towards Evolution, he has been asked to give his own view of "Man, Evolution and The Supernatural. This he does in the following letter.

To The Editor of The Examiner:—

SIR—Having reviewed in a mild way the present view of Evolution of people in high places as I have ventured to call them, some have asked me if I am an Evolutionist myself, a believer. The answer, if I am right, is not so difficult as it looks. It is true that the descent of physical man from an inferior stock does not square with the idea we have always held which we derived from Scripture, that man is a superior being, created with a moral sense and not a mere member of the animal kingdom as those creatures he so resembles in his form and functions are. It is true that the plan of his construction within and without bears a close and striking resemblance to that of other mamals and that he lives by reproducing himself and by taking food and digesting it in the animal way. But it does not follow that there is anything upsetting about that though most people think there is, and for this reason—We use the word supernatural as if the natural were one thing and the supernatural another. This is where it seems to me we make our mistake. All creation is natural, that is to say there is nothing in the whole universe which is not the creation of the Creator. He made man and the animals as He did all other things from the bacteriophage so small that not even a filter can catch it, to the wholly inconceivable spaciousness of space itself. Now man has a moral sense. That we know. So far as we know, nothing else has. In animals the sense of right and wrong is wholly a matter of training. In man it exists independently of that. It is well enough for us to train animals and subject them to our will, but it is pure, unadulterated infidelity to subject the moral being of man to our will. If we believe him to be a morally responsible being so created by God and in a way wholly different morally and spiritually (if not physically), from all else, that we know it is our sacred duty to leave him in that responsibility or else we are trying to defeat the very purpose of God Himself. That, I think, is clear. Hence the necessity of complete liberty in the personal and private being of the creature so endowed, who is man. Reformers, I know, are prone to take the place of God and to think man is responsible to them. That view is materialistic, not spiritual and falls right into the arms of those who say that man, mentally as well as physically, is no more divine than any other animal. This is why the present wide-spreading view that man is physically only an animal is likely to produce such profoundly and disastrously important results. Unless we keep our minds and our actions perfectly steady in regard to it we may go right over to materialism, and reject God altogether. The point, then, that concerns us is the moral nature of man, not his physical nature. Has he a moral nature? Is he an independent-thinking being who understands what duty and the love of God mean, apart from the teaching or control of his fellow-creatures? Yes! Why? Because if not, and if there is no God how did man get his moral nature and his sense of responsibility? He could not have got it from man, at least it seems to me so. Hence it was not originally dependent upon the teaching of others, but must have come from God—and is not so dependent now. Hence our conclusion must be either: 1, That man is all an animal and his moral and spiritual nature a myth 2, or else that he is not an animal in his spiritual being, but a superior creature. Our belief will be accordingly as we adopt one or the other view. I simply am aiming to show that the higher moral origin of man is a necessary idea and, therefore, a conception warranted by reason. If so it is not necessary to deny physical evolution or, as a necessary consequence to deny the derivation of the higher or moral nature of man from God Himself. It is possible for us to know God and to feel our relationship to Him. If we do not reason the matter out we will fail to realize that Evolution or no evolution of physical man, man can be, appears to be and undoubtedly is a moral being in touch with and responsible to God. How that responsibility works out and in what ways it is not necessary to say. It is the fact itself that is vital and upon which all our beliefs depend.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 8.—The day's sales totalling 1,687 head, but in the selling some butchers were dropped 25 cents a cwt, and a number of drovers ended up with losses on their deals. It is freely admitted that at the present time it is impossible to pay country prices on cattle and get out even on average shipments.

Receipts this morning were 11 cars, 81 cattle, 6 calves, 275 hogs and 5 sheep and lambs. The only early sales were some butchers' cows, a few common butchers and one export bull.

Today's handful of calves and lambs were sold at steady prices. One choice calf sold at 13 cents a pound, and medium to good calves sold from 9 to 12 cents a pound. There were no lambs for sale, but two good sheep sold at 7 and 9 cents a pound.

Sellers endeavored to advance hogs to $13.50 a cwt f.o.b. on Wednesday, but finally had to accept the packers' bid of $13 and this price stands for the week-end.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 8 (Canadian Press).—The demand from the United Kingdom and the Continent for Canadian grain on the Montreal market today showed a great improvement and as cables on oats were stronger a large volume of business was transacted. Some fair sized sales were made including 50,000 bushels of tough No. 1 feed at c.i.f. price Montreal; 50,000 bushels of No. 2 Canadian Western at 10 1-2 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal; 20,000 bushels of tough No. 3 Canadian Western at 4 3-4 cents per bushel over the May option, c.i.f. Montreal.

Owing to the continued strength in the Winnipeg future market for oats, a stronger feeling prevailed for all grades were advanced 1 cents per bushel.

Prices for all grades of millfeed were well maintained under a good demand. A stronger tone developed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats and prices were advanced 10 cents per bag.

A fair amount of business was done in eggs and the undertone was steady. The trade in a wholesale way was quieter on account of the fact that Western shippers were demanding an advance of 1-2 cent per dozen, which buyers here were not disposed to pay. The receipts in Montreal were 1,246 cases, as against 2,182 for the same day last week, and 3,106 for the corresponding day a year ago.

New Maple Syrup

A feature of the market for new crop maple product was the weaker feeling that developed in maple syrup on account of the steady increase in the receipts and prices scored a decline of 40 cents to 50 cents per gallon. At this reduction the demand was good and a fairly active trade was done with sales of one gallon tins at $2.25, and eight-pound tins at $1.55.

The undertone to the butter market continues easy at the late decline in prices noted.

The receipts of cheese were 802 boxes, as compared with 167 for the same day last week, and 226 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no new developments in this department of the trade, business in all directions being still quiet.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 8 (Canadian Press).—Good export buying was a dominant factor in increased wheat prices here today.

The market was active and strong throughout the session. There was buying by local interests, exporters and houses with eastern connections today. Offerings, including stocks put on the market by the pools, commission houses and longs, were heavy, but all were well taken care of.

The close ranged from 1 3-4c to 2 1-8c higher with May at $1.51 1-8; July at $1.48 1-2, and October at $1.31 7-8.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, April 8 (Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85.
Sterling cables $4.86 1-4.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, April 8 (Canadian Press).—The easy feeling which has been prevalent on Canadian egg markets since the first of the week continues today with but little change. The inward storage movement has started in Montreal.

Toronto—Market easy and unchanged. Prices to retailers, extras 35 to 36, firsts 33 to 34, and seconds 30.

Montreal—Market is easier and quiet. Prices to retailers, extras 37 to 38, firsts 36, seconds 31 to 33. Local receipts are increasing and dealers are storing their surplus stocks at the basis of extras 33 to 34.

Winnipeg — Dealers are paying country shippers, extras 26, firsts 24, seconds 18.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 8 (Canadian Press).— Wheat advanced strongly today in the face of heavy selling to realize profits. Broadening out of export business was largely responsible together with predictions that the Argentine Government crop estimate tomorrow would be cut down 15 per cent. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1 to 1 3-4c higher, net, May (new) $1.59 1-2 to $1.59 5-8, and July $1.37 1-8 to $1.37 1-4. Corn finished 3-8 to 3-4c up; oats at 1-4 to 1-2c gain, and provisions showing a rise of 10 to 12 cents to 45 cents.

Notwithstanding that the weather is favorable for domestic winter wheat, the majority of traders appeared to be getting apprehensive about delays to spring wheat seeding both south and north of the Canadian boundary.

Highest prices of the day in the wheat market here came near the end of the Board of Trade session and after news was out that export sales of North American wheat today totalled much larger than usual of late, more than 1,000,000 bushels.

RUSSIAN EMIGRES' COMMITTEE IN PARIS HOPE FOR ALLIANCE WITH THE PEASANTS

Permanent Executive To Strive For the Restoration of Monarchy in Russia and Overthrow of the Bolshevik Regime.

PARIS, April 9 (Canadian Press) — The Russian emigres having accepted the leadership of Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaeivitch, are now occupied with the constitution of a permanent committee to remain in Paris in order to carry on the work initiated by the members of the congress, the object of which is the overthrow of the Bolshevik regime in Russia and the re-establishment of the monarchy.

The basis of this committee was established by the congress agreeing on the three chief "practical results" which have been achieved at the present session.

These three results are as follows: First, the drawing together of the groups of emigres, with a demonstration of pacific ideas among them; second, an accord between the peasant masses in Russia and the emigres; third, the achievement of a step forward to the realization of things, which heretofore have been treated only as theories.

The thirty-six Cossack delegates to the congress represent only about one-half of the total of 20,000 Cossacks among the emigrees, it was admitted yester. The imperialists state that this is due to jealousy and quarrels between the two principal Cossack chiefs.

BRASS FILINGS TO MINE OWNER

Crown Alleges Joseph Myers "Salted" the Bingo Mine.

CASE DRAGS ON

WINNIPEG, April 9 (Canadian Press).—George Dowson, plumber, testified at Thursday's session of the trial of Joseph Myers, managing director of the Bingo Mines, Ltd., that he had on two occasions filed metal, described as brass, for the accused and had preserved the filings which Myers had later taken away.

Myers is charged with making false statements with intent to defraud. The crown alleges that he "salted" the Bingo gold mine.

Dowson testified that Myers had been brought to his shop in the basement of a hotel by the captain of the bell boys and had asked him to file some brass "as finely as possible." Meyers gave him two pieces of metal wrapped in a chamois bag and two glass tubes in which he asked that the filings be placed.

Nice Looking Brass

He handled the filings to Myers after the job was done and remarked at the time that it was "Very nice looking brass." Myers, he testified, had agreed that it was.

R. A. Bonnar, K.C., defence counsel, subjected the witness to a severe cross-examination and at times contradicted the testimony given at the preliminary hearing and became badly mixed as to dates. The witness told the defence counsel that Myers had made no attempt to keep the filing secret, but that everything had been done "Openly and above board."

Samples for Assay.

John Wanless, mining broker at The Pas, Man., testified that, in company with a man named Fortin, he had shaken down between 300 and 400 bags on instructions from Mr. Myers. According to the witness, Myers had told him that samples were to be sent to an Eastern firm for assay. He had intimated that there was some doubt as to the samples previously taken and had ordered that strict precautions be taken as to the bags used in taking the samples. Myers suggested that it would be a good idea if the bags were shaken out, in order that there would be no possibility of anything wrong, Wanless said. He added that it had taken him practically all night to complete the job.

OBITUARY.

MARK EDWARDS.

WARSAW, April 9.— Mr. Mark Edwards, one of the oldest residents of this neighborhood, passed away at five o'clock on Tuesday evening. He was eighty-two years of age on April the twenty-second. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Edwards, and was born in Dummer, not half a mile from where he died, on the farm now owned by his nephews, the Edwards brothers. He was one of a family of eight, three sisters and five brothers, of whom Mrs. Booth in Peterborough, and Mr. Samuel Edwards in Lakefield, are left.

When a young man he purchased the farm in Douro, across the boundary from his father's farm, and later brought his bride, Christina Darling, there. Two daughters were born to the couple, Mrs. John L. Fletcher of Saskatoon, and Mrs. David Drain.

About fifteen years ago Mr. and Mrs. Edwards moved to Warsaw. Mr. and Mrs. Drain remained on the home farm. About three years ago Mrs. Edwards died at her daughter's home, and Mr. Edwards has made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Drain ever since. He has been confined to his bed most of the time since Christmas, and gradually grew weaker until the end came.

He was a member of the Baptist church. Few people were better known than he was and he always had a happy word for any whom he met. His familiar figure, and jovial ways will be much missed.

WILLIAM WILSON

NORHAM, April 9—A large number of relatives and friends attended the funeral services of the late William Wilson, who passed away at his home in the Orser neighborhood, Brighton township early Monday morning, after a brief illness of one week. Mr. Wilson was a son of the late John Wesley and Mrs. Wilson, and was born in Seymour township, near Myersbury, 44 years ago. He spent his whole life time within five miles of his birthplace and well and favorably known, being a hard worker, a reliable neighbor and a true friend.

Death came as the result of an attack of blood poisoning, which was caused by color from a mitten which he was wearing, collecting in a scratch on a finger of his right hand. About ten days before his death Mr. Wilson barked his finger but paid no attention to it. On Saturday, March 27th, while on business to Warkworth he became ill and was scarcely able to drive his team home. It was thought that his trouble was due to an attack of LaGrippe. The doctor was called on the following day and did all that was possible. A second doctor was called and later a specialist from Belleville but was of no avail and at 4.30 Monday morning the strong icy hand reached out and claimed its victim.

The service was held at the late residence on Wednesday afternoon and was conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. F. Everson, of Norham. He leaves to mourn his loss an aged mother, who is ill in bed; his wife, nee Jennie Cole, and little son, John, who is nine years of age.

The pall bearers were Aubrey Woof, Grant Goodfellow, William Goodfellow, Jacob W. Clark, John Convey and James Ross. The remains were place in the vault at Warkworth to await interment in the cemetery beside those of his father.

MRS. T. MIMMS.

The death occurred in Toronto on April 6th, 1926, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Bosnell of 11 Playter Crescent, of Julia Ann, beloved wife of Thomas Mimms, in her 66th year.

Funeral service Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, thence by C.P.R. train Friday morning to Lindsay for interment on arrival of train.

NOISE OF FALLS NOW MEASURED

Noisiest Places at Niagara Are Under American Fall.

SPECIAL DEVICE.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., April 9. — The thundering n[illegible] of Niagara Falls was scientifically measured on Tuesday. The tests showed that the two noisiest points about the cataract were at the foot of the American Fall, at Prospect Point, and directly in front of the Cave of the Winds below Goat Island.

The noise measurement at both these points was seventy units, generally classified as a deafening noise.

The quietest point about the falls is at Terrapin Point, the extreme south west corner of Goat Island, where the registration showed 45 units.

Tests were made by an audiometer, a specially constructed device by the Bell Telephone Laboratory.

MILLIONS ARE LOST DUE TO SMUGGLING

Rt. Hon. G. P. Graham Tells Churchmen To Be Honest.

BROCKVILLE, April 9.—(Canadian Press.)—"If church members of the Dominion of Canada would pay duty on the goods that they are now smuggling into this country, the debt of Canada would be reduced by several millions more dollars every year," Rt. Hon. Geo. P. Graham told a gathering of the men of Wall street United church on Tuesday.

"You have to be honest with the state as well as with the church. You say that the bootlegger is an awful chap, and so he is. But how much worse is he than the smuggler. Don't do things yourselves that you think horrible in others. If you were to come home with something on the hip your wife would probably and rightly kick you. Look out that she doesn't kick you with a smuggled shoe. Smuggling goods into Canada is doing the country out of money that rightly belongs to it."

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(Canadian Press).—President Coolidge, in addressing the first Pan-American Congress of Journalists which assembled at the Pan-American Union, urged that gatherings be held frequently as a means of drawing together the peoples of the western hemisphere. Speaking of the increased interchange of news among the American nations in recent years, Mr. Coolidge declared this awakening of interest had been "one of the most important factors in bringing about a better understanding" of several countries.

"I venture the prediction", he added, "that as a result of this Congress the papers in the United States in future will present more complete and more accurate pictures of cultural and industrial progress of Latin America and that the press of these Republics will give to their readers better understanding of the ideals and purposes of the United States."

J. Warren, after the meeting had voted for a by-law change increasing the number of directors from nine to eleven. It was announced that H. S. Osler had resigned from the board due to giving up business activities and E. W. Beatty had been elected in his place. The retiring directors, Henry Joseph, F. Gosler, S. G. Blaylock, and E. W. Beatty, were elected for the next two years.

VAST HAVOC ON PACIFIC COAST

Vessels Stranded, Oil Fire Started, Railways Blocked.

CALIFORNIA CHAOS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., April 9.—(Canadian Press.)— A fishing boat was wrecked and a coast-wise steamer was so badly crippled by the storm sweeping the California coast Thursday that it had to be taken into tow.

The fishing boat was the International Number Two, with a crew of three which went aground off Point Reyes, ten miles north of here. A tug was sent from San Francisco to to aid them.

The coast-wise steamer Humboldt on the way from Los Angeles to San Francisco was smashed into by a heavy sea and her machinery disabled. She is being towed to San Francisco by a tug and was due here last night. She had fifty passengers aboard.

Five lives have been lost in the chaos of wind and floods, a great oil fire was started, wire communication was prostrated at some points, railroads found themselves blocked by huge slides and deep rooted trees were sent crashing down on many a mountainside cabin.

BROKEN RAIL IS CAUSE OF WRECK

Twelve Cars Derailed on C.N.R. Line Near Hamilton.

HAMILTON, April 9.—(Canadian Press).—Twelve cars were derailed, both main lines of the Canadian National Railways were blocked and traffic was paralyzed for several hours yesterday as the result of a wreck caused by a broken rail one mile east of Cope Town. Several of the freight cars were overturned and considerable damage was done to the road bed.

RED LAKE MAIL BY DOG TEAMS

Temporary Service Every Second Week—Post Office Open.

2,000 CLAIMS FILED

OTTAWA, April 9 (Canadian Press)—A temporary mail servce to the Red Lake district, the new mining prospect in Northern Ontario which has aroused such intense interest, has been established by the Dominion postal officials. R. H. MacNab, general superintendent of Railway Mail Services, has just returned from opening a post office at Red Lake and instituting a mail service by dog team every second week. The dog team service is, of course, temporary until the ice breaks.

In the meantime consideration is being given to plans for a regular permanent service. The present service will require a 140 mile run for dog teams, starting from Rolling Portage post office at Hudson railway station on the transcontinental line of the C.N.R. Mr. MacNabb went in by means of a commercial airplane and opened the post office at Red Lake on March 26. The first dog-team service left Hudson on March 24.

Mr. MacNabb said that when he was there 2,000 claims had already been recorded. Including employes of the mining companies and prospectors he said a conservative estimate of the number of people to be served by the new mail service would be about 150. Expectations are there will be quite a boom in the spring and he found everybody quite enthusiastic about the prospects. Asked if there was any "rough stuff" going on Mr. MacNabb replied: "None at all. The conduct of everybody is fine."

SESSIONS CLOSED BY GOVERNOR

Lieut.-Governor Makes Address at Closing Sitting.

MENTIONS BILLS.

TORONTO, April 9.—(Canadian Press).—The third session of the sixteenth legislature of Ontario was formally closed yesterday by His Honor, the Lieutenant Governor. The session lasted eight weeks. There has been prophecies that it will be the last session of this legislature and that the government will go to the electors during the year but there has been no official word of a general election.

In the meantime there are seven vacant seats in the House which will be filled by by-elections if there is no general election. In his address closing the House His Honor observed that most of the legislation passed at this session has been to clarify and simplify the law.

The speech mentioned the cream grading, the protection of sheep, and the control of the corn borer acts as being useful measures for farmers. It also praised the work of the special committee on agriculture. The speech also noted with satisfaction the growth of the mining industry in gold, silver, and nickel production. "Timely steps have been taken to increase the resources of the Hydro Electric Power Commission," His Honor said. "The construction of a new transmission line will bring to the central parts of the province power generated in the Ottawa river; north western Ontario will experience advantages from increased development on the Nipigon River and in the rural districts the extension of electrical services continues to make headway.

Navigation and power development are being menaced more and more by the excessive diversion of the waters of the Great Lakes at Chicago. It has, therefore, become necessary to emphasize again the fact that control of these waters is a matter of treaty arrangement and cannot be dealt with otherwise. I am confident that the opinion expressed on this subject reflects the sentiment of the province."

During the session 132 bills, mostly private measures, were passed.

An English gramophone company, celebrating its twentieth anniversary, says that the "most popular songs" in its long list are the "old favorites' 'and not the new songs.

MOVES TO LINDSAY.

Edward Clancy of Downeyville, Leaves Farm.

LINDSAY, April 9.—On Wednesday evening more than one hundred residents of Downeyville gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clancy to bid them farewell prior to their departure for Lindsay, where they will reside. The family is one of the oldest as well as the most highly esteemed in the parish. Mr. Clancy, who has been forced to give up farming owing to ill health, has been prominently identified with the various activities for a great many years, and his removal is looked upon as a distinct loss.

During the evening the family was presented with an address accompanied with a well-filled purse. The address was read by Mr. Fergus Guiry, while Mr. Martin Herlihey made the presentation.

Mr. Patrick Clancy replied on behalf of the family.

Addresses were also delivered by Rev. Father Costello, Messrs. E. Costello and M. Harrington.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

At a methodist church at Redlands, Cal., during an 11-hour service, all the hymns in a standard hymn book were read, recited and sung.

OBITUARY.

THOMAS WILLIAM THORNE.

MILLBROOK, April 9.—The late Thomas William Thorne, whose death in his sixty-fourth year, following a brief illness, took place on Wednesday, March 31, removes another of the life-long residents of Cavan township, and a member of one of the pioneer families whose name and history is closely interwoven with the growth and development of this section of Durham country.

Deceased was one of a family of ten children, seven girls and three boys, his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thorne, clearing their homestead a short distance west of Carmel church, and doing their part in the buildin : up of a farm and community life in the township.

The late Mr. Thorne was married on the third of February, thirty-three years ago, to Vinetta Strong, his wife being also a member of a pioneer Cavan family. The immediate surviving relatives, besides the bereaved widow, include his two sons, George, on the homestead, and Wilbert, also of Cavan; five sisters, Mrs. Matthew Gardiner, and Mrs. Hilliard Gardiner, both of Garden Hill; Mrs. John Nesbitt, of Frobisher, Sask., Mrs. Joseph Heaslip, of Peterborough, Mrs. Leonard Westwood of Toronto, and two brothers, ex-Reeve George S. Thorne of Port Hope, and John Thorne of Lindsay. Two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Armstrong and Mrs. William Wilson, of Peterborough, predeceased their brother.

Deceased was a staunch Conservative all his life, and at one time an actve member in the Orange Order; in religion he was an Anglican.

The funeral on Saturday, in spite of very stormy weather and unfavorable roads, was largely attended, Rev. Mr. Walker ,of Janetville, having charge of the services at the house and graveside. The pallbearers were his two brothers, Messrs. George and John Thorne, two brothers-in-law, Hilliard and Amos Strong, and two cousins, Robert and Joseph Thorne.

A number of beautiful floral tributes were laid upon the casket. Interment was in the Presbyterian cemetery, Millbrook.

Among those from outside points who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Strong and daughter, Miss Verna of Peterborough; ex-Reeve G. S. Thorne, of Port Hope; Mr. John Thorne, of Lindsay; Mr. R. J. Paterson, M.P.P., of Omemee; Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Gardiner and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Gardiner and son, of Garden Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thorne, of South Monaghan; Mr. and Mrs. A. Bullock, of Lakefield; Mr. Nicholson and Miss Mary Nicholson, of South Monaghan; Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Thorne, Mr. Kenneth and Miss Meta Thorne, of Reaboro; Mr. and Mrs. John Bradley, of Bridgenorth; Mr. Jos. Heaslip of Peterborough; Mr. John Hallowell, and Mr. Silas Hallowell, of Starkville.

A new type of airplane has been developed in England with an inverted engine having the cylinders below and the crankcase on top to give the aviator an unobstructed view.

FINDS OLD SHIP

Captain Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole and Arctic explorer, experienced a new thrill when he came across the "Maud," his old ship, which he was forced to abandon in 1922, in an attempt to reach the North Pole. He found the vessel in Vancouver, B. C., lying at anchor in the harbor. Capt. Amundsen feels sur that his projected dirigible flight to the North Pole in May will be more successful than the trip of the "Maud."

CHICAGO DRAINAGE CANAL IS SUBJECT OF PAPER READ AT LOCAL ENGINEERS' MEETING

J. L. Busfield Explains Matter From Standpoint of Engineers.

GIVES HISTORY

Effects of Diversion of Water on Canada is Considered.

THE Chicago Drainage Canal, or "Steal," particularly from the viewpoint of the engineering profession, was the subject discussed by J. L. Busfield, B.Sc., M.E.I.C., at the regular meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada. Mr. Busfield, who is consulting engineer of the Montreal firm of Beatbien, Busfield, and Company, treated his subject in a most interesting manner and his address, which was profusely illustrated by means of slides, was of interest to the large audience which gathered, and which consisted of both engineers and business men. P. P. Westbye acted as chairman.

Mr. Busfield's paper was as follows:—

The history of the undertaking now generally referred to as the Chicago drainage or diversion canal is intermingled to a large degree with that of the older and broader project of a waterway from Lake Michigan to the gulf of Mexico by way of the Illinois and Mississippi rivers. The possibility of such a route first became apparent to the explorers LaSalle, Marquette and others in the latter part of the seventeenth century. A navigable waterway was first created with a depth of six feet by the completion of the Illinois-Michigan canal in the year 1848 from Bridgeport—now part of the city of Chicago—to Utica. In Order to provide sufficient water for the operation of the locks, water was pumped into the canal from the Chicago river at Bridgeport. This was only a small quantity but nevertheless constituted the first regular diversion from lake Michigan into the Illinois valley. With the increasing of the size of the canal, the quantity of diversion was increased from time to time until by the year 1871 it had amounted to as much as 1,000 cubic feet per second.

In the eighteen-eighties typhoid fever was causing a very heavy death toll, and in 1885 the Drainage and Water Supply Commission was appointed to study ways and means of overcoming this hazard. This commission, which consisted of three well-known engineers, reported on three possible methods of solving the problem, but of the three methods they only recommended that of a drainage canal from the Chicago river to the Des Plaines river as being worthy of serious consideration. The other two methods were either so enormously expensive as to be beyond the bounds of possibility or else only a temporary respite. Following this report, the State of Illinois passed an Act in 1889 creating the Sanitary District of Chicago and giving it powers to construct a drainage canal, sewage treatment works and so forth. As a result the main drainage canal from Robey Street in Chicago to Lockport, 29 miles away, was duly constructed during the years 1892 to 1900. Between the years 1903 and 1907 the canal was extended 4 1-4 miles to the vicinity of Joliet and a hydro-electric plant built at the new extremity of the canal.

While the discharging of the sewage of Chicago into the drainage canal undoubtedly remedied conditions, there was still a great deal of pollution of lake Michigan being caused by the Calumet river in the southerly part of the city. In order to remedy this condition a canal known as the Calumet-Sag channel, was built from the Calumet river to the main drainage canal at Sag, a distance of 16 miles, thus causing the reversal of the Calumet river. This canal was completed in 1922, but has not yet been operated to capacity as further work is necessary in the Calumet river itself.

In order to reduce the raw sewage being dumped into the canal, studies were commenced as early as 1908 for the purpose of determining ways and means of effectively treating the sewage. In recent years small plants have been put into operation in outlying surburban districts, and in addition large plants have been built and put into operation at Maywood (Des Plaines river plant) and at Calumet. A third large plant is under construction at the North Side.

Various Permits.

Prior to the opening of the main drainage canal the Sanitary District obtained a permit from the U.S. Secretary of War to alter various structures in the Chicago river in order to provide for the passage of 5,000 cubic feet per second. In 1901 this quantity was reduced and indeed for the next two years a number of different permits were issued. Finally, however, on January 17th, 1903 a permit was issued which ordered that from after March 31st, 1902, the diversion should not exceed 4,167 cubic feet per second. This permit remained in force until 1925, although for a long time it was the subject of litigation. The matter was kept in the courts for many years until judgment was rendered by the U.S. Supreme Court in January, 1925, to the effect that the Secretary of War had jurisdiction in the matter of granting permits for the diversion at Chicago. The Sanitary District thereupon applied for a new permit and in March, 1925, the Secretary of War issued a permit effective until December 31st, 1929, and with the provision that the District may divert 8,500 cubic feet per second of fresh water from Lake Michigan (which corresponds to a total diversion of about 9,700 cubic feet per second). The permit also stipulates that the Sanitary District must carry out a certain definite programme of sewage treatment and must install control gates at the mouth of the Chicago river, and furthermore that the City of Chicago must carry out a programme of meter installations for its water supply in order to make a radical change in the amount of water consumed. In view of the fact that the Sanitary District was committed to paying its share of any remedial works necessary for maintaining levels on the Great Lakes, the District was also ordered to deposit a bond of $1,000,000 with the Secretary of War as a guarantee of good faith. The present status is that the District is operating under the foregoing permit and withdrawing water to approximately the extent allowed, and both the City of Chicago and the District are carrying out the terms of the permit.

When the Sanitary District applied for a permit to divert a quantity not to exceed 10,000 cubic feet per second, in the year 1912, Canada strenuously opposed the application before the U.S. Secretary of War and has consistently adopted the same attitude ever since. The application in 1912 was refused.

The main drainage canal commences at Robey Street in Chicago and runs in a westerly and south-westerly direction through the villages of Summit, Argo, Willow Spring, Lemont, Romeo to Lockport, a distance of 32 1-4 miles. It has a width of about 200 feet and a depth of about 20 feet depending on the stage of lake Michigan. It is crossed by a large number of highway and railway bridges. At the lower end of the canal is a small lock which is being replaced by a large modern structure, 600 feet long and 110 feet wide in connection with the new Illinois waterway. A power house at the end of the canal is operated under a head of 34 feet and produces about 16,000 horse power which is delivered over a high tension transmission line to a terminal distributing station in Chicago, thirty miles away. The transmission line has three 3-phase circuits at 44,000 volts, carried on steel towers. The power is distributed to the Sanitary District for use in pumping stations and sewage treatment plants; to the city of Chicago for street lighting; to some of the other municipalities within the district; and finally to some private consumers who are being eliminated as rapidly as possible owing to the fact that Sanitary District is short of power for its own consumption. The revenue from these four sources has been about sufficient in late years to balance the cost of the power which includes the fixed charges on the plant as well as operating and maintenance expenses. In past years however, there have been occasions when as much as a quarter of a million dollars profit was made in a single year.

Fresh water from lake Michigan is introduced into the drainage canal primarily through the Chicago river, but also by an excavated channel from Wilmette on the North Side to the North Branch, and also by conduits at Lawrence avenue and 39th Street, and finally through the Calumet-Sag channel. The total flow from all these sources together with the sewage discharge makes up the total diversion of approximately 10,000 cubic feet per second.

Sewage Treatment.

Sewage treatment plants are in operation and under construction. There are three small plants in operation for the small suburban municipalities of North Brook, Glenview and Morton Grove. At Maywood, the Des Plaines River plant is in operation. This plant is of the activated sludge type and serves a population of over 40,000 and reduces the oxygen demand of the sewage about 85%. At Calumet on the south side of the city at 125th street, there is a larger plant of the Imhoff sedimentation type. A population of 180,000 is served and in addition to the Imhoff tanks, activated sludge tanks and trickling filters are supplied for experimental purposes on a large scale. On the north side there is a large plant under construction of the activated sludge type, which will serve a present population of about 800,000 with provision for future requirements up to 1,122,000. Plans are under way for additional plants for treating the sewage of the central and most densely populated parts of the city. The drainage canal sewage treatment plants, intercepting sewers and pumping stations have cost about $150,000,000 to date and by the time all the works contemplated will have been completed the expenditure will have become $250,000,000.

Chicago's only source of water supply is lake Michigan. Water is obtained from intakes of which there are six, situated at distances varying from 2 to 3 1-2 miles from the shore and in depths of water from 29 to 34 feet. The water is drawn through tunnels to the pumping stations and thence distributed to the mains. The whole supply is heavily treated with chlorine.

Under present conditions the cessation of the diversion is out of the question as the effect would simply be the dumping of the sewage and heavily polluted water into the source of domestic water supply and no amount of chlorination which is possible could entirely counteract the harmful effects therefrom. The amount of diversion which is necessary for sanitary reasons is determined by the desirability of satisfying two conditions, the first being that the Des Plaines and Illinois rivers should be kept from becoming putrescent cess-pools, and the second that the Chicago river should be prevented from reversing its present direction of flow and thus discharging its burden of sewage into the lake Michigan. The former condition resolves itself into a determination of the amount of water which is able to supply the necessary amount of dissolved oxygen to satisfy the oxygen demand of the sewage, thus oxidising the organic matter and rendering it innocuous. On this basis and under average conditions about 8,500 cubic feet per second of fresh water from Lake Michigan is required. Under present conditions, with no mechanical means of preventing the reversal of the Chicago river, the flow through the drainage canal must normally be maintained at least equal to the maximum flow of the Chicago river. If through a heavy storm the river flow exceeds the drainage canal capacity, it will naturally discharge into Lake Michigan with unpleasant results.

Need 2000 Feet.

Under future conditions, if the whole of the sewage of Chicago undergo complete treatment, it is still unlikely that even the purified effluent from the treatment plants could reasonably be expected to be discharged into the lake without harmful results. This effluent will be equivalent in harmful content to the raw sewage of a population of about 1,000,000, even though all the solids have been withdrawn by treatment. The controlling works which have been ordered to be installed, will have the effect of eliminating the question of the reversal of the Chicago river from consideration in this problem, and therefore the only requirement will be to provide sufficient oxygen to take care of the effluent from the treatment plants. This works out at about 2,000 feet per second, if everything possible is carried out with reasonable promptitude. It is probable however, that in actual practice it will be found necessary to utilize somewhat more than this quantity in order to maintain decent conditions in the Des Plaines-Illinois rivers below Lockport under all conditions.

Effect of Power Dams.

If the Des Plaines river had been left in its original condition with a number of rapids in which re-aeration and purification of the sewage contaminated water could take place with facility, the amount of water to be diverted would be materially reduced. Unfortunately, however, the dam for the power house at Lockport and the navigation dams below Joliet have created still water reaches and thereby eliminated these places as far as their purifying effects are concerned.

To Aid Navigation.

At the present time the State of Illinois has under construction an enlarged waterway from Lockport to Utica, providing for 8-foot navigation, which will connect with the Mississipip and Ohio systems. It is anticipated that there will be traffic over this route to the extent of 20,000,000 tons per annum, of which 15,000,000 tons will be coal for Chicago from the Pennsylvania coal fields. This waterway is dependent on the diversion of 1,000 cubic feet per second for the operation of the locks, and a diversion of 10,000 cubic feet per second will increase the depth of water, thus reducing the amount of excavation necessary, and the result in saving in construction and operation which has been placed at a capital amount of practically $30,000,000.

For Power Purposes.

With the construction of dams for this navigation project there will become available four sites where power may be economically developed. The total amount of power which may be obtained from 10,000 cubic feet per second at these sites together with Lockport is over 100,000 horse power. On account of the lack of power sites below Utica, the rest of the potential energy of the water in its drop to sea level is lost.

Damages have occurred along the Des Plaines and Illinois rivers due to the increased quantity of water and due to its pollution, but the former have been and are being compensated for, while the latter is not of great moment.

Water Loss Heavy.

Of the serious damages that have occurred as a result of the diversion that to navigation of the Great Lakes has to be given first consideration. Exhaustive studies have been made by various authorities on the effect of the diversion at Chicago on the levels of the Great Lakes, and this has been determined to be a lowering of about 6 inches on Lakes Huron, Michigan, Erie and Ontario, a somewhat greater amount on the St. Lawrence river. The traffic on the Great Lakes is enormous and amounts to over 100,000,000 tons per annum of which the greater part is ore from Lake Superior ports to Lake Erie ports, and grain from Lake Superior to ports on Lake Huron (Georgian Bay), Lake Erie and through to Montreal. Of the westbound traffic, which amounts to about one-third of the eastbound, 90 per cent is coal from Lake Erie ports to Lake Superior. The traffic has been developed to such a degree with vessels designed especially for the peculiarities of the trade, that the whole transportation system on the lakes is worked at a high efficiency. Permanent limitations on the drafts of vessels occur at the locks at Sault Ste. Marie and in the shallow channels at the St. Clair Flats, also in the Detroit river. Vessels are loaded to the extreme limit of draft restrictions and by following the movement of lake levels advantage is taken of every possible inch of draft. A lowering of the general levels of the lakes by any amount is immediately reflected in the carrying capacity of the fleet and it has been estimated by such bodies as the Lake Carrier's Association that the effect of a lowering of six inches runs into millions of dollars per annum. Similarly on the St. Lawrence canal system, where the traffic is not so dense but is nevertheless of great importance, especially as a grain carrying route, the effect of the lowering is very seriously felt by a great many vessels. In this case also a number of vessels on the westbound service are handicapped as the package freighters are unable to load to capacity during certain months of the navigation season. Finally the port of Montreal is also very seriously handicapped by the lowering of the levels in the harbour by an amount said to be as much as 12 inches due to a diversion at Chicago of 10,000 cubic feet per second.

During the past few years the lake levels, and hence the levels of the St. Lawrence have been extraordinarily low due to lack of rainfall. The average lowering effect due to this cause may be placed at approximately twelve inches although it varies considerably with the different lakes.

Direct Economic Loss.

The effect of the diversion on power development at Niagara Falls and on the St. Lawrence is a subject which brings one into a sphere of speculation with so many conditional elements that it is almost impossible to reach a stable conclusion on the details of the subject. Not only are international relationships involved, but also interprovincial. At the same time the whole subject is under review by the Joint Engineering Board for the St. Lawrence waterways, who not only are commissioned to deal with the power question, but also of the effects of the diversion at Chicago thereon. From a broad point of view, however, it may be mentioned that 10,000 cubic feet per second at Niagara Falls, if fully developed would produce about 300,000 horsepower and on the St. Lawrence river about 175,000 horse-power might be obtainable. These figures represent about five per cent of the flow of the river itself, and just as soon as the times comes when the St. Lawrence is fully developed for power purposes, the amount of the diversion at Chicago is a direct economic loss, because no remedial works will ever replace the value of the diverted water for power development or for any of the other benefits that may accrue from it.

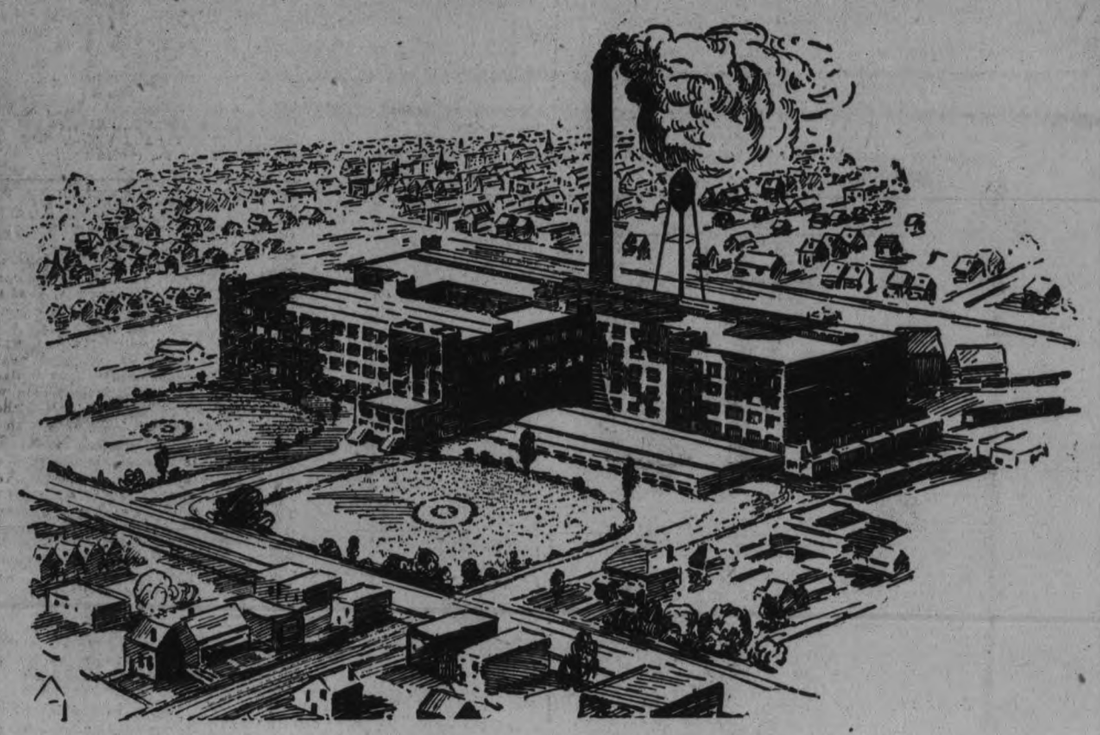
A Whole City Building Goodyear Tires



THE men who build Goodyear Tires in Canada, with their families, would form a thriving city. A city equal in size to Charlottetown, P.E.I., Lachine, Que., Galt, Ont., St. Boniface, Man., or New Westminster, B.C. And a city devoted entirely to building Goodyear Tires.

It is one of the largest and busiest industrial communities in Canada. And it is big and busy solely because of the demand for Goodyear Tires—a demand based on years of leadership in quality, value and sales.

The kind of Goodyear Tires which have built world-wide leadership are available for you from your nearest Goodyear Selected Dealer.

CORONER'S JURY RECOMMENDS THAT MEN WORKING IN GRAVEL BE GIVEN BETTER PROTECTION

Inquest Held Yesterday in Lakefield Into Death of William Irwin.

KILLED BY GRAVEL.

Many Witnesses Heard at Hearing Which Lasts Over Five Hours.

A verdict that death was due to being struck by falling gravel, with a clause advocating better supervision and protection for workmen was returned by the coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of William George Allen Irwin, who was killed at Young's Point on April 6.

The inquest was held in Lakefield Memorial Hall on Thursday, April 8th, at 2 o'clock, with the coroner, Dr. T. W. H. Young presiding. The county crown attorney G. W. Hatton, examined the witnessses, F. D. Kerr represented the Irwin family, R. R. Hall represented Victor Young and J. A. O'Brien represented the T. A. Brown Construction Co. Mr. I. R. Welsh of Toronto, Inspector of Mines, was also present.

The following comprised the jury: Dr. M. P. Kennedy (foreman), Messrs. Theodore Cranford, W. W. Leonard, G. H. Spence, William Ahearn, Walter Madill, W. J. Webster, A. J. Young, D. B. Millar, Robert Graham, W. J. Madill, W. G. Morrison.

....

The hall was crowded to the doors showing the interest felt in the matter.

Michael Scott

The first witness was Michael Scott of Douro who was driving a team and wagon from Young's gravel pit to the locks on the day of the accident. He had worked two days at the pit, three men including Irwin shovelled the gravel into his waggon. The accident occurred about 11.15 a.m. and five minutes after he had returned for his fourth load. He saw the chunk fall and hit Irwin on the head and with the assistance of Mr. Davis he took it off and helped lift Irwin out. The chunk was about 2 feet long, 1 1-2 feet wide and 6 inches thick and was composed of frozen clay and small stones. He did not consider the bank dangerous at this point although east and west of this point were dangerous in his opinion because of a decided overhang. He heard Irwin and Davis discussing a blast they had set off south of where the accident occurred but saw no evidence of it as they had done it in his absence. He and his fellow workmen discussed the danger of working with the overhanging bank but not with either the officials of the construction company or Mr. Young.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kerr, witness said that to his knowledge nothing was done to keep up the bank, there was no official of the construction company there and Mr. Young only once in a while. It would be about 25 or 30 feet to the nearest overhang on either side and about 20 feet at the point of the accident was not overhanging. The other loads were taken from west of this particular spot; none were taken from the east. It was about 8 or 9 feet to the top of the bank, the gravel was not frozen but the clay above was frozen to a depth of about two feet. When at work west of the scene of the accident, witness and Irwin and Davis all felt that it was dangerous but there was no one to whom they could complain.

Cross-examined by Mr. Hall witness said that the chunks dislodged by the blasts were all drawn out. The bank at the place of the accident was nearly perpendicular and not dangerous to look at.

Cross-examined by Mr. O'Brien the witness stated that they took the gravel from wherever it appeared safest and as James McManus drove out of the pit after loading he drove in. He had heard that Mr. Young had brought down dynamite and told them to put in a charge but was not present personally.

Witness worked at the pit two half days last week and Tuesday forenoon.

David Darling

David Darling testified that for the past two weeks he had been employed by Mr. Young to draw gravel from the pit to the work at the locks and although he was in the pit at the time of the accident he did not see it. Mr. Young had three teams working with three men to load and in the absence of Mr. Young, Mr. Mace acted as foreman. He saw nothing of any blasting that morning although he heard it spoken of. He was loading his fifth load at the time. The chunk which struck Irwin would be about 3 feet by feet by 2 or 2 1-2 feet and was composed of clay and small stones. There was no boulder there. The witness saw it and also the pool of blood. He considered this the safest looking spot in the pit.

Ernest Davis

Ernest Davis had known the deceased for the past week and a half and they went up to Young's pit to shovel gravel for Mr. Scott's waggon. They were employed by the Construction company and were sent up on Saturday morning. About an hour or so before the accident Mr. Young's men set off a blast about 2 or 3 feet from the scene of the accident and about twenty minutes before the accident he and Irwin set off a blast about 25 or 30 feet west of the same place.

There was a slight overhang at the place where Irwin met his death but witness saw no effect on the bank at this particular spot from the blasting done in other parts of the pit.

There was no overhang after the accident; the piece which fell was about 4 feet long 3½ feet wide, and was more than was overhanging. The blast he and Irwin put off was by time fuse, and the object was to bring down the overhanging places. Mr. Young inspected the place a little. He saw the body at Hunter and Webster's undertaking room and recognized it as being William Irwin's.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kerr, witness said that the blast did not bring all the bank down, and while the gravel did not give way a great deal it was sufficient to make them think the place dangerous, so they moved to the other location. Witness advised Irwin to be careful, as he was inclined to be careless.

Cross-examined by Mr. O'Brien he stated that Mr. Young showed him where to put in the shot of dynamite, but to his knowledge Mr. Young did not examine the top of the bank after the blast. They took crowbars and loosened the loose stuff dislodged. Mr. Mace put off the blast near the scene of the accident. He was in charge in Mr. Young's absence and told the men where to get the gravel.

T. A. Brown.

T. A. Brown testified that he was the contractor at the works, which consisted of replacing the old locks with a concrete structure, and Mr. Young supplied some of the gravel by contract, delivering it to the point of construction, but it was not coming in fast enough, and so the company sent men and teams to speed up the work, but one of the foremen, W. Lee, himself went up and they did not know the dangerous condition of the pit. He produced some photographs of the scene of the accident taken an hour or so afterwards. No. 1 shows the scene of the accident; No. 2, a close up of the same, and No. 3, the same spot from a different angle.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kerr the witness stated he was much surprised at the accident, but admitted that any gravel pit requires care and supervision, and there was more danger in winter than in summer owing to the frost. The pit was nine feet deep at the scene of the accident and the witness was present when Mr. Maker measured it. Mr. Young was under contract to deliver the gravel at so much a square yard and the company paid the men they sent to speed up the work and settled afterwards with Mr. Young. Mr. Brown had not visited the gravel pit since last fall till the day of the accident.

Regarding the frozen chunk which fell, he said it would weigh about 400 pounds, and would measure about 2½ cubic feet. It was heavier because of being frozen than if it had not been.

N. F. Maker.

N. F. Maker, provincial constable for the district, vsited the pit on April 6th about 6 p.m., and measured the bank at the scene of the accident and found it 9 feet 1 inch. Two pieces of frozen earth fell, the larger being 3 feet wide, 3 feet deep and 4 feet long, and the smaller ,which killed Irwin, was 3 feet long by 2 feet wide by 1 1-2 feet deep. The pool of blood was 7 feet from the foot of the bank. The chunks fell from the top of the bank as he could tell by the condition of the clay and gravel. He made an inspection of the whole pit and found an overhang nearly all the way round, in some places approximately 12 feet and he was told that Young's men worked there all day. He tested the bank with his hand and it crumbled away. The frost was about 2 feet deep.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kerr, witness stated that the action of the sun on the bank all day had contributed considerably to the loosening of the chunk of earth. At the foot of the bank it was dug in about 3 feet, where the gravel was taken out. At the place of the accident from the piece which fell and the present condition, he would judge there must have been six or seven feet overhang and thinks the witnesses who saw none must have been blind.

Eric Morin.

Eric Morin, of Lakefield, worked in the pit shovelling into Scott's waggon with Irwin and Davis. He was there only about two hours and had not been back. He did not see the accident as he was knocked unconscious himself with the falling chunk. This part of the bank did not appear dangerous, but the part they had been at looked very bad and Mr. Young told them to shoot it out and they did so. No one told them to go to any special place to work.

Robert Mace.

Robert Mace was at the pit on the day of the accident, and is a shoveller, and in Mr. Young's absence acts as foreman. He was there when Mr. Donaldson got gravel for the dam, and Mr. Young had confidence in him. He was loading a wagon further down and did not see the accident or hear the fall. This place appeared to be perfectly safe; in fact the safest in the pit. Only a load and a half had been taken from there since last fall. They put off a blast six or eight feet from the scene of the fatality and quite a lot of the bank fell They put in bars to free the loosened bits, but saw no cracks.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kerr the witness stated that he had worked in gravel pits for many years and "it is a caution the way they will act; you can't depend on them." Every precaution should be taken, he said, and in order to make the work les risky they used long handled shovels. Irwin was a good worker and willing and was a nice lad. Witness saw the place where Irwin and Davis had blasted and the reason they did not take the gravel from there was because the teamsters would not take the refuse away. In dry weather a gravel bank will come down to the perpendicular. There was a little clay overhang, but clay does not drop like gravel.

Manley Godfrey

Manley Godfrey was a shoveller at the pit, but did not see the accident, he was about 40 feet away in Young's gang.

He started to work recently and as far as he knows the previous evidence was truthful. He saw the chunk which fell on Irwin, but never noticed it before the accident.

Victor Young.

Victor Young the owner of the pit is under contract with Brown and Company to deliver the gravel to the works. They started last fall and worked all winter, but in the last few weeks have not been able to deliver it fast enough, so on Saturday last the company sent teams and men to augment the supply. B. Kerr the clerk, told Mr. Young on Saturday last that Mr. Brown would send up teams and men, which was agreeable. The delivery was by the yard, and Mr. Brown paid for what he took, the men could go anywhere in the pit and take any gravel the company would accept. He heard no complaints on Saturday, but on Tuesday he was asked his opinion as to the safety of the place, and he told them to shoot it off if they liked. He prepared the dynamite, but the company's men did the drilling and put off the shot. He looked at it and it appeared successful, because quite an amount was blown off. This was 40 feet behind where the accident occurred and could have had nothing to do with it. The teamsters would not remove the dislodged chunks of earth and as they could not get at the gravel, they moved to the place where the accident happened. The witness noticed the condition of the bank after the accident and would say that there was no solid portion of it overhanging more than two feet and before the accident it was not more than one foot. He had not shored up the pit but had kept it safe by blowing the top of the bank off, and by going to the top and watching for cracks. They dug all along the bank and there are very few holes in the wall. The arrangement with Mr. Kerr was that they were sending up teams and men and they would be given a place to work. No more definite arrangement or bargain was made subsequently and the men sent were working for the company and neither hired nor fired by Mr. Young.

Dr. J. C. Smith

Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield testified that death was caused by fracture of the base of the skull, and death at the most was a matter of a few seconds after the accident. There were minor injuries to his face caused by his being thrown forcibly to the ground and his hand was also injured. The witness arrived at the scene of the fatality about 12.10 p.m. about 40 or 50 minutes after the accident occurred. The body had been moved about ten feet when he arrived. He looked carefully at the bank and instead of on overhang where the chunk dropped there was a recession. He borrowed a camera and took some pictures of the spot. He attended the men who were injured but was under no agreement either with Mr. Brown or Mr. Young, but was responsible to the Compensation Board and was not allowed to receive remuneration from any other source. The witness was of the opinion that the warm sun on the bank had had considerable to do with loosening the mass of clay which killed Mr. Irwin.

John Waites

John Waites, the general foreman of the construction company and next in command to Mr. Brown, spoke to Mr. Young about sending men and teams to report at the pit to be under Mr. Young's direction, which did not affect Mr. Young's contract to deliver gravel at $1 per yard.

The jury retired and, after nearly an hour's deliberation, brought in the following verdict:

"We, the jury, find that William George Allan Irwin came to his death in a gravel pit known as Young's Pit, near Young's Point, in the Township of Smith, caused by being struck on the head by a piece of frozen gravel falling from the top of the bank into the pit on Tuesday morning April 6th, about 11.15.

"We are of the opinion that there was not proper supervision of the work carried on in this pit. We would strongly advise that steps be taken to see that men working in places of this kind be given better protection to avoid similar accidents in the future."

PLAN NOW FOR THAT PACIFIC COAST AND ALASKA TRIP YOU INTENDED TO TAKE NEXT SUMMER.

Next summer forget the cares of business or profession and take a trip to Western Canada, the Pacific Coast or Alaska. There's satisfaction in this kind of a vacation—a swift journey through never-before-seen country, restful stops at splendid resort hotels, and, when you reach the Canadian Rockies, gorgeous vistas of lake, forest, and towering mountain peaks.

There is never an idle moment if you travel the Canadian National route on radio equipped trains. Crossing the vast prairie country, the Granary of the Empire, is always interesting. Then there is Jasper Park Lodge of continent-wide fame. There are mountains on all sides, sky piercing giants, snow-capped, massive, many of which have never been scaled.

From Jasper National Park is a never ending succession of mountain—and more mountains—lovely valleys, turbulent rivers and dashing waterfalls until you reach the coast at Vancouver or Prince Rupert.

To make the most of your trip the voyage through the Sheltered Scenic Seas of the North Pacific should be taken from Vancouver to Prince Rupert or Alaska. On the voyage you will see from splendid sea-going steamers, alluring inlets, towering headlands and tumbling icy streams and glaciers. On the return journey, see Kitwanga and its totem poles, Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and again to Jasper National Park.

These trips as mapped out by Canadian National Railways are not surpassed anywhere and furnish a liberal education on Canada to our Canadian people.

Summer Tourist Fairs are effective between May 15th and September 30th, with a return limit of Oct. 31st, at a minimum of cost.

Make sure of your Western trip this summer by planning ahead. Any Canadian National agent will give you full information and illustrated booklets.

Plantol Soap

A beautiful skin is nature's reward for taking care of it

IF YOU take care of your skin in the right way, your complexion will constantly improve, and become more lovely as time goes on. Just follow this simple beauty treatment, and see its amazing results....It has made more lovely complexions than all the other beauty treatments put together.

First bathe the face and hands in warm water—not hot—with Plantol Soap, which lathers softly, richly—penetrating and cleansing the pores without irritating them.... Then warm water, clear as rain, to rinse the lather off ....Then cold water, cold as the lakes in December, to close the pores and give the skin that firm smooth coolness that holds a glow beneath its surface.

Start this week, and next week you'll begin to look more often in your mirror!

Plantol

A pure, mild and exquisite toilet soap.... made entirely of plant, fruit and flower oils.

TOO MANY SEEK FAMILY FARMS

British Immigrants Asked To Defer Sailing Until 1927.

OVER 1,000 COMING.

LONDON, April 9. (Canadian Press).—Six of the principal steamship companies that handle migration from these shores have notified their agents that the Canadian Government has intimated that already there is a considerable over supply of applicants for farms this year, there being a limit to the number of farms preparable for immigrants for say one year.

It has been found necessary indeed to ask many families to defer sailing until 1927.

"This has reference only to the 3,000 family setlement scheme," it was stated at the Department of Immigration and Colonization this morning, with regarding to the statement that there is a considerable over supply of applicants for farms this year in Canada.

Five hundred families, it is pointed out, were settled under this scheme last year and preparations were made this year for the placing of 1,000 additional families. The department, it is stated, is taking every precaution to see that the farms provided this year under the scheme will not in any way be poorer than those on which these family settlers were placed last year. However, it is expected that more than 100 further farms will be made available and that the number of settlers under the "3,000 family settlement scheme" this year will be over 1,000. The balance of the 3,000 families will be placed next year.

RIOTS CONTINUE.

One Man Killed and Twelve Badly Hurt in Calcutta.

CALCUTTA, British India, April 9. (Canadian Press.)—Disturbances continued in Calcutta today. One Mohammedan was killed in a street scuffle and ten Mohammedans and two Hindus were severely injured. The city is still panicky with continual false reports of assaults and desecrations of temples and mosques.

PRESENTATION TO LADY LEAVING CITY

Mrs. C. W. Walker Given Purse of Gold By Her Neighbors.

About forty neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mrs. C. Walker, 571 Elm St., Monday evening and gave her a very pleasant surprise in the form of a farewell before her departure from the city.

Mrs. Walker, who has resided in the city for the past twenty years, has made many warm friends through her kindness and charity. She was what might be termed a ministering angel in time of sickness and sorrow and there are many homes in Peterborough which will long remember her kind acts and words of comfort.

She and her son Leonard leave this week to join her eldest son Patrick, and make their home in Detroit. Another son, Charles, is convalescing after a lengthy illness, in Fort Qu-Appelle, Sask., and his old friends here hope he will soon be able to join his mother and brothers.

The evening was pleasantly spent in cards and music, after which a dainty lunch was served by the ladies. Mrs. Walker was then presented with a well worded address, read by Mrs. P. Collins, accompanied by a purse of money, presented by Mrs. R. Torpey, on behalf of the neighbors and friends.

Following is the address:

Dear Mrs. Walker,—We have heard the sad news that you are leaving us and we, your neighbors who know your worth, have assembled here this evening to tell you that we are very sorry to hear of your going.

You have long been with us in our joys and in our sorrows, and when sickness visited us your charity knew no bounds. You were ever ready to lend a helping hand in all our needs and we know we are losing one of God's best gifts to man, a charitable and loving friend.

In the bearing of the cross which our dear Lord has sent you, you have won our admiration by your cheerful acceptance and perfect trust in Divine Providence.

We assure you that if the ties which bind you to us as a neighbor are to be broken there are wishes of gratitude and affection which time can never sever. Our best wishes go with you and your estimable boys wherever you go and we fondly hope the future has in store for us the pleasure of welcoming you back to our midst. As a little token of our friendship and esteem we ask you to accept this little gift laden with our best wishes for health, success and happiness.

"We have known your toil and labor,
All the burden of your task,
And the love with which you did it,
And a blessing fond we ask:
That the God of love reward you,
As only He can do,
With the choicest of His blessings,
This our fondest wish for you.

Mrs. Walker, who was almost overcome with surprise and grief at leaving her old friends, thanked one and all briefly. Leonard, on behalf of his mother and himself, spoke very feelingly of the pleasure it afforded him to have such kindness and honor shown his mother.

Short speeches were made by Messrs. R. French, J. Galvin, J. Grisdale, W. Perdue, J. Kearney, J. Roach, T. Turcott, each expressing their sorrow at losing such a good neighbor and friend.

The evening was brought to a close by sad farewells and best wishes for their good health and prosperity in their new home. All joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows."

MANY PASSENGERS.

Six Big Liners Expected at Halifax During the Week End.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 9.—(Canadian Press).—Six large trans Atlantic liners are due to reach Halifax this week end with 2,142 passengers. It will likely be the last heavy week end arrival of liners this season.

JEWS RETURNING TO ANCIENT HOME

Rev. E. O. Jago Addresses Big Congregation at Tabernacle.

The presence of some of the Jewish people in this city and every city of the world today, attests the authority, inspiration and the infallibility of the Bible," said Rev. E. O. Jago, on Wednesday, in his address on the "Return of the Jews to Palestine as the lastsign of the end of time and the coming of the Lord."

That a deep interest prevails in the thoughts of many people, in the fulfillment of the prophecies of the Word of God, and now especially, in those relating to the ancient people, the Jews, was manifest by the large company that gathered in Bethany Tabernacle last night to hear Rev. E. O. Jago, a veteran missionary to Palestine.

T. G. Watson ably presided over the meeting last evening.

The Bethany Male Quartette rendered a pleasing selection.

Mr. Jago in his stirring address last night, after he had given a brief review of his message of the night before, said, "A great many people think that when the Roman soldier threw his lighted torch into the beautiful temple of Jerusalem and it went up in smoke, when the Roman legions took and sacked the city and many of the sons and daughters were taken as slaves, that that marked the end of the Jewish race, that God had no more plans for them. The word of God greatly refutes such a position. The great apostle Paul said, "God hath not cast away his people which He foreknew. They are in a parenthesis now, said the speaker. They are present here and in other lands for two reasons, first as a judgment, second to show the early coming of the Lord when that mysterious restlessness and longing comes into their hearts for the homes of their ancient fathers and they return to Jerusalem and Palestine. Thi s is happening all over the world. Palestine is recovering its sons and daughters at the rate of four thousand per month. The speaker said: "It comes from good authority that upward of a million are ready to migrate en masse from Poland if the country would recieve them.

"If it can be shown that the present world-wide movement of the Jew in returning to Palestine indicates that the day of the Lord's coming is nigh it will influence every relationship of your life—home, social, business, and your christian life."

Mr. Jago said it is a well known fact to Bible students that frequent repetitions attests the importance of a doctrine. He mentioned the two ordinances as being accepted by evangelical churches and a rich blessing to the Christians, but comparatively little is said about them in the word of God. Yet we accept them. But aside from the doctrine of salvation the doctrine of the day of the Lord's coming is mentioned more than any other. Over 300 times it is mentioned in the New Testament. The Jew and the coming of the Lord to earth simply cannot be separated.

Mr. Jago referred to the words of Jesus concerning the "Parable of the fig tree," saying, the "fig tree" was a sign—a type and that it represented the national Israel, not spiritual Israel but national Israel. Referring again to the vision of the valley of dry bones in Ezekiel 37 the speaker potrayed the resuscitation of those bones—prefiguring the restored Israel, a nation again in her own land. Mr. Jago said when he went to Palestine in 1903 he found only a small number of Jews and they were old men and women who were ready to die. Because of taxation the young men had left the country. But in 1908 through the young Turk steps were taken to put away the age-long animosities between Christian and Turk and a new day dawned and from that year to the present Jews have been returning to Palestine, this movement being greatly accelerated under the British mandate.

Mr. Jago said while the Turks have repudiated the Caliph of Islam and are only nominally Mohammedans, they are at heart communistic. They have turned from one master to a worse one.

Wherever the blazed trail leads, there you will find lovers of life in the open wearing—for comfort and health—garments of

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

MARION DAVIES
Whose beautiful hair enhances her charms

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

Candelilla wax, used in making candles and polishes, is obtained from a weed which grows abundantly in northern Mexico.

Healthy Mothers! Healthy Children!

Mrs. Phebe Claus

Hamilton, Ont.—"I wish I were able to convey to every weak and ailing woman the value of Dr. Pierce's wonderful medicines and what they have done for me. I am the mother of six children and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was the only medicine I ever took during expectancy. I always got along fine, it kept me so well and strong that I was able to do my work right up to the last and I did not suffer with any of the troubles that come to most women at that time. Also I had very little suffering. My children were all healthy and strong and I regained my strength very quickly afterwards. HOME-MAKING HELPS

AN APRIL UMBRELLA PARTY

This is a dainty dinner dance, and invitations should be written on umbrella-shaped cards.

If the dinner is served at small tables holding two or four, each table may have a different color in decorations. If one large table is used, when the lace banquet cloth is laid, or the dainty table set is placed, a centrepiece of Spring hyacinths can be arranged. An oblong shallow gilt basket is lovely to put them in. Tall candlesticks with different colored candles in them add the decorations. Select after dinner peppermints that come in yellow, violet, green, orange, white, pink and red. Mix celery, olives and radishes in small quantities in individual baskets, and serve salted nuts in pink papier mache rose petals at each plate.

The rest of the decorations should be in keeping with the idea of the dinner. Cunning little boys or girls holding over their heads large umbrellas can be used for the place cards. And, if you wish, little favors such as tiny umbrellas, little bathing dolls and gay colored snappers with mottoes inside can be placed at each plate.

Individual service is always most attractive for this sort of a dinner and the jellies and foods should be colored and garnished to heighten the color scheme wherever possible.

The dinner should be light and simple in selection where a dance follows so quickly. Buffet refreshments are all that are expected after the dance. Sandwiches and coffee, ice cream and cake will be quite sufficient. Many people are serving fruit salad, toast fingers and coffee only. Fruit punch for the dancers is always acceptable.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Apples, cereal cooked with figs, thin cream, poached eggs on graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Left-over lamb baked with rice, spinach, orange cake pudding, whole wheat bread, milk, tea.

Dinner—Broiled porterhouse steak, French fried potatoes, creamed cauliflower, date and orange salad, graham rolls, rice pudding, milk, coffee.

The luncheon dish of rice and lamb uses up the "left-over" from the previous dinner. The dessert is also a left-over of sorts in that it uses stale sponge cake for its foundation. Left-overs often prove a difficult problem for many women, particularly those with "steak and roast" husbands. If, by clever manipulation, left-overs are used up for the noon meal, friend husband may continue to enjoy his steaks and roasts and by the same token "son" be taught to eat those dishes his father scorns.

Orange Cake Pudding.

Two cups stale sponge cake crumbs, 1 cup milk, 1 cup orange juice, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, 4 tablespoons sugar, 3 eggs. The cake should be pulled into coarse crumbs. Combine sugar and grated orange rind. Pour milk over crumbs and add sugar Beat eggs until very light and stir into first mixture. Add orange juice, mix thoroughly and turn into a buttered baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven for forty minutes or until firm to the touch. Serve warm or cold with or without whipped cream. A boiled custard sauce is good with this pudding.

IN MY OPINION

Back in "gramma's" day, frolicsome "gran'pa's" pinching grand-daughter's arms, remarked something about new dresses for Christmas "if you'll put a little fat on your bones."

"Gran'pa's" standard of feminine beauty is returning. The latest proof comes from none less than a bishop of the church who offers a prize to the girl in Central College, Missouri, who adds the most poundage during the scholastic year.

The counts of France can almost be counted on the hand, warns the Paris police, preparing for the annual deluge of count-hunting American females. Police explain that thousands of bogus counts "rope in" rich American women every year with their stolen titles. And what a good time the fake counts have among themselves when, gathered about the old camp fire, they translate their titles into English—Count of Sausage; Count of Hairpins; Count of Pretzels; Count of Cabbage.

TABLE CHATTER

The gentle art of concersation is almost dead, comments a continental madame whose solons once echoed the babel of many tongues. She explains that loud jazz which drowns out talk, the deep concentration required by bridge and mah-jong and cross-word puzzles, the lack of vocal exercise as one listens to the radio, have turned the trick.

Now all that remains is for a scientist to discover that our entire vocal apparatus is ossifying.

YE BEAUTY

"And beauty draws us with a single hair," a poetical wisecracker once arose to remark. Perfectly true but it depends on where the single hair is! None of us waxeth poetical o'er its discovery in the restaurant pie, nor straying harridan-wise from the pate.

Many of "us girls" who are leeting the bobbed hair grow up into a big girl now, have this harridan trouble. Movie stars are doing it like this: Wear head-bands of crepe or silk handkerchiefs of Roman ribbon to match the gown.

YE STYLE!

Good news from the fashion front! The coat and dress must not positively, absolutely, be so chummy as in yesteryear when every good coat's lining matched the dress with which it was worn. Coats, in fact, are quite a contrast with the gown worn beneath. Black taffeta coats, for instance, with a blue print dress.

"FOR BETTER OR WORSE"

Spring weddings in the air! "What'll I Do?" is the question on many a palpitating future bride and groom's lips. Here's an answer to one of these what'll-I-do's: When neither parent nor any very immediate relative of the bride is alive to announce the wedding, the twain do it themselves, with the girl's name first, thus:

"Miss Mabel Anne Brown and
Mr. W. Blake Adams, have the honour of announcing their marriage on Tuesday, the third of May Nineteen hundred and twenty-six
At Concord
Massachusetts."

HER OWN WAY by A GIRL of TODAY

THE FINISHING TOUCH

Even when, soon after, Madame Seria introduced me to Mr. Tremaine and graciously consented to chaperon me at dinner that night, I did not suspect anything.

Of course I knew that Lola Lawrence did not come to the shop any more and it never entered my mind that Mr. Tremaine and Miss Lawrence had broken with each other. I knew that Mr. Tremaine liked Madame Seria very much, consequently there seemed nothing out of place when he invited us to dinner.

As soon as Mr. Tremaine left the shop, Madame asked me if I had a pretty evening frock. I told her that I did not have one, pretty or otherwise.

We went into the large room where the stock was kept and she looked the dresses over critically. She finally picked out a gorgeous black velvet dinner dress, very decollete. I had worn that dress once for Lola Lawrence and Mr. Tremaine had been with her and I remember feeling perfectly naked.

Madame, however, seemed to think it was all right, for she said: "I think, Mamie, this with that ermine wrap will look lovely on you and I'll lend it to you for the evening, my dear."

"Dear Madame Seria," I said tremblingly. "I know it is perfectly sweet of you to deck me out so wonderfully but I wouldn't feel at all comfortable in the black gown. I am sure I have nothing of my own that is good enough if that black velvet is suitable but may I wear that charming little silver tissue frock with its sleeveless blouse and pleated skirt, and its silver coat trimmed with sealskin stripes around the bottom?"

For answer Madame Seria called a maid and in a few minutes I had on the very latest gown that Madame had received from the customs house.

"Are you sure you want to lend it to me, Madame? Perhaps it will be a good advertisement," I added.

I did not know that that costume had already been sold as Mr. Tremaine had left an order with Madame that I was to have any evening costume in the establishment that I might choose.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

THE CARE OF THE "BABY TEETH"

Paradoxically speaking, the care of baby's teeth should begin before they arrive.

A soft cloth should be used daily to cleanse the gums and keep them healthy before the coming of the little teeth.

Symptoms of tooth eruption in the young child are, as a rule, not lacking. Locally there will be slight inflammation, with swelling; the area in which the tooth will erupt showing a tenseness and shinyness of tissue. The child will exhibit a tendency to bite at anything such as its toes, fingers, etc., and evidence a general irritability and restlessness, accompanied, possibly, by a slight fever.

Should the eruption of the tooth seem too tardy and cause the child considerable pain, the family dentist should be consulted.

As soon as the first tooth has erupted the use of the mouth cloth should be supplanted by a soft brush, using clear water in the daily brushing. Later, when the child has reached the age when it will not swallow everything that is put in its mouth, a little good dental cream may be put on the brush.

However, along with these efforts, attention should be given to a correct diet, and the parent should insist on proper mastication of its food by the child.

Little children should not be allowed to eat candy or other sweets; they are ruinous to the young teeth.

It would not be too early to take the child to the dentist at two and a half years of age, and thereafter at intervals of from three to six months, as may prove necessary. In this way, small cavities can be detected early and treated with practically no discomfort to the child, and so the teeth are preserved from further and extensive decay.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A DEBUTANTE'S SPRING COSTUME

Pam is a great favorite with the young girls who come in to order frocks at Madame's.

This morning, Miss Pattie Brown, a debutante of this Winter, came dancing in and asked for the saleswoman who usually serves her, with a special request that Pam should show the things.

At Madame's, it takes at least two people to serve a client, the saleswoman, and the manikin who wears the clothes that are under inspection.

"You know the kind of thing I like," Miss Brown announced to them both. "And it's some kind of street costume I'm interested in just now—anything that would be rather good to wear for afternoon and to tea."

This was enough, and the saleswoman suggested that Pam show some of the satin cape costumes that Madame is featuring just now for her very young set.

"I don't know what color I'd like," the young thing rambled on, "just show me what colors you have."

This was enough, and Pam departed to have the wardrobe mistress get out her very youngest-looking things.

The costumes she finally decided on I'm going to draw here in my diary.

There's simply a brown satin skirt, slightly on the circular. With this is worn a beige satin overblouse, with a narrow brown satin belt fastened with a buckle.

The cape is a dream. It's beige satin, lined with the brown, and cut on a dipping circular line, so that it flies back and reveals the contrast of the lining.

After this was chosen, the milliner came up, and they decided on a little beige satin hat with brown and gold embroidery against the crown.

Beige and Brown Satin Are Combine in This Tunic Frock and Cape.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER NINE—THE BOX OF SPRING CLOTHES.

"Jumping Jemima!" cried Mister Tingaling waking up suddenly and looking at his watch. "It's twenty minutes after the day before yesterday! What's happened?"

Nancy stretched and yawned, and Nick yawned and stretched. Then they opened their eyes, too.

"Why—it's—we—" cried Nick, jumping up and looking around in a dazed way. "I think—oh, don't you remember? We're in Mister Ringtail Coon's sun-parlor listening to his radio."

"Listening to the Sand Man, you mean," said Mister Tingaling. "We've all been sound asleep on this big soft davenport, so we have, and nary a cent of rent have we collected. Mister Coon, oh, Mister Coon! Where's your rent, Mister Coon? We must be going. We liked your radio concert very much, but we must be going. Where's your rent?"

But all the answer he got was the wind going woo! woooo! through the tree branches.

"I'm very much afraid, children," said the little fairyman sadly, "that we've been cheated. And my pocketbook is as flat as ever."

"Say," suddenly said a squeaky little voice, "What's all the trouble about?"

There stood Corny and Cobby Coon, Ringtail's nephews, who were always around when they were not wanted, but never around when they were.

"We missed your uncle some way," said Nick, "and now Mister Tingaling can't collect his rent. He's the fairy landlord, you know."

"That's too bad," said Corny Coon. "It's certainly too bad! We have a great deal of trouble with our uncle, don't we, Cobby? He has the forgetfullest memory you ever saw. He's always forgetting something. And now it's his rent."

"Yes, sir, and this is one of my most expensive apartments," said the fairy. "One of my most."

At that very minute there was a knock at the door, and a little pigeon-toed fairy errand boy handed in a big box.

"It's for Mister Ringtail Coon," said the little fairy errand boy," from Snip Scissors, the tailor."

Snip Scissors was the fairyman who did all the tailoring for the people of Out-of-Door Land.

Nick was wide awake by this time. The minute he saw the box he had an idea.

"What's that?" he asked.

"Uncle Ring's new spring clothes," said Corny. "He's been expecting them every day. And now they're here."

"May we borrow them for a minute or two?" asked Nick.

"Sure. Help yourself!" said Corny sliding down the tree to the ground.

Cobby followed.

"You'll find Uncle Ring up the creek most likely, if you want him," they called. "He likes fish for his supper and he generally goes there about this time every day to catch it."

With that they were off like the harum scarums they were.

"Now, what's your great idea, young, I'd like to know," said Tingaling to Nick. "Why did you ask for Mister Coon's box of spring clothes?"

"I only borrowed them," said Nick. "If you want Ringtail Coon to pay his rent, I think I know how to make him." And he whispered his plan into the fairyman's ear.

"You don't say so!" cried Mister Tingaling.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

George S. Oliver, publisher of The Pittsburgh Gazette-Times and Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph, says:

THAT next to the food you eat and air you breathe, the newspaper is about the most vital thing in your life. Without a picture of events of the world as mirrored in the newspaper, human society would still be groping in darkness and ignorance, their acts animated by rumor, doubt, fear and superstition.

THAT the newspaper, along with the church and school, is one of the greatest factors for human advancement. It is the vehicle upon which progress, social, commercial, industrial, rides forward. Its influence is stupendous and incalculable.

THAT Coupled with the newspaper has also come the development of modern advertising which is the mainstay and guiding star of modern business, particularly retail business.

THAT of all kinds of advertising, newspaper advertising is the most powerful and effective, because it reaches the home regularly and impresses its message when the reader is in the most receptive mood to receive it. Newspaper advertising is not only the great asset of the progressive merchant, but in these days it is depended upon as a household economy for the thrifty housewife in guiding her to save time and money in making the purchases for the family.

It is generally believed newspaper advertising is still in its infancy even though metropolitan dailies carry from twenty to thirty million lines a year. Its development I believe will continue because it is one of the most potent forces of modern times for advancement of business along sound economic lines.

GREAT HINDU POET

"I am nearing the end of my journey and my feet are weary," said Rabindranath Tagore, the great Indian poet and philosopher, in a recent speech. He is now seriously ill, and the anxiety caused by his condition is heightened by what many people take to have been a prophecy of his approaching death. Tagore was invited to Canada some months ago, but said he would never come because of the treatment afforded his people by Canadians.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

When is a man old? Do the years he has had or the birthdays he has celebrated, determine his age? Is a woman old when grandchildren come to bless her?

By no means!

Years, birthdays and the age of grandchildren mean nothing disagreeable. They should be of no more significance than the notches in the cog-wheel of a clock. When enough notches have been passed, it indicates the completion of one cycle, but another begins at once. There isn't the slightest pause.

A birthday should be nothing more than an excuse for a family celebration. When so regarded it is a glorious holiday. Don't begin to mourn because you have had sixty, or seventy, or eighty birthdays. Go on living as if you expected to have just as many more.

You are as old as your spirit and your will to live. You are as old or as young as your state of health.

If you have permitted your organs to become clogged and to grow old, you are really old. If you have so lived and directed your acts as to keep your organs young, you are young in spite of eighty or ninety birthdays.

To be old, really and truly old, is a calamity. I can see how distressing and unhappy must be such a state.

But whose fault it is if you grow old?

You go through those wonderful old villages in Massachusetts. Here are some of the very oldest of American homes. But they don't look old. Such painstaking care has been practiced through the centuries that the buildings are just about as good as they were when they were built. They remain young.

On the other hand, examine a building erected in 1876, fifty years ago. It has never been painted. The loose clapboards have never been nailed down. The broken chimney and the damaged shingles have permitted the elements to enter the building. The plaster is cracked and has fallen off in places. The floors are warped and the foundations are undermined. It is an old, old house.

It is the fault of the owner if his house grows old. It is the fault of the owner if his body grows old.

If a man mistreated his horse as many a man mistreats his body, he would be haled into Court by the Association for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. He would be fined fifty dollars and might even be sent to jail.

The modern city woman does not intend to grow old. Whatever may be said in criticism of the modern flapper in her teens, cannot be passed upon her flapper mother or grandmother. At least I shall not criticise. I am glad to see women of advanced years making an effort to look young.

I should be sorry, however, to have anybody depend on paint and powder for a mere appearance of youth. That is all a fraud, although a very pleasant one at times, I admit. But when by tub, shower and needle baths, by electric cabinet and massage, by swimming, horseback riding and brisk walking, by systematic daily exercises—when these methods are used to keep young, I stand by and applaud.

More depends on simple eating, abundance of sleep and fresh air, than upon most other factors. When these are the rule in every life, years will slip by with little effect upon the welfare of the sensible follower of plain living.

By keeping the mouth and teeth, and the digestive tract in good order, you may look forward to a long, long life and to a useful and effective life.

THREE-MINUTE JOURNEYS

Temple Manning

WHERE EGGS MUST BEDUG UP OUT OF THE SAND.

To those of us who live in great cities with several stores on each block, perhaps, or at least many within easy distance, the search for food does not seem a very important matter. We know that if we have the money with which to make purchases, our troubles in that direction are over.

It is a simple matter for a modern housewife to send a servant or a child to the corner store when she suddenly finds that she has run short of eggs.

But when a native Borneo woman finds that she needs eggs, she faces a more difficult problem. She must send her husband a-hunting for them and the process may take a good deal of time. He starts out with a boat and a rod, but no definite destination.

Up the river he rows and finally secures his boat and climbs up the sloping bank of the river. Then his real work begins.

For you must understand that the eggs he is seeking are not chicken's eggs, such as we use, but turtle's egg. A turtle usually lays about one hundred eggs at a time and sometimes she even lays a hundred and three. But she is wiser than the chicken and she buries her eggs beneath the sand. The hole she digs for them is about three feet deep.

Therefore, you can see how difficult would be the task of the food-hunter, if the sands have blown over and obliterated all traces of the turtle. But if there is no trace, he must walk along slowly, prodding the sands with his rod until he thinks he has found the eggs he seeks.

You see the shell of the turtle egg is not very heavy nor thick and the inside, though tough, is soft. Therefore, he cannot prod too roughly, yet he must send his rod sufficiently far into the ground to determine the presence of the treasure. And so the work is tedious and slow.

The turtles which lay these eggs are tremendous—so large indeed, that they can carry a man on their backs without seeming to realize his presence. And the eggs too are large. But it is only the yolk of them which is really edible. The rest is tough and unpalatable.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

A DAY IN THE NURSERY

The little mistress entered, set down a new doll in the little red chair and ran out, closing the door after her.

For a few minutes all was quiet in the nursery, then up popped the lovely French Doll.

"Well, for goodness' sake! What kind of a scarecrow are you?" she asked, her little French nose up in the air. "What did our mistress bring you in here for?"

At this remark, Raggedy Jane lifted her old faded head from the pillow on which she had been resting and shook out her yarn hair. She looked over at the red chair. There, sitting as quietly as you please, was a queer, little doll.

She was just about ten inches tall. Her funny long slender face with its slanting eyes looked as if she were frightened and ready to cry. Her head and hands were made of wood. Instead of a bonnet like French Doll wore, this queer little dolly had gold stuff and beads fastened to her black painted hair. Her blue smock was all embroidered in gold, pink and red, with white fur around the bottom of it. Under this smock, reaching to her wooden ankles, were bright red pants trimmed in gold. Her wooden feet were covered with silk slippers.

Raggedy Jane had never seen such a queer looking dolly. But she felt very sorry for her and ran over to her side and shook her wooden hand.

"I came from China."
